CHOLERA AT NEW YORK'S DOORS

The Dread Scourge on Board the Moravia at Lower Quarantine.

STRENUOUS EFFORTS TO PREVENT ITS ENTRANCE INTO THE CITY.

There Were Twenty-four Cases of the Disease on Board the Ship, and of These Twenty-two Proved Fatal—Orders Given to Shoot Persons Attempting to Board the Moravia, Unless They Are Health Officers—The Plague in Other Places—Slight Abatement at Hamburg.

NEW YORK, Sep. 1.—Dr. Jenkins, the Health Officer for the Port of New York, is a much worried man. There is no doubt now that the disease the steamship Moravia brought with her is the dreaded Asiatic cholera, and from this time forward the closest vigil will be kept at the lower stations down the harbor to prevent the disease from getting as near as Quarantine.

Although the Moravia arrived early yesterday morning, she was not sent from the upper to lower Quarantine with the yellow flag flying until almost noon. She came from Hamburg, and 22 deaths occurred during the 10 days she was on the ocean. Two patients, both adults, are recovering from the dreaded disease on board ship.

The Moravia is now at lower Quarantine, and with her passengers will not be released from the eyes of the Health authorities until every means is employed in stamping out the dreaded plague. Dr. Jenkins is hopeful that he will be able to keep the cholera away from the city of New York.

He has ordered the transfer of the Moravia's passengers to Hoffman Island, and will not only make a personal examination of the disease as it is aboard the ship, but will also confer with the Health authorities of this city and consider ways and means to keep it from entering the city. More vessels will arrive this week from Hamburg.

It is probable that further deaths will be reported, and cases in their worst form it is now conceded may arrive within the next few days. The situation is serious. Unless all immigration from infected ports is stopped, it is not believed that this country is safe, and it is believed now that this step will be taken.

On Aug. 18 the Moravia sailed. On the following day the cholera broke out and the first death took place within twenty-four hours. The disease spread rapidly among the ship's 286 steerage passengers. There were no cabin passengers. The children suffered most, and by Aug. 29 the number of deaths had reached the total of 22. Of these two were adults and 20 children. They suffered much pain and their deaths were those which are peculiar to cholera.

The death list was made up of 13 natives of Poland, 3 natives of Hesse, 1 native of Austria, and 5 of Prussia. They were all buried at sea.

At the present time there are three cases of measles, and two women are recovering from slight attacks of the disease. The entire steerage comes from the infected district.

Including himself, Dr. Jenkins has five physicians who will handle the disease. He said this morning to a reporter: "I am responsible myself for what happens. The doctors who will work with me are Tallmadge, Byron and Sanborn. I have also one other man. We will attend to these cases personally, and propose to make an investigation this afternoon. We require no outside assistance."

Dr. Jenkins was inclined to be noncommittal when questioned further, and would not say that the disease could be effectually stamped out.

In view of the fact that there are other vessels due from Hamburg in this port on and before Saturday, it is extremely probable that there will be further importations of the disease. The incoming vessels from Hamburg, if they arrive after sundown, will be boarded at once, and will not be allowed to anchor above the Narrows for the night.

No one will be allowed to board the Moravia except the health authorities, and orders were left with her captain to shoot any one who attempted it.

The saloon passengers of the Teutonic left the steamer last evening after each one had made a declaration of his route while abroad. The baggage and mails have been disinfected. The steerage passengers will undergo a thorough cleansing to day.

The steerage passengers of the Circassia were on Hoffman Island until night, where they were bathed and their clothes disinfected.

Health Officer Jenkins, with Dr. Byron, the bacteriologist who was appointed to take charge of Swinburne Island Hospital, visited that place yesterday afternoon. A laboratory will be established and a large corps of nurses employed immediately to care for patients who may be brought there.

Trainmen in Germany Supplied With Medicines to Treat Cholera.

BERLIN, Sep. 1.—The "Reichsanzeiger" states that all guards on passenger trains are to be provided with a mixture of laudanum and ether, with instructions to administer from twenty to thirty drops of the liquid to any person seized with cholera symptoms while traveling.

The "Reichsanzeiger" declares that the reports of the inadequate supervision of passengers from Hamburg is due to a mistaken idea that all such passengers should be examined, whereas the examination is necessary only of persons showing symptoms of illness.

THE SCOURGE IN LIVERPOOL.

Steamship Companies Refuse to Take Passengers from Infected Districts.

LONDON, Sep. 1.—The Liverpool steamship companies have refused to take as passengers any foreigners who come from places infected with cholera.

General Platt, the American Consul at Cork, has notified the agents of the trans-Atlantic lines that passengers whose effects are not thoroughly purified with sulphur will not be allowed to land in the United States.

The companies announce that all baggage will be subjected to fumigation for six hours. The disinfecting process will be under the inspection of American officials.

The four Russian emigrants who were stricken with cholera just as they were about to depart to the United States were isolated at Parkhill hospital. One died last night.

The place is excellently situated for complete isolation, the grounds about the hospital being fifteen acres in extent and well guarded against intrusion.

The baggage of all emigrants destined for America was fumigated in presence of the American consul and the sanitary officers of Liverpool.

The consul having expressed himself satisfied with the disinfection, the consular seal was affixed to the baggage thus treated, and this was made a necessary preliminary before taking the baggage on board.

One of the suspected cases of cholera at Islington has proved fatal.

The members of the crew of the steamer Gerona, from Hamburg, who are sick with supposed cholera, are improving.

PANIC-STRICKEN HAMBURG.

The Exodus Continues—Slight Decrease in Deaths and New Cases.

HAMBURG, Sep. 1.—The air is cooler to-day. Reports to the Board of Health show the development of 713 fresh cases and 276 deaths. This is a decrease since yesterday of 97 in the number of cases developed and of 43 in the number of deaths.

The people of the city feel no encouragement, however, to expect on this account the immediate abatement of the disease. So many hopes have been raised by official announcements in the last week, only to be shattered within the next 24 hours, that public confidence is entirely gone.

The panic seems to have taken complete possession of the city. Everybody who can is leaving or preparing to leave. Several keepers of the largest hotels contemplate closing their houses should the plague be at its present height on Saturday. Shops are closing by the score, either because cholera has appeared among the employes, or because the proprietors have feared to remain in town to conduct their business.

No accurate estimate of the numbers leaving the city daily is to to be had, but they are now well up in the thousands. Railways running to Loubeck, Rostock and other seaside towns are crowded at all hours, although extra cars have been attached to all of them.

MAY STOP IMMIGRATION.

Possibly the Government Will Take the Initiative.

NEW YORK, Sep. 1.—It is now likely that other steamship companies will follow the example of the Hamburg-American Packet Company and cease carrying immigrants to this port until all danger is passed. This subject was discussed in downtown steamship circles yesterday, and will probably bear fruit.

It was suggested elsewhere that the United States Government should demand of all steamship companies, in case the latter fail to take the initiative, that they stop all immigration traffic for a time.

Several agents were interviewed on this point yesterday, but refrained from giving their opinions, and said that a conference of steamship men would probably be called to consider the question.

Editor and Reporters Arrested.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., Sep. 1.—Mr. Goddard, the city editor of the "World," and four of his staff of reporters on the towboat J. W. Husted attempted to visit the steamer Moravia in the lower bay last evening. They were placed under arrest by Dr. Tallmadge and brought before Health Officer Jenkins. As they did not succeed in boarding the steamer the health officer discharged them with a reprimand.

MISS BORDEN'S CHANCES

Materially Improved by the Testimony Yesterday.

ARGUMENTS OF COUNSEL TO-DAY.

Close of the Defense—Criticisms on the Government's Case—Medical Testimony in Rebuttal of the Prosecution's Theories—Sympathy for the Accused Growing.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sep. 1.—There is no abatement in the size of the crowd which has daily attended the hearing of Lizzie Borden. The court room was crowded as usual this morning, long before the prosecution started to sum up its case.

The defence in the case has shown its line of argument, and there are a great many people in this city who believe that it is based on fairly sound reasoning. There are many more persons talking about the weakness of the government's case than have been heard for some time.

It has been shown by reputable witnesses, such as Mrs. Chagnon and her daughter, that a strange noise was heard in their yard at 11 o'clock the night preceding the day of the murder, that might have been made by a man climbing the fence and moving about the buildings in the rear of their house. They were frightened by unusual sounds to such an extent that Miss Martha, the daughter, declined to go into the cellar even to look out.

Other witnesses, among them Dr. Handy, testified to having seen strange looking men in the neighborhood, while a man of sound common sense, like Alfred Clarkson, the steam fitter, says the hay in the barn had been stepped in, and looked as if it had been lain in.

Jerome C. Borden showed how easy it was to enter the Borden house by the front door, and the testimony of Mrs. Brigham shows that it is possible to enter the door provided one of the inmates does not slip the bolt or turn the key, without depending on the spring lock which does not spring.

Yesterday's record of the butchery as given by Dr. Draper, has given rise to grave doubts whether the terrible wounds could have been inflicted by a woman, more particularly by a woman who, since and before the tragedy, has shown not the slightest symptoms of insanity.

As sympathy turns to the defendant there is heard more criticism of the way she was treated at the inquest. It is charged that the report of the inquest shows to have been a direct examination, followed by as severe cross-examination as ever seen in a criminal trial, the whole effort appearing to be to force Miss Lizzie to convict herself, and that after the government was satisfied that she had gone far enough to do this the arrest was made.

The inquest came to an abrupt ending, and has never come to a formal end so far as the public have been able to learn. As the evidence at the inquest has come to light these critics of the prosecution do not see how the arrest was warranted by it. The general impression seems to be that Miss Lizzie should be kept on the rack there.

There is also commented upon that at three different times she was called before the inquest, and each time was compelled to go unattended by counsel to meet officials who were suspicious of her guilt, and whose whole effort seemed to be to secure damaging testimony from the witness against herself.

The first witness called was Marshal Rufus B. Hilliard, who said that his attention was called to the murder at 11:15, Aug. 4. He sent Officer George W. Allen to the house, and did not go to the house himself until 2:30 or 3 in the afternoon.

The next officer sent was Doharty, then Mullaly, Medley, Gillon, Wilson and others he could not remember.

When witness went at 3 o'clock he went with some men to search the barn and yards in that vicinity, but he knew nothing about the matter except from what he had been told by Medley and Fleet, and, he thought, Reilly.

Reilly is not in town now, but has been sent to look after evidence that Rev. Mr. Buck placed in his hands, following out some supposed clue in connection with this murder, but witness declined to state what.

When he arrived there he went to the back of the yard and made a thorough search and then went into the house.

The other witnesses examined were Dr. Frank Winthrop Draper, Dr. Benjamin J. Handy, Mrs. Delia Smalley, Mrs. D. Chagnon, Miss Martha Chagnon, John Donnelly, Arthur Clarkson, John Morse and Mrs. Dr. Bowen, and then the defense rested.

Chancellor McGill's Orders Obeyed.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 1.—The officials of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and of the Port Reading Railroad Company have been served by Attorney-General Stockton of New Jersey with notices to relinquish the operation of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and to turn over the property to the directors of the latter company, which was accordingly done. This was in accordance with the recent decision of Chancellor McGill. The Jersey Central officials were served with similar documents.

Iron Hall Receiver for New Jersey.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 1.—Vice-Chancellor Bird has appointed Thomas P. Curley of Camden a receiver of the Iron Hall, to wind up its affairs in New Jersey. Mr. Curley will be required to furnish bonds in the sum of $200,000. It is estimated that the sum involved in this State is about $100,000.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

The Funeral to Be Held To-Morrow—Sketch of His Career.

NEW BRIGHTON, S. I., Sep. 1.—The funeral of the late George William Curtis will be held to-morrow, at 1:30 p. m., and will be simple and quite private. The burial will be at the Moravian Cemetery, New Dorp. The death of the famous orator and man of letters, which occurred yesterday morning at 3:30, was very sudden.

Mr. Curtis's death was painless. He was conscious up to within a few minutes of the end. Then he sank into semi-unconsciousness, but still showed that he knew when anyone spoke to him. Just as he died he muttered something unintelligible and his head fell over upon his breast.

Mrs. Curtis, his wife, and his only living daughter, Elizabeth, were in the house at the time, but Dr. Curtis did not summon them to the side of the dying man. He said he believed his father knew that he was about to die.

Mr. Curtis had not been out of the chair in which he died for the past six weeks. His illness had all along been a puzzle to the physicians, and it is not known exactly what was the cause of death.

As the family have decided that no postmortem shall be held, it will probably remain a mystery always.

Dr. Curtis, his son, said that it might have been cancer of the stomach, tuberculosis or chronic peritonitis. He has maintained all along that the disease was not cancer.

Mr. Curtis became ill the latter part of last June. He managed to keep up, however, and did his work for "Harper's Weekly" and "Harper's Monthly." About the middle of July, however, his sickness became so serious that he had to stop work.

His friends wanted him to take to his bed, but he steadfastly refused, and insisted on sitting in the easy chair in which he died.

Although he has written nothing since he became seriously ill, he had kept ahead with his work, and his writings appeared in the current editions of the "Weekly" and "Monthly."

He usually spent the warm months at his summer home in Ashford, Mass., but his poor health this season prevented him from going there. His son said this morning that the family had not doubted for some time that death was near at hand.

Mr. Curtis had lived on Staten Island for more than thirty years. He married Miss Anna Shaw, the daughter of Frank G. Shaw, who owned at one time the greater part of the Island. His home is at the corner of Bard avenue and Henderson.

Mr. Curtis was thought to be wealthy by persons living on the island. He is said to have been worth about $100,000, and, besides, his wife inherited one-third of the large property of her father when he died several years ago.

Besides his home, Mr. Curtis owned a house on Davis avenue, West Brighton, his summer home in Ashford, unimproved land on Staten Island and property in New York city.

The remuneration he received for the work he did for Harpers is said to have been $20,000 a year.

Besides this his other literary productions brought him in a large sum annually.

Mr. Curtis was the author of several works of fiction, of which the best known is perhaps "Prue and I," which came out in 1856. "Trumps" appeared first in "Harper's Weekly" in 1858-9, and was published in book form in 1862. By English critics, then none too favorable to American writers, these works were received with enthusiasm, and were compared in point of humor and finished literary skill to the best productions of Charles Lamb.

U. S. SAILORS SEIZED.

A Russian Warship Captures a San Francisco Schooner.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 1.—A special from Victoria, B. C., says: The American bark Majestic from Petropaulovski, reached here Tuesday evening, having aboard the captain and crews of four sealing schooners Rosie, Olsen, Ariel and Willie McGowan, flying the British flag, and the American Schooner C. H. White, of San Francisco.

These four were sealing off Copper Islands, between forty and fifty miles, during the latter part of July, when the Russian warship Zabraka, mounting 16 guns, and the company's steamer Kodiak, bearing the government flag of Bearing Island, rounded them up one by one, sent the schooners to be sold at Petropaulovski, and made the captain and crew prisoners.

The former objected to the seizure, claiming they were free men on free waters, whereupon the marines pricked them with the points of their bayonets and informed them there was such a place as Siberia for those who spoke too loudly of freedom.

Both the British and American skippers recognized that it was no time for talking. Still they ventured to protest that they were away outside the three mile limit and were met with the astounding information from the officers of the Zabraka "Russia is sovereign over the water a thousand miles from her shores."

The captain of the Russian cruiser based his action on the ground that Russia exercised jurisdiction over all land and water westward of the line of demarcation.

After being taken aboard the Zabraka the master of each schooner was ordered to sign a paper written in Russian and interpreted by an interpreter as an acknowledgment that he had been sealing in Russian waters.

The skippers protested and were told that they who did not sign would be sent to Vladivostock to be court-martialed and then sent to the Siberian mines.

Under compulsion the captains signed, and they and the crew then underwent a taste of Russian prison life, 21 men being kept for days in a room 11 feet by 11, with leaky roof and broken floor. The men were finally turned away, a contract was entered into for transportation to American or British soil, and in the evening the prisoners were shipped away on board, no particular effort being made by the guards to detain them.

The Majestic sailed at night, and next morning the Zabraka started on another hunting cruise, the schooners being the game sought.

Trotting Record Broken Again.

INDEPENDENCE, Ia., Sep., 1.—Nancy Hanks yesterday clipped two seconds from the world's trotting record, made by herself in Chicago three weeks ago, and made the circuit of Independence's famous kite-shaped track in 2:05 1-4. All the conditions were favorable for a record breaking mile and Nancy proved herself fully equal to the occasion.

HARRISON IS AROUSED

Abandons His Trip and Returns to Washington.

ALARMED AT CHOLERA'S APPROACH

A Cabinet Meeting to be Held Immediately to Devise Measures for Repelling the Threatened Invasion—The President Believes the Situation is Serious.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 1.—President Harrison is again an occupant of the White House, having abandoned his proposed trip through Northern New York, and having come post haste to the capital to consult with his Cabinet regarding measures advisable to repel the threatened invasion of cholera.

The President was the guest of Hon. Whitelaw Reid yesterday at Ophir Farm, near White Plains, N. Y.

When the guests invited by Mr. Reid to meet the President at dinner last evening arrived at the mansion of the Vice-Presidential candidate they were informed that Mr. Harrison had decided to return at once to Washington. He arrived at this decision shortly after 6 o'clock, and within half an hour after he received messages from Secretary Foster of the Treasury Department and Attorney-General Miller, informing him of the arrival of cholera at Quarantine, New York, and asking that means should be taken to prevent the spread of the scourge.

The President first heard the news in regard to the Moravia through a telephone message received by Mr. Reid at Ophir Farm. Quickly following this came the dispatches from the Cabinet officers.

The President and Mr. Reid held a consultation immediately, and it was decided that the President could best consult with his subordinates in the matter by going to Washington. Accordingly he left Ophir Farm at 9:30 o'clock and took a special train over the Harlem division of the New York Central at White Plains, reaching the Grand Central station in New York at 10 o'clock.

At midnight a regular Pennsylvania Railroad train bearing the President, Private Secretary Halford and Executive Clerk Tibbott, left Jersey City for Washington, arriving here shortly before 7 a. m.

The President has not abandoned his proposed trip entirely. If he is not detained in Washington for more than a week he will return to Loon Lake, via New York city, and the route he intended to take. The arrangements of this journey are in the hands of the New York State Campaign Committee and the engagements already made will simply be postponed, unless the invasion of the scourge grows very serious.

GUESTS OF MR. REID.

The President and His Party Spend a Day at Ophir Farm.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sep. 1.—After deciding to return to Washington last evening, President Harrison sat down to dinner at Ophir Farm with a party of 15. It included, besides the host and the members of his family, Chairman T. H. Carter, of the Republican National Committee; General J. S. Clarkson, ex-Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Russell Harrison and S. V. R. Cruger.

The dinner was purely informal, and at its conclusion the party proceeded to the front of the Reid mansion, where friends, neighbors and people from White Plains to the number of 300, with two brass bands and the local G. A. R. post, had assembled.

The President, Mr. Reid and others made brief speeches.

Private Secretary Halford said to a reporter that he saw Mrs. Harrison yesterday, and then she seemed to be recovering her health after her recent illness very quickly.

"The report that Mrs. Harrison is suffering from an incurable disease is nonsense," he said. "The President was much annoyed by the reports published to the effect that she is dangerously ill. If she were in that condition I am sure the President would never have undertaken this journey and left her."

Soon after the arrival of President Harrison ex-Senator Platt came in with Mr. J. E. Milholland. They were taken at once to Ophir Farm, where they were received by Whitelaw Reid and D. O. Mills.

Mr. Platt was ushered into the presence of President Harrison, who gave him a very cordial greeting. Mr. Platt remained several hours.

Charged With Killing an Infant.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sep. 1.—Mrs. R. A. V. Hoffman, of Rock City, town of Milan, Dutchess county, is under arrest, charged by the coroner's jury with being responsible for the death of a female infant, whose headless remains were found in a creek in Milan last Thursday. Coroner Carroll held an inquest and the woman was arrested soon after the verdict was announced. Mrs. Hoffman is 26 years of age and her husband is 62. The couple have lived four years at Rock City, and a case similar to this one was thought to be chargeable to them two years ago.

New Railroad Line Opened.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 1.—The first train over the Reading Railroad's new line to Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, left Philadelphia at 8:30 o'clock last night. There was no formal opening of the road, but, beginning with the train named, all trains in both directions will use the same route. The building of this extension makes the distance four miles shorter between Philadelphia and Buffalo than by any other route and gives the Reading its own line the entire distance to Rochester and Buffalo.

Three Killed by Lightning.

LAUREL, Del., Sep. 1.—Four sons of Levin Collins and two sons of Sallie Hill, a widow, were playing in a barn near St. Paul's Church yesterday when the building was struck by lightning. Victor Collins and Ira Hill were instantly killed and their bodies terribly disfigured. Levin Collins was fatally shocked. A horse was paralyzed by the bolt.

Died from a Rattler's Bite.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sep. 1. — Patrick Hanley, while picking wild berries on the mountain yesterday, was bitten by a rattlesnake and died six hours later. In the effort to save his life six quarts of whiskey were poured down his throat.

—You'll make money by investing in real estate along the line of the Plainfield street railway before the prices go up. Details of the great bargain chance are given in Hand & Runyon's big advertisement to-day.

—J. Fred MacDonald says: "Did you ever notice how business will grow right up on a street as far as a church and then stop or branch off in another direction?" He cites the First Baptist and Methodist churches as examples.

—The one-legged fraud whom THE PRESS exposed last night, was sent by judge Codington this morning to jail for 30 days. The charge against him was drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He said his name was William Smith, and his home Easton and New York.

—It is reported that the Union Water company of Plainfield is to place several hydrants in the village of Roselle. This is a long-felt necessity, as in case of fires little headway in fighting the fire could be obtained without such hydrants, and it is hoped that this beneficial movement will meet with success.—Elizabeth Journal.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Ward of Clinton avenue has returned from Rockaway.

The Misses Ida and Maggie Schuck, of Vine street, are visiting friends at Dover.

George Tobin of Sixth street is home from a week's visit to Rockaway Beach.

Mrs. A. C. Vail has left North Edgecomb, Me., and is now at Maplewood hotel, Bethlehem, N. H.

Dr. and Mrs. Hedges returned to the city to-day from their vacation. They have been at Chester, N. J.

Charles I. Ames of Crescent avenue will shortly build himself a residence on his West Eighth street property.

H. W. Marshall, proprietor of the American steam laundry, is severely ill with hemorrhage of the bowels.

Mrs. Wilson Crowell, of Barrington, Nova Scotia, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. S. P. Craig, of East Fourth street.

Lizzie Melvin was drunk and disorderly in Cutter's alley last night. Judge Codington sent her to jail for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Ross, of East Sixth street, are entertaining a little Miss Ross who arrived a few days ago to make them a life-long visit.

C. M. Ulrich, the genial proprietor of the popular Plainfield packing house, has for the past few days been confined to the house with a heavy cold.

Principal Maxson gives notice to those having business with the public schools, that he will be at the High school building to-day, to-morrow and Monday from 3 to 5 p. m.

Plans by celebrated New York architects are already completed for a costly home to be erected for Frank O. Herring on Park avenue, opposite school commissioner Finch's.

Mrs. John Morton and two children of West Front street start for home to-morrow on steamship State of Nevada of the State Line. Mrs. Morton has been visiting relatives in Scotland.

The candidacy of the Hon. Chauncey B. Ripley, of Westfield, for governor, is being vigorously pushed by his friends who are enthusiastic for the pioneer of "the good roads of Union county".

Mulford Estil and Dr. T. S. Davis reached home at about 10 o'clock last evening. Their steamship, the Tudonic, was permitted to land its passengers just as soon as the health officers' examination had been concluded. The vessel was in remarkably fine condition.

The Loyal Temperance Legion, under the management of Mrs. F. G. Warnick, Mrs. J. Fisher and Mrs. F. Stansbury, held its closing exercises last evening. A very commendable programme was rendered. The Legion went on a trip to-day, to Boynton Beach, in stages.

Miss S. Street, who for many years has been engaged in mission work in New York, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. William Addis. Four and one-half years ago she founded the Grace mission of Grace church, and to-day it is doing a wonderful work for God. The one desire of her life has been to go to the foreign mission field. God has finally pointed out India as her future home, and she is to sail for that country on the 14th of this month. She is an exceedingly interesting woman, and is possessed of a wonderful knowledge of God's word.

Latest News By Wire to THE PRESS.

NO MORE CHOLERA IN PORT.

The Moravia's Passengers All Well—An Armed Patrol in the Bay.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—The steamship Moravia which arrived from Hamburg on Tuesday night having had twenty-two deaths from cholera among her passengers during the trip, was ordered this morning down to the lower quarantine, two miles south of Swinburne Island. She lay in Gravesend Bay last night and at daybreak hoisted the yellow flag, warning all vessels to give her a wide berth. No new cases of disease have broken out among the passengers.

The Moravia's passengers will receive a bath this afternoon. The steamer will remain below Swineburne Island until the health officers are certain that all trace of the plague is removed from her.

Dr. Jenkins, before leaving Quarantine this morning to attend a meeting of the health board, said he was not prepared to say to-day that the disease on the Moravia was true Asiatic cholera. Until Dr. Byron's examination of the infected clothing was completed he said no one could say positively what the disease was.

Dr. Jenkins announced this morning that he was going to have four special harbor police appointed to patrol the bay, with orders to shoot any one attempting to board any of the quarantined vessels. This was called forth by the attempts of some World reporters to board the Moravia yesterday.

The clean bill of health given by Charles H. Burke, Vice and Acting United States Consul at Hamburg, to the master of the Moravia, has not engendered a very cordial feeling toward him on the part of Dr. Jenkins and his subordinates.

It is not likely that they will give very much credit to any papers which he may sign in the near future.

Staten Islanders are much alarmed over the nearness of the disease. In past years, owing to the proximity of the hospital islands and quarantine grounds, they have suffered terribly from yellow fever, cholera and small-pox epidemics. Old Staten Islanders recall the year 1867, when cholera visited them, and say it was remarkable the peculiar course the disease took. All along the shore it spread with startling rapidity and dealt death with an open hand over territory which only extended a few blocks back from the shore.

NEWSPAPER TRAIN WRECKED.

Three Persons Reported Killed at New Hamburg.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 1—The newspaper train on the New York Central road due at Fishkill station at 6:08 o'clock this morning went through the drawbridge at New Hamburg.

Three persons were reported to have been killed outright in the wreck.

It was not stated whether the victims were trainmen or not.

THE PEACE STREET PROJECT.

Citizens Tell of Their Damages, and Building Changes Are Talked of.

Commissioners W. C. Ayres, E. C. Mulford and Jeremiah Manning met in the common council chamber last night to hear citizens interested in the Peace street project. Only three persons presented themselves. Robinson Pound spoke for the Friends' society. He said that the Friends would not oppose the widening of the street, provided they were not assessed for it. They did not wish to put their property in the market, and therefore did not consider that the widening would be of any pecuniary benefit to them. The only change they purposed was to move their meeting-house to the north side of the lot, as far as possible from the railroad.

J. Fred MacDonald estimated the damages to the mother's property at $225 per front foot for the 10 feet proposed to be taken off Front street, $1 a front foot for the frontage on Peace street for resetting the curb line, re-paving, removing trees, and other street improvements, and $600 for setting the house back. The commissioners argued that this $600 charge was hardly fair, because if the street is widened and extended Mr. MacDonald will probably remove the dwelling and put up fine new buildings of brick.

Robert A. Meeker, for the estate of Robert Anderson, claimed $200 a front foot for Front street frontage taken, and $100 for re-curbing, etc.

After waiting for others to appear, the commissioners adjourned. They will meet for consultation at Mr. Mulford's to-day.

During the conversation of the evening it was said that as soon as North Broadway is opened Chatham street will be filled with a row of cheap stores and tenements for Hebrews.

Mr. Ayres had not seen the new council chambers before. He admired them. He said that he had never been out so late as 8 o'clock before in seven years. Halfpast 8 was his bedtime.

—The Prospects beat Albert Soper's nine by the score of 9 to 0, yesterday afternoon.

—There are only a few of the best seats left for to-morrow evening's farce-comedy at Music Hall.

Recent real estate transfers in North Plainfield include the following:

WATER FROM NETHERWOOD'S WELLS.

Thirsty Elizabeth Citizens Now Expect to Have a Pure Supply.

Water flowed from artesian wells at Netherwood yesterday to Elizabeth through the big main recently constructed by the Union Water company. It ran into the reservoir of the Elizabethtown Water company for an hour. The test was satisfactory. Henceforth Elizabeth, particularly in summer, will get the greater part of the water supply from this source.

The Union Water company owns the twenty wells at Netherwood, and its pumping-station there has a daily capacity of 5,000,000 gallons. The company is supplying water of excellent quality to Plainfield, North Plainfield and Fanwood. The wells seem inexhaustible.

There have been many complaints in Elizabeth about the quality of the water furnished by the Elizabethtown company the past season. The supply comes from Lake Ursino, in Union township. The Elizabeth company hopes by substituting the Netherwood water to avoid any more complaints.

Ex-Congressman John Kean, Jr., is largely interested in the Union Water company and the Elizabethtown company, and through his exertions and those of president Bergen, of the Plainfield Supply company, the main from Netherwood to Elizabeth has been laid.

Lake Ursino water does not seem to give satisfaction now, although it has been subjected to a chemical analysis and no marked impurities have been found in it.

Yesterday's test was made by letting a stream of water run from the tower at Netherwood into the Chilton street reservoir under a pressure of eighty-five pounds to the square inch.

At 10 o'clock in the morning the gate was opened at the reservoir and the water poured in with great force and was allowed to run for about an hour. The main was found to be in perfect order and free from leaks.

Mr. Bergen, president of the Plainfield Water Supply company and a director of the Union company, said that the companies were not prepared to do anything more for the present than make a test of the main. In a few days they expected to send down a steady stream, probably not equal to the full supply required by the city, but sufficient to ascertain some facts that nothing but actual experience can determine. Mr. Bergen added that the Elizabeth company were determined to procure a better supply of water, for the summer months, and if the present effort did not promise to be successful other steps would be taken without delay.

A Plainfield Pastor's Two Weddings.

Last evening pastor F. G. Warnick, of this city, married John W. Crawley and Miss Mary Elston, both of Plainfield, at the parsonage, at 7 o'clock, then took the train for Somerville and at 8 o'clock united in marriage Samuel Rogers and Miss Edith Lane, both of Somerville.

The Plainfield wedding was very quiet. At the other about one hundred guests witnessed the ceremony. Several of their white friends were present.

The table was well strewn with many very handsome and valuable presents; china, glassware and silver glittered beneath the brilliant light.

A reception followed the marriage, and the guests regaled themselves with the choice refreshments which were served.

The happy pair will make their residence in Somerville.

Grateful to THE PRESS, and Bitter Against Others' Misrepresentations.

George O. Strayer, the young man whose secret wedding to Bessie Blimm was recorded in these columns some days ago, writes from Brooklyn warmly thanking THE PRESS for the kindly way in which it treated the affair. He says that the date of their marriage was April 6, and that the ceremony took place at Elizabeth. He wishes the false stories of the News, concerning the affair, denied, and says that its statement is without foundation that Miss Blimm took her possessions to a place on Second street.

Notes of the Wheelmen.

That the bicycle is to be still further improved may be judged by the record of the patents applied for during last month in connection with it. Summarized, it appears that applications for patents for three new bicycles, two new brakes, two new saddles, an electric cyclometer, an oil can holder, three new wheels for bicycles and velocipedes, an elastic tire, a seat support, a cycle lamp, a bicycle support, a velocipede, a seat for velocipedes, a package carrier, and a spear gear for velocipedes were recorded in the Patent Office, and that patents for minor matters of improvement were also taken out. This is a pretty good showing for one calendar month.

The Trolley a Great Blessing.

Jeremiah Manning says that property is developing rapidly along the line of the street railway, and especially in the western outskirts of the city. He knows of several New York parties who have come here just because they are sure of local rapid transit. "Let the people block the extension of the road," he says—"and have it reach only the section it now reaches. We'll then show 'em how that side of town will develop."

Something to look out for—the fraudulent imitations, dilutions, and substitutions that are sold as Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines, at less than the regular prices.

To protect the public from fraud and deception, these genuine guaranteed medicines are now sold only through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the liver, blood and lungs).....$1.00.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses, irregularities and ailments).....$1.00.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the liver, stomach and bowels), 25 cents a vial.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, 50c.

But remember this; they cost you nothing, if they don't help you. They're guaranteed in every case to benefit or cure, or the money is returned. They're the cheapest medicines you can buy, for you pay only for the good you get—but they're the best, too, or they couldn't be sold on any such terms.

OLD SOLDIERS' REUNION.

Five-Score Veterans Have a Pleasant Time Chatting Over War-Time Days.

About 100 of the veterans of the 30th N. J. Vols. are enjoying a reunion at Reform Hall to-day. The regiment originally numbered more than 1,000 men. The old soldiers were met at the North avenue station soon after 10 o'clock, by a drum corps and members of the local G. A. R., and marched through Peace and Front streets to the hall. Col. A. S. TenEyck of Somerville presided as chairman over the meeting, and Capt. J. B. Bowman of North Branch acted as secretary. The comrades listened to reports of last year's officers, and had a pleasant day reviving old memories. There was an abundance of refreshments, provision having been made for 350, and all ate heartily and with much enjoyment. This afternoon judge Ulrich delivered a stirring address, and this evening the visitors will return home. The town was well decorated in honor of their coming.

Let the City Physician Find Out.

People are criticizing policeman Giese. They say he has for weeks been on the sick list, drawing pay, but doing no work, while others do double duty; yet, they add, he goes off on pleasure jaunts just the same as well people. Here is a sample letter received about the matter:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Would it not be proper and in the interests of the taxpayers for the police board to have the city physician call on the officers of the police force who report themselves as being still sick, so that we may know what we are paying for? If it's sixty dollars per month for dead men, let us know it TAXPAYER.

Young Americans to Parade at Westfield.

All the councils in the vicinity, preceded by the VanHouten post flute and drum corps, will participate. It is expected that over 200 members of the order will be in line. The new council at Westfield starts off with a membership of sixty.

ABUSE OF HORSES.

How Faithful Animals Are Maltreated by Ignorant and Careless Employes.

One of those smart coachmen who do n't know how to handle a horse was driving at a rapid gait through Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, when he suddenly reined the horse in to one side. The animal was smooth-shod, and the roadway was slimy with mud. The horse naturally slipped, floundered and fell. Then the ignorant and vulgar coachman began heaping abuse on the poor beast, and as soon as he got it on its feet again he gave it an unmerciful lashing all the way down the street. This was clearly adding insult to injury, for the fall was due solely to the driver's carelessness, and in its heavy fall the horse sustained a serious jar. All of which goes to show that some aristocratic people don't know how their faithful animals are treated.

Another case of abuse was noticeable a few weeks ago. The coachman of a prominent family was left in charge of the household, and nearly every day could be seen recklessly driving the team of ponies about the streets. The ponies were continually and violently abused, and were probably permanently injured by their treatment.

A Ripleyville Editor of Renown.

The Westfield Leader, that bright and flourishing weekly newspaper, with its last issue closed its fourth volume. The Leader has been especially successful under the editorship of W. H. Morse, M. D., F. B. S., who is a progressive young man of about 29, a credit and honor not only to the journalistic profession but to the medical as well, for he is a well-known physician, chemist and therapeutist, and chief of staff of the Electro-medical Institute, New York. His mother was a cousin of Oliver Wendell Holmes and Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Dr. Morse's literary ability may therefore be attributed partly to heredity. Dr. Morse did journalistic work while in Union university, and, still having the itch thereto, devotes his spare time to the Leader. He also conducts the exposition of the Sunday-school lessons in Methodist publications, is author of the great medical textbook, "New Therapeutical Agents", and spends all of his best time in studying and experimenting with new remedies. He is an accomplished Greek and Latin scholar, and a Fellow of the British Society of Science, Letters and Art. Altogether, Dr. Morse is a truly great man, and with him as editor the Leader cannot help being in fact as well as in name a leader among newspapers.

Thanksgiving for Plainfield Water.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

A great many good things come from Plainfield. This morning Elizabeth saw for the first time some of its pure water pouring into our reservoir through the pipes of the Union Water company. If the expectations of the company are realized, the city will sometime have an abundant supply of Plainfield's crystal liquid.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

New Residence of John G. Musgrave, Esq.

The latest of the new homes that are rapidly being added to the adornment of this city and borough, which THE PRESS takes pleasure in picturing and describing for its readers, is the new residence that has just been completed for John G. Musgrave, on Mercer avenue, corner of Sycamore. It is in the style commonly called Queen Anne, and its architect is Charles H. Smith. The first story is of red brick laid in red mortar, and the second story is in shingles laid on in fancy shapes. The roof is covered with sea-green slate which is of various shades, giving the roof the appearance of age, which effect is often produced with the stains now so frequently used on shingles. Across the entire front of the building is a spacious verandah which returns on one side to the dining-room bay window.

Passing through the main entrance you enter a spacious hall 16 feet wide, in which is a large mantel built of buff brick and trimmed with ornamental red terra cotta and which has a heavy oak top and mirror. This hall is fitted entirely in quartered oak, with a wainscot 6 feet high and a beam ceiling in the same material. The main stairway which is at the back of the hall and runs in back of the parlor, is entirely in quartered oak. On the landing of the stairs is a large stained glass window, the design of which is graceful and the colorings soft and pleasing. The side walls of the hall are hung with heavy paper in the leather effects.

To the right of the hall as you enter is the parlor which is a room 15 by 18 feet and circular at one end. This room is finished in white and gold, the casings being a rich design in keeping with the style in which the rooom is finished. The ceiling is decorated in relief and the side walls in a heavy stamped paper of a light cream color relieved with gold. The mantel in this room is quite elaborate, that portion of the mantel below the shelf being all of marble known as pink Numidian, with the over mantel in the Colonial with two fluted columns which come down to the floor.

Opening from the left of the main entrance is the library, a room about 15 feet square. It is trimmed in Mexican mahogany. In this room are built spacious bookcases, and the window spaces are filled with settees with handsome carved arms. The mantel is in the corner and made of the same wood as used in trimming the room. The decorations in this room are heavy paper on the side walls of a rich blue lighted with silver. The ceiling is tinted, with silver mouldings and all the trimmings of the fireplace are in silver.

Back of the library is the dining room which is 15 by 19 feet. This room is in quartered oak. The decorations are of the same character as the library, but in terra cotta coloring. The mantel is made of speckled brick and red terra cotta of ornamental pattern.

Adjoining the dining room is a spacious butler's pantry fitted up in oak with all the necessary closets, etc. Back of this is the kitchen and back hall which runs across the house. The kitchen fireplace is built of glazed brick with round corners which give a clean appearance to the fireplace, and the round corners prevent their becoming broken.

On the second story are three large bedrooms on the front, another over the dining room and one over the kitchen, making five in all, besides a spacious bath room, toilet room, etc. Each room has a large closet. The entire floor is fitted in white pine finished in the natural wood and each room is prettily papered in colors to match the colors of the trimmings of the rooms.

The third floor has four good-sized rooms besides a large garret and hall. The basement contains besides the large cellar space, an airy laundry and three large store rooms.

The building is heated in the most approved style with hot water heating apparatus.

Aside from the work of architect Smith, no feature of the house is so beyond criticism as the wall paper effects produced by selections from the productions of Birge, of New York. His artists have no competitors in this country and probably no rivals in the world.

They Say Wolfe Put Up the Job.

Those who were mentioned in THE PRESS of yesterday as having eloped with a bushel of boiled crabs from the City Hotel, say that they were invited to eat by Frank Wolfe. They accuse the latter of having written a postal to Mr. Ryder at Bergen Point asking for the crabs and signing the name of one of Mr. Ryder's friends. When the crabs came he cooked them and invited his friends to eat. Then he wrote again to Mr. Ryder thanking him in the other man's name, and asking for more.

North Plainfield's Election Board.

The Somerset county board of registration met Saturday morning and appointed the following members of the board of registry and election for North Plainfield: Hiram B. Woodland, George B. Stewart, John Bodine, George Demler, Lewis A. Barkalew, Albert Vail, Albert Clawson, Edgar C. Schenck.

Preparing for Perfection To-morrow Night.

John T. Kelly, of "McFee of Dublin" fame is a strict disciplinarian when it comes to stage rehearsals. Especially is this the fact in regard to the orchestra rehearsals. Even in the large cities the local orchestras are often inclined to shamble carelessly through their work. Mr. Kelly has, however, become so well-known through his determination to have things go his way, that whenever his coming is announced the entire orchestra get together and to work, and the result is that there are never any annoying mishaps in the musical part of any of Mr. Kelly's performances.

The rehearsals of the company, scenery, costumes and music at Music Hall to-day and to-morrow, will insure a perfect play to-morrow night. Get your seats now.

William E. Russell, No. 512 West 57th street, N. Y., says:

"I have been a martyr to bilious headache and dyspepsia. Any indiscretion in diet, overfatigue or cold brings on a fit of indigestion, followed by a headache lasting two or three days at a time. I think I must have tried over twenty different remedies, which were recommended as certain cures by loving friends, but it was no use. At last I thought I would take a simple course of purgation with BRANDETH'S PILLS. For the first week I took two pills every night, then one pill for 30 nights; in that time I gained 3 pounds in weight, and never have had an ache or a pain since.

Disease in one part of the body will evidently fill the whole body with disease. Every year or two some part of the system grows weak and begins to decay. Such part should be removed at once, and new matter be allowed to take its place. There's no need of cutting it out with a surgeon's scalpel. Purge away the old, diseased and wornout parts with BRANDETH'S PILLS.

Bargains to Be Had in Summer Wear.

Cheaper Ginghams and Dimities—A Little Fisher Maiden — Some Afternoon Gowns—Seen by the Seaside—Cool and Dainty Frocks.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Surely one can buy almost everything for almost nothing these days. The bargain counters in the city stores are vieing with each other in prices that are very low. Just take a run into town for a day or two, and you will be surprised, if you enter the shops, to find them crowded in spite of the summer exodus. This morning I entered one to find extraordinary confusion, and more reckless pushing than usual. For, though New Yorkers are proverbially good-natured and obliging in a crowd, I think the New York shopper must be exempt. For she has absolutely no conscience and no feeling of any sort. She simply steps over her victim, and never so much as casts a backward glance to discover the extent of the damage wrought. After I had succeeded in making my way past a great number of these heartless beings with only a few unimportant injuries, I discovered that the center of interest was a table piled high with soft woolen checks and stripes, marked at 20 cents a yard, worth 65 cents. How easily we are all taken in! Anything marked at 50 cents and worth 60 is passed by with perfect indifference, but something marked exactly the same, but with the estimate of 90 cents or $1 put on it, is snatched at by all of the women, in a truly hawk fashion. It is certainly a most harrowing sight to watch them swoop down upon the salesman, and snap their prizes before some one else shall interpose.

COOL AND REFRESHING.

But when a woman can buy gauze shirts for nineteen cents apiece, in all the dainty colors; stockings all sizes, and styles and colors for the same price; ten ties for ninety-eight cents, white shirts for forty-nine, gloves for nineteen, dark blue skirts from two to three dollars, shirt-waists for sixty-nine cents, blazers for two dollars and a half, sailor hat with ribbon band for twenty-five cents, and last, but not least, shot silk parasols for forty-nine cents, it seems as though no woman could possibly have any trouble in procuring a summer outfit for next to nothing. Then ginghams can be had for five cents a yard, outing cloth for eight cents, dimities, fresh and sheer, for twelve cents; shirting cambrics for four, and a great many other materials for about the same price. So that it wouldn't be a very difficult matter to get up a summer outfit at a low cost. Ginghams make very pretty, indeed, with the addition of a little fine white embroidery, and then a gingham washes so well that it can always be kept fresh.

LITTLE FISHER MAIDEN.

A pretty challie which I have just been admiring is of a very deep shrimp pink. The left side is caught half way up and bordered and hung with narrow black velvet ribbon, of which there is a considerable quantity on the round bodice as well.

I also liked a blazer suit that is going away this week, of a deep rich fawn, speckled all over with pale turquoise dots. A turquoise silk waist matched the dots, and the jacket fronts were made very short so as to display a good deal of the pretty shade.

The girl that wears this has one of the airiest and most exquisite summer gowns I have yet seen. It is made of pure white gauze over a delicate mauve silk. I think it is the prettier for its perfect simplicity. The skirt is a gathered one, and has something of a train. The bodice is simply shirred on a standing collar, and gathered in at the waist under a silver belt. She will wear an all black hat with this gown and white gloves and shoes.

A quaint gown for afternoons is made of pink crepon, and has for a trimming on its close fitting skirt two ruffles at the edge, then three bands of black velvet ribbon quite far apart, and then two more ruffles, so that the trimming comes almost half way up. The bodice is perfectly plain and tight fitting, and is trimmed with lace about eight inches deep, which starts at the collar in the back and is carried down in an inverted V to each side under the arm; then it goes round straight till the two ends almost meet in front, where they both stop, and being like a genuine petticoat, while little black velvet bows stand over them like sentinels.

Or do you like white linen? That makes a charming afternoon gown, with the skirt embroidered in a pretty vine pattern all around, and edged with a narrow flounce of white mousseline de soie, and a bodice of the same, simply plaited.

A fishing party that starts out next week will include at least one very pretty and rather daring costume. The young maiden that will wear it is going in for genuine work; she's bound she'll catch something, and that her costume will not interfere with a free indulgence in the sport. So her slightly draped skirt of dark blue linen reaches only a little below the knees. Her waist is of ecru linen, tight fitting, trimmed with a deep lace collar. The collar is kept down, so that it can't fly or become troublesome, by dark blue straps over the shoulders which are fastened at the top of the skirt by big buttons. Her bag is slung across her shoulder, she carries her net in her hand, and with her broad-rimmed hat of the same heavy lace that trims the dress, shading well her face, she is ready to battle with wind and wave, and even fish.

Ribbons do not seem to be falling from grace. They still have the smile and favor of the feminine public. Why, I saw one dress the other day that was one mass of little black velvet bows, scattered all over. And the hat worn with it was truly imposing. It was a broad-rimmed, drooping leghorn, with three long loops of palest yellow laid flat upon the wide brim in front. Edging the two outer loops were two black ostrich tips also fastened down tight, and where the three yellow loops joined sprung three more stiff black tips.

HIS WIFE'S ASHES.

Carried About in an Urn by a Drummer on His Travels.

A commercial tourist traveling in the interest of a fancy crockery and glassware house arrived at the Palmer Saturday morning with his large trunks filled with samples, which he, according to the Chicago Herald, arranged upon the tables in his room. After completing this work he took from his satchel a large and handsome urn, which he placed on his dressing-case. It was a peculiar looking article, resembling the designs of ancient times. He looked at it intently for a few moments, frowned and turned away, sighing audibly. He went about his samples with an air of melancholy, and every time his eyes rested on the mysterious urn he sighed. Dropping into a large chair he buried his face in his hands and was silent for some minutes.

At last he was aroused from his reverie by the appearance of one of his oldest customers and friends. His face brightened and the two entered into a brisk conversation. They had talked on all subjects, when suddenly the Chicago man saw the urn on the dressing-case and exclaimed: "Why, old man, what a peculiar design. What price have you on that?" The knight of the gripsack frowned as he replied: "That is not for sale. That is one of my personal effects." The Chicago glassware man proceeded to examine it. "Mighty pretty thing. Oh! there are ashes in here. I dare saw you use it in your smoking set." The young man could not avoid an explanation. "You see," he said, with some feeling, "my wife requested before she died that her body be cremated and that I carry her ashes with me in my travels. I complied with her request and those are the ashes of my wife." The Chicago man suddenly thought of a previous engagement and left the room unceremoniously.

To Resuscitate the Drowned.

The Paris Academy of Medicine is at present much interested in Dr. Laborde's method of resuscitating drowned persons, which consists in holding the patient's mouth wide open with the left hand while the right hand is employed in drawing the tongue out as far as possible and then letting it return to its former position, this rhythmical movement being kept up until some effect is produced on the organs of breathing. This method, it is claimed, has proved effectual in the case of a patient over whom two physicians had worked in vain for an hour and a half. The academy of medicine is certainly much impressed with the method, and steps are being taken to have it thoroughly tested at all life-saving stations.

AN EFFICIENT ASSISTANT.

Irate Employer (sharply)—What are you doing down there, Rastus?

Rastus—Hulpin' Nimbus, sah!

Irate Employer—What is Nimbus doing?

Rastus—Nuffin, sah! — Lippincott's Magazine.

No Sympathy Needed.

Hilow—Hello, Glim, how are you? I haven't seen you in six months.

Glim—First rate, thank you. How are you?

"Can't complain. How's Miss Dingbats? You were engaged to her when I left town, I remember."

"We are not engaged now."

"Ah, sorry for that, old boy. What was the trouble?"

"No trouble. We merely got married."—Brooklyn Life.

A Terrible Discovery.

"Ethel," said the young man, with a break in his voice, "it comes hard, but I think it best that we should part. I did not know the dread circumstance or I should never have proposed. Now that the terrible fact is out, now that I know that you play the piano and paint in water colors, let us part. Sadly, may be, but not in wrath."—Chicago News Record.

An Appropriate Reply.

I'm an old smoker, and have at one time or another tried all the different Smoking Tobaccos, but for a good smoke Bull Durham beats 'em all.

A leading characteristic of Bull Durham has always been the hold which it takes on old and fastidious smokers. What its excellence first secured, its uniformity has always retained, and it is, therefore, to-day as twenty-five years ago, the most popular Smoking Tobacco in the world.

Like most other people, our folks formerly used lard for all such purposes. When it disagreed with any of the family (which it often did,) we said it was "too rich." We finally tried and not one of us has had an attack of "richness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

PORTS CLOSED TO IMMIGRANTS

Speedy Action Taken at the Conferences of President and Cabinet.

20 DAYS' QUARANTINE FOR VESSELS FROM INFECTED CITIES.

The Circular Issued Applies Only to Ships Carrying Immigrants and to Those Not Already Afloat—All Mails and the Baggage of All Passengers to Be Disinfected—Almost a Panic in Stocks When the Order Became Known.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 2.—The issuing of the circular quarantining vessels from ports infected with cholera for 20 days meets with general favor everywhere, and the President and his advisers are heartily commended.

While the quarantine will apply to vessels from all ports, it is assumed that health officers will have discretion in the matter, and will be allowed to act as they see fit in the case of vessels that come from non-infected ports, and that have clean bills of health.

The practical effect of the declaration of a 20 days' quarantine, it is believed, will be to stop immigration from Europe for the time being.

Steamship companies, it is argued, will not bring immigrants to this country and support them for a long period before they are allowed to land.

The following is the full text of the circular:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SUPERVISING SURGEON-GENERAL, UNITED STATES MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sep. 1, 1892.

To Collectors of Customs, Medical Officers of the Marine Hospital Service, Foreign Steamship Companies, State and Local Boards of Health:

It having been officially declared that cholera is prevailing in various portions of Russia, Germany and France, and at certain ports in Great Britain as well as Asia, and it having been made to appear that immigrants in large numbers are coming into the United States from the affected districts aforesaid, and that they and their personal effects are liable to introduce cholera into the United States, and that vessels conveying them are thereby a direct menace to the public health, and it having been further shown that under the laws of the several States that quarantine detentions may be imposed upon these vessels a sufficient length of time to insure against the introduction of contagious diseases, it is hereby ordered that no vessel from any foreign port carrying immigrants shall be admitted to enter any port of the United States until said vessel shall have undergone a quarantine detention of 20 days (unless such detention is forbidden by the laws of the State, or regulations made thereunder) and of such greater number of days as may be fixed in each special case by the State authorities.

This circular to take immediate effect, except in cases of vessels afloat at this date, which will be made the subject of special consideration upon due application to the department.

(Signed) WALTER WYMAN,
Supervising Surgeon-General United States Marine Hospital service.

CHARLES FOSTER, Secretary of the Treasury.

Approved, BENJAMIN HARRISON.

Secretary Foster said after the conference that the circular would apply to the mails as well as passengers and merchandise.

Shortly after noon the President, Attorney-General Miller, Secretary Charles Foster, Assistant-Secretary Spaulding and Dr. Wyman, Surgeon-General of the United State Marine Hospital Service met in conference at the Executive Mansion.

Attorney-General Miller was called into the conference to define the power of the President to suspend the operation of law admitting immigrants into the United States during the prevalence of a pestilence abroad; also to give his opinion as to what extent the prohibition of immigration could be enforced under the State quarantine regulations and, in a word, to counsel with the President upon all matters affecting his legal powers to act.

Secretary Foster as the head of the Treasury Department, which has the direct enforcement of the immigration laws as well as the general supervision of the Marine Hospital service, was naturally present to inform the President as to what action had already been taken, and Assistant Secretary Spaulding and Dr. Wyman as the officers under whose personal direction all action is taken were there to inform the President as to the details of the work already done and contemplated and to receive such suggestions as he deemed wise in the premises to put into practical effect.

Private Secretary Halford, after the conference adjourned, said to a reporter that there was no likelihood of the President issuing a proclamation on the subject nor was there any occasion for unnecessary alarm. The President had deemed it prudent to come here and personally confer with his associates on the cholera situation and acquaint himself with what had been done rather than to make the subject one of correspondence. The latter course would involve considerable time and labor and not be nearly as satisfactory."

As a result the circular above given has been issued by the Treasury Department, approved by the President, giving supplemental instructions to Collectors of Customs and Marine Hospital officers concerning further restrictions to prevent the introduction of cholera into the United States. Additional inspectors are being appointed in the New England States along the Canadian border. Medical inspection will be established at St. Albans, Newport, Richford and Island Pond, Vt.

The President expressed himself during the consultation (which lasted two hours) as entirely satisfied with the steps thus far taken by all the United States officers.

The protection of the Canadian border is receiving close attention.

The Secretary of the Treasury received a letter from the Governor of Michigan requesting him to detail an additional force of inspectors between Detroit and Sault Ste Marie during the prevalence of cholera.

Secretary Foster replied that the request would be granted and an extra force of medical inspectors will be detailed for duty in Michigan.

The United States Consul at Hamburg cables the Department of State that the Hamburg Packet company are disinfecting all their vessels although they will carry no more steerage passengers.

Our consul at St. Petersburg cables August 31st as follows: "Shippers claim impossible disinfect wool hides as required by Treasury instructions. Ships loading. What shall I do?"

The Treasury Department is considering the matter and will make reply soon.

Mr. Wanamaker, the Postmaster-General is determined that cholera shall not be admitted to the United States through the mails if the postoffice department can prevent it. He has signed a letter instructing the Superintendent of Foreign mails to immediately take such steps as may be necessary and practicable to thoroughly disinfect the mails reaching the United States from foreign ports at which contagious diseases are said to be prevailing; and to facilitate safe mail communications between vessels undergoing quarantine and the nearest United States postoffice.

In accordance with these instructions Capt. Brooks, Chief of the Foreign mails bureau, is having all foreign mail fumigated and thoroughly disinfected, but has not yet determined upon what shall be done regarding the mails from Quarantined vessels.

ALMOST A PANIC.

The Cholera Scare Used by the Bears to Hammer Stocks Down With.

NEW YORK, Sep. 2.—The cholera scare produced almost a panic on the Stock Exchange. Stocks tumbled generally from 2 to 6 1-8 points, led by sugar. The trading was in tremendous volume and panicky in character. In the first hour after the opening of the Exchange 160,000 shares of stock were sold.

Some unscrupulous operator sent dispatches to Chicago announcing that cholera had broken out in New York city, and that three cases had already been discovered. Brokers piled over one another's backs in their anxiety to sell stocks. There had been no such day in the Stock Exchange since the Bering panic, with the exception of the day of the Reading deal. The total number of shares sold was 563,563.

The President's proclamation revived confidence somewhat, and the market rallied, the general list recovering an average of 1 point of the early losses.

Returns to Loon Lake To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 2.—There was an informal Cabinet council in session at the White House last evening. The Secretary of War, the Postmaster-General, and the Attorney-General were in consultation with the President about the affairs of their respective departments. The President will leave for Loon Lake this afternoon or evening.

RESULT OF CARELESSNESS.

The Railroad Accident at New Hamburg, N. Y., in Which Three Were Killed.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sep. 2.—The accident on the New York Central Railroad at the New Hamburg drawbridge yesterday was the result of carelessness, and it is a wonder that more lives were not sacrificed.

The train was going at the rate of a mile a minute, and the bridge was just being closed after letting a steamer go through. Several feet had yet to be closed just as the train reached the bridge.

The engine jumped the gap, but the rear end of the tender dropped enough to check the momentum of the train. Then the mail car, crashing into the tender, pushing it against the locomotive.

The rear end of the locomotive and the mail car were splintered.

The engineer, Joseph Owens, of Albany, and the fireman, Edward Best, of East Albany, were crushed under the forward end of the cab and instantly killed.

J. H. Kane, of Coboes, N. Y., a clerk on the mail car was also killed.

The tracks were obstructed for some time.

This accident recalls the terrible wreck of twenty years ago last winter when an oil train ran into this same drawbridge and twenty-one people were burned to death.

The terrible magnitude of the New Hamburg disaster of twenty years ago, though exceeding in horror any railway accident this country has ever seen, except Ashtabula, has it seems not succeeded in inducing the New York Central people to provide impassible safeguards around its drawbridges instead of leaving them conveniently open and the approches unprotected.

Erie Canal Traffic Falling Off.

BUFFALO, Sep. 2.—The returns for the month of August show a falling off in the traffic of the Erie canal. The shipments of grain for the month of August amounted to 4,607,518 bushels, as compared with 6,545,900 bushels in the same month last year. The shipments from the opening of navigation to date were 15,691,215 bushels; same time last year, 17,678,900 bushels. The number of canal boats cleared since opening of navigation was 2,833, against 3,228 in the same period last year.

IS CHOLERA IN NEW YORK?

A Suspected Case Discovered in An East Side Tenement.

NEW YORK, Sep. 2.—A suspected case of cholera has been discovered in the heart of the tenement-house district on the east side. Shortly after 7 o'clock last night Dr. Beck was summoned to the tenement No. 96 Orchard street. In a room on the fourth floor of the building he found a man lying on a sofa, suffering great agony.

The man said he felt pains in his bones, and that his stomach ached and that he vomited freely. Dr. Beck immediately became suspicious when he saw the case and asked the man, who was a foreigner, his name and how long he had been in the country. The man replied that his name was Joseph Etuainiz, that he was 35 years old, and had arrived in this country on Sunday last by the steamship Russia by way of Hamburg.

The doctor, after affording the patient some temporary relief, reported the case to the police, saying that the symptoms and the fact that the man only came to this country recently by way of Hamburg, led him to believe that he was suffering from cholera. The police promptly notified the Board of Health and an inspector was sent to the house.

The authorities are reticent, but it is believed that the case is one of genuine Asiatic cholera.

Mayor Grant last evening issued an earnest appeal to the public asking them to aid the authorities in their efforts to prevent the entrance of cholera into the city. He urges that the order regarding cleanliness, issued by the Health Department, be implicitly followed, and asks law-abiding people to report any lack of sanitary requirements that may come to their notice.

The Moravia, which was sent from Quarantine to Gravesend bay, where she remained during the night, has been sent to Lower Quarantine, two miles south of Swinburne island.

Dr. Sanborn reports that no new cases have been developed on board the Moravia.

Dr. Jenkins's deputies say that, in their belief, the reason that no new cases have occurred lies in the fact that her officers and crew have been condensing the Hamburg water for the past five days. They profess not to be alarmed over the possibility of another outbreak.

The transfer of the Moravia's steerage passengers to Hoffman island is progressing rapidly. They are being bathed and fumigated. How long the vessel will be detained will depend on developments.

Cholera Scare Booms Sugar.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 2.—The cholera epidemic is likely to cause a sugar famine here and there was a boom in the trade yesterday, prices on all grades of hard sugars advancing. The wholesale price of granulated sugar has now reached five cents, which is the highest point that it has attained for two years or more, and it is likely to go higher.

To Carry Cabin Passengers Only.

NEW YORK, Sep. 2.—The Inman Line management has decided to carry only first cabin and second cabin passengers from Liverpool during the month of September.

SEALERS EXCITED.

They Want Great Britain to Send a Warship to the Russian Coast.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sep. 2.—When the complete story of an American and three Canadian schooners being seized off the Russian coast was read here the excitement throughout the city became intense.

A meeting of the British Columbia Sealers' Association was hurriedly called and the case was discussed in all its phases.

The meeting was held with closed doors, and the only fact reported was that the solicitors for the association had been instructed to prepare a full statement of the details of the case to be telegraphed to Sir John Abbott, premier of the Dominion at Ottawa.

Theodore Davie, Provincial Premier, also took the matter up and has had affidavits embodying the main facts prepared for the use of the Department at Ottawa.

The British Columbia Board of Trade also prepared a memorial on the subject, which was forwarded by wire to Ottawa.

According to the records of the Sealing Association, there are yet 43 sealing schooners out, all having had instructions after getting the coast catch to go over to the Russian and Japan coasts.

Certain it is that of these some will be seized, and if the same course of action is taken the others may be left to perish on the barren shore of Behring Island, while the valuable schooners will undoubtedly meet the same fate as those already seized and destroyed.

The loss eventually will be enormous, each of the schooners being valued at between $5,000 and $20,000.

The worst of all is that the sealers have no means of warning their schooners. A request has been sent to Admiral Hotham to send a warship to the Russian coast to protect British interests.

Choked to Death by Green Corn.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Sep. 2.—Monday evening Mrs. Moses Doe ate some green corn, several kernels of which stuck in her throat. Though attended by three physicians all efforts to remove the obstructions proved futile, and she died in great agony yesterday, being choked to death. The body was swollen to nearly twice its natural size.

May Go in American Bottoms.

MONTREAL, Sep. 2.—There is a prospect of the detention of a number of steamers at this port by reason of not receiving their grain, as, the tolls not being refunded, the grain will go to Ogdensburg in American bottoms. If enough grain cannot be procured in time the ocean steamers will have to go without their full freight.

DEATH'S HARVEST IN HAMBURG

The Authorities Persist in Giving Out Misleading Statements.

HUNDREDS DYING WITHOUT MEDICAL ATTENDANCE.

New Cases in England—A Suspected Case in a Tenement on the East Side, New York—No More Cases Develop on Board the Moravia—Precautions at Boston—Yesterday's Records From Plague-Stricken Places.

HAMBURG, Sep. 2.—The thermometer has fallen to 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and there have been several light showers. The air is clearer than it has been in the last 10 days. Nevertheless, the abatement of the plague has not been so considerable as to bring much comfort to this stricken city.

The most trustworthy reports give the number of fresh cases yesterday as 681, and of deaths as 247. The decrease in the number of fresh cases since Wednesday is 41; in the number of deaths 23.

These figures do not agree, however, with the reports of the Hamburg officials, who have reduced the number of fresh cases yesterday to 39 and the number of deaths to 45. The city government has thus again declared for the fatuous policy of suppressing the facts, and its reports are received with ridicule. The number of burials has fallen from 395 to 313. Reports of an abatement of the panic, in consequence of the lower death rate, are untrustworthy. They emanate from official sources, and are part of the general plan of concealing the situation. The people are too thoroughly frightened to be reassured by a slight change.

The number of physicians attending cholera patients is quite inadequate. This state of affairs was apparent several days ago, but the municipal authorities neglected to call for aid from other towns. The physicians who have been among the stricken from the first are now worn out by overwork, and there are few at hand to take their places.

Almost a third of the deaths yesterday are said to have taken place before medical aid could be secured. In the harbor district only about four patients among seven are able to secure doctors to treat them. The is also great difficulty in getting enough nurses to replace those retiring from the hospitals, because worn out by the killing work imposed upon them in the last ten days.

The most urgent appeals for help come from the suburbs Horn and Hammerbrook, where the people are dying by scores. Nurses, doctors and health officials are said to have left the suburbs almost unnoticed, and whole families have been wiped out without having had a word of advice or a prescription.

The harm done to the rest of North Germany by official incompetency here is enormous.

CALLING FOR NURSES.

Princess Christian's Appeal — Another Case at Islington.

LONDON, Sep. 2.—Princess Christian, president of the British Nurses' Association, has sent out a letter appealing to trained nurses to volunteer their services for the event of a cholera epidemic in England.

At a meeting of the health committee of the Liverpool municipality the medical officers reported that the emigrants who embarked yesterday were in excellent health, that the city of Liverpool was in the healthiest condition it had been for a long time past, and that there was no reason to fear an epidemic.

Another case of genuine Asiatic cholera has come to light at Islington. A child aged 5 years is the victim and is dying at St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

The Protestant chaplain of the hospital, by request of the mother, baptized the little one, the mother being present at the time.

The mother is an English woman and the father is a German Jew, and there seems to be apprehension that the father may find fault with the baptism.

PRECAUTIONS AT BOSTON.

Stringent Measures to Keep the Infection From that Port.

BOSTON, Sep. 2.—The State Board of Health has issued orders not to allow immigrants from the British Islands or Scandinavia to come into the port of Boston without the fumigation of themselves and their baggage.

City Physician Little of Lynn states that should cholera strike that city an epidemic would be inevitable, owing to the condition of the harbor and marshes. Garbage is at present dumped on the West Lynn marshes, pending the adoption of some satisfactory system for its disposition.

'Frisco on the Lookout for Cholera.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 2.—Every precaution possible against the introduction of cholera into this city has been taken by the Health authorities. Doctor Lawler, the Quarantine physician, has ordered all vessels from Alaska thoroughly inspected, as he fears cholera might be brought over from Russia by way of Alaska.

Precautions in Switzerland.

LOCKERNE, Sep. 2.—The Bundesrath has issued instructions to the local sanitary authorities to disinfect the various towns of Switzerland, to carefully inspect all travelers and to take every precaution to prevent cholera from entering or spreading in the republic.

TWENTY-SIX DROWNED.

Wreck of the Steamer Western Reserve on Au Sable Reef.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Sep. 2.—The steamship Western Reserve broke in two on Au Sable banks early yesterday morning and all but one of the 27 on board were drowned. Harry Stewart of Algonac, Mich., was the only one saved. Two of the bodies have been washed ashore. The Western Reserve, which was bound for Cleveland, was a steel boat of 2,000 tons.

She was built in 1890 by the Cleveland Shipbuilding Company. She was owned by F. G. Minch and others of Cleveland, rated A1, and was valued at $220,000. Her boilers were inspected recently and repairs ordered, but had not yet been made.

On board were Capt. Peter Minch, the owner, with his wife and two children, Charles and Florence; Mrs. Mary Engleberry and Martha Engleberry, of Vermillion. The crew consisted of 21 men.

Capt. Peter Minch, the owner of the Reserve, retired five years ago, and settled in Cleveland to manage his large vessel interests. The present trip was intended as a pleasure trip for himself and family, and several friends.

MOB RULE IN THE WEST.

800 Strikers Prevent 700 Others from Earning a Living.

RHINELANDER, Wis., Sep. 2.—The striking mill men have gained accessions to their ranks until they can now mass a mob of 500 men, who twice yesterday walked crews who were willing to work out of the mills, and now 1,200 men are idle, 60 per cent. of whom would return to work could they do so peaceably.

The sheriff and his deputies have made no effort to control the mob, as the effort would be useless. No troops have been called for, but unless they are it will mean a shutdown for some time. Two of the leaders have been arrested.

Retaliation Measures in Effect.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 2.—The President's proclamation imposing a retaliatory toll of twenty cents a ton on Canadian produce passing through St. Mary's Falls canal went into effect smoothly and without friction, and the treasury officials here have received no advices from Marquette or from any other point leading them to anticipate trouble.

—Messrs. Chas. Hand and John Runyon, two of Plainfield's prominent capitalists, have purchased eighteen lots at Lorraine, on the south side of the Central railroad, opposite the station, and will immediately begin the erection of a number of fine houses.

—Magnificent specimens of those rare and beautiful portraits of which THE PRESS made a special feature Tuesday evening, and which artists Sanford & Davis produce in such superb perfection, are now on exhibition in the windows of J. Hervey Doane, 11 Park avenue.

—A ladies' reception room is the latest feature of Runyon's music store at 72 West Front street. This is a section of the main floor, finely furnished, and provided with easy chairs, writing-desk, stationery, books and periodicals, where the women of Plainfield will be welcome to rest while waiting for anyone, or if desirous of writing letters. The place is very cosy and attractive, and as a waiting room and letter-writing corner is sure to become very popular among the gentler sex.

—The Courier is fast making for itself an unenviable reputation for shipshod carelessness and unreliability. It persists in calling the new school superintendent Wm. M. Maxson, when if it took the trouble to read its own advertising columns it would know that his name is Henry M.; and the other night in a much garbled account of the death of the Rev. George B. Utter it stated that his paper, the Narragansett Weekly, was the denominational organ of the Seventh-day Baptists, when all Plainfield knows that the Sabbath Recorder is that organ. These are only two of many such cases.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. J. H. Carman has returned from Accord, N. Y.

Ex-councilman Seymour G. Smith has gone to Scranton.

Edwin H. Ladd, jr., is enjoying the bracing sea air at Avon Inn.

The condition of Edward B. Daly of Madison avenue and West Second street to-day is improved, and his family now have hopes of his recovery.

Miss C. E. Clarke, of East Front street, who has been spending the summer at Cornwall, Litchfield county, Conn., returned to Plainfield this afternoon.

L. J. Tuttle, a respected and thrifty citizen of Keene, N. H., with his wife and two daughters, has been visiting at the home of his wife's sister, Mrs. Thomas Hale. This is his first visit to New Jersey, and he is greatly pleased with the State, especially with the delightful Plainfield section. Mr. Tuttle ranks high in the Freemasonry of his State, and is favorably known as a lecturer on Masonic topics.

James H. Force, brother of the proprietors of this paper, and himself proprietor of the Mansion House, Bound Brook, yesterday morning passed a very successful surgical operation, the removal of a cancerous growth on the lip. Ether was used, and the growth was so skillfully removed that to-day the patient is up and around the house. NO CHOLERA IN NEW YORK.

The Russian Immigrant Suffering From Cramps—No Cause for Alarm in the East-Side Tenement House.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Joseph Elwanig, the Russian who came to this city via Hamburg, and was reported last evening by the physician who attended him to be suffering from cholerine at the residence of his sister on the fourth floor of the tenement house at No. 95 Orchard street, was fully recovered this morning. He said that on Thursday he ate three pounds of beef at a meal besides watermelon and apples in equally plentiful measure. Dr. Beck of 94 Elvington street, Elwanig's friends say, was frightened when he heard the sick man had came from Hamburg. This, the physician declares, is not so. He called the attention of the health board to the case, he says, simply because he believed they should know of it. The case was evidently one of severe cramps merely.

Dr. Roberts of the health department, who was sent to investigate the case yesterday, quickly reported the trivial nature of the disease.

NO NEW CASES ON BOARD.

Dr. Jenkins Will Use His Own Discretion Concerning Incoming Steamships.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Dr. Jenkins, the health officer, said to-day in speaking of the President's quarantine proclamation of a twenty-day quarantine, that he would not be governed by the proclamation, but would use his own discretion in regard to the detention of steamships.

"I have full power under the State Quarantine Law passed last May," he added, "and I shall use my own judgment. I feel the responsibility which rests upon me very keenly, and you may be sure that I shall do nothing to menace the safety of this country."

Dr. Jenkins said that he had power to determine how long vessels should remain in quarantine, and, notwithstanding the President's proclamation, he proposes to use his own discretion, and, if necessary, or as the case demands, suspicious ships will be held a longer or shorter period than twenty days.

His actions will be taken, he said, with the understanding only that he is responsible, and the President will not be considered. So that now, as the situation stands, President Harrison's proclamation will be practically ignored at Quarantine.

"I shall be governed by the State laws entirely," said Dr. Jenkins. "And President Harrison's proclamation does not apply to this port. I am invested with full power to hold any vessel as long as I deem it necessary, as per section 22 of act 11 of the State laws governing Quarantine, and no vessel will be detained for twenty days unless the occasion requires. I shall hold them six months if necessary, but to hold a vessel for twenty days, when she had no sickness aboard, and when a few days' fumigation would destroy any and every disease germ, would be the height of folly."

There has been no disease on ships arriving to-day, and the cabin passengers on the City of Berlin and the Island have been released.

The Highlands have been victorious over the following strong teams, with the scores annexed: Roeblings, of Trenton, 4 to 1; Bristol, 3 to 1; Camden, 1 to 0; Germantown, 2 to 1.

GREAT FUN TO-NIGHT.

John Kelly and Company Bound to Make a Big Hit in Their New Play at Music Hall—Something About the Funny Fellows and Bewitching Maidens.

John T. Kelly and his funny company had a full rehearsal at Music Hall last night of the merry eccentricity they are to produce at that theatre this evening. The favored few who witnessed the rehearsal were delighted with the performance, and are eager to see the finished production to-night.

John T. Kelly is certainly a great comedian, and his new play, "McFee of Dublin", is just brimful of lively, sparkling humor. The entertainment is of a high order, and is productive of hearty, healthy laughter throughout.

COMEDIAN JOHN T. KELLY.

Kelly takes the part of Roger O'Mara, and is in reality valet to the true Lord McFee. The genuine lord is abroad, and in his absence Roger assumes his lordship's position and makes love to a girl he believes to be Adelaide Wagner, the wealthy heiress and opera queen. But Adelaide's maid Molly has assumed the mistress's place, and so the two frauds go on courting one another, each for the other's supposed wealth. In the midst of the plot the true lord and true opera queen arrive, and a highly ludicrous concatenation of circumstances arises. To disclose the development of the story would be to anticipate much of the enjoyment that the reader will experience in witnessing the play to-night; but all may be assured that affairs are cleverly tangled and untangled again, and that fun and frolic galore are the result.

Frank W. Holland as the genuine lord is excellent. Harry Kelly makes a tip-top Reddy, and has in him the elements of a famous comedian. C. J. Williams as the retired prize-fighter will delight the gallery gods and send them into an ecstacy of merriment. James Quinn fills a dual role most admirably, first as Adelaide's father, second as an English detective. Wright Leon is another funny character, as Ringbone Spavin.

The charming Mattie Vickers and the dainty, dashing Florrie West are known everywhere as histrionic queens, and their fascinating ways bewilder and dazzle their delighted audiences. Their songs, dances and pretty speeches are highly entertaining, and they are sure to win hearty admiration to-night.

But there is an abundance of other lovely femininity in the cast of players. Flora Veldran, the buxom housemaid, is attractive enough to merit a more worthy part. Nellie Page, Margie Mortimer, Josephine Ditt and Mildred Moseley are a most bewitching quartette of rosebuds, and their graceful dancing and sweet singing will captivate the people. All of the fair young maidens of the cast have a bewildering array of beautiful new costumes, the very sight of which will delight the feminine heart.

The fun of the piece is clean-cut and wholesome throughout. There is nothing to offend the fastidious, but everything to excite everybody's risibilities.

Not the least of the characters is Jack Bites, the dog, who plays his part to perfection. He is a good-natured and affectionate bull terrier, off the stage, but on the boards he is a holy terror. That dog's antics alone are worth the whole price of the show.

New Jersey Democrats Getting to Work.

The Executive committee of the Democratic Society of New Jersey held a conference in Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, Wednesday afternoon, with the Advisory committee of the same organization. Those present from Plainfield were Gen. William H. Sterling, Mayor William L. Saunders and J. A. Demarest. Encouraging reports were received from all parts of the State. It was decided to hold a mass-meeting in Camden on Sept. 26, the day prior to the convention of Democratic clubs. There will be a parade of Democratic clubs after the convention. Grover Cleveland will be invited to attend the convention. It was decided at the conference to begin the circulation of campaign literature at once and not wait for the Democratic State committee to act. Another conference will be held on September 13.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It has done for me what other so-called cures have failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical—Clarence L. Huff, Biddeford, Me.

It's a plan that proves something — but only the makers of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery adopt it. It's a plan to give you what you expect, or take no pay. If, in any case, their remedy fails to benefit or cure you, they'll return the money.

That proves, for one thing, that it's pretty sure to do all that's claimed for it. And what they claim is, that all diseases or disorders caused by a torpid liver or impure blood are cured by it. For all the many forms of Scrofula, and for the most obstinate Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, and all kindred ailments, it is an unequaled and unfailing remedy.

It proves that the "Discovery" is the best blood-medicine, or it couldn't be sold on such terms; and the cheapest, for you pay only for the good you get.

And it proves, too, that nothing else, offered in its place by the dealer, can be "just as good."

Beware of spurious imitations or dilutions, at lower prices.

NOT MORSE BUT A PLAINFIELDER.

Further Interesting Information Secured by THE PRESS Which Proves that the Real Inventor of the Telegraph Instruments Was Alfred Vail.

The story published in THE PRESS last week of how the United States government in its search for the original telegraph instruments, wrote to Charles E. Buell of this city for light on the subject, and the publication of Mr. Buell's interesting and instructive reply, has called forth a lot of information that is really startling.

Now you all suppose that Prof. Morse invented the Morse telegraph instrument and the Morse alphabet. He was the patentee and consequently the "legal" inventor, but THE PRESS is furnished with some facts and testimony that say the real inventor of it all was Alfred Vail, a man whose ancestors were born and bred on what is now Plainfield soil.

In 1732, John Vail—"the Quaker preacher", as he was called, because there were other John Vails—owned all the country from Plainfield to Scotch Plains. A grandson descended from him was judge Stephen Vail of Morristown, a cousin of the father of Mahlon Vail who now lives on Park avenue. This Stephen Vail's son Alfred was the real inventor of telegraphy, and Alfred's son Stephen of New York city has now in his possession the original telegraphic recording receiver used upon the first telegraph line ever constructed. This receiver was invented by Alfred Vail. The historical message, "What God Hath Wrought," was received through it. Last year senator McPherson introduced a bill providing for a government appropriation of $10,000 for the purchase of the instrument.

Alfred Vail was a partner with Morse in the project, but the latter at the time was more engrossed with the magnetism of the girl he was courting, than with telegraphy. The first test of the scheme was made by Vail in his barn with the instruments at each end of a big coil of wire used to get distance. The first line operated was from Baltimore to Washington. But the Washington end where Morse was stationed was always getting out of order from neglect or something else, and business would stop until Vail had ridden over on the stage from Baltimore and fixed the trouble.

Alfred Vail's widow, still living, says Prof. Morse on his death bed told her he wanted to live long enough to do her husband justice before the world. The story of the time is as follows:

Prof. Morse himself was an artist, and apparently possessed very little scientific knowledge or mechanical skill, and in 1837 while vainly endeavoring, at the New York University, to construct some satisfactory contrivance to be worked by the electro-magnate, became acquainted with a young man, at that time a student there, who seemed to possess what he lacked, and took him into partnership, with the understanding, however, that the patent should be taken in Morse's name, though the profits were to be divided.

This partner in the profits but not in honor, was Alfred Vail, son of judge Stephen Vail of Morristown, and, as a result of this partnership, the electrical experiment were soon after transferred from the University to Alfred's home at the Speedwell Iron works, where he went to work in earnest to try and carry out Morse's idea.

The real Morse instrument was one in which the circuit was made and broken by notched type; these represented numbers and not letters, and the corresponding words had to be found in a "telegraph dictionary", as was explained by Prof. Morse in a letter to the New York Journal of Commerce, September 24, 1837.

Other methods were proposed by his partner, but it seems were not accepted by Prof. Morse; he preferred his own, probably because it was his own. He was apparently very jealous of any rivalry in the hoped for invention, and bound to secrecy the few that had knowledge of what was being done; never alluded to Vail as his partner, but called him his assistant, though he not only supplied the skill, but the capital to carry on the work.

A long time was spent in trying various modifications of this notched type arrangement. Vail in his work on the American Electro Magnetic Telegraph, published in 1847, describes no less than six; all of which were ultimately rejected. The seventh plan was what he calls the Lever & Roller, and says it is the instrument now in use. He does not say it is his invention, for reasons that will be explained.

In the National Museum at Washington is the first Morse instrument made, and attached to it is a memorandum written with a pencil by Vail, in which he says:

"This lever and roller was invented by me in the sixth story of the New York Observer office, in 1844, before we put up the telegraph line between Washington and Baltimore, and the same has always been used in Morse's instrument. I am the sole and only inventor of this mode of telegraph embossed writing. Prof. Morse gave me no clue to it, nor did any one else; and I have not asserted publicly my right as first and sole inventor, because I wished to preserve the peaceful unity of the invention, and because I could not, according to my contract with Prof. Morse, have got a patent for it."

Here is a positive statement. Is it true? The character of the witness is an important part of the evidence. That he was a partner of Morse and one of the directors of the Telegraph company until his death some twenty-five or thirty years ago, is certain. At a special meeting of the directors at that time resolutions were passed and many remarks made in regard to the first death that had occurred in the board; from these I quote the following:

B. B. French said: "To him (Alfred Vail) the telegraph interests of America owe much, and it is the duty of all engaged in this now immense and vastly important enterprise to pay to his memory a tribute of respect. For honesty of purpose, industry, and perseverence in whatever he undertook, Mr. Vail was surpassed by no one, and in mechanical ingenuity by few."

The Hon. Amos Kendell, ex-postmaster general, in seconding the resolution said: "Mr. Vail was one of the most honest, and most scrupulously conscientious men with whom it has ever been my fortune to be associated with. To him was Prof. Morse indebted not only for means and assistance, but for valuable suggestions in bringing his telegraph to perfection; and, if justice be done, the name of Alfred Vail will forever stand associated with that of Samuel F. B. Morse in the history of the invention and introduction into public use of the Electro-Magnetic Telegraph."

The above are the opinions of his associates as to the integrity and skill of the man who claims the invention; and it is nearly certain that they knew more than they deemed it prudent to say, as to the claim, for Prof. Morse was one of them, and was still living.

CONFESSION FROM THE ENEMY.

Manager Mack Will Stop at Nothing to Beat the Crescents.

(Somerville Unionist-Gazette.)

The West Ends worked their way up one more notch in the Central New Jersey League on Saturday. They won from Elizabeth while the Crescents were defeated by Westfield, and they are now tied with the Crescents for first place. It is going to be a nip and tuck struggle between these two teams for the pennant up to the last game but the odds are in favor of the West Ends. They seem to play steadier as the crucial point approaches. If both the leading teams win their games next Saturday then the result must depend on whether either one can win both the games which they must play together to end the series. This will make one of the most bitter contests ever witnessed in the base-ball annals of central New Jersey. There is not a West End man to be found, however, but that is confident that his team is sure to win at least one of these last two games. The home team is certainly doing nice work. Out of the twelve last games they have lost only two. And they play more satisfactorily every day. Manager Mack has made up his mind that the Crescents must be beaten this year and he will stop at nothing short of this.

The Crescents were defeated by the Westfields on Saturday, by superior playing. The Crescents were completely outclassed throughout the game, and for a wonder they admit it.

Netherwood Nightingales.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—That gifted, versatile and altogether charming genius who presides over the literary bureau connected with the Hotel Netherwood, commits an unpardonable error in his "Netherwood Notes" of Aug. 27 when he implied that we had no "Nightingales" to listen to at our hostelry.

I heard Jenny Lind first in 1850. In the year earlier I held the youthful little Patti on my lap while she warbled notes of exquisite beauty, little thinking she would be the "Queen of Song" later. Since then I have heard all the great professional vocalists and scores of amateurs of all grades of excellence; but it has seldom been my good fortune to listen to vocalization more powerfully, sweetly and correctly rendered than by the two ladies who furnished us Tuesday night with an impromptu specimen of their charming art.

I could not if I would treat their performance critically or comparatively; either sang well enough to fully satisfy all who heard them, which was duly attested by the spontaneous applause given to each in turn by the audience.

Apart from the unquestionable musical genius clinging to each, one rarely sees two more imposing specimens of combined beauty of face and form than Mrs. L——b and Miss C——y.

A. N. OLDTIMER.

Not Changed in Essential Elements.

In the circular issued from the office of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, President Maxwell announces that the company has "re-entered into the possession of all its railroads and other property heretofore demised to the said the Port Reading Railroad company" under the order of the court of chancery. A prominent director is reported to have said that this action would make no difference in coal or freight rates, and that the Central, as a separate and independent corporation will "act in harmony with" instead of "subordinate to the Reading company. That's all". In other words, the injunction, it may be said, will simply change the form of the railroad agreement but not its essential elements.

Art Study Made Easy.

Those who desire to learn to paint, or any other art work, without the aid of a teacher, are advised to make the acquaintance of The Art Amateur, a thoroughly practical art magazine, which is really indispensable to both art student and art teacher. In order to introduce this really sumptuous publication where it is not already known, the publisher offers to any one who will mention this journal and send $1 directly to him, four well-selected numbers of The Art Amateur (including 32 large pages supplementary designs) and 17 superb color plates (for copying or framing), including several which show in their proper colors the progressive stages in painting landscapes, flowers, portraits, animals, etc., in oil and in water-colors, as practised by the best artists in Europe and in America. The publisher is Montague Marks, 33 Union Square, New York city. In writing, state your preference for landscape, flowers and fruit, figures or animals; or if you are more interested in china painting than in oil or water-color painting.

THE NEW SUPPLY FROM NETHERWOOD.

One and a Quarter Million Gallons of Water Daily, to Quench Elizabeth's Thirst.

THE PRESS yesterday published the news that a stream of water was allowed to run from the tower at Netherwood into the Chilton street reservoir in Elizabeth.

Frank Bergen, the president of the Plainfield Water Supply company, and also one of the managers of the Union Water company, said that Wednesday's operation was but a test, and that it would probably be a few days before a steady stream would be allowed to roll into the city. But Elizabeth is to be favored sooner than was at first intended. After the test Wednesday afternoon, the water was turned on again, and since has run continually from Netherwood to the reservoir on Chilton street, Elizabeth, at the rate of one and a quarter million gallons per day, or about one-third of the quantity that is used in the city.

This quantity will continue to run for a few days, Mr. Bergen said yesterday, and in the meantime arrangements are being completed for a larger quantity sufficient to supply the entire needs of the city for the present.

Even Republicans Were Present.

The North Plainfield Democratic association held a stirring meeting last evening, and so thoroughly enthusiastic and interested were all those present, that it was decided to hold the meetings regularly every Thursday. There were a number of Republicans present last evening.

President E. C. Morse of the association made an appropriate and sterling speech on the Force bill, and James E. Martine also addressed the audience on the issues of the day.

North Plainfield's Petit Jurors.

Somerset county's petit jurors were drawn by sheriff Codington in the presence of judges Bartine, Jameson and Ten Eyck, on Tuesday. The list includes the following from North Plainfield: George Demler, jr., Robert Love, Lewis Bird, George W. Morrison, Lewis Holmes, Jacob M. Higgins, Elmer GaNun, Randolph W. Vail.

The Buying of Peaches.

Did it ever occur to the buyer that the sprigs of green leaves found on top of a basket of peaches had any significance? The housewife probably thought they were just a few leaves which had slipped into the basket during the process of packing, or that the object was ornament. But they have a special meaning, and are almost as important as the lettering on the basket. It is by these sprigs that the grower communicates with the dealer. Suppose a man has three grades of peaches, he will mark his best grade by placing three sprigs on top of his fruit. The next best he will mark with two, and the ordinary peaches only have one sprig. The dealers depend on these sprigs, and if they lie the grower by a loss of patronage will sooner or later be made to repent of his dishonesty. The old story about putting the largest fruit on the top is played out and peaches must be the same clear down to the bottom of the basket. Another improvement of recent years is that the basket is sold with the peaches. This prevents handling and to a certain extent bruising. The old plan of returning the baskets to the growers only caused annoyance to all concerned.

BY THE WAY.

—Headquarters for the finest Elgin creamery butter is at the store of the United Tea and Coffee Growers' association.

—New goods constantly, is Gavett & Co's plan, and fair, square prices are at what he sells them. You will notice today's change of advertisement mentions a few things you just now very much need.

—It is said by a reliable Plainfielder that those who work in stables never have cholera. This would prove the efficiency of ammonia as a preventive. Then every night after closing, the post-office should be plentifully sprinkled with it, and the railroad people should saturate their car seats whenever they are not in use.

—Be wise; take time by the forelock; fight disease by preventing it. Prepare for an emergency, and lay in a supply of disinfectants. Every kind of disinfectant known to science is now on sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, corner Park and North avenues. Keep your home wholesome by liberal use of these efficient chemicals, and ward off dread disease.

Lizzie Borden Removed From Fall River This Morning.

HOW THE RESULT IS REGARDED.

Even the Defendant's Friends Expected She Would Be Held for the Grand Jury After Judge Blaisdell Determined to Preside at the Hearing.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sep. 2.—Lizzie Borden was taken to Taunton jail this morning. Her friends are indignant over the verdict rendered yesterday, but if the truth were told, they have expected it from the moment Judge Blaisdell determined to preside at the hearing.

Many persons who have read Mr. Knowlton's summing up for the prosecution state that the verdict was the only proper one to preserve the interest of safe government, but not a few of them are skeptical about conviction on the evidence submitted at the hearing.

Marshall Hilliard has commenced to outline the plan for the State to pursue. In this matter he has been directed by Attorney-General Pillsbury and District-Attorney Knowlton. It is said at police headquarters that there is much yet to be done before the case is fit for successful presentation to the grand jury.

No habeas corpus plea will be made by the defendant's lawyers. They will devote their time to hunting down the mysterious people seen around the Borden house the day of the murder.

Andrew J. Jennings believes firmly in Miss Lizzie's innocence. His great plea is the principal topic of conversation. It appeals to the popular ear, and it will be many days before the citizens begin to look upon the prisoner as a criminal.

When court began yesterday morning Mr. Jennings opened for the defense. He said, among other things, that the complaint alleges, that on the fourth day of August, Andrew J. Borden was killed by his daughter. He approached the subject with feelings widely different from any other case which he had ever before handled.

Mr. Borden was not only his client, but his friend, and had anybody told him four weeks ago that he should now be pleading for the daughter of his old friend he should have said it was beyond the bounds of credibility.

That Andrew J. Borden was murdered there was no doubt, and that the time of murder has been established there was no doubt, he said.

The alarm was given at 11:13 to 11:15, and the time between Mr. Borden's last entrance to the house and the alarm was about 25 minutes.

What occurred after he got there? Bridget Sullivan told her story, and she left him in the sitting room reading a paper. Within half an hour Andrew J. Borden had to go into the house, have his talk with Lizzie, if he had one, go upstairs and downstairs and lie down on the sofa, unless he was killed, and placed on the sofa afterwards.

The time must be reduced from 10 to 15 minutes for the commission of the deed. It is found that after the alarm had been given the bodies were where they have been so often described as being, and any man of common sense would have said at once on seeing them that this was the work of an insane man, one whose heart was hardened.

The theory of the government seems to be that the crime was committed by inmates of the house; all their work seems to have been directed by that one idea. It is claimed that nobody could get out of the house without being seen, because there were persons all around.

Mr. Knowlton then spoke for the prosecution, and held the close attention of the court room for two hours. In closing he said:

"The demeanor of the defendant is remarkable. While everybody is filled with anguish, she has never yet expressed emotion. It takes away from the horror we have of bringing our minds to think this thing has been done by her. I have never heard but one expression from her yet. She was annoyed that Fleet should ask her questions about the fact of the murders.

"We have never yet found the wrap that covered Lizzie Borden and took the blood from those bodies; we have not yet found the hatchet which did the work. This thing was conceived in the head of a cool-headed and deliberate woman. If your Honor should yield to the eloquent arguments of my brother and allow this woman to go, that would not be the end of this matter. The reward that attends duty done should be considered."

Judge Blaisdell said that sympathy should be laid aside and duty, stern duty, requires upon this evidence but one thing to be done. Supposing that a man was seen in the chamber of Mrs. Borden, the guest chamber of death, and that he was in the room of the father when death came; suppose that a man should tell as many different stories as Lizzie has done, the way would be plain. "I find that she is probably guilty."

She was ordered remanded to the county jail at Taunton for trial at the November term.

All of the witnesses were ordered to recognize for the November term of court.

Twenty-five Miners Were Killed, and Eight Mortally Hurt.

BRUSSELS, Sep. 2.—Twenty-five persons were killed and eight mortally injured in the explosion at the Aggrappe coal mine. The mine is the property of the Rothschilds, and accidents have been frequent there.

One hundred and twenty-one miners were killed by an accident in this mine on the 3d of May last, and another calamity in 1879 destroyed 123 lives.

TRAGEDY AT PEPPERILL, MASS.

William Lively Kills His Wife, and Then Attempts Suicide.

EAST PEPPERILL, Mass., Sep. 2.—Pepperill was startled yesterday by a brutal murder and attempt at suicide. At 4:30 in the morning William Lively, a farmer at the north village, ran to the house of a neighbor, named Baker, and told him to come to his house at once, as his wife was sick.

Baker is an old man and did not wish to go so early, so he sent Evlyn Greenlaw, a girl stopping at his house. She went to the house before Lively got back and saw Mrs. Francena Lively, the farmer's wife, lying on the floor near the back kitchen.

She went for help, and when she came back she saw Lively lying in the doorway of the same room with a 32-calibre six-shooter near by with two chambers empty. His wife had a bullet hole in the back of her head from which her brains oozed.

She died soon after. Lively had a ragged wound behind his right ear. Drs. Lovejoy and Heald were summoned and pronounced the chances for Lively's recovery or death about even. Lively is 38 years old and his wife was about 37.

It is thought by Chief of Police Coggin, who is handling the case, that Mrs. Lively reproached her husband for drinking, whereupon Lively turned and shot her.

After trying many remedies for catarrh during the past twelve years, I tried Ely's Cream Balm with complete success. It is over one year since I stopped using it and have had no return of catarrh. I recommend it to all my friends. Milton T. Palm, Reading, Pa.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

How Comfortable and Yet How Becoming Is the Morning Robe.

Some Dainty Ones—New Things in Wraps—How to Trim the Fall Hat—A New Gown Laced—A Combination Suit.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Morning wrappers are such pretty, comfortable things, are they not? When once you are clad in a dainty one, comfortably ensconced in a great easy chair, sipping your morning chocolate and reading all your delightful summer correspondence, you feel as if you never wanted to rise again and don a tight fitting conventional gown. Those silky things are so cool, and you scarcely feel them, they are so loose; and still they're becoming, even though they haven't any shape. I think the prettiest ones are made of white China silk, with fine tucked yokes and feather stitching and plenty of lace. They're not so very different from a night robe, but since women are about to drop night robes and take to themselves pajamas instead, why, let us cling to the loose morning robe so long as we can. Another pretty one, slightly heavier, that I saw, was made of white woolen goods closely striped with a raised line in pale green. It had a lace ruffle at the edge over a plain silk one of green, and lace sleeves and yoke over the same green silk.

Still another was of pale mousseline de laine delicately printed. The gown was box plaited back and front on a lace yoke, and fell from here to the ground loosely, only gathered by a ribbon at the belt. The box plaits were run through with ribbon where they joined the yoke, and tied in a bow at the back and front. The sleeves had lace cuffs and ribbon bows and bands.

Now that summer grows older our hats are beginning to look very harvesty. We must take off any flowers or indications of blooming fields that may be there, and cover them with ripe wheat or oats. On a broad rimmed hat you'll have room for plenty, and it will look very pretty.

Now, too, that evenings grow longer and cooler, we begin to take more kindly to wraps. All summer we were generally satisfied with light feather boas and airy nothings to throw over our shoulders, but now we take a general interest in the new pelerines and capes coming out. One new cape I have just seen is made of three full, short flounces, each edged with narrow velvet. The top slopes up into a high standing collar, with a long velvet twist on top. The cape does not meet in front, but admits of a considerable view of the bodice underneath, and is only confined by a little strap at the neck.

An exceedingly pretty suit, with pelerine combined, is all in white and blue. The gown proper is a diagonal combination of these colors, and is cut, above the belt, with broad revers turning out from an oddly gathered white pongee front. The revers are edged with pale blue, and three narrow bands of it run down the front of the skirt. The narrow bodice, point downward, is also edged with blue. A very pretty full ruche, a few inches above the edge, adorns the skirt. Over the costume goes the pelerine, made of the same diagonal wool as the dress, and edged with the same pretty ruche all around, even to the collar, which is quite as high, if not higher, than those of last season. The pelerine doesn't make any pretense of meeting in front. It only reaches a trifle further than the sleeves.

A great many of our dresses at present seem to be gowns within gowns. One dress seems to fit over another dress, or part of one. This is the only way we can overcome the economy enforced by the bell skirt, which takes such a little material that we must cut our gown up in some way and put another skirt underneath, or have an under bodice or something else, so long as we retain our reputation for extravagance and fancifulness in dressing. We must give the other sex some reason for comment and criticism, or they'd die of ennui, poor things. This dress, I'm sure, would be just the thing for a lecture on lavishness. First, it has a plain underskirt of heavy white tulle, bordered with a deep flounce of rose colored batiste. Over this comes another skirt of white batiste sprinkled with rosebuds. This stops a couple of inches above the pink flounce, and is cut up and out in slanting tabs reaching almost half way to the waist, so that considerable tulle is visible. The bodice is double also, first plain tulle then another of the rosebud batiste, cut in narrow stripes a few inches apart, so that the tulle is not wholly hidden. The sleeves are more reasonable; there's nothing double about them; only a big puff on top, and a tulle cuff beneath.

White Russian blouses are worn in this same double fashion, with serge suits; a serge jacket completely covers the blouse except where the fronts turn back over the blouse.

A pretty gown, and one that is, I think, actually and truly new, is a black blouse made over a yoke of big black and white check. The blouse hangs loose over the wide fancy belt, and is oddly laced with very heavy cord at both sides of the front. The lacing runs down far below the belt and then suddenly terminates. The sleeves are two big puffs of the plaid over a plain black cuff.

It is quite the rage to feather-stitch dresses wherever there's an opportunity. At the edges of skirts and bodices, on belts, or wherever there's a tuck or a ruffle, it can generally be followed by a row of feather-stitching. It's a thing, too, that most people take a great delight in doing, and every woman takes more interest in a gown that bears some of her own handiwork.

Sleeves don't get much plainer. Some months ago we heard that shoulder puffs would soon be a thing of the past, and yet the latest garments from Paris show no lessening in the size of the puff. True, they have fallen slightly, but the width increases correspondingly. A very graceful one has a long over puff of delicate lace hanging without confinement and adorned with a velvet knot at the shoulder; two diagonal bands of insertion below the puff and a loose tulle ruffle at the wrist, with another velvet bow. Another pretty one for evening dress is first puffed, and then a short box-plaited flounce added, edged deeply with lace. Another dainty one for gauzy materials is caught up into the seam all the way down, and over the seam a narrow lace insertion is laid, finished top and bottom by a small rosette. A lace ruffle edges this also, caught up at one side.

Indiscretions of the Tourist.

There are physical constitutions that will not harmonize with the water; but one-half the things that writers record against the sea is the result of their own intemperance. The sea air rouses a wolf of an appetite, and nine-tenths of the passengers turn into meat-stuffers. From morn till night down go the avalanches of provender. Invalids, on their way to Europe for the cure of dyspepsia, are seen gorging themselves at nine o'clock, at one, at five, and at nine. I heard men who, the night before, took pigeons and chicken, and claret, and hock, and Burgundy, and Old Tom, and Cheshire cheese, and sardines, and anchovies, and grouse, and gravies, complaining that they felt miserable in the morning, and wondered what made them ill! Much of the sea-sickness is an insurrection of the stomach against too great installment of salmon, and raisins, and roast turkey, and nuts, and pies, and an infinity of pastry. One-half of the same dissipation on land would necessitate the attendance of the family doctor, and two nurses on the side of the bed to keep the howling patient from leaping out of the third-story window.—Talmage, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Birthday of Playing Cards.

The birthday of playing cards is to be celebrated in Vienna this year. An exhibition of the cards of various ages and nations should be interesting to every one, since the development of the "devil's pictures" has occupied many centuries. It is a fact that cards have been known for 500 years, but their origin is lost in mystery. The present form and the number in the pack are both things of comparatively modern date. A recent publication on the history and lore of the subject states what is not generally known—namely, that at the time of the French revolution the court cards were banished. The kings were replaced by presentments of the genii of war, commerce, peace and arts; the queens became the liberties of the press, professions, religion and marriage. Appropriately enough, the knaves were represented by the "equalities."

The Banns Were Published Later.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear," quoted Fledgeley as he and Gwendolin McNab strolled along the beach.

"I wish you were a diver," coyly responded the charming young maid.

"Why?"

"You could get me one of them."—Jewelers' Circular.

THE THREE BIG FIGHTS

New Orleans Fast Filling Up With Enthusiasts.

HOW THE BETTING IS RUNNING.

The Sullivan-McAuliffe-Dixon Combination a Big Favorite—Interest Centers in the Battle of the Giants — Corbett's Chances With the Champion.

NEW ORLEANS, Sep. 3.—As the time for the big carnival of fists approaches the interest increases, and the city is fast filling up with sporting men. The general admission tickets which were put on sale by the Olympic Club yesterday are fast being disposed of. Bets on the fights continue to improve, but they are mostly on combinations.

Another bet of $4,500 to $3,000 on the Corbett, Myer and Skelly combination was made last evening, and one of $1,000 to $400 on Sullivan, McAuliffe and Dixon. A bet of $2,500 even on Myer was also made at the pool room. The latter has $30,000 bet against the Corbett, Myer and Skelly combination, which has been such a favorite here on account of the big odds. These have been reduced from 20 to 1 to 13 to 1, with chances of a still greater reduction if much more money is put up.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

In the betting on the men singly Corbett is an 8 to 5 shot, Sullivan ranges from 3 to 5 to 1 to 2, McAuliffe pays 4 to 5, Myer is even money, Skelly is 3 to 1 and Dixon is a 1 to 3 favorite.

The fights will take place in the following order: Monday night, Myer vs. McAuliffe; Tuesday night, Dixon vs. Skelly; Wednesday night, Sullivan vs. Corbett.

The followers of Sullivan's pugilistic fortunes are confident that their man will go into the ring fit for the fight of his life. Sullivan's quarters will be on Rampart street, near the Young Men's Gymnastic Club, and the big fellow will have the same rooms that he occupied when he stopped here just before the Kilrain fight. Dr. Finney of the Young Men's Club has tendered the champion the hospitalities of the organization and the use of the gymnasium. The club as a body declined to do this.

A telegram from New York now announces that Corbett will reach here on Tuesday morning. The reason stated for this is that Corbett is afraid of the malaria, which he contracted when he was here before. It is probable that the Corbett train will be divided into two sections. The one with the passengers on board will arrive on Monday, so as to give them a chance to be present at the Myer-McAuliffe fight, while the other, containing Corbett and his trainers, will arrive the subsequent day.

Chairman Salvant of the committee which will have charge of the holders of tickets has appointed 124 members of the club. This committee will have their hands full seating the multitude of visitors.

All the news received from Bay St. Louis, the training quarters of Jack McAuliffe and Jack Skelly, is of of a most favorable character. At the Bay young Skelly is looked on as a sure winner, and although the city pool rooms are offering 3 to 1 at that resort, several even bets have been made on his fight with the colored boy. The combination tip at their quarters is "The three Jacks in a canter."

Reynolds, Skelly's backer, is booming along his man and covering bets offered. Jack Dempsey was to have seconded McAuliffe, but has telegraphed his inability to be at the ring side. Gus Tuthill of New York has been requested to take Dempsey's place in the corner.

Skelly will be seconded by Griffin, Reynolds, Robinson and Carroll. McAuliffe and Skelly will come to New Orleans Monday morning.

The Olympic Club seem worried about the stories that have gone out that the Dixon-fight is unpopular here because of Dixon's color. They do not think that the color line should be brought into question, and say that if Jackson should challenge the winner of the Sullivan-Corbett fight, or any other man, their club would offer a purse for the contest.

O'Rourke, Dixon's manager, who has had quite a quarrel with Jimmy Carroll over the charge that Dixon frequently fouls in fights, offers to find a lightweight who will meet Carroll for $2,500 a side.

The Sullivan-Corbett fight is, of course, the great topic of discussion. A sporting man who is known the country over and who saw both the pugilists just before he started from New York, sums up the condition of the men and the situation like this:

"Sullivan's real weak spot is his stomach. Here is the spot which still has superfluous fat lagging upon it. As fat is less elastic than hard muscle, a blow upon it will tell much more severely than upon the latter substance. Knock-out blows through the pit of the stomach are not unknown, though they do not often occur, but other things even, this seems to be the best spot for Corbett to attack if he gets an opening.

"Corbett has the advantage of a far better pair of legs than Sullivan. He will therefore be able to keep his feet with much less exhaustion of his muscular powers. His neck, while not so well defended by muscles as that of Sullivan, is still handsomely enough endowed. At the same time, if Sullivan could get in one of his terrible blows early in the fight upon this part of Corbett's anatomy it is likely that the contest would be ended in Sullivan's favor there and then.

"Corbett, judging from what his backers say, will adopt this line of battle. He will keep away, or rather make a sprinting fight. If he succeeds in doing this he will in all probability win.

"From Sullivan in his prime he would not be able to keep away under the rules, but Sullivan covered with fat and weak in the wind is a different man, and makes the contest more doubtful.

"The fact that he hits twice as hard as Corbett is his chief chance of victory. If he lands once or twice on the Californian a full right at any stage of the game he will win."

The special train bearing Sullivan and his party is expected to arrive late tonight. His progress has been marked by a series of ovations.

ALL BUT TWO RELEASED.

Jack Clifford and Matthew Foy, Homesteaders, Held for Murder.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 3.—Of the eight additional arrests of Homestead strikers charged with the several crimes of murder, riot and conspiracy by Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Steel Company, all but two of the number have been released on bail. Jack Clifford and Matthew Foy were held on the charge of murder until the court fixes bail.

Clifford is the man who gave the Pinkerton detectives information about the Homestead Advisory Committee. It is supposed the Carnegie Company wants to get Clifford out of the way of all influence and keep him safe until the Homestead cases are tried.

For this reason they had him locked up rather than depend upon uncertain and expensive surveillance, which they would have had to keep him under were he to be at liberty.

Warrants are also out for the arrest of Hugh O'Donnell, Hugh Ross and William Foy on the charge of murder.

OUR COMMERCE WITH CUBA.

Spain Modifying Her Demands and Conceding American Claims.

MADRID, Sep. 2.—Mr. McNutt, the special American representative, is now at San Sebastian pressing upon Senor Robledo, Minister of the Colonies, the claims made by Mr. Foster, the United States Secretary of State, relative to the Commercial treaty between Spain and the United States.

At the outset of the negotiations Senor Robledo held that the introduction into Cuba of the numerous articles that the United States Government demanded should be included in the new treaty would render all industry and commerce in Cuba impossible. Senor Robledo is now modifying his attitude, and is disposed to concede part of the American claims.

The Minister of the Colonies is hampered with fears of a conflict with Cuba. The Nationalist-Unionist party in the island is attacking the government's financial and tariff policies, especially the farming out of the Cuban customs and the scheme for the conversion of bonds.

NO INCURABLE DISEASE.

Mrs. Harrison a Sufferer from Nervous Prostration.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 3.—The almost daily publication of accounts about Mrs. Harrison's alarming condition of health was brought to Private Secretary Halford's attention this morning. He said:

"Mrs. Harrison's physical condition has improved, but her nervous condition has not kept pace with physical improvement. Her illness is caused by overtaxing herself in the performance of her official and domestic duties which left her suffering from nervous prostration.

"It will take a long time for her to thoroughly recover. She is taking no medicines, and is simply awaiting the recuperation which nature sends. She has no incurable disease that the President or doctors are aware of."

The Examination of Clothing from the Moravia—No Cholera in New York.

NEW YORK, Sep. 3.—In the expert examination to determine the presence of cholera bacilli in the specimens of clothing taken from the Moravia, made by Dr. Byron, the result was negative, as expected, owing to the failure to obtain fresh data to work from.

As to the present care of the Moravia's passengers, rigid measures of disinfection are being carried out daily on board the ship, but passengers will not be taken to Hoffman Island for their ablutions till after all the ships at Quarantine without sickness have been through the treatment.

Dr. Sanborn reports that no new cases have been developed on board the Moravia.

Upward of twenty-five suspicious vessels are due from now on until the expiration of the next ten days, and the Quarantine Health doctors are preparing to meet them. It seems almost certain that some of them will bring cases of cholera on board.

After the Health Inspector had made a very careful examination of the suspected cholera patient at 95 Orchard street, he made a report to Dr. Roberts at Sanitary Headquarters that it was neither cholera nor cholerine, but simply cramps.

It is said that the steamship companies here will lose $2,000,000 a month, while the twenty days' quarantine regulations are being carried out, $1,000,000 representing the loss arising out of diminished outgoing cabin passengers and loss of freight and other expenses for incidentals.

GILBERT ISLANDS SEIZED.

Great Britain Lays Claim to a Group in the South Seas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep 3.—News comes from the South Seas of a coup by the British Government in its territory grabbing scheme in South Pacific waters. This time it is the seizure of the Gilbert Islands, a small but valuable group down under the equator. The agent of her British Majesty was the warship Royalist, in command of Captain Edward H. M. Davis, also significantly styled "Deputy Commissioner."

The Royalist put into the lagoon that forms the harbor of Butaritari, the principal island of the group on Sunday, June 12. A boat landed Capt. Davis and interpreter and several lieutenants. They proceeded to the palace of King Nauterriate Tebureimaa.

At an assemblage in the afternoon, at which the American fruit firms doing business in the Group were represented, Capt. Davis made a detailed explanation to the King as to what Great Britain would require of him.

Among other things he ordered the King to pay forthwith his debt of $40,000 to the white traders or to get out of the place. Then came the pretext on which England had seized the island.

At 4:40 p. m. the King's flag was pulled down and instantly the British colors fluttered from the staff. The warship off shore noted the change and fired the usual salute. That evening the same performance was repeated on another part of the island. The few American residents were furious but helpless.

MANY BODIES WASHED ASHORE.

Victims of the Wreck of the Western Reserve Cast Off.

NEWBERRY, Mich., Sep. 3.—Five bodies have been recovered at the scene of the wreck of the Western Reserve. Capt. Minch and a lady supposed to be his wife and an unknown lady but partially clothed, as though hurried from bed to a yawl boat to escape, were among them.

The Western Reserve went down with her engines going at full speed, so sudden was the hurricane. As the crew pulled away they could see the monster puffing and plunging in the waves until she sank out of sight. There is no way of identifying the place where the steamer went down. It was out of sight of land, and there is no way of locating the wreck. The yawl was capsized at the first shoal from the shore by the breakers.

It is not probable that any of the occupants survived the cold and waves long except Stewart, who had on a heavy knit, close-fitting jacket, which he says alone saved him. He was entirely exhausted when he struck shore, and lay almost unconscious for an hour, until rescued by the life-saving station.

The body of Lizzie McMillan, the captain's daughter, was found about seven miles north of here. Parties at Pierpott claim that four persons were seen in a boat about two miles out at 7 o'clock on the evening of the capsizing of the schooner Toledo, but that the sea was running so high at the time no assistance could be rendered. The boat afterwards came ashore empty.

Rosebery Not Urged By the Queen.

LONDON, Sep. 3.—It is announced officially that the Queen did not as reported, urge the Earl of Rosebery to accept the Foreign Office. The Queen expressed to the Earl of Rosebery neither directly nor indirectly any preference as to his relations toward the Gladstonian administration.

Emma Borden Administratrix.

TAUNTON, Mass., Sep. 3.—In the Probate Court Emma J. Borden was appointed administratrix of the estate of Andrew J. Borden, with bond of $50,000. Her sureties are Frank L. Almy, Joseph A. Bowen of Fall River, and Frank Stevens of Swansea.

ALL IS DESOLATION IN HAMBURG

Fewer Deaths Are Reported, But an Increase in New Cases.

PRAYERS FOR AN ABATEMENT OF THE PLAGUE.

There Have Been 3,888 Cases in the Infected City So Far, and 1,771 Have Proved Fatal—Travel in Germany Almost Entirely Suspended—The Suspected Case at New York Turns Out to be Only a Case of Cramps—Yesterday's Record.

HAMBURG, Sep. 3.—Sedan Day passed without festivities of any kind. There were no processions, no music or meetings. Not a flag was displayed in the city.

In all the churches services of prayer for the abatement of the plague were held. They were attended by crowds which filled the buildings. Hardly a woman in colors or a man without the black badge of mourning on his arm, was to be seen, and the prayers were offered amid the sobbing and groaning of the congregations.

The desolation of the city has been apparent as at no other time since the introduction of the pest. For an hour after the services the streets were filled with sad-faced men and weeping women.

The number of fresh cases up to noon is 733, an increase of 52 since yesterday; the number of deaths 201, a decrease of 46 since yesterday. The decrease in the number of deaths is due to the corresponding decrease yesterday in the number of fresh cases.

According to the official statement 3,888 persons have suffered from the cholera since the epidemic took foot hold in this city. Of these 1,778 have died. Complaints are coming in from all quarters about the hardships which the quarantine inflicts on almost everybody living here at the present time by choice or otherwise.

The foreign travelers are, of course, the greatest sufferers, though it must be conceded that in many cases they have to thank themselves for their discomforts. Traveling in Germany, and especially in this city, has been almost entirely suspended. The government warns the public not to travel by way of Cherbourg, as vessels from that port are infected and subject to quarantine. Some of the public buildings here will probably be turned into temporary hospitals. Since yesterday a new system of disinfection has been established, which works apparently well.

MOSCOW, Sep. 3.—The death rate from cholera is increasing, owing to the increasing heat. The number of deaths has doubled within a week.

CONSTERNATION AT LIVERPOOL.

Shipowners Will Lose Heavily Through the President's Proclamation.

LIVERPOOL, Sep. 3.—In view of the quarantine at New York, the steamship Alaska will not carry emigrants on her next trip.

The shipowners have been thrown into a state of consternation by President Harrison's proclamation. The booking of emigrants for the next two weeks has been very large and the companies will suffer heavy losses through the necessity of refusing to carry them.

CHOLERA'S FIRST START.

Traced to a Dirty Hut in a Russian Immigrant Camp.

BERLIN, Sep. 3.—The Imperial Board of Health publishes a report according to which Prof. Koch and Dr. Roth in their recent investigations in Hamburg have traced the origin of the cholera in that city to a hut in the camp of some Russian immigrants, from which dirty water found its way into the river Elbe close to the Hamburg water works.

CHOLERA AT PIEDMONT.

Reported that Its Presence Has Been Officially Suppressed.

ROME, Sep. 3.—The "Corriere Di Napoli" states that the cholera has broken out at Piedmont, and that the fact has been officially suppressed.

It is said that pilgrimages to Rome during the Papal Jubilee will be forbidden for fear that the plague would spread through them.

Regarding Fumigation of Mails.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The question as to whether or not it is necessary to fumigate the mails arriving in the United States from Canada as a safeguard against cholera has given rise to such conflicting opinions that Postmaster-General Wanamaker has telegraphed the Postmaster-General of Canada asking what steps in this direction were being taken by Canadianauthorities.

More Cases at Antwerp.

ANTWERP, Sep. 3.—The agents of the Red Star line say that their ships will cease carrying emigrants in view of President Harrison's proclamation. The "Opinione" states that seven cases of cholera were discovered yesterday. Three of them were fatal.

Cholera Causes a Riot.

BUDAPEST, Sep. 3.—Peasants in Ciczacs started on a riot during the morning because several cholera patients were carried through the town. They tried to beat the men conducting the transport, but were soon driven off by a company of soldiers.

Little Room in London Hospitals.

LONDON, Sep. 3.—It transpires that 3,620 fever patients occupy all the beds usually available in the hospitals for emergencies. About 1,500 beds have been specially arranged for, however, to meet the requirements of a cholera epidemic.

Twelve Deaths in Paris.

PARIS, Sep. 3.—Twenty-one new cases of cholera or cholerine were reported in Paris yesterday, and there were twelve deaths from the disease.

CHINESE AND THE FAIR.

Exhibitors and Their Employes May Enter the Country Freely.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 3.—The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular letter concerning Chinese exhibitors at the World's Fair. After citing the joint resolution of Congress which exempts Chinese exhibitors from the operation of the Chinese Exclusion act, the circular says:

"In pursuance with said joint resolution Collectors of Customs at ports where Chinese persons who are exhibitors or employes of exhibitors at the World's Fair Columbian Exposition may first arrive, are instructed to admit such persons upon the presentation to them of satisfactory evidence that they are bona fide exhibitors or employes, whose services are required by such exhibitors, at the Exposition. In such cases the certificate will not be required.

BIG REWARD OFFERED.

The Captors of McWhirter's Murderers Will Receive $25,000.

FRESNO, Cal., Sep. 3.—There are no new developments in the McWhirter murder mystery. The Vigilance Committee seems to be waiting for the capture of the assassins before deciding to take action.

Mrs. McWhirter has offered an additional reward of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers, and her family has added $5,000 to this amount, making a total of $25,000. The authorities expect to have the men in custody before Sunday evening.

Coal Lower Along the Reading Roads.

There is a lot of foolish talk still going about in the mouths of thoughtless people and the columns of newspapers owned by competing roads, against that terrible "Reading Combine" that has "Put up the price of coal."

That the Reading is no more to blame than the Pennsylvania railroad or the Delaware canal, is proven by the fact that in New Brunswick which the Reading does'n't run anywhere near, and in Trenton that is supplied from a number of branch roads as well as canals, coal has been raised to even higher figures than along the Reading.

"THIS IS NO TUXEDO!"

MAYOR SAUNDERS FITLY REBUKES THE SELFISHNESS OF WEALTH, AND CHAMPIONS THE PEOPLE'S CAUSE.

Steps Taken to Secure Extension of the Plainfield Electric Railway into the Borough—The Ultimate Design to Connect Dunellen, Westfield, Newark and Orange With the Crescent City.

The council of North Plainfield last night took decisive steps towards securing rapid transit for the borough, and it may safely be promised that ere long the line of the Plainfield Street Railway company will be extended out Somerset street as far as the entrance to Johnston's drive at the foot of the mountain.

The matter of street railways was first brought before the session of the council by a communication from W. W. Howland. In his letter Mr. Howland protested against the introduction of any street car system into the borough. He urged that the borough streets be maintained as fine driveways, and that the borough be kept like one big park, with trees, flowers, lawns and other landscape features unmarred by common railways.

The letter and its writer came in for a severe scoring from mayor Saunders, later in the evening, when he took the floor to argue in favor of street railways in general and the Plainfield electric company in particular.

Mr. Saunders held that a man holding such ideas was an enemy to the best interests of the place. Such sentiments were directly opposed to public growth and prosperity. He was glad that Mr. Howland was so privileged as to have a beautiful place, good horses, and costly possessions, but the masses and not the classes were to be considered, the wishes of the majority were to be granted. This was no Tuxedo, nor any other kind of a public park; it was a populous, thrifty, progressive borough, and he hoped to see it made a big city. It should be built up. There should be good streets and good means of rapid transit. Such enterprises were demanded by the public.

The following majority report of the committee on streets and public health was presented.

To the Honorable the Mayor and Council.

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee on streets and public health beg leave to report that, after careful consideration of the subject of rapid transit for the borough, they are of the opinion that, if a contract satisfactory in all respects to your honorable body can be effected with the Plainfield Railway company, a franchise in accordance with such contract should be granted the said company to operate a trolley line of street cars within the borough, in connection with the said company's lines now established, and which may hereafter be established, within the city of Plainfield. In making this recommendation your committee believe that they express the weight of sentiment of the residents along the line of Somerset street particularly, as well as the majority of our citizens generally.

With regard to the application of the North Plainfield Railway company, your committee would state that, while they believe that the said company would undoubtedly give the people satisfactory service within the borough, no conclusive evidence has been submitted to your committee that the said company are able to insure to residents of the borough direct transit to the depot and to other parts of Plainfield and for a single fare. And while, other things being equal, your committee would unhesitatingly recommend favorable consideration for a company whose plant and many of whose stockholders would be located within our corporate limits, yet the fact that the North Plainfield company is apparently unable to meet the requirements upon which your honorable body would presumably insist, seems to be a fatal objection to granting their application.

Your committee have not been unmindful of the objection entertained by some of our thoughtful citizens to the trolley as a means of street transit. And with a view to securing a motive power free from the objections urged against this system, his honor, the mayor, whose judgment in this matter is entitled to great weight, has satisfied your committee, from personal inspection of the various systems of rapid transit in operation in some of our north-western cities, that the trolley is the only system now perfected for immediate use in a municipality like ours.

Great progress has been made in the development of systems of transit, which are not subject to the objections of the trolley. Hence we advise that any franchise which may be granted, should be so framed that the mayor and council will retain the right to order the wires and poles down, and a better system adopted, so soon as such system has by practical demonstration been proved to be superior to the trolley.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) GEO. H. NEAL, } of the
M. L. CONNOLLY, } Committee.
North Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 2, 1892.

Councilman Hegeman, the third member of the committee, dissented from the majority report. He did not want to be understood as opposed ultimately to the introduction of a street railway into the borough, but he thought that at this time it was premature to grant any franchise. He was satisfied with the equipment and service of the Plainfield company, but even that line was as yet in an experimental stage. He did not favor a railway in the borough until direct connection with the railway station was assured.

While mayor Saunders spoke on the subject councilman Connolly occupied the chair. Mr. Saunders said that he had thoroughly investigated the street railway matter, and though he was personally interested in compressed air as the coming motive power he was satisfied that there was no system now ready so satisfactory to put into the borough as trolley. He was willing to cast aside his personal interests for the public welfare.

The mayor said that nothing should be done hurriedly in the matter, and advised that the terms of contract between borough and company be made more favorable than those secured by Plainfield city. Good, safe, rapid transit was wanted, and the system granted a franchise was sure to be liberally patronized. But financial tribute should be exacted from the company when its revenue should have reached certain proportions, in return for the franchise.

Mr. Saunders said that the equipment of the Plainfield street railway company was the best he had ever seen, and he had traveled all over examining the systems in other places. The motor was the noiseless, the highest priced in the market. The cars were of the handsomest. The company had been tried, and had shown that it would do the fair thing by the people. Extension of its tracks meant transportation to any part of city or borough for 5 cents, a single fare. Local transportation to the borough limits only, with transfers and double fares, was not wanted. He had a most profound regard for ex-mayor Cooley, as an enterprising citizen who was interested in developing the borough, and Dr. Cooley's company meant to give good local service; but something more than mere local service was wanted, and this was a matter of business, not sentiment. The taxpayers wanted a road that would reach all points; the storekeepers desired a line that would draw trade from the outskirts; and the ultimate plan of the Plainfield company was to extend its lines throughout city and borough, to Dunellen, Hillside cemetery, Westfield, Orange and Newark.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the mayor and street committee to confer with the Plainfield Street Railway company, secure from them the best possible terms for extending the line into the borough, and consider the making of a contract.

Councilmen Hegeman and Sebring alone voted against the resolution.

The result of the conference will be reported to the council for action at a future meeting. Before final action is taken, the public will be given a chance to be heard for or against the enterprise.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. S. E. Flower returned yesterday afternoon from the Catskills.

Mrs. I. R. Glen and family arrived home from Asbury Park to-day.

John Young, of South Second street, has returned from a two weeks' visit at Peapack.

Mrs. Charles R. Thiers is home again from the Adirondacks, greatly improved in health.

E. E. Anthony of Orange street has gone to Johnsville, Duchess county, N.Y., for a week's rest.

Miss M. E. Dorgan and Miss K. E. Saverd are visiting their friend, Mrs. Joe Ling, of Cypress Hill.

The Rev. C. L. Goodrich has returned home and will preach to-morrow at the Congregational church.

The marriage will take place on Oct. 5, of Miss Nettie Homan, of this city, and Samuel Y. Clark, jr., of New York.

John A. Briant is rapidly recovering from his severe fall from a crab-apple tree, and will be out again in a few days.

The engagement is announced of Miss Rena V. Downing, of Philadelphia, to J. Elston Woodland, of Newark, formerly of this city.

The Rev. Mr. Schenck of the Trinity Reformed church and the Rev. Dr. Mitchell of the Methodist church, are home from their vacations, and will preach from their pulpits to-morrow morning and evening.

Edward Maurer, a highly successful commission merchant of New York, has rented Mrs. Mantz's new house on Craig place, and with his wife and baby has taken up his residence there. He will no doubt become one of the borough's most valued citizens.

F. X. Schoonmaker, of this city, speaks this afternoon at a mass-meeting of Republicans at Old Orchard, Maine, and will address another meeting at the same place in the evening. He will spend the whole of next month on the stump in Maine, speaking at Pittsfield, Augusta, Portland and other places.

Mrs. Sarah Bradshaw, of 82 Duer street, has a magnificent night-blooming cereus of which she is naturally very proud. It had fifteen buds on it, eight of which unfolded last night. The night was so cool that the beautiful flowers remained open until late this morning, making an elegant display. The remainder of the buds will open to-night.

Mr. and Mrs. Seely Edsall and J. Linn Edsall have returned home from an eight weeks' vacation. Their trip, which they report was a most delightful and enjoyable one, included short visits at Lake Simco, Toronto, Kingston, Verona, St. Lawrence River, and Thousand Islands, Montreal, Alburgh Springs, St. Albans, and Burlington, Vt, Aussable Chasm, Lake Champlain, Lake George and Saratoga.

A Plainfielder's Prohibition Speech.

W. W. Winans of Plainfield, in his speech at the Prohibition banner-raising at Cranford Thursday night spoke at some length on the Prohibition platform, and said the convention had made no mistake in nominating General Bidwell for President, and Mr. Cranfill for Vice-President. He said that the general was a strong man, weighing 270 pounds and standing over 6 feet high; "If elected I am safe in affirming that no man will ever sell him a barrel of whiskey, and if he is elected there will not be wine glasses on his table." The speaker said the general was once a Republican and a member of Congress, and at that time he owned 250 acres of ground which were planted with grape vines; on his return home from Congress he found all his employes intoxicated, and gave orders to have all the wine which had been made during his absence emptied into the road, but his friends urged him not to destroy it but make it into vinegar and sell it to the poor people. He said that Mr. Cranfill was well known throughout the south, and with the two candidates victory never was so near as at present.

A strong, healthy woman instead of a tired and ailing one! Sounds like a miracle, doesn't it? But it isn't. It's only the ordinary, every-day work of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—just the work that it was made for.

It's a woman's medicine, carefully compounded for her by an experienced physician, and adapted to her delicate organization. It makes weak women strong, suffering women well. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nervine, and a certain cure for all the functional derangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to the sex. For ulceration, displacements, bearing-down sensations, "female complaints" of every kind, it's a never-failing remedy.

And, among all the medicines that claim to help women, "Favorite Prescription" is the only one that's guaranteed to do what is promised for it. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back.

Is anything else, that may pay the dealer better, likely to be "just as good" for you?

FEARFUL OF THE PLAGUE.

Somerville's Defective Sewerage Invites a Scourge of Cholera.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

SOMERVILLE, Sept. 3.—The citizens of the town have a case of well-developed "scare" over what they fear is to bring forth some well-developed cholera cases. During the past two weeks the street leading to the station has been undergoing a change. It is being macadamized by contractor Hardgrove. A number of years ago a large drain was laid through this street, and has since been known as the "Barcalow sewer". All of the residents of this, as well as of the side streets, made their connections into this drain at the time it was put down. The opening of this drain is on the main street, directly in front of the Barcalow building, in the most densely populated and busy part of the town. In some way, during the process of macadamizing Railroad avenue, this drain has become closed up, and the stench arising from the stagnant water and refuse is something terrible, and has already caused two severe cases of typhoid fever—one being that of assessor Charles L. Voorhees, who lives in the Thompson building less than half a block away, and the other being lawyer John Frelinghuysen, who has offices directly above the offensive opening. The members of the Bachelor club, the swell social organization of Somerville, are up in arms about the nuisance, as their rooms are in the second story of the Barcalow building, and they therefore receive the full benefit of the odoriferous gases. The boarders in the Brick hotel directly across the street have been compelled to close their windows at night in order to sleep, and they also have made a decided kick against the menace to health. The town commissioners are taking what steps they can to abate the nuisance, but the power does not lie with them. The board of health have sole power to move in the matter, and what they should do is to compel the property-owners to connect with the town-sewer which is now at their very doors, and which can be flushed out every day. Then the old drain could be stopped up and abolished forever. This they seem in no hurry to do—whether from lack of nerve or from indisposition, no one seems able to determine. A notice served on the property-owners ordering them to connect with the town sewer at once would be the proper legal way, and every effort is being brought to bear upon the board of health to compel them to act. After the sun goes down, the abomnable stench settles over the business part of the town like a dense cloud. At 9 or 10 o'clock in the evening it is impossible to live in any comfort within range of this awful smell. This coming, as it does, on top of the cholera "scare" throughout the country, makes the people of Somerville feel in a decidedly uneasy frame of mind. Meanwhile, will the board of health act?

What the Council Will Consider at Its Next Meeting.

On account of Monday next, the regular monthly meeting night of the council, being a legal holiday, a special meeting is called by president Ginna for the next night, when the following, besides the usual routine business, will be considered:

An ordinance to change the name of North Richmond street.

An ordinance for the repairing and permanent improvement of East Sixth street.

An ordinance for the repairing and permanent improvement of Hillside avenue.

An ordinance to macadamize West Third street from the southwesterly side of Madison avenue to the northeasterly side of Plainfield avenue.

An ordinance authorizing the Plainfield Street Railway company to extend the location of its tracks.

An ordinance to lay out and open Sycamore street from the northerly side of East Fifth street to the southerly side of East Fourth street.

The consideration of any petitions or remonstrances that shall have been filed or may be presented respecting the application of the Plainfield Street Railway company for the right to extend the location of its tracks, or the adoption of the ordinance granting such right, and the hearing of all persons interested in the premises.

The hearing of all persons interested respecting the ordinance to lay out and open Sycamore street.

Bound Brook to Have a Banner Raising.

This afternoon at 5, Bound Brook Democrats will raise a handsome banner. It is to be stretched across the street in front of the Bound Brook hotel. There will be music, speeches and the usual glamour and noise attending a celebration of this sort. With the approach of cool weather both parties are getting ready for active work, and from this time on the different villages and towns in central New Jersey will nightly resound with the rattle of drums, and the smokey blaze of the campaign torch.

Headache and Dyspepsia.

William E. Russell, No. 512 West 57th street, N. Y., says:

"I have been a martyr to bilious headache and dyspepsia. Any indiscretion in diet, overfatigue or cold brings on a fit of indigestion, followed by a headache lasting two or three days at a time. I think I must have tried over twenty different remedies, which were recommended as certain cures by loving friends, but it was no use. At last I thought I would take a simple course of purgation with BRANDRETH'S PILLS. For the first week I took two pills every night, then one pill for 30 nights; in that time I gained 3 pounds in weight, and never have had an ache or a pain since.

Disease in one part of the body will evidently fill the whole body with disease. Every year or two some part of the system grows weak and begins to decay. Such part should be removed at once, and new matter be allowed to take its place. There's no need of cutting it out with a surgeon's scalpel. Purge away the old, diseased and wornout parts with BRANDRETH'S PILLS.

After trying many remedies for catarrh during the past twelve years, I tried Ely's Cream Balm with complete success. It is over one year since I stopped using it and have had no return of catarrh. I recommend it to all my friends. Milton T. Palm, Reading, Pa.

News of the Wheelmen.

East Orange Cyclers have arranged a road race for this afternoon. It will be from Plainfield to East Orange, a distance of eighteen miles. A ten-minute handicap will be placed on the scratch man. The start will be made at 3:30 and the route will then be from Scotch Plains, thence to Springfield, to Millburn, to South Orange, to Center street, to Harrison street, to Central avenue, and finish at the corner of Halsey street at 5 p. m. George Dorer is scratch man. Four medals will be given, one being for the man making the quickest time.

The entries for the Labor Day sporting events at the Elizabeth race track have closed, and the list shows what an active interest is being taken in the carnival by local sporting men. The bicycle races will be of especial interest, as nearly all of the cracks are entered to ride. In the two-mile team race for the championship of Union county, the first prize is the Saltonstall cup; the second, a table. Silver medals to go the winning team. The entries from the Plainfield Bicycle club are Geo. Mahon, A. T. Hinrichs and E. V. French, with A. F. Fritts and N. B. Titsworth as subetitutes.

TWO PEST SHIPS IN PORT.

MORE CHOLERA CASES ARRIVE IN THE NEW YORK HARBOR.

Deaths on the Normannia and Rugia—Cabin Passengers Stricken—4 Dead, 5 Sick, the Rugia's Record—Five of the Normannia's Passengers Succumb, and Four More are Sick—Two Cabin Passengers on the Death List—The Ships are From Hamburg—The Dead All Buried at Sea—Senator McPherson and Lottie Collins, the Dancer, on the Normannia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The steamships Normannia and Rugia both arrived at this port this morning from Hamburg and both reported that deaths from "cholerine" had taken place on the voyage.

Both ships are now detained at Quarantine.

The report that there had been several deaths from cholera on board the Rugia was received about 10 o'clock. That report said there had been twenty-three deaths during the trip, and that there were ten cases on board the ship in Quarantine. The Hamburg-American Packet company said that there had been some deaths from cholerine on both the Normannia and the Rugia, although the number in the case of the latter had been greatly exaggerated in the report first received.

The report that there were twenty-three deaths on the Rugia was obtained in this way: A health officer boarded the Chattahoochee this morning, and, it is said, told one of the passengers that there had been twenty-three deaths from cholera during the Rugia's voyage, and that there were still ten cases on board.

The representative of the Hamburg-American Packet company said that according to the statement of health officer Jenkins, whom he had seen only an hour previously, there were three deaths among the steerage passengers on the Normannia from "cholerine"; three steerage passengers were still sick from the disease, and also one of the crew. In addition to the deaths in the steerage, there was one death among the first-class cabin passengers from diabetes, and one death in the second cabin from "diarrhœa".

On board the Rugia, according to the officers of the company, there were four deaths from "cholerine" among the steerage passengers, and there are four still sick from the disease. The first and second-class passengers on the Rugia were reported to be all well, and there had been no sickness among them.

The first-class cabin passenger who died from diabetes on the Normannia was Jacob Heyneman, but when he died and where his home was the representative of the steamship company could not say.

The second-cabin passenger who died from diarrhœa on the Normannia was Carl Hegert. Nothing further was known about him by the steamship company.

The representative of the Hamburg-American Packet company was unable at half-past ten o'clock, immediately after his return from the Quarantine Station, to give any particulars of the death on board, when they occurred, or whether the dead were children or adults, or both. It was presumed, he said, that the vessel would be detained at Quarantine for some days and it was impossible to tell when the first and second cabin passengers would be permitted to land.

At the office of the company's agents, 37 Broadway, it was said that they did not know the ages of the dead or where they came from.

All the sick and dead embarked at Hamburg. It was said that most of the dead were young children.

At the company's office it was said, as before, that the disease on board the two ships was cholerine.

The Rugia sailed from Hamburg on Aug. 21 with 98 cabin and 436 steerage passengers on board.

The Normannia sailed from Hamburg Aug. 26 with 482 cabin and 482 steerage passengers. Both ships touched at Southampton.

The agents of the company up to 11 o'clock had no information as to when the disease first broke out on shipboard, or when the deaths occurred.

Both vessels bring full cargoes of freight from Hamburg and Southampton.

Lottie Collins, the dancer, was on the Normannia.

Lottie Collins was billed to appear at the Standard Theatre on Monday night, in her famous "Ta-ra Boom-de-ay" song and dance.

She is the dancer who introduced the popular song and dance in the London concert halls.

All the dead were buried at sea.

It was 11:15 o'clock when Dr. Jenkins admitted the reporters.

He said: "Gentlemen, according to my reports there were nine cases of cholerine on the Rugia. There are five convalescents and four deaths.

"On the Normannia there were five deaths and there are now four convalescents.

"On the Moravia there is one additional case of cholerine. It is an 8-year-old boy."

All the convalescent cases are very serious. Further deaths are expected to-day.

The remaining ill persons have been isolated in the ships' hospitals. All three ships will be held indefinitely.

Dr. Jenkins is in a very serious mood this morning. He has sent a number of telegrams to New York, and it is probable that he will hold a conference this afternoon.

PLAY AND COMPANY EXCELLENT.

A Large Audience in Music Hall, Last Night, Flatteringly Indorsed "McFee of Dublin".

The opening of the regular season at Music Hall, last evening, was an unqualified success in every particular, and most encouraging to both the people and the management—the former being thoroughly gratified with the play, and the latter entirely satisfied with the large attendance that gathered in spite of the fact that half of the community is still out of town.

Comedian John Kelly has a winner in his new play. Last night it went with a dash and brilliancy that is seldom equalled by anything on its first appearance. There is hardly a fault to be corrected, or a line to be cut. Kelly, himself, is far and away the star of all, yet Florrie West leaves nothing to be asked for in her part. Miss Vickers might be hurried up a little as her specialties drag yet, but the reason, possibly, is that her humor is too finely cut for the masses, and her voice, at times, too low.

Others who took part in the play's success were Harry Kelly, Frank Holland, C. J. Williams, James Quinn and Nellie Page, while handsome Josephine Ditt and other pretty young women decorated every scene with their presence and embellished each act with their dances.

The applause was so continued and the encores so frequent, that it was nearing midnight when the play closed.

MECCA OF HUNTERS.

New York's Sportsmen Drifting to Southern Game Preserves.

Vanderbilt Hunting Parties at Asheville—The Tuxedo Preserves—An Exclusive Set at Bloomingdale Park, Pa.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

When you have named Cameron, Deer river, Tuxedo park and Ellenburgh you have called off all the really available hunting grounds in New York state. Hunters are drifting southward, and Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina have in the past two years become the rendezvous of the best of New York's sportsmen. Up at Tuxedo park the preserves are as exclusive as the "set," and strict guard is kept to avoid interference by the too inquisitive and enthusiastic hunters from the near neighborhoods.

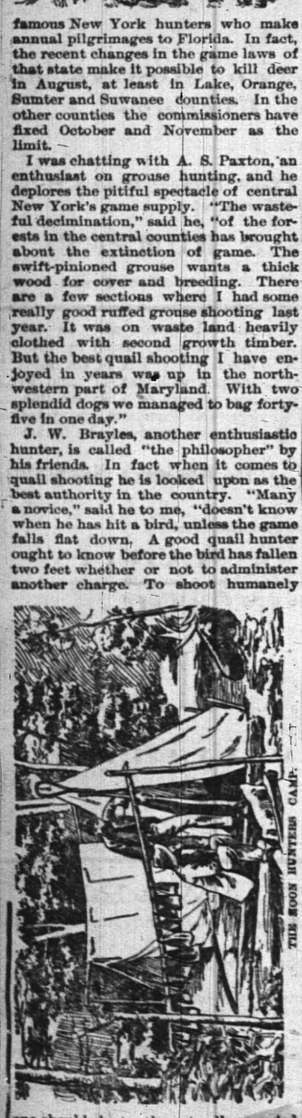
Bloomingdale park, in Pennsylvania, is perhaps just as exclusive as Tuxedo, and Nathaniel S. Smith and his New York friends regulate not only the preserves, but the season for shooting as well. It is, in fact, a Liberty park for the exclusives.

Some of the most interesting hunting parties of the coming season will be those organized by the Vanderbilts at their Asheville home, and to these must be added a deer stalking which is now being arranged by some of the famous New York hunters who make annual pilgrimages to Florida. In fact, the recent changes in the game laws of that state make it possible to kill deer in August, at least in Lake, Orange, Sumter and Suwanee counties. In the other counties the commissioners have fixed October and November as the limit.

QUAIL SHOOTING.

I was chatting with A. S. Paxton, an enthusiast on grouse hunting, and he deplores the pitiful spectacle of central New York's game supply. "The wasteful decimination," said he, "of the forests in the central counties has brought about the extinction of game. The swift-pinioned grouse wants a thick wood for cover and breeding. There are a few sections where I had some really good ruffed grouse shooting last year. It was on waste land heavily clothed with second growth timber. But the best quail shooting I have enjoyed in years was up in the northwestern part of Maryland. With two splendid dogs we managed to bag forty-five in one day."

J. W. Brayles, another enthusiastic hunter, is called "the philosopher" by his friends. In fact when it comes to quail shooting he is looked upon as the best authority in the country. "Many a novice," said he to me, "doesn't know when he has hit a bird, unless the game falls flat down. A good quail hunter ought to know before the bird has fallen two feet whether or not to administer another charge. To shoot humanely one should instantly put all wounded birds out of their misery. When a bird is killed, the instant the shot strikes it, it falls in a shapeless mass to the ground. But if there is only a second of life left the head is thrown back in a hopeless manner and the bird is likely to fall tail first, wings slightly extended. If one wing is extended or flopped in the air and the other is not used, the bird circling in its descent, you can count it only as wing-tipped. I have a few times seen a bird when flying in a horizontal line with the ground, suddenly change its course at the crack of the gun and fly straight skyward, and after moving a distance of a hundred yards descend gradually to the ground. I retrieved one of those birds myself and found it sitting up on the ground in a perfectly natural position. A small drop of blood on the head convinced me that it had been shot in the brain and had lost all consciousness even before it took its towering flight. The worst shot of all is the bird that goes off with its legs hanging down. Give it the other barrel quick as a flash, and then you will probably have killed the quail."



THE SOOB HUNTERS CAMP.

"If you want some real good quail hunting," said Henry Welles, the gentlemanly secretary of the Spalding club, "go down into Pike or Lehigh county, Pa. The season there is late. It doesn't begin for quail until November 1, and ends December 15, but during that time you will get your fill of the brown beauties. The last winter was a good one and Lehigh county and the Blue mountain region will be as full this year as during 1891, when I bagged as high as forty in a day. Why, one day at a place called Macungie, I flushed four pheasants each of which weighed three and three-quarter pounds. The quail were in some cases so thick that they almost burst."

Edward Lacy, of the Forest and Stream, told me he was going to Maine for his hunting this year. "In fact I am going up into Washington county after deer," said he. "I understand that some one has seen a jet black animal of that genus up there, and that's the creature I am going after."

Mr. Lacy also told me of a very fashionable fox-hunting club which had been formed by a number of rich New Yorkers whose winters are spent near Asheville, N. C. It is to be called the "Swannanoa Hunt," and the best fox hounds in the country have been secured. The hunts are to take place twice a week during the winter.

But it is the law the hunter wants to know something about, and I have taken the trouble to get the statutes of the various states corrected to August 1. Up in Ontario the deer, elk, moose, reindeer and caribou season does not open until November, and the game bird season is not open until October 15, so early-shooting New Yorkers will probably give it a wide berth. North Carolina is as strict in its laws, and in some of the counties quail cannot be killed until December 1. In the best districts, however, the shooting begins November 1. In Connecticut the open season for game birds begins October 1. This date includes woodcock, quail, ruffle grouse, partridge and gray squirrel. Reed bird and rail-shooting are allowed in Delaware, beginning September 1 and closing April 15. On other game birds the season opens November 15.

THE CAMP KEEPERS, ADIRONDACKS.

Plover shooting in Maine began August 1, and prairie chickens will begin to fall into the hunter's hands on September 1. The partridge and grouse season does not begin until October 1, and many a New Yorker will don his buckskin and prepare for the finest sport in the land in what is really the most magnificent game bird territory in the country. Pheasant shooting in Maryland is allowed August 15. Partridges will fill game bags after November 1, in that state.

In New York state, woodcock and grouse shooting begins August 15, and quails will be served on toast after November 1. The Pennsylvania open dates begin: For plover, July 15; for woodcock, July 4; for quail and partridge, November 1; for grouse, pheasant and prairie chicken, November 1.

ALBERT EDWARD TYRRELL.

A Fat Man's Exercise.

Very stout persons may sometimes be noticed glancing at other stout persons with a pleased expression that seems to say: "Well, I am not as stout as that, anyway," or, "There is some one who is quite as stout as I am." Evidently it is a consoling thought, says London Tid-Bits. The French Marshal Vivonne once indicated this feeling in a witty reply to the king. Vivonne and the Comte d'Auvergne were probably the most corpulent gentlemen in the court at the time. "Marshal, you are really getting too fat," said the king. "You ought to take more exercise." "Your majesty does not know, then, that I take a great deal of exercise?" "No. What do you do?" "I walk around the Comte d'Auvergne three times every day."

Severely Injured.

"I've come to see about getting my pension," said the distinguished applicant.

MR. HARRISON'S LETTER

Formal Acceptance by the Republican Nominee.

FEATURES OF THE DOCUMENT.

Facts in Connection With the McKinley Bill—The Policy of Reciprocity—Ocean Carrying Trade—The Currency Question—Free Coinage of Silver—Federal Elections—Review of the Conduct of the Administration.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 6.—The following is President Harrison's letter accepting the Republican nomination for the office of President of the United states:

WASHINGTON, Sep. 3, 1892.

Hon. William McKinley, Jr., and others, Committee, etc. Gentlemen:

I now avail myself of the first period of relief from public duties to respond to the notification which you brought to me on June 20, of my nomination for the office of President of the United States by the Republican National convention recently held at Minneapolis. I accept the nomination, and am grateful for the approval expressed by the convention of the acts of the administration.

I shall speak frankly of the legislation of Congress and of the work of the executive departments, for the credit of any successes that have been attained is in such measure due to others—Senators and Representatives, and to the efficient heads of the several executive departments—that I may do so without impropriety.

The great work of the Fifty-first Congress has been subjected to the revision of a Democratic House of Representatives, and the acts of the executive department to its scrutiny and investigation. A Democratic national administration, and the freshness of the events give unusual facilities for fair comparison and judgment. There has seldom been a time, I think, when a change from the declared policies of the Republican to the declared policies of the Democratic party involved such serious results to the business interests of the country.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

The Republican party during the civil war devised a national currency, consisting of United States notes, issued and redeemable by the government, and of national bank notes, based upon the security of United States bonds. A tax was levied upon the issues of State banks, and the intended result, that all such issues should be withdrawn, was realized. The notes furnished directly or indirectly by the United States have been the only, and the safe and acceptable paper currency of the people. Our money is all national money—I might almost say international, for these bills are not only equally and indiscriminately accepted at par in all the States, but in some foreign countries.

The Democratic party, if entrusted with the control of the government, is now pledged to repeal the tax on State bank issues, with a view to putting into circulation again, under such diverse legislation as the States may adopt, a flood of local bank issues. Only those who, in the years before the war, experienced the inconveniences and losses attendant upon the use of such money, can appreciate what a return to that system involves. Changes may become necessary, but a national system of currency—safe and acceptable throughout the whole country—is the good fruit of bitter experiences; and I am sure our people will not consent to the reactionary proposal made by the Democratic party.

THE OCEAN CARRYING TRADE.

Few subjects have elicited more discussion or excited more general interest than that of a recovery by the United States of its appropriate share of the ocean-carrying trade. Practically all the freights for transporting to Europe the enormous annual supplies of provisions furnished by this country and for the large return of manufactured products have for many years been paid to foreign ship owners. The merchandise balance of trade, which the Treasury books show, is largely reduced by the annual tribute which we pay for freight and passage monies.

The undisputed fact is that the great steamship lines of Europe were built up and are now in part sustained by direct or indirect government aid. It is plain to every intelligent American that if the United States would have such lines, a similar policy must be entered upon.

The Fifty-first Congress enacted such a law, and, under its beneficent influence, 16 American steamships of an aggregate tonnage of 37,400 tons, and costing $7,400,000, have been built or contracted to be built in American shipyards. In addition to this it is now practically certain that we shall soon have, under the American flag, one of the finest lines sailing out of New York for any European port.

A special interest has been taken by me in the establishment of lines to South Atlantic and Gulf ports; and, when their people are more fully alive to their interests, I do not doubt that they will be able to secure the capital needed to enable them to profit by their great natural advantages. The Democratic party has found no place in its platform for any reference to this subject, and has shown its hostility to the general policy by refusing to expend an appropriation made during the last administration for ocean mail contracts with American lines.

THE RECIPROCITY POLICY.

Another related measure as furnishing an increased ocean traffic for our ships, and of great and permanent benefit to the farmers and manufacturers as well, is the reciprocity policy declared by section three of the tariff act of 1890, and now in practical operation with five of the nations of Central and South America, San Domingo, the Spanish and British West India Islands, and with Germany and Austria, under special trade arrangements with each.

The removal of the duty upon sugar and the continuance of coffee and tea upon the free list, while giving great relief to our own people by cheapening articles used increasingly in every household, was also of such enormous advantage to the countries exporting these articles, as to suggest that in consideration thereof reciprocal favors should be shown in their tariffs to articles exported by us to their markets. Great credit is due to Mr. Blaine for the vigor with which he pressed this view upon the country.

The obvious efficacy of this policy, in increasing the foreign trade of the United States, at once attracted the alarmed attention of European trade journals and boards of trade. At a meeting held in March last of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Great Britain, the President reported that the exports from Great Britain to the Latin American countries during the last year had decreased $23,750,000, and that this was not due to temporary causes, but directly to the reciprocity policy of the United States.

Germany and France have also shown their startled appreciation of the fact that a new and vigorous contestant has appeared in the battle of the markets and has already secured important advantages. The most convincing evidence of the tremendous commercial strength of our position is found in the fact that Great Britain and Spain have found it necessary to make reciprocal trade agreements with us for their West India colonies, and that Germany and Austria have given us important concessions in exchange for the continued free importation of their beet sugar.

Partly by reason of the reciprocal trade agreement, but more largely by reason of the removal of the sanitary restrictions upon American pork, our export of pork products to Germany increased during the ten months ending June 30 last $2,025,074, or about 32 per cent.

The Democratic platform promises a repeal of the tariff law containing this provision and especially denounces as a "sham reciprocity" that section of the law under which these trade arrangements have been made. If no other issue were involved in the campaign this alone would give it momentous importance. Are the farmers of the great grain growing States willing to surrender these new, large and increasing markets for their surplus? Are we to have nothing in exchange for the free importation of sugar and coffee, and at the same time to destroy the sugar planters of the South and the beet-sugar industry of the Northwest and of the Pacific coast; or are we to have the taxed sugar and coffee, which a "tariff for revenue only" necessarily involves, with the added loss of the new markets, which have been opened?

Our commercial rivals in Europe do not regard this reciprocity policy as a "sham," but as a serious threat to a trade supremacy they have long enjoyed. They would rejoice—and, if prudence did not restrain, would illuminate their depressed manufacturing cities—over the news that the United States had abandoned its system of protection and reciprocity.

THE PROTECTION DOCTRINE.

The declaration of the platform in favor of "The American Doctrine of Protection" meets my most hearty approval. The convention did not adopt a schedule, but a principle that is to control all tariff schedules. There may be differences of opinion among protectionists as to the rate upon particular articles necessary to effect an equalization between wages abroad and at home. In some not remote national campaigns the issue has been—or, more correctly, has been made to appear to be—between a high and a low protective tariff—both parties expressing some solicitous regard for the wages of our working people, and for the prosperity of our domestic industries.

But, under a more courageous leadership, the Democratic party has now practically declared that, if given power, it will enact a tariff law without any regard to its effect upon wages or upon the capital invested in our great industries. The majority report of the committee on platform to the Democratic national convention at Chicago contained this clause:

"That when custom house taxation is levied upon articles of any kind produced in this country the difference between the cost of labor here and labor abroad, when such a difference exists, fully measures any possible benefits to labor, and the enormous additional impositions of the existing tariff fall with crushing force upon our farmers and workingmen."

Here we have a distinct admission of the Republican contention that American workmen are advantaged by a tariff rate equal to the difference between home and foreign wages, and a declaration only against the alleged "additional impositions" of the existing tariff law.

Again, this majority report further declared:

"But, in making a reduction in taxes, it is not proposed to injure any domestic industries, but rather to promote their healthy growth. Moreover, many industries have come to rely on legislation for successful continuance, so that any change of law must be at every step regardful of the labor and the capital thus involved."

Here we have an admission that many of our industries depend upon protective duties "for their successful continuance," and a declaration that tariff changes should be regardful of the workmen in such industries and of the invested capital.

The overwhelming rejection of these propositions, which had before received the sanction of Democratic national conventions, was not more indicative of the new and more courageous leadership to which the party has now committed itself than the substitute which was adopted. This substitute declares that protective duties are unconstitutional—high protection, low protection—all unconstitutional. Reciprocity, of course falls under this denunciation, for its object and effect are not revenue, but the promotion of commercial exchanges, the profits of which go wholly to our producers.

This mad crusade against American shops, the bitter epithets applied to American manufacturers, the persistent disbelief of every report of the opening of a tin-plate mill, or of an increase of our foreign trade by reciprocity, are as surprising as they are discreditable. There is not a thoughtful business man in the country who does not know that the enactment into law of the declaration of the Chicago convention upon the subject of the tariff would at once plunge the country into a business convulsion such as it has never seen.

There is not a thoughtful workingman that does not know that it would at once enormously reduce the amount of work to be done in this country, by the increase of importations that would follow, and necessitate a reduction of his wages to the European standard. If any one suggests that this radical policy will not be executed if the Democratic party attains power, what will be thought of a party that is capable of thus trifling with great interests?

THE TARIFF LAW.

And now a few words in regard to the existing tariff law. We are fortunately able to judge of its influence upon production and prices by the market reports. An examination into the effect of the law upon the prices of protected products and of the cost of such articles as enter into the living of people of small means, has been made by a Senate committee composed of leading Senators of both parties, with the aid of the best statisticians, and the report, signed by all the members of the committee, has been made public.

No such wide and careful inquiry has ever before been made. These facts appear from the report:

First—The cost of articles entering into the use of those earning less than $1,000 per annum, has decreased up to May, 1892, 3-4 per cent.—while in farm products there has been an increase in prices, owing in part to an increased foreign demand and the opening of new markets.

Second—There has been an average advance in the rate of wages of .75 of one per cent.

Third—There has been an advance in the price of all farm products of 18.67 per cent., and of all cereals 33.50 per cent.

The ninth annual report of the chief of the bureau of labor statistics of the State of New York—a Democratic officer—very recently issued, strongly corroborates, as to that State, the facts found by the Senate committee. His extended inquiry shows that in the year immediately following the passage of the tariff act of 1890 the aggregate sum paid in wages in that State was $6,377,925 in excess, and the aggregate production $31,315,130 in excess of the preceding year.

In view of this showing of an increase in wages, of a reduction in the cost of articles of common necessity, and of a marked advance in the prices of agricultural products, it is plain that this tariff law has not imposed burdens, but has conferred benefits, upon the farmer and the workingman.

Some special effects of the act should here be noticed. It was a courageous attempt to rid our people of a long-maintained foreign monopoly in the production of tin-plate, pearl buttons, silk plush, linens, lace, etc.

Once or twice in our history the production of tin-plate had been attempted and the prices obtained by the Welsh makers would have enabled our makers to produce it at profit. But the Welsh makers at once cut prices to a point that drove the American beginners out of the business, and, when this was accomplished, made their own prices.

The official returns to the Treasury Department of the production of tin and terne plates in the United States during the last fiscal year, show a total production of 13,240,840 pounds and a comparison of the first quarter 926,922 pounds, with the last—3,000,000 pounds—shows the rapid development of the industry. Over 5,000,000 pounds during the last quarter were made from American black plates, the remainder from foreign plates.

Mr. Ayer, the Treasury agent in charge, estimates, as the result of careful inquiry, that the production of the current year will be 100,000,000 pounds, and that by the end of the year our production will be at the rate of 200,000,000 pounds per annum.

Another industry that has been practically created by the McKinley bill is the making of pearl buttons. Few articles coming to us from abroad were so distinctly the product of starvation wages.

This tariff law has given employment to many thousands of American men and women, and will each year give employment to increasing thousands. Its repeal would throw thousands out of employment, and give work to others only at reduced wages. The appeals of the free trader to the workingman are largely addressed to his prejudices or to his passions and not infrequently are pronouncedly communistic. The new Democratic leadership rages at the employer, and seeks to communicate this rage to the employe.

I regret that all employers of labor are not just and considerate and that capital sometimes takes too large a share of the profits. But I do not see that these evils will be ameliorated by a tariff policy, the first necessary step of which is a severe wage cut and the second a large diminution of the aggregate amount of work to be done in this country. If the injustice of his employer tempts the workman to strike back, he should be very sure that his blow does not fall upon his own head, or upon his wife and children.

The Southern States have had a liberal participation in the benefits of the tariff law, and, though their representatives have generally opposed the protection policy, I rejoice that their sugar, rice, coal, ores, iron, fruits, cotton cloths, and other products, have not been left to the fate which the votes of their representatives would have brought upon them. In the construction of the Nicaragua canal, in the new trade with South and Central America, in the establishment of American steamship lines, these States have also special interests, and all these interests will not always consent to be without representation at Washington.

FREE COINAGE OF SILVER.

The resolution of the convention in favor of bi-metallism declares, I think, the true and necessary conditions of a movement that has, upon these lines, my cordial adherence and support. I am thoroughly convinced that the free coinage of silver, at such a ratio to gold as will maintain the equality in their commercial uses of the two coined dollars, would conduce to the prosperity of all the great producing and commercial nations of the world. The one essential condition is that these dollars shall have and retain an equal acceptability and value in all commercial transactions.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The Civil Service system has been extended and the law enforced with vigor and impartiality. There has been no partisan juggling with the law in any of the departments or bureaus, as before happened—but appointments to the classified service have been made impartially from the eligible list. The system in all the departments has for the first time placed promotions strictly upon the basis of merit.

HONEST ELECTIONS.

It seemed to me at the time of writing my last annual message, that an appeal to our people to consider the question of re-adjusting our legislation upon absolutely fair non-partisan lines might find some effective response. Many times I have had occasion to say that laws and election methods, designed to give unfair advantage to the party making them, would some time be used to perpetuate in power a faction or a party against the will of the majority of the people. Of this we seem to have an illustration in the recent State election in Alabama. There was no Republican ticket in the field. The contest was between white Democrats.

The Kolb party say they were refused the representation guaranteed by law upon the election boards; and that, when the courts by mandamus attempted to right that wrong, an appeal that could not be heard until after the election made the writs ineffectual. Ballot boxes were thrown out for alleged irregularities or destroyed; and it is asserted on behalf of one half, at least, of the white voters of Alabama that the officers to whom certificates have been given were not honestly elected. There is no security for the personal or political rights of any man in a community where any other man is deprived of his personal or political rights.

These new political movements in the States, and the recent decision of some of the State Courts against unfair apportionment laws, encourage the hope that the arbitrary and partisan election laws which have prevailed may be corrected by the States, the laws made equal and non-partisan, and the elections free and honest. The Republican party would rejoice at such a solution—as a healthy and patriotic sentiment is the best assurance of free and honest elections. I shall again urge upon Congress that provision be made for the appointment of a non-partisan commission to consider the subject of apportionments and elections, in their relation to the choice of Federal officers.

EDUCATION AND THE SCHOOLS.

The approval so heartily given by the convention to all those agencies which contribute to the education of the children of the land was worthily bestowed and meets my hearty approval, as does also the declaration as to liberty of thought and conscience, and the separation of church and State. Our interests in free public schools open to all children of suitable age is supreme, and our care for them will be zealous and constant. The public school system, however, was not intended to restrain the natural right of the parent, after contributing to the public school fund, to chose other educational agencies for his children.

AGRICULTURE AND THE HOG.

The considerate attention of the farmers of the whole country is invited to the work done through the State Agricultural Departments in the interest of agriculture. Our pork products had for 10 years been not only excluded by the great continental nations of Europe, but their value discredited by the reasons given for this exclusion. All previous efforts to secure the removal of these restrictions failed, but the wise legislation of the Fifty-first Congress, providing for the inspection and official certification of our meats and giving to the President power to forbid the introduction into this country of selected products of such countries as should continue to refuse our inspected meats enabled us to open all markets of Europe to our pork products. The result has been not only to sustain prices by providing new markets for our surplus, but to add 50 cents per hundred pounds to the market value of the inspected meats.

THE PRESIDENT'S FOREIGN POLICY.

It has been the purpose of the administration to make its foreign policy not a matter of partisan politics but of patriotism and national honor; and I have very great gratification in being able to state that the Democratic members of the committees of foreign affairs responded in a true American spirit. I have not hesitated to consult freely with them about the most confidential and delicate affairs, and here frankly confess my obligation for needed co-operation. They did not regard a patient, but firm insistence upon American rights and upon immunity from insults and injury for our citizens and sailors in foreign ports as a policy of "irritation and bluster."

They did not believe, as some others seemed to believe, that to be a Democrat one must take the foreign side of every International question if a Republican Administration is conducting the American side. I do not believe that a tame submission to insult and outrage by any nation at the hands of another can ever form the basis of a lasting friendship—the necessary element of mutual respect will be wanting.

The Chilian incident, now so happily and honorably adjusted, will, I doubt not, place our relations with that brave people upon a more friendly basis than ever before. This already appears in the agreement since negotiated by Mr. Egan for the settlement by a Commission of the long unsettled claims between the two Governments. The work of Mr. Egan has been highly advantageous to the United States. The confidence which I refused to withdraw from him has been abundantly justified.

A WORD FOR THE VETERANS.

The Union soldiers and sailors are now veterans of time as well as of war. The parallels of age have approached close to the citadels of life, and the end, for each, of a brave and honorable struggle, is not remote. Increasing infirmity and years give the minor tones of sadness and pathos to the mighty appeal of service and suffering. The ear that does not listen with sympathy and the heart that does not respond with generosity, are the ear and heart of an alien and not of an American. Now soon again, the surviving veterans are to parade upon the great avenue of the National Capital, and every tribute of honor and love should attend the march. A comrade in the column of the visitors in 1865, I am not less a comrade now.

MOB LAW DEPRECATED.

I have used every suitable occasion to urge upon the people of all sections the consideration that no good cause can be promoted upon the lines of lawlessness. Mobs do not discriminate, and the punishments inflicted by them have no repressive or salutary influence. On the contrary, they beget revenges and perpetuate feuds. It is especially the duty of the educated and influential to see that the weak and ignorant, when accused of crime, are fairly tried before lawful tribunals. The moral sentiment of the country should be aroused and brought to bear for the suppression of these offences against the law and social order.

RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION.

The necessity of a careful discrimination among the emigrants seeking our shores becomes every day more apparent. We do not want and should not receive those, who by reason of bad character or habits, are not wanted at home. The industrious and self-respecting, the lovers of law and liberty, should be discriminated from the pauper, the criminal and the Anarchist, who come only to burden or disturb our communities. Every effort has been made to enforce the laws and some convictions have been secured under the Contract Labor law.

PROSPERITY AND PROGRESS.

The general condition of the country is one of great prosperity. The blessing of God has rested upon our fields and our people. The annual value of our foreign commerce has increased more than $400,000,000 over the average for the preceding ten years, and more than $210,000,000 over 1890—the last year unaffected by the new tariff.

The Democratic party offers a programme of demolition. The protective policy—to which all business, even that of the importer, is now adjusted, the reciprocity policy, the new merchant marine, are all to be demolished, not gradually, not taken down, but blown up. To this programme of destruction it has added one constructive feature, the re-establishment of State banks of issue.

The policy of the Republican party is, on the other hand, distinctively a policy of safe progression and development—of new factories, new markets and new ships. It will subject business to no perilous changes, but offers attractive opportunities for expansion upon familiar lines.

Very respectfully yours,

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

M'AULIFFE WHIPS MYER.

Fifteen Terrific Rounds Before Myer Was Knocked Out.

NEW ORLEANS, Sep. 6.—Jack McAuliffe is the lightweight champion of the world.

In 15 rounds of desperate fighting last night he defeated Billy Myer of Streator, Ill. The fight lasted exactly one hour, and was a splendid exhibition of pugilistic skill and human strength, save that Myer seemed unable to strike heavily enough to injure his antagonist.

It was by a clean knockout that McAuliffe scored the victory and won the championship title and the $20,000 depending on the result, $10,000 purse offered by the Olympic Club, and $5,000 a side.

There were 7,000 persons present, including some of the shining political, legal and social lights of the Crescent City, as well as the best-known sporting men from all over America.

The Corbett train met with a surprise while the fighter was quietly sleeping at the Depot hotel at Spartanburg, S. C.

His manager Brady discovered that there was a plot on foot at Charlotte to arrest him for desecrating the Sabbath by punching the bag, etc.

It was said that the prosecuting attorney had the warrant ready and was only waiting to arrest him in the morning.

Brady quietly informed the agent of the Piedmont Air Line Railroad that the Corbett car must leave during the night, and arrangements were accordingly made to leave at 2 a. m., and pull down to the South Carolina line, thus avoiding the scheming North Carolinians.

At 2 o'clock a number of policemen had assembled about the car, evidently having discovered the rush. The car was dark and there were no signs of life about it. The police knowing that Corbett was at the hotel awaited developments.

At 1.4 5 however, when the accommodation train roll into the station, Corbett was smuggled abroad. He was put to bed in one of the sleeping cars and slept soundly throughout the night.

He arose at 7 o'clock, and immediately upon being dressed indulged in a long run, punched the bag, wrestled, etc.

VESSELS HOLDING BACK.

Tolls So Far Collected from Canadian Grain Steamers Not Large.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 6.—Reports received as to the collection of tolls on the Sault Ste. Marie (St. Mary's Falls) canal under the President's proclamation, seem to indicate that Canadian vessels are holding back, waiting to see what action the Canadian government will take in the way of refunding the tolls imposed by the United States.

Thus far the Canadian authorities have not given the slightest indication of any purpose to fulfil the the expectations entertained of them in that respect, and the grain steamers are leaving Monteal only half loaded.

On the first day of the enforcement of the proclamation only one vessel out of sixty-two which passed through was a Canadian bottom. This was the United Empire, which carried 350 tons of flour, and twelve tons of mixed freight for Sarnia.

On this she paid toll amounting to $112.

She had also 684 tons of wheat for Port Huron, Mich., on which no toll was collected, as it was destined for an American port.

The next day three vessels out of fifty-two were Canadians, one of them being a Canadian Pacific liner. The number is now increasing every day and the amount of tolls collected is proportionately greater.

Irish Butter in Portugal.

LONDON, Sep. 6.—A despatch to the "Times" from Lisbon says: "Sir George Petre, British Minister to Portugal, has addressed two protests to the government against the customs officials' imposition of the high oleomargarine tariff upon Irish butter on the ground that an analysis proved it impure after the Portuguese consul at Cork had analyzed it and certified it to be pure. The collection of this tariff practically stops the importation of Irish butter and allows French butter to flood the market. The exports of Irish butter to Portugal formerly amounted in value to one hundred thousand pounds yearly."

Summer Hotel Burned.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sep. 6.—The Oak Grove House at Merchantville was entirely destroyed by fire at an early morning hour. Loss, $25,000, partially insured. The property was owned by ex-Senator Cattell, and operated by Mrs. Wood as a summer boarding house. Fire caught in the third story, origin unknown. Fifty guests escaped, but lost most of their personal effects.

—The grocers' excursion yesterday was a great and glowing success. The people crowded 25 cars to overflowing, and everyone was happy.

—In the case of Griffin vs. Benedict, before justice Nash, judgment by default was entered Saturday against the defendant for $81.07 and $2.15 costs.

—Michael Whelan and James Totten, drunk and disorderly, were arrested by borough marshal Pangborn Saturday night and fined $3 apiece by justice Crosley.

—A great many people are of the opinion that the blowing of the borough fire gong at the unearthly hour of 9 p. m., as a time test, is a nuisance. The hour of 7 p. m. is suggested instead.

—THE PRESS is glad to note that its good advice has again been heeded and that the foul-smelling sewer-hole at the corner of Front street and Park avenue has been flushed out by a flood of water from the adjacent fire-hydrant.

The flames were promptly suppressed. Chief Doane says that the "converters" if indoors are apt to set fire to a building at any time, and that their presence is apt to lose one's insurance.

Reorganizing the Tariff Reform Club of 1888.

The meeting called for the purpose of reorganizing the Tariff Reform club of 1888, was held at 67 North avenue, last evening. A. W. Rand was chosen temporary chairman and L. G. Timpson secretary.

GRIST OF THE CITY COURT.

LABOR DAY CELEBRANTS GIVE THE JUDGE LOTS O' WORK.

Early Youth and Extreme Old Age Before the Bar in Pitiful Contrast—Sergeant Lynch Loses His Rest—A Young Man's Ignorance of What Was in the Papers He Did n't Read, Costs Him Dear—Jim Emmons Skips the Court Room and Disappears—Hackmen Punished for Brutal Fighting.

Sergeant Lynch did n't sleep a wink last night, for he had George P. Gorman to entertain. Mr. Gorman is not George the minstrel, but a gentleman of leisure. He hails from Keyport, and walked to Plainfield from Raritan, yesterday, selling stationery. He is of a convivial nature, and by nightfall he was so ingloriously intoxicated that the police had to gather him in. Gorman held private theatricals in his cell till 4 a. m., and sergeant Lynch was an unwilling listener to his spoutings.

Gorman is 73 years of age, grayhaired and graybearded. His chief garment as he stood before judge Codington this morning for sentence was a huge tattered great coat, and he wore a bit of knotted and soiled white cord for a watch-chain. His toes peeped hungrily through the gaps of his worn-out shoes. His deep bass voice was tremulous with pathos as he gave the court a military salute, struck a stage attitude, and pleaded with the court "for God's sake, and for the memory of his departed wife", to spare him the shame of further imprisonment, set him free, and he 'd never trouble Plainfield again. Judge Codington gave him half an hour to get out of town, warning him of severe punishment if he ever showed his face here again. The old man tottered away as fast as his quavering legs could carry him.

Thomas Flynn was half a century younger than the itinerant peddler, but had already served time for intoxication. He was charged this morning with drunkenness and disorderly conduct and using profane and indecent language; also with striking policeman Flanagan when the officer arrested him. The court held the offense to be an aggravated one, and sternly sentenced the trembling young fellow to jail for 40 days. Flynn broke down completely, and sobbed and moaned piteously. "Oh, Judge!"—he pleaded—"oh, I beg of you to give me a fine instead! I want to be good! I'll try to do right! Oh, do n't send me to jail!"

But the law was inexorable; the weeping youth was led away to his confinement to reflect upon the hard lesson of bitter experience.

These two scenes were quite affecting to all in the room. Even the hardened idlers among the spectators muttered "I say, cully, dat's tough!"

C. P. Morgan left his home in a hurry Saturday night to get a box of candy. He neglected to light his bicycle lantern, and the police requested his presence in court. The young man said he did n't know of the new law, 'cause they did n't take the papers up at his house. The experience cost him a $2 fine. Now is the time to subscribe.

Robert Skinner and Michael McCarthy celebrated Labor Day by imbibing much rum and giving an advance imitation of the Sullivan-Corbett encounter on the street at night. Skinner had McCarthy whipped when the police gathered them both under their wing. McCarthy's face was bunged up and his puffed lips could hardly say "Guilty!" Skinner denied the charge, and was put under $100 bail for trial Thursday morning at 10. McCarthy was released on his own recognizance till then for sentence.

Abe Freeman and wife Annie complained that Gus Angieman and wife had assaulted them. The case was set down for Thursday morning at 10. Gus said he'd be on hand for trial "if he lived". The court responded "If you're dead we don't want you". All the persons are colored.

Hackmen Dennis Kilbride and Cornelius Guinee fought over the question whose wife had the most Sunday dresses. Kilbride was drunk and got badly whipped. The court fined Kilbride $10 and Guinee $15. Kilbride paid, and Guinee appealed. Corporation counsel Marsh scathingly denounced Guinee's cowardly brutality for kicking Kilbride after he got him down, and said the higher courts would prosecute him for his atrocious assault.

In this connection it may be stated that Kilbride is reputed to be one of the foulest-mouthed of fellows, and always stirring up strife at the station. The police ought to investigate the charge that he is frequently intoxicated while on his box, and a dangerous individual to be permitted to drive when in that condition. He should lose his license if all the complaints THE PRESS hears are true.

The case of the City vs. Sutterlein and Nolan, for fighting in a wagon on the street, was adjourned for two weeks.

James Emmons was still intoxicated when waiting about the court room to be sentenced for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He asked lawyer George Demeza to act as his counsel, and when that astute legal luminary declined the case he slunk despondently out of the room and has n't been seen since.

Not a Candidate.

These columns gave currency a short time ago to the editorial remark of a New Jersey journal that Plainfield's worthy citizen, Joseph W. Yates, was a prospective Democratic candidate for the congressional nomination in this district, but being assured by a personal political friend of his that such publicity, although kindly meant, was erroneous, and calculated to place Mr. Yates in a false position before the people, THE PRESS is in justice bound to state that he has no aspiration of the kind, and could not, even if it were tendered, accept a nomination for congress. The time has been when congressional honors were at his disposal, but he then declined them, and while appreciating fully the many manifestations of political good feeling shown him, his wish is to remain a zealous private in the ranks of Democracy.

KILLED BY THE WRECK.

A Well Dressed Young Traveler Dies of Terrible Injuries, in Muhlenberg Hospital.

Just east of Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, occurred one of the worst wrecks that has come to Jersey Central in many years. One life was lost. Much damage was done to the track, and there was an entire loss of nearly one hundred tons of soft coal. At 3:10, locomotive No. 350 passed Bound Brook station going east, with a train composed of large Beech Creek cars, heavily loaded with coal. Each car held about thirty tons. When a half mile east of Bound Brook, near what is known as Possum Town crossing, the axle on one of the large cars broke, allowing the broken end to fall down on the track. The loose wheel jumped the track, and went back under the other cars. The broken axle caught in the ties, and tore up the track for a distance of fully one thousand feet. The car which had the broken axle jumped the track, and five others piled themselves on top of it, and all over the two east-bound tracks. The tracks were completely blocked for nearly twenty hours, all trains being compelled to use the two west-bound tracks. A gang of one hundred men with the wreck train went at once to the scene and worked hard to clear the line for traffic. All the evening trains were delayed from a half to three-fourths of an hour, in order to get around the wreck. Two young men were riding on the train. One of them, Robt. Lauderbach, of Chicago, jumped when the crash came, and was frightfully maimed. He was taken at once to Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield, where he died within two hours. The other sat still on top of the car and escaped injury. The soft coal with which the cars were loaded is a total loss, as it was mixed with dirt and sand and can not be picked up. The two rear trucks of the car having the broken axle were completely buried out of sight. At 10 Sunday afternoon the tracks were cleared.

Lauderbach's remains are in charge of undertaker Casey. The young man was on his way East to join his uncle in Brooklyn. His money gave out, and he was forced to take to coal train transit. He was well dressed, and of a good family. The other young man was fed by charitable Plainfield women, and sent to friends in New York.

The Democracy Aroused in Bound Brook.

The Democrats of Bound Brook swung a banner to the breeze on Saturday afternoon. It was a handsome one bearing the portraits of the regular nominees. A band of music enlivened the occasion and a large crowd was present, but where, oh where were the politicians. Hotel keeper Billian, in front of whose house the banner was raised, was promised the presence of ex-congressman Alvah A. Clark, Col. John T. VanCleif and judge Bertine. They did not materialize, however, and after waiting an hour by which time the crowd had become impatient, lawyer George Anderson was called to the porch and said a few words of assurance that the men whose pictures adorned the banner would prove victorious this fall. At the conclusion of his speech the band played the Red, White and Blue, and the banner was slowly swung across the street. It was thought that those who promised speeches had misunderstood the time.

In the evening, however, there was a most successful ratification meeting. Among others, James E. Martine spoke. The principal share of credit due for the political enterprise shown in Bound Brook, belongs to John Paterson.

Ventilate Your Houses.

The Plainfield board of health is endeavoring to promote healthfulness by averting the causes of preventable diseases. It is urgently requested that all householders look carefully to the condition of their dwellings. Begin at the cellar. Leave nothing there that can decay or cause foul odors. Place a pan of slaked lime in two or three different parts of the cellar. Look to the kitchen. Have the sink kept sweet by free use of pure hot water with soda dissolved or a solution of chloride of zinc poured down the pipe. Be careful that all slops are conveyed away and not made to become a part of any ash heap. Dirty kitchen water is worse than dry filth. Do n't forget the bedrooms. Flood the rooms with pure air and ventilate the closets. Look to unoccupied rooms and the attic and see that they are well aired.

NOW FOR THE FINAL BATTLE.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE TO MEET IN BITTER CONTEST.

Saturday's League Games Leave the Crescents and West Ends Still Tied, and One of the Two Teams Must Win Two Games from the Other to Get the Pennant.

The league game between Plainfield and Westfield, at Drake park, Ripleyville, last Saturday, was a great guessing match for the spectators. Not until it was all over was anyone sure how it was to turn out. Sneden pitched for Plainfield, but was in very bad shape, and his curves were freely hit. Sharrott for Westfield put up a game even better than the previous week, and three little scattered hits were all the Crescents could squeeze out. Two of their runs were gained through bad errors of their opponents; the other two they earned by hard work.

Just before the game Hofford said "I'm going to lead off with a hit", and after Sharrott, McIndoe and O'Neil had each gone out through Bonner's sharp fielding of their several hits, to Jones, he stepped confidently to the plate. Sharrott got two strikes on the little Brownie man, right away, and it began to look as though Chic's promise were not to be fulfilled. He waited for a nice one, however, then spanged it on the nose, and easily reached first. Then Warner let the ball go by him, and he got to second. Kinzie fumbled Murphy's grounder, and Gentle William smiled serenely from Gillis's bag a moment, then stole second. Turner's short hit was captured by Sharrott, who threw Hofford out at the plate while Turner got to first. Turner went to second because Warner was afraid to throw down and let by Murphy in from third, and Daley hit the ball into short-stop's territory. While the ball was in play in an unsuccessful attempt to shut Murphy off from scoring, Daley reached his base in safety, stealing second later. Leidy made a nice hit, bringing in Turner and Daley, but got caught in trying to get around to third. Brady got first on O'Neil's error, but was left there when McIndoe made a magnificent catch of Bonner's long fly.

Westfield started in to catch up to the score. Lever led off with a dandy two-bagger. Howe and Coogan each sacrificed, scoring Lever a nicely-earned run. Kenzie made a clean hit, but was left on the bag when Gillis batted straight into Freddie Jones's hands.

In several innings thereafter Westfield came dangerously near scoring, and the hopes and fears of the two opposing contingents were continually kept in a state of excited vacillation. There were various critical points when the fate of the game wavered on both sides of the fence at once, and Plainfield was n't certain of the victory till Brady in the last inning pulled down a long high fly of O'Neil's that threatened to go out of the lot and bring in three runs. The varying fortunes of the game are seen in the record of men left on bases. Each side kept getting the bases full, only to have the men die there by some unexpected turn of the tide.

The fourth run of the Crescents was made in an inning when with better luck they could have scored a dozen. Six of the seven men to bat got first safely, on plays and misplays, but only one succeeded in scoring, though all tried hard. Murphy and Turner were caught at the plate, and close decision was given against them. Daley scored through two errors and two plays, and Leidy, Brady and Bonner were left filling the bases when Sharrott gathered himself together for the emergency and struck Jones out.

The score:

NOTES.

Turner ought to brace up. His playing has fallen away greatly of late.

Turner and Kinzie seemed to be striving to see who could cover second most poorly.

Manager Coding insisted on getting into a row with Murphy, and tried to drag the big left-fielder into a fight. The fiery little bantam did n't do himself much credit.

Sneden boasts that he will be in finer trim next Saturday than ever before in his life. Perhaps he will, but there are those who begin to ask if he has n't started in on his decline and fall.

Sharrott played the best ball of any man on the two teams, excepting Freddie Jones and Bonner. His fielding was superb, and his pitching was out of sight, so far as the Plainfield batsmen's optics were concerned.

Warner had a chance to put a runner out at the plate, but got dazzled and touched Murphy instead, who happened to be crossing back of him then. Then because the runner scored, Warner got mad and cussed everybody else.

Manager Coding was a chronic kicker, all through the game, notwithstanding that umpire Sullivan was just and impartial in everything he did. The scheme to bullyrag the umpire did n't work, for Sullivan was as firm as adamant, so kicker Coding sought to vent his spleen on Gentle Willie.

Never was their dirtier ball playing than that of Westfield in seeking to have a runner called safe on second who had deliberately knocked the ball from Turner's hands just as that baseman touched him. Umpire Sullivan was righteously indignant, and ordered the offender from the field. Of course Coding kicked, and called in his team, but Mr. Sullivan began to count the seconds preparatory to declaring the game forfeited, and the sandy-mustached manager subsided.

GORE HIRED TO HELP,

Kennedy Put on the Bench, and Probably Other Changes Will be Made, as Somerville Sees She Ca n't Beat Plainfield With Her Own Team.

Both the West Ends and the Crescents were compelled to win Saturday last in order to keep peace in their respective towns. Therefore at the close of the games there was no great excitement shown by the rooters and their friends. The people who have been crying "put up job" all the season, are now firm in their convictions that the whole thing has been "fixed" in order to entice the silver pieces into both club's treasuries. Let them howl and kick as much as they please, though, next Saturday will see them at Plainfield just the same, and the following week a chain and ball attached to their ankle could scarcely keep them away from Somerville. Somerville and Plainfield are now tied for first place. The next two games will be the battle of the giants. Either team must win both games to get the pennant. Whichever does will be just entitled to it, as hard earnest work on the diamond has placed both teams just where they are at the present time.

Elizabeth played their last game in Somerville Saturday and lost, thus making four out of the six played to the West Enders. Those young fellows who represent the Union county seat strained a nerve trying to win, but their efforts were futile. Big Geo. Gore, just back from St. Louis, covered Somerville's territory in right field and aided materially in the run getting. Fields is the man who is playing the game of his life. His two hits and three runs did a great deal of the good work Saturday.

Doc Kennedy was retired on a pension in favor of Gore, and the idea did not please him to any great extent. It is rather hard on Doc after having played as he has, for the West Enders thus to appreciate his efforts. If Doc does not play next Saturday in Plainfield it will be a bitter pill for him to swallow, as he will be guyed unmercifully by the bleachers. It is too bad for a man who occupies the position in the ranks that Kennedy does to be retired on the bench in favor of such a player as Gore. Moorehead again demonstrated the fact that he is a ball player. The score shows it. His stops and pickups were in some instances marvelous, and during the game he cut off no less than three safe hits by his acrobatic work. Les says he does n't mind the change, but his only regret is that he can not beat the West Ends.

The "features" of the game commenced when Bowes faced Anderson. Bowes struck out three times last Saturday, and Pete tossed the ball to him regardless. The second one seemed to suit Bowes's fancy and he lit on it like a ton of coal, driving it over the right field fence for a homer. In the third Fields also made a home run over the fence, and in the fifth Bowes made another.

In the Elizabeth's last time at bat, Riley hit hard for two bags. When he turned the first bag Harkins called to Hopkins to watch Riley and see if he touched first. Hopkins did so and declared Riley out. He did not come within three feet of the base. The attendance is picking up. About four hundred people saw the contest. The score:

NOTES.

Both pitchers will be used next Saturday, and it was wise to work them both.

George Cadmus caught a foul over in front of the bleachers that seemed to be impossible.

Gore is a heavy man, but oh! how he can dust around the bases. His sprinting qualities are almost equal to Flower-Pot Carby's.

Anderson did not have his speed with him, and Elizabeth hit him hard. After Bowes made his second home run Anderson was put on the bench and Miller took his place.

No matter what the lead is, if it happens that Somerville's five sure hitters come up when they are needed, runs are bound to score. Farrell, Harkins, Gore, Fields and Ryman! Five of a kind! They can hardly be beaten in any league.

THEY HAVE A BANNER, ANYWAY.

Even Should the Crescents Not Get the Pennant, Which They Will, They Should Be Proud of This Trophy.

In yesterday's game for the handsome silken banner presented by the Park club, Plainfield just doubled the score of Saturday, over Westfield. The game was clearly Plainfield's from the start, but it was enjoyable, nevertheless, for some brilliant individual playing was done on both sides, and the Crescents gave a good exhibition of strong team playing. Silent Robert Murphy pitched a great game for the home team, and delighted the kranks and brought sweet peace to his own soul by striking out the entire side in the third inning and by deluding the famous Sharrott and the redoubtable McIndoe into fanning the air and retiring ignominiously. For once in his life McIndoe failed to make his old-time great holiday hit, but instead went out on strikes four times in succession. In holding the heavy hitters down to three base-hits, Murphy acquitted himself well, and once more justified THE PRESS in its claim that of late he has been in far better trim than Sneden. Bonner did himself proud, as usual, at short, and Jones again proved himself the finest first-baseman in the league. Freddy's one error was quite pardonable, and was only noticed because he so seldom makes one. Daley made a bad error at third, but counterbalanced it later by a superb stop and quick recovery and swift unerring throw to first. The repeated advice of THE PRESS to put Brady further down the batting list had been found excellent in its application Saturday, and was once more heeded with satisfactory results. There were times in both games when his going to the bat in the old order would have meant disaster, but Gentle William in his place was a stalwart hitter in time of need. The good advice of Plainfield's base-ball paper was further taken and Turner was taken out of second, which he himself acknowledges is not his strong place, and exchanged with Brady. By this interchange, right field lost nothing, and second base was the gainer. For Westfield, Lever distinguished himself by pulling down great flies that gave promise of being fine base-hits. HAD ON THEIR BATTING CLOTHES,

And Turner Would n't Let the Visitors Smell of the Ball, So Victory Was Easy.

Those clever amateurs from Philadelphia, known as the Highland Athletic club, met their fate at the hands of the Crescents, yesterday afternoon. Turner pitched, and did nobly. Of the two hits the visitors got from him, Caldwell's two-bagger would n't have been a safe single had Gentle William been covering left field. But big Murphy's sore leg pained him, and he had retired in favor of his smiling namesake. Silent Robert was playing out too far, and could n't run in fast enough, so Caldwell got second before the ball was fielded in. Smith's hit was a clean one. Besides the runner who scored only four men got as far as second, on the Highland team, and only two as far as third. The run was presented in the ninth inning, after two men were out, by Turner, who, after he got two strikes on Sharpless, magnanimously let him walk to first on balls. A sharp hit by Smith advanced the runner to third, and when Maguire hit the ball Sharpless scored. Smith, however, got caught between third and home, and his out retired the side and ended the game. There was considerable fun in the contest. The Crescents did much heavy hitting, even Hofford getting a three-bagger. Sneden in right field made a magnificent running catch of Finn's long foul fly, Brady made a phenomenal capture of a fly that he had to lean way over for and gather in only two inches above the ground, and Holland made a beautiful one-hand high-reaching catch of Brady's hot fly. The heavy hitting of the Crescents was due partly to the fact that Maguire had a painfully sore arm, but more to the other fact that the Crescents had on their batting clothes, having been warmed up for good work by the morning game. NOTES.

The presence of manager McCloud at the Plainfield-Westfield game, shows how much he intended his team to win at Somerville.

Turner and Maguire both pitched a left-handed game, and kept runners guessing and dodging by the way they watched the bases.

Now watch how the Somervilles will brace up their team of back-number ball players with outsiders, while the Crescents still win or lose with the colts they started with.

R. Murphy, the big farmer boy, pitched a great game yesterday morning, and Turner did the same in the afternoon. Some think the Highland club were dead easy, but remember the score against them was no worse than that against the Westfields, and they can put up quite a game.

Plainfield Masons Will Conduct the Burial Ceremonies.

John W. Handren, formerly of this vicinity, died yesterday morning at 5, at his home, 192 Cumberland street, Washington Park, Brooklyn. He leaves a wife and daughter. On July 20 he returned from Europe, where he had gone to seek lost health, but he never left his bed since. The cause of death was Bright's disease.

At the request of Mrs. Handren, her husband will be buried in New York Bay cemetery, Greenville, N. J., with masonic ceremonies by his brethren of Anchor lodge, F. & A. M., Wednesday afternoon at 4:15. Train leaves from here at 3:12 and from New York at 3:45. There will be short service at the house at 2.

Plainfield Cyclers Winning Races.

A. T. Hinrichs of this city is doing great work on the bicycle race track. At Passaic, Saturday, he won the first-prize bicycle in the one-mile novice race, and second-prize watch in the three-fourths-mile race; and at Elizabeth yesterday he won a second-prize tennis racket. The Plainfield Bicycle club team came in second in the club race at Elizabeth, and won a handsome table.

Smashed the Buggy, and Tried to Wreck the Barn.

A well-known young man from Plainfield, accompanied by a young lady, drove a livery-horse to Rahway, yesterday, and the horse got the reins under his tail, ran away and wrecked the buggy. The young man had an arm badly bruised, and the girl had a knee bruised by a kick from the horse's hoof. They came home by train. The horse was captured and held by a farmer, and nearly kicked out the side of the farmer's barn.

—The petit jurors just drawn at Elizabeth, include James Morrison, Morgan Bird, John McIntyre and John Ross of this city, and M. V. B. Clark, Joseph Moffett and W. Pierson of Westfield.

THE MAN OF FASHION.

He Will Wear His Coats Long and Close-Fitting This Year.

A Very Decided Change in Styles—The New Ulster and Ulster Hat—Sack Coats and Cutaways All Longer —Styles in Overcoats.

(COPYRIGHT, 1892.)

The man of fashion always has his clothes made out of season. That is, in the way of attire he is a creature of the most painstaking forethought. Whimsical in many things he is all-knowing when it comes to the time to order a season's wear and styles. So this year the English tailors have sent over their fall and winter cards of styles and goods, and the man of fashion is taking many a run up from the seashore or down from the mountains or away from the inland lakes to pick out the very best in the way of fall suits, in the way of fall overcoats and even to take a look into the latest in undergarments.

I dropped in on a fashionable Fifth avenue tailor the other day and found him in the midst of a quandary. He had just had a tilt with an undersized customer, who objected seriously to the long cut of the single-breasted cutaways.

"I know," said he, "that the new style will be unbecoming to small men, but it is the dictum of London fashion, and you know the old adage: 'One might as well be out of the world as out of style.'"

The tall man will, I think, like the new styles. They are longer in cutaway and sack coats, overcoats, top coats, ulsters and as well in reception and dress coats. The double-breasted frock coat will be made short waisted, extending in length well below the knee, but fitting very tightly about the body and anything but baggy. The collar will be a low roll, the lapel faced with silk or satin. The buttons will be of the cloth of which the coat is made, and five buttons on each sleeve will be the thing. Braids are not in style.

At one fashionable tailor's I was shown the goods ordered by B. S. Garmendia, who is anything but showy in his attire. He had ordered the coat in a soft-finished dark blue, and another in black diagonal. For the vest to go with the coat he had picked out some very pretty cassimeres in blue and gray. The style in the garment will be double breasted, the roll to correspond with that of the coat.

In single-breasted wear the style is on the same general plan, long and rather tight-fitting. There are orders for these in diagonals, cassimeres and in a mass of fine-faced goods. There will be an outside breast-pocket in this as in the double-breasted. The sleeves in both styles will be cut rather narrow, following out the original conception of departing as far as possible from the "flopping and baggy" fashion of the past few seasons.

Sack coats will be thirty-two inches for a man five feet eight in height and proportionately shorter or longer for the various normal heights above and below that average.

The cloths are about the same as those used last fall, there being the same objection to anything loud or flashy, either in checks or plaids. They will be in single-breasted style, although the double-breasted will be allowable. In sack coats, however, this latter style has seen its best days and they are placed on the fashion cards simply because a few of the English fashion leaders persist in wearing them whether they are just the thing or not.

But we will have the crease with us as of yore. Trousers will be cut straight with a medium circle at the knee and a little wider swath at the foot. But the bagging is avoided to some extent only.

Of course, with the long coats, the overcoat, too, will require more material in length. I saw five styles ordered by Banker Tewksbury, the gentleman with the twenty thousand dollar bachelor apartment, and they were in Melton, rough-faced cheviot and in light gray fine-faced material, the last named for early wear. The styles are double-breasted, with four buttons, lap seams three-quarters of an inch wide, raw edges with double row of stitching and velvet collar. And this also the general style of the close-fitting garment is followed and the coats will be cut slightly to the figure.

Ulsters will be fashionable this winter. They will be made of fine Irish frieze or rough-faced cheviots, and is a novelty the cap worn with it will be of like material.

While the man of fashion will adjust himself easily to the quiet colors in his wearing apparel, he will have a splendid opportunity to revel in bright designs when it comes to a selection of late and fashionable fall and winter neckwear. The shades are as fixed as the Paris or London fashions each year, and are the creations of "La Chambre Syndicale des Fleurs et Plumes." One of the leading effects, one that will make a hit everywhere, is the new two-color ground weaves. These give a shimmering and changeable effect that is very pretty. The grounds are of two colors divided into scales like those on the fish, and are worked in the following combinations: Black and grisellida, black and bedoin, black and cricket. The combinations are exquisitely blended, and over the grounds the relief effects are broche, faconne and Jacquard. The color is worked in fine soft silk. The new cricket, a myrtle, is given great prominence. It comes in different shades, ranging from the light green seen on the salad leaf to the darker tone of the champagne bottle. Glorians is accorded a very prominent place in the new silks for neckwear. This is a terra cotta shade, used in grounds as well as relief effects. In the former it is relieved by black and white and contrasting colors. Attila is a new prime shade, a dark rich purple. The old reliable blues have come out in all the old shades, with the addition of at least one newcomer that promises well. This is a Clochette, a foulard blue, a trifle lighter than the famous Bond street. A new dark shade is called Burgunde.

In effects there is an unmistakable tendency to break away from all the old ideas. This is shown in the great prevalence of so called "broken-up" designs. Shapes in neckwear have not been shown yet, but it is predicted there will be little change.

ALBERT EDWARD TYRRELL.

AN ENVIABLE RECORD.

Career of the New Brigadier General of the United States Army.

Gen. Eugene E. Carr, who was recently appointed brigadier general by the president, is a native of New York. He was appointed as a cadet at the military academy in September, 1846. He was commissioned in the regular service as second lieutenant June 30, 1851; as first lieutenant of cavalry, March 3, 1855; as captain Fourth cavalry, June 11, 1858; as major Fifth cavalry, July 17, 1862; as lieutenant colonel Fourth cavalry, January 7, 1873, and as colonel Sixth cavalry, April 29, 1879. During the war Gen. Carr received the following brevets in the regular service: that of lieutenant colonel, August 10, 1861, for gallant and meritorious service in the battle of Wilson Creek, Mo.; that of colonel, May 18, 1863, for gallant and meritorious service in the action of the Black River Bridge, Miss.; that of brigadier general, March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service in the capture of Little Rock, Ark., and that of major general, March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious service during the war. The record of Gen. Carr has been a long, faithful and active one, and from its beginning, with two expeditions to the Rocky mountains in 1853-'55 through several Indian engagements in 1860, down to and including the war of the rebellion, his services as an officer of the army have been of the highest order. During the war of the rebellion Gen. Carr participated in many of the battles of the union army and displayed daring, coolness and judgment which won for him the praise of his senior officers and the gratitude of the people of the north. Since the war he has participated in several important Indian engagements, in all of which he has been highly successful.

COMING HOME IN THE MORNING.

The Profound Mystery Which an Old-Time Rounder Is Unable to Solve.

"I'm an old man," he said slowly, "and I've lived a long time longer than most men who have lived as long as I have, for there's mighty little in this world that I oughtn't to know that I don't know, but there is one thing I don't know and I've been trying to learn it for fifty years, more or less."

"What's that?" interrogated Gamaliel, who was but yet a beginner.

"Well, my son, it's this: I don't know, and I don't believe I ever shall, why it is that when a man gets home at 5 o'clock in the morning and finds he hasn't his night key in his pocket he can ring the bell and thump the door and throw pebbles up against the windows and disturb the whole neighborhood and keep on doing it for three-quarters of an hour or more before he wakes anybody in the house; but if he gets there at 3 in the morning and has his night key in his pocket and slips it into the lock as still as a mouse and turns it without a creak, and creeps upstairs in his sock feet as still as a cat, and gets into his room as noiseless as the stars go to rest, he not only wakes up his wife, but next morning everybody in the house is asking him what he means by coming in at that hour of the night, and if he must come in then, why doesn't he make less racket and not disturb the whole country."

The old man, in an excess of emotion, gasped once or twice and began to mop his brow.

"That's what I don't know, young man," he went on, "and I'd like to live until you have lived just as long as I have, to see if you can find out, but I don't really believe you ever will."

"I'll try," briefly remarked Gamaliel, and those who know Gamaliel have a sublime confidence that he has made a noble beginning.—Detroit Free Press.

Some Hope.

"Cholly, do you ever intend to quit smoking cigarettes?"

"Deah boy, why should I?"

"Because if you don't they will kill you."

"Well, when they do, deah boy, I'll quit."—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT TO EAT

is a difficult problem with many people because but few articles of food agree with them. The doctor says and the result is unpalatable food. The reason the physician objects to grease is because lard is the article most used, and every physician knows that hog lard in any shape is unhealthy and indigestible.

Every one interested in pure and healthful food hails with joy the new product which is composed of pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet—nothing else—not even salt. It is better than either lard or butter for all cooking purposes, and one pound of Cottolene will do as much as two pounds of lard or butter, and it costs less than either.

Every housekeeper that tries Cottolene will find in it just what she wants.

TEN NEW CASES AND ONE DEATH

Alarming Reports from the Infected Fleet at New York.

ACTION MUST BE TAKEN REGARDING QUARANTINED PILOTS.

If Not, Local Commerce Will Soon be Barred From Passing the Narrows—Dr. Jenkins' Acquiesence to the Treasury Circular Makes a Matter of Science of the Detained Ships More Uncertain Than Ever—Resolutions of the State Board of Health.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 7. — The situation, while scarcely changed as to the battle with the cholera, is materially altered in that the sanitary conditions of the floating cities, as each of the ships may be called, promises to be a problem far in excess of the actual pestilence itself.

The fact of the deaths and the new cases from day to day is a matter of proportion to be expected as the disease runs its course. The sanitary conditions of the detained ships for both cabin and steerage passengers is one that calls for the most careful thought on the part of Dr. Jenkins and the city and State health authorities, who are giving him the most complete support.

The necessity for the detention of so large a number of people within such circumscribed limits for the period indicated in his reply expressing intention to comply with the full terms of the Treasury circular, drawn at the suggestion of the President, is praiseworthy in its recognition of the supreme interest and watch care of the National Executive, but its results to the souls thus detained cannot be over-estimated.

From marine point of view another danger threatens, the pilots bringing the detained vessels being as securely quarantined as the voyagers themselves. It is scarcely to be doubted that as soon as the health officer finds that the New York Pilot Commissioners have their available men locked up in the detained ships, he will see to it that the Treasury Department makes a special rule exempting from quarantine regulations the pilots or there will be none of them off shore to bring in the incoming ships with a knowledge of his wishes and the crowded roadstead at the boarding stations.

If this action is not taken it is easy to be seen that the Narrows will soon be choked, and local commerce as well as that from across the water, be barred from passage.

The following new cases and deaths are reported:

Normannia—New cases, Heinrick Freiteg, aged 20.
Franz Baumbach, aged 25.
Rudolf Enis, aged 21.
Christian Peterson, aged 21.
Rugia—Jacob Grawer, aged 54.
Johannes Jabllotiker, aged 26.
Kaethe Seiffort, aged 28.
Hoffman Island — Gertrude Scharm, aged 8; dead.
Ernest Thiel, aged 34.
No new developments on Moravia.
Swinburne Island — Nurse Adelaide Merres, very sick.

Dr. Jenkins' position until yesterday was that as Health Officer he was subject to no dictation, but possibly willing to receive suggestions. He alone was responsible, but now it would appear that he is willing to share his cares with the Federal Government.

Dr. Jenkins has not explained the causes which led to his decision, and it is improbable that he will do so, but that Secretary Foster had something to do with it there seems to be no doubt.

It had originally been Dr. Jenkins' intention, should no cases of sickness develop, to release La Bourgogne to-morrow night, but he has not yet determined, in view of his official acquiesence with the Treasury circular whether he will detain the French liner beyond his original intention or not.

In view of his concerted action with the President, it is probable that all ships having emigrants from infected ports, which to an extent may be said to include the British Isles, will be detained for the full 20 days unless given earlier relief on special investigation by representatives of the Treasury Department.

Regarding the fright which has been caused by statements regarding the steamship Elro of the Wilson line from Hull to New York via. Boston, and which tied up to a Brooklyn wharf yesterday, William Seguine said to-day: "I myself boarded the Elro on Dr. Jenkins' orders, and gave her permission to go up the bay, after thoroughly satisfying myself that she was fit to do so, and had passed the Boston Quarantine. There is no danger from the Elro. I have now been in the Quarantine Department for seventeen years, and it is not likely that I would allow a suspect to go to her wharf with rags and everything else, and we certainly are not making mistakes at a critical p riod like this."

There was an attempt at merrymaking aboard the Normannia and La Bourgogne last night. On board the latter there was a concert, in which the theatrical people figured, and until a late hour the music could be heard by those on shore.

"I'll be sorry for any one who is caught by the police down the bay," said a deputy this morning, "for there will be trouble. The Doctor is feeling pretty hot under the collar, and the police are as mad as hatters."

The Hamburg-American Company is apparently nervous over the excitement its vessels have succeeded in stirring up, and is now disposed to concede pretty nearly everything. Its representatives assured Dr. Jenkins that they would attempt to charter the Sound steamboat that he had asked for, and, failing in this, would try to get another and equally good one. On this would be transferred the cabin passengers of the Normannia, who are almost panic stricken because of their detention on an infected vessel.

The Hamburg Company announce that for three days they have been trying to get a steamer in which to place the cabin passengers of the Normannia. They say that they have been unable to find one in this port, and would have to look elsewhere.

There are eleven steamships, big and small, anchored off the upper boarding station. The white-hulled North-German Lloyd steamship Fulda is anchored in the rear of the fleet, in the middle of the stream, while abreast of her, 600 feet away, nearer the Staten Island shore, is the Hamburg-American liner Stubenhuk.

A half mile further up the stream the big French liner La Bourgogne, with its crowd of cabin and steerage passengers aboard, swings lazily at anchor.

A mile further down, astern of La Bourgogne, the Darmstadt and North-German Lloyd liners lie anchored. To the starboard of the Darmstadt is the steamship Persian Monarch of the Hull line, just arrived from London, which port she left on Aug. 24. To the port is the oil tank steamship Brilliant. The steamship Corean from Glasgow, which port she left Aug. 26, heads the fleet.

Just before midnight it was stated at Quarantine that two new cases had broken out among the crew of the Normannia on Hoffman Island, making the total record for the day ten new cases and one death.

STATE BOARD AROUSED.

Fears of a Great Epidemic of Cholera Next Spring.

NEW YORK, Sep. 7.—Cholera has aroused the activity of the State Board of health. In answer to a call from Dr. Lewis Balch the State Board met at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday and held a secret session for the purpose of discussing cholera.

The president of the board, Attorney-General Rosendale and Health Officer Jenkins did not attend the meeting.

Dr. Dawes was chosen chairman. After a brief discussion on the awful plague which is now knocking at the gates of the city, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That the Health Officers of the various Boards of Health under the jurisdiction of the State Board be directed to report to the secretary of the State Board as to what preparations have been made by them to prevent the importation of cholera into this country.

Resolved, That immediate steps be taken to provide sufficient funds to meet demands for the necessary arrangements to protect the State against cholera.

Resolved, That the drainage of the Hoosick Falls be looked after at once, as it is at present in an unhealthy condition.

Dr. Dawes explained that the resolution regarding Hoosick Falls was very necessary, as if anything contaminated the waters of the Falls it would be felt throughout the entire interior of the State.

Dr. Dawes created a sensation by saying that there was more danger to be apprehended from cholera next spring than now.

Hamburg Steamer Quarantined in England

LONDON, Sep. 7.—The steamer Oldham, from Hamburg, has been quarantined at Grimsby, a cabin passenger on the vessel having been found suffering from cholera. The steamer's cargo of fish has been destroyed. The company who own the steamer have concluded to book no more passengers of any class from Hamburg.

MADRID, Sep. 7.—In consequence of the presence of cholera in the harbor of New York it has been ordered that all persons arriving from New York shall be placed under three days' observation.

Italy Concerned at Our Restrictions.

LONDON, Sep. 7.—The "Chronicle" publishes the following despatch from Rome: "The direction of President Harrison's circular, if strictly carried out, will entail serious consequences on Italy, which country sends to American ports forty thousand emigrants annually. The Italian authorities are greatly concerned at the restriction."

A RACE TRACK TRAGEDY.

Horseman Brown of Chicago Shoots Two Policemen and is Himself Killed.

CHICAGO, Sep. 7.—Racing at Garfield Park yesterday terminated in a tragedy dreadful enough to shock both contesting factions in the fight. Three men's lives paid the forfeit of the effort to suppress racing on the track.

James M. Brown, the horseman, was instantly killed, and Officer John Powell shared a like fate. Officer Henry McDowell was mortally wounded, and the surgeons say he can scarcely survive the day.

The triple shooting was a sequel to the daily raid on the race track.

Brown was on the roof of the stables at the extreme south end of the course. Three officers clambered to the roof, and Brown, drawing a revolver, warned them off. He was ordered to surrender, but refused, and pointing his weapon at the policemen began to back to the end of the roof.

Brown made a wild leap from the roof, landing inside the grounds. Officers McDowell and Powers followed in pursuit, and some one of the three, supposedly Brown, fired a shot. Then the horseman made a wild dash for liberty through the south gate. Officer Powell overtook him and reached out to grasp him by the sleeve.

Turning suddenly around, Brown, who still grasped his revolver in his right hand, raised the weapon and fired point blank at the policeman. The bullet struck the officer and he fell dead. Then Brown started to run east on Harrison street and encountered Officer McDowell. Both men raised their pistols and fired simultaneously. McDowell staggered and then fell across the sidewalk.

Brown ran west and stopped to fire against the prostrate body of Officer Powell. He met Officer Jones, and both men raised their revolvers and Brown pulled the trigger of his weapon, but no explosion followed. Jones by this time had taken aim and fired. Brown sprang into the air and uttered a sharp cry. He staggered a moment and then turning ran into the areaway between two buildings. He was found there dead.

BLAINE ON THE ISSUES.

Unable to Speak, He Gives His Views in a Letter.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sep. 7.—The following letter from Hon. James G. Blaine to Chairman Manley, of the Republican State Committee, has been made public:

"BAR HARBOR, Me., Sep. 6, 1892.

"HON. JOSEPH H. MANLEY:

"Not being able, for reasons which I have explained to you, to deliver public speeches in this present campaign, I take the liberty of submitting my views on the issues which I regard as being strongest for the Republicans to urge before the people:

"First—The issue of the greatest consequence is the tariff on imports, and it will continue to be until a settlement is effected by a majority so large that it will be tantamount to general acquiesence. The Republicans are aggressive on this subject.

"Second—When the principle of reciprocal trade was first proposed to be introduced into the tariff system, the Democrats showed much generous appreciation of the question, and gave it their support so long as Republicans refused to accept it; but when the Republicans came to approve it the Democratic support vanished, and, instead of favoring, we find the Democratic National Convention passing a resolution hostile to the system. But, in spite of Democratic opposition, we have attained through reciprocity, a new and valuable trade, and the system has demonstrated its many advantages.

"Third—With all its calamities the war brought us one great blessing—national currency. It is a matter of extraordinary surprise that the Democratic Convention should deliberately pass resolutions for the revival of State banks. The palpable effect of this policy, if carried out, would be to cheat the poor man out of his daily bread.

"I would not multiply issues nor be diverted by our opponents from a steadfast adherence to and constant presentation of these questions before the people, until every voter is made to know and understand their true and weighty significance.

"Very sincerely yours,
"JAMES G. BLAINE."

TELESCOPED BY A FREIGHT.

Wreck Near Avon, N. Y., in Which Several Were Badly Hurt.

AVON, N. Y., Sep. 7.—A bad wreck occurred shortly after 6 p. m., on the Western New York & Pennsylvania Railroad near this station.

The freight train, which was three hours late, was held at Fowlerville to let the passenger train pass. Ten minutes later the freight followed.

The passenger stopped to take on some milk cans and while standing there the freight came around the curve at full speed and crashed into the passenger train, telescoping the whole train.

Engineer Thomson of the freight was badly squeezed between the tank and boiler. Fireman Gordon sustained a fractured hip and Conductor Savage a broken ankle. Mail Agent Cheney was thrown against a hook which penetrated his head, making a probably fatal wound.

One lady, name not learned, was severely hurt.

There were many excursionists on the train but none were hurt seriously.

RETURNS COME IN SLOWLY.

But It is Believed That the Republicans Will Carry Vermont by 21,000.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Sep. 7.—The slowness of the returns owing to the Australian system will prevent exact figures from being had on all tickets for two days, but at present a conservative estimate places the Republican plurality at 21,000. The following are the State officers elected:

Governor, Levi K. Fuller of Brattleboro.
Lieut.-Governor, F. Stewart Stranahan of St. Albans.
Secretary of State, Chauncey W. Brownell of Burlington.
State Treasurer, Henry F. Field, Rutland.
Auditor of Accounts, Franklin D. Hale of Lunenburg.

The Republicans have elected at least 200 out of the 243 Representatives in the Legislature.

FEARS FOR PEARY.

Anxiety Also in Philadelphia for the Kite Relief Expedition.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 7.—Secretary E. J. Nolan of the Academy of Natural Sciences said last night:

"If the reports of ice extending hundreds of miles south of McCormick bay are true, God help Peary and the Kite relief party."

Considerable fear is felt in this city as to the fate of the Arctic explorers owing to the delayed arrival of the cryolite bark Ivigtut from the Greenland port of the same name.

Most serious fears are entertained that the Kite has never reached McCormick bay, but is stuck in the ice. As she took no extra supplies and it is believed she will be forced to spend the winter in the ice, it is feared her provisions will become exhausted before Jan. 1.

STEADY INCREASE OF THE PLAGUE

The Situation in Stricken Hamburg Is Most Discouraging.

REPORTS OF THE AUTHORITIES UTTERLY UNRELIABLE.

Laboring People Disregard the Directions of the Health Officers—The Infected City a Veritable Charnel-House—Hamburg-American Steamers Not Provisioned at Hamburg—Concern in Italy at Our Restrictions—French Soldiers Stricken.

HAMBURG, Sep. 7.—The number of new cholera cases to-day has been 938; of deaths, 317. This is a decrease of 31 in the number of new cases, and of 39 in the number of deaths. As compared with the figures of one week ago, when the plague was supposed to be at its worst, however, the lists of to-day's cases and deaths are not encouraging. The increase of fresh cases over those of a week ago to-day is 337; the increase of deaths, 17.

In the hospitals the mortality has been especially large among inebriates. The deaths of 89 heavy drinkers, 12 of these women, have been reported, and among the fresh cases a corresponding increase in the number of intemperate persons has been noticed. The newspapers have printed innumerable warnings against the excessive use of beer during the plague, but they have passed unheeded in the low districts, where the epidemic has done its worst.

The authorities begin gradually to realize that the whole burden of stopping the progress of the plague rests upon them. The directions of the health authorities have been steadily disregarded by the laboring people, who are either too poor or to ignorant too observe them. The continued use of the Elbe water without boiling it, is considered to be one of the principal causes of the spread of the cholera, yet no warning has been loud enough to induce the workmen to take this simple precaution.

Boiled water hereafter will be supplied, therefore, by the city from the centers of the various stricken districts. Eight locomotives have been set to work by the authorities preparing water for these distributing stations, and more will be added within the next three days. Should the people neglect to avail themselves of this provision, water carts will be sent out to distribute boiled water, free of charge, from house to house.

Dr. Veuz, the celebrated specialist, gives a graphic description of the sad condition of the city. The old town, he says, is a collection of dirty, stifling, crowded, charnel houses. There are few tram cars, and they are almost empty.

The whole city is in dreary and disheartening contrast to what it was.

The tree-lined Spielbubenplatz is unfrequented and an oppressive stillness hangs over it. The cafes are empty. One head waiter who serves at a restaurant where formerly two thousand persons ate daily told the physician yesterday that eighteen customers had been there up to 6 p.m.

In passing the strasse he saw a crowd and six policemen holding it in check, while six women ran screaming down the road after ambulances which were bearing their husbands away to the cholera hospital.

Occupants of houses, he says, often run out in the street and beseech passing policemen to send ambulances to remove patients, but the police can seldom accede to their appeals, as the ambulance service is quite inadequate to the demands upon it.

At night, Dr. Vuez says, the streets are completely deserted by pedestrians, although ambulances, dead wagons and hearses can be heard passing almost constantly. The statistics published by the authorities, Dr. Veuz says, are utterly worthless. On one day the number of deaths announced by the health officials was but one-half the number registered at the office.

SOLDIERS DOWN WITH CHOLERA.

Reports of the Plague's Work From Many Quarters.

PARIS, Sep. 7.—The cholera has broken out in Limoges and Portiers. In the latter city several soldiers of the garrison are reported to be ill. THE HAGUE, Sep. 7.—A workman has died from cholerine at Dordrecht, a town of South Holland, ten miles from Rotterdam. This is the first case at Dordrecht, otherwise known as Dort.

PARIS, Sep. 7.—There were fifteen deaths in Paris and vicinity yesterday from cholerine. It is now believed by many that the disease is not cholerine, but genuine Asiatic cholera.

NOT VICTUALED AT HAMBURG.

Consul-General New Denies a Report—The Treasury Circular Commended.

LONDON, Sep. 7.—Consul-General John C. New said that he had received assurances from all the steamship companies that they would comply with the circular issued by order of President Harrison. Mr. New asserted that the baggage of saloon passengers as well as steerage passengers was fumigated when they sailed from an infected port, and he had found on inquiry that it was not true that the Hamburg-American line provisioned its vessels at Hamburg.

Mr. New gave as his own opinion that the circular was a wise measure. He also stated that he was kept well advised by the American consuls at Hamburg, Bremen and other places.

PEOPLE'S PARTY OF NEW JERSEY.

Benjamin Bird Nominated for Governor—The Platform.

TRENTON, Sep. 7.—The first convention of the People's party of New Jersey was held here yesterday. John Wilcox, a member of the National Committee, called it to order, and J. R. Buchanan of Essex was chosen chairman, with J. W. Hayes of Middlesex, and T. H. Gaddis of Hudson, secretaries.

These officers were made permanent, and after the adoption of the platform and the election of electors Benjamin Bird, of Hunterdon county, was nominated for Governor.

The platform as adopted endorses the People's national party; declares that New Jersey is governed by a sea of corrupt officials for their own gain; denounces the Reading coal combine; the stand taken at Homestead by organized capital against organized labor; the prostitution of the National Guards; favors the referendum; favors a law to compel payment of wages once a week.

IS THE CITY LIABLE?

HERE'S AN INTERESTING AND IMPORTANT LEGAL POINT.

Fanwood People Were Nearly Killed by Railway's Negligence, and Now the Culpable City Disclaims All Responsibility and Refuses Damages—The Supreme Court to Decide.

Mrs. Mary L. Carter and her husband George F. Carter of Scotch Plains, through their attorneys, Jackson & Codington, of this city, on Dec. 8, 1891, brought suit in the New Jersey supreme court against the mayor and common council of the city of Rahway, for $5,000 damages, for injuries received by Mrs. Carter in an accident which occurred on one of the public thoroughfares of that city Sept. 29 of the same year.

City attorney G. R. Lindsey of Rahway has just filed a general demurrer admitting the facts as set forth in the complaint, but denying that the city can be held liable for damages.

The accident, a full account of which was published in THE PRESS at the time, occurred on Main street, Rahway, at about 9 in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter, Miss May B. Carter, sister of Mr. Carter, Louis E. Kennedy, Paul B. Tuzo, and a party of ten others, members of the Four-in-hand club of Fanwood, were in a tally-ho, and on their way to Sewaren. Louis Carter, brother of Mr. Carter, drove.

In front of the Mellick House, on Main street, the city had made an excavation for a water pipe connection, four feet wide, twenty-six feet long, and 6 feet deep, running at right angles across the street. On the opposite side of the street, in a straight line with the excavation, was an electric light pole, which was out of place and leaned way over the street, towards the trench. As the tally-ho passed through the passage-way left for that purpose, the electric light pole struck the top of the vehicle, ripping it and its supports completely off close to the seats.

Every person in the tally-ho was more or less injured. Mrs. Carter was thrown out upon the sidewalk. Her head was cut, and she was severely bruised and injured. For many weeks her condition was extremely critical.

The question which has just been raised by the city attorney of Rahway as to the liability of the city for damages resulting from such accidents, is full of interest to every man, woman and child in the State of New Jersey.

Should the city of Rahway win the case, it will simply mean that no city in the State can be held liable for damages through the culpable negligence of any of its duly appointed officials.

The question will be argued at the next term of the New Jersey supreme court in November.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Further Progress of the Ordinance to Reach the Peace street Terminus.

The ordinance to permit extension of the street railway to North avenue, was adopted on second reading in amended form last night. The amendment cuts out the North avenue part of the route, and makes the terminus on Peace street at the end of North avenue. The legal consents for North avenue could not be obtained. There was a sufficient vote to have the ordinance engrossed, but not the necessary number of votes to have it advertised. Those voting for the amended ordinance were councilmen Case, Erickson, Fisk, Marsh and See; those against, Frazee, Johnston and Weber. They were opposed to any extension unless, as in accordance with a long petition from West Front street business men, the entire route on Front street were made a double track. The ordinance provides for a single track east of Somerset street. Councilman Frazee's amendment to make the route double track, was tabled, Messrs. Johnston and Weber being the only ones voting with him.

A Handsome Sight.

Something which all Plainfield should be proud of is the magnificent display of carriages of all the latest styles at L. M. French's, 16 to 22 Somerset street. This emporium is one of the largest and finest in the State, and the handsome stock there is a feast to the eyes. Call and have Mr. French show you through the place. Besides his perfect vehicles he sells all kinds of horse goods.

What the City Will Sell For.

The fire committee has figured up that the No. 2 engine-house property cost it $8,745. The council last night agreed, in view of the improvements projected, to accept $8,500 for the property, if Mr. Babcock will accept the offer within ten days.

The petition to grant an extension of Madison avenue to the brook was refused, as being beyond the city's jurisdiction in the shape presented.

Judge Crosley Takes a Wayward Girl in Hand.

A young girl of the borough ran away from home several days ago and led a wild sort of life in various localities. She was hunted up by marshal Pangborn, who restored her to her anxious mother. The worried woman was disposed to send the girl to a reformatory, but finally decided to put the case into justice Crosley's hands. That magistrate had the girl appear before him, gave her a sound lecturing, and put her on her good behavior. He warned her that she must be a good and dutiful girl or he should be forced to send her away to a training institution.

A Peaceful End at 4:30 This Morning—The Poet Conscious and Surrounded by Near Relatives at the Last.

HAMPTON FALLS, N. H., Sept. 7.—John G. Whittier, the familiar poet, died at 4:30 this morning. He passed away peacefully. His near relatives and Dr. Douglass were at his bedside when death came, and he seemed to be conscious of his surroundings at the last moment.

The funeral will take place at Amesbury, Mass., at 2:30 p. m., next Saturday.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Sept. 7.—The news of the death of John G. Whittier was received here with a general feeling of sadness. The City Hall bell was tolled 84 times at 8 o'clock, the number of strokes indicating his age, and flags on the public buildings and schoolhouses were displayed at half-mast as tokens of respect.

[John Greenleaf Whittier was born at Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 17, 1807. He was the son of John John and Abigail (Hussey) Whittier of that town.]

REPUBLICAN LEADERS DISAGREE.

Mayor Gilbert Takes Issue with Councilman Marsh, at the Plainfield Banner Raising.

The Republicans of this city flung a handsome banner across East Front street last night on a wire cable stretched from the City National bank building to the building occupied by Gavett & Co. The standard is constructed of fine network and bears very handsome portraits of Harrison and Reid. At 8:30 the thoroughfare from Somerset street to the Republican association rooms was densely packed with people who found interest in watching the folds of the banner as they slowly disclosed the likenesses of the Republican candidates. There were many cheers and some hisses as the banner was drawn taut and fastened. Up in the Republican headquarters the enthusiasm for Republicanism was more pronounced. The campaign glee club, under the able leadership of William E. MacClymont, the popular organist of the First Baptist church, gave with much spirit and in all harmony campaign songs tuned to patriotic airs.

Speeches were delivered by councilmen Francis E. Marsh, James L. Anthony, and Mayor Alexander Gilbert. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Marsh said he believed the Republicans would carry New Jersey this fall. Mayor Gilbert took exceptions to this belief, and broadly hinted that such an overthrow of Democracy was not as easy as rolling off a log.

It clears the head when you clear the stomach and bowels. You can't think, with your system all choked up and stagnant. That's just the time to contract disease, too.

Put yourself in good condition with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. You won't have to have a struggle with them, as you do with the ordinary pill. You won't notice them. Mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively, they cleanse and regulate the whole system. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're the best liver pill known, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, the smallest, easiest and best to take. They're the cheapest pills you can buy, too, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. "Value received or no pay"—it's a plan peculiar to Dr. Pierce's medicines.

FAITHLESS HUSBAND DIVORCED

HIS WIFE'S LITTLE FORTUNE WAS ALL HE WANTED.

Foiled in His Scheme to Secure His Young Bride's Money, the Groom Deserted Her Eleven Days After the Wedding—A Plainfield Counselor Secures the Wronged Woman's Freedom.

Chancellor McGill a few days ago granted to Josephine Stelzer, of New Market, a decree of absolute divorce from Paul O. Stelzer, who basely deserted her eleven days after their wedding.

The case is a peculiar one, because of the extraordinary behavior of the young husband, his final mysterious disappearance, and the fact that the decree was granted without service upon the defendant.

She who was the plaintiff in the case is but twenty-one years of age. She is a handsome brunette, with large dark eyes, brilliant coloring, and a plump figure.

In her affidavit Mrs. Stelzer deposed that she was married at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Otto, at New Market, Feb. 24, 1889, by the Rev. James A. Cubberly, pastor of the Baptist church of that town.

The morning after the marriage, Stelzer explained to his young wife that it would be necessary for him to leave her for a day, as he had been sent for by some one in New York with whom he expected to go into business. He bade her an affectionate adieu, and departed.

Returning March 3, he left her again the next day, with a similar explanation. Three days later he reappeared and told her a long story about his business disappointments, and wound up by asking his wife to lend him the $500 which her mother held in trust for her until she should become of legal age.

The wife was willing, but the mother-in-law said it was impossible.

The next day, March 7, Steizer again told his wife that he must go to New York, but said he would return that night. She never saw him afterward, although for many months she refused to believe that he had wilfully deserted her, and searched for him everywhere.

Finally her relatives prevailed upon her to seek redress.

On July 11, 1891, Mrs. Stelzer placed her case in the hands of John H. Jackson, of the firm of Jackson & Codington, of this city.

Mr. Jackson traced Stelzer from Stapleton, Staten Island, to a grocery store at the corner of Eleventh street and Third avenue, New York city, where he worked as a clerk. Stelzer had n't been there for a year. From there he was traced to a grocery store at the corner of Lexington avenue and Eighteenth street. Stelzer had left this place also, and here all traces of him ended as if the earth had swallowed him up.

As the law requires in such cases, Mr. Jackson caused the matter to be advertised, but Stelzer failed to put in any answer.

The case was referred to ex-governor Ludlow, as special master in chancery.

It is usually an extremely difficult matter to obtain a divorce when the defendant has not been served with the papers in the case, but Mr. Jackson succeeded in satisfying the court that his fair client's recreant husband could not be found, and the chancellor handed down his decision in her favor Aug. 17.

A MOST POPULAR COUPLE.

When Mr. and Mrs. George K. Thomas Left Woodstock the Whole Country Turned Out in Honor of Them.

There was a blare of brass and a blaze of bunting through the village streets of Woodstock, Vt., the other day. Coaches decorated with flags and drawn by four-in-hands dressed in variegated ribbons, and followed by all the private and public turn-outs for miles around, formed a gay procession along the thoroughfares lined with scores of old and young folks to the station.

The occasion was the departure of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Thomas of West Seventh street, after a season in that fashionable community where they had been first in the hearts of everybody and the leaders in all projects and realizations that had brought entertainment, pleasure and gratification.

Mr. and Mrs Thomas rode in a profusely adorned four-in-hand, at the head of the parade. Her charming face was wreathed in smiles of good-will and appreciation, while his face was covered with blushes and he was enveloped in embarrassment. The band played, and the voices of five hundred rose with farewells and good wishes when the train bore them away. Prominent among those who thus honored Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, was councilman Fisk of this city.

Floated Their New Banner at the Temperance Rally.

The Loyal Temperance Legion, Company A., of this city, accompanied by the superintendent, Miss Winter, went Monday to Elizabeth, to take part in the temperance rally held in that city by all the Loyal Temperance legions of Union county.

A part of the programme was a recitation by Phillip Koechil, of North Plainfield, and a solo by Edith Conover, of this city.

An address of welcome was given by Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson. The children were very proud of their handsome new banner, the artistic handwork of Mrs. VanArsdale.

The Young Woman's Christian Temperance union have great cause to be proud of this Loyal Legion work, perfected through the earnest labors of their faithful superintendent, Miss Addie Winter.

MAY STRIKE ON THE READING.

A Committee Sees President McLeod—The Trouble Said to be Due to the Failure of the Beneficial Organization Connected With the System—Employes Say They Are in Earnest.

There is danger of a general strike on the Reading railroad system. Several months ago there were many rumors of a strike on all the roads in the Reading system. There were some important meetings of railroad employes at the time, and then the trouble was apparently forgotten. Yesterday the story of a probable strike on the Reading system was revived. Early in the morning a grievance committee, composed of engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen, left the Jersey Central station in Jersey City for Philadelphia, to lay before President A. A. McLeod and other officers of the Reading system its grievances. A. Clapp, an engineer on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was chairman of the committee. All knowledge of such a committee was denied by the officers of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Reading system yesterday forenoon. Late in the day, however, in leaked out in several railroad offices in New York that Mr. Clapp and his committee had actually begun work.

In one railroad office the statement was inadvertently made that Mr. Clapp's committee had "begun a serious business that would result in embarrassing complications very soon". A special request was made that the authorship of the remark be withheld. Mr. Clapp's committee comprised twelve representatives of all the brotherhoods of railroad employes. The formation of the committee and its sudden and unexpected departure for Philadelphia yesterday were the result of a secret meeting of railroad employes held at Easton, Penn., Sunday afternoon At that meeting the alleged unjust discharge of five engineers on the New Jersey division of the Reading was discussed. The alleged proposed discharge of all union men from the service of the road was also discussed. The discussion resulted in the grievance committee receiving instructions to go at once to New York and Philadelphia for the purpose of securing explanations and concessions. If the desired concessions were not forthcoming it was understood that a general strike, directly affecting 5,000 miles of railroad, 1,800 locomotives, 113,000 cars and many thousands of employes would be ordered.

At the offices of the Reading railroad in the Central Building, at Liberty and West streets, yesterday, complete ignorance was professed as to the existence and movements of the grievance committee. S. M. Williams, the second vice-president, was not in his office. An officer of one of the roads was found, who spoke freely about the situation. He said to a reporter: "The present trouble has been brewing for five years. Five years ago Mr. McLeod organized the beneficial organization of the Reading company. The members of the organization were to receive a certain amount of money weekly in case of illness, etc., in proportion to the amount they paid in dues. The one object of the organization was to wipe out the unions and brotherhoods of railroad employes. The scheme has never been a success. I saw the grievance committee yesterday morning. There were about twelve men in it, I guess. They were employes of the Jersey Central and the Philadelphia and Reading railroads. Clapp, an engineer, was with them. He said in my hearing: 'We mean business this time.'"

"Do you believe that the visit of the committee to the officers in Philadelphia will amount to anything?" was asked.

"When the members of this grievance committee leave work it means serious business, that will result in some embarrassing complications."

Mr. McLeod could not be found Monday. The engineers and firemen in the yards in Jersey City and Communipaw were not in a talkative mood. They admitted that they had grievances, but refused to discuss them or say what they were.

REVIVALIST MILLS'S CONVERSION.

The Preacher So Popular in Plainfield Celebrates the Anniversary of the Turning-Point in His Life.

Revivalist B. Fay Mills, with his wife and a clergyman, held a private prayer-meeting last Friday in a room over a Mason street, San Francisco, saloon. The meeting was noteworthy as it was the celebration of a singular episode in the revivalist's life.

In 1875 Mills was a real estate agent in San Francisco, and was given to poker. He won $5,000 in a saloon under this room and then went out. He could not resist temptation to play again, and was cleaned out. He went to his room over the saloon, determined on suicide. As he took down his six-shooter he knocked a book to the floor. It proved to be a hymn book and fell open at the passage, "He shall receive blessings from the Lord and righteousness from the God of his salvation."

The text awoke early memories, and he determined to reform. He returned to Chicago, studied at Lake Forest University, and became a preacher. Friday, which marked the anniversary of his revival service, he held this prayer-meeting to celebrate his escape from suicide.

Base-Ball Notes.

Get ready for the great game Saturday.

Reserved seats for Saturday's game are on sale at Kenney's shoe store.

Manager Reed and umpire Sullivan had the hearty applause and heartfelt thanks of the spectators at Monday's afternoon game, for suppressing the disorder of noisy persons. Legitimate applause is all right, but rowdyism will not be tolerated. The best of order will be maintained at all games.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

The Arlingtons Were Used to Playing, and Easily Did Up the Grocers' Clerks.

The Arlingtons of this city, defeated the Grocers' Clerks team at Papiac, Labor Day, by the score of 18 to 12. The Arlingtons played all around the Grocers, as the score will tell. The Grocers changed their players all through the game. Up to the third inning the Arlingtons played a very fine uphill game. Before the game the Grocers were saying that they would have a picnic with the Arlingtons, but they found at at the end of the game. This is the twentieth game that the Arlingtons have won out of twenty-three played. The attendance was very large, there being about eight-hundred on the grounds. The score:

America for the Americans, and Plainfield Against the Borough.

[CONTRIBUTED, AND PUBLISHED BY REQUEST OF THE ORDER.]

An exciting as well as amusing game of base-ball took place on the Crescent League grounds, last Saturday, between two local councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M.—Somerset, 104, of North Plainfield, and Franklin, 41, of this city. The players were as follows:

FRANKLIN, 41.	SOMERSET, 104.

SCORE BY INNINGS.

Somerset, 104	5	0	4	7	2	1	0	6	*	—25
Franklin, 41	1	2	1	1	0	0	0	2	2	—9

Although Franklin, 41, declared that Somerset, 104, would not score a run, yet 104 by decidedly better all-round batting and fielding defeated their opponents with perfect ease.

Corey, pitcher for Somerset, 104, was an enigma to the Franklin, 41, sixteen men being struck out by him during the game, while the pitchers for Franklin, 41, suffered severe punishment at the hands of Somerset, 104, sluggers, two or three batteries being needed to finish the game.

The features of the game were the batting and fielding of Corey, the first-base playing by W. Thorn, and the inability of Charley Force to hit the ball, and is trying yet.

Plainfield Thanks Elizabeth.

[From The Elizabeth Journal of Sept. 2.]

Miss Ella C. Benedict, of East Fifth street, secretary of the Union County Christian Endeavor union, has sent to the Elizabeth union a resolution adopted by the county executive committee, expressing to the union and the society of the Second Presbyterian church, the appreciation of the said committee of the bountiful and liberal entertainment provided for the out-of-town delegates at the late convention held in Elizabeth. The resolution says: "You not only provided most liberally for the inner man, but the cordial and brotherly welcome that you extended to us all added greatly to the Christian fellowship and unity of the convention and was greatly appreciated by all."

THREE CATASTROPHES.

Notes of the Grocers' Picnic, by Our Devil on the Spot and Under the Influence.

While Michael Cox of Plainfield was standing on the pier down at Papiac, Monday, some one took the advantage of his being under the influence, and pushed him into the river; he was rescued by some one in a boat who was passing at the time.

Joe Green, who was under the influence, attempted to jump from one train to another while coming home from the excursion. Luckily, he landed safe. He kept the conductor on the second section of the excursion in anxiety as to his whereabouts, but some one who saw him jump told the conductor that he had landed safe.

Michael Heffern, another character under the influence who thought himself smart, kept up a continuous round of profane language while coming home. Ladies who were in the same car were perfectly disgusted at his conduct. Why was n't he put off the car and made to walk home!

THE DRESS IS FINISHED, SO AM I."
A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball-room; "a queen of society is radiant to-night."
The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary frame and aching head have known no rest—for "the dress must be finished in time."
To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One, through hot-house culture, luxury, and excitement, and the other, through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause. The Vegetable Compound will enable both to meet the demands of society.

FREAKS OF MADNESS.

Curious Letters Written by the Inmates of a New York Asylum.

The Hopelessly Insane Much Given to Letter Writing—A Quaintly Sad Appeal to the Almighty—A Maniac with a Touch of Humor.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

That "no excellent soul is exempt from a mixture of madness," was averred by Aristotle, and modern philosophers seem disposed to confirm his views. The question that most perplexes the student of psychiatry is just where the mixture marks the border line between the realms of reason and the domain of lunacy.

Notwithstanding that, in point of law, all men are either sane or insane, there are many alienists who claim that, in point of fact, there is no dividing line between sanity and insanity. Dr. Ireland, an eminent Scotch specialist in mental disorders, asserts that, "as no eye is perfectly achromatic, so no brain is perfectly sane." He admits, however, that there are degrees of insanity more or less dangerous, and states that only one person in about every five hundred is mad enough to require the restraint of an asylum. Each remaining four hundred and ninety-nine he thinks may with safety retain their liberty so long as their delusions do not conflict with the prevailing sentiments of the times.

"Sanity," says Dr. Ireland, "implies the capability of a man living in such consonance with the society in which his lot is cast as not to come into continual collision with its beliefs, rules, customs and modes of life."

With a view of obtaining a partial insight into some of the methods of determining the proscribed degrees of insanity, an interview was sought with a distinguished physician whose life has been devoted to the care of the unfortunate beings who can neither adapt themselves to circumstances nor shape the events of life to their own ends, and who are consequently denominated lunatics.

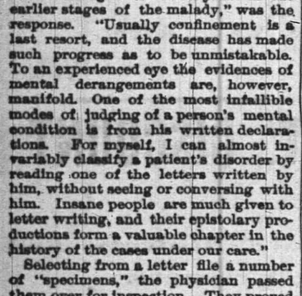
"How can you decide to a certainty that the people confided to your care require to be secluded?" was the question propounded.

"It is quite a rare thing for a patient to be brought to an asylum in the earlier stages of the malady," was the response. "Usually confinement is a last resort, and the disease has made such progress as to be unmistakable. To an experienced eye the evidences of mental derangements are, however, manifold. One of the most infallible modes of judging of a person's mental condition is from his written declarations. For myself, I can almost invariably classify a patient's disorder by reading one of the letters written by him, without seeing or conversing with him. Insane people are much given to letter writing, and their epistolary productions form a valuable chapter in the history of the cases under our care."

Selecting from a letter file a number of "specimens," the physician passed them over for inspection. They proved so interesting that by dint of urgent solicitation he was persuaded to loan them for publication. He exacted the condition, however, that the identity of the writers should in no way be revealed. To allow it to be remotely suggested would, he deemed, be a most unwarrantable breach of trust.

It was quite evident that years of association with unreasonable and demented creatures had not in the least affected his kind and sympathetic nature.

"This letter," explained the doctor, presenting the one of which a fac simile is given, "was written by a patient who suffered from delusional insanity. Fear and grandeur are pathetically mingled in its composition. The tendency to underline is a marked feature in insanity as is the concentration of thought on self."



"The unhappy woman never failed to hand me an appeal when I made my daily round of visits. Here is another in which the delusion of persecution predominates:"

DOCTOR ——

I am not full of MAGGOTS and worms—it is dreadful slander and murder such talk of me. There is where my repression comes in I tell you so much about. I am not allowed the full flow of my MIND, being called "a fool" all the time when I am really a poetical "genius" and have been kept back and repressed, and kept down injures people and that is why I wish to have been here. You must not give me any drug, for you would kill me. I must have my entire freedom. I am called by experts I know of perfectly balanced mind. You must not drug me. I am all right. R. S. V. P.

MRS. ——

You must let me leave here.

"Here is a case of dementian paralytica or general paresis. As a campaign document it will compare favorably with many promulgated by politicians whose mental disturbances are not so mentally classified:"

Rejoice Ye Working men of the World. No more poverty, no more crime, no more Penitentiaries, no more suicides. Every laboring man a lord and his lowest wages $25.00 a day.

For this purpose, I donate 5 million Dollars as a Starting Fund, to place every laborer in America and the world, in an independent condition, and bound by law of Congress, all trades and monopolies, of every kind, to be divided. Equal shares to the working element of such industries, the capitalist to retain the same share with the rest.

I will give 5 millions more for the purpose of transferring the entire Irish pauper population from Ireland to America, and start each family with $2,000 cash. The Govt. to establish them in Colonies, free land and Implement. I will donate Ten Millions to bring over all the paupers working people of the poor Jews in Europe.

I will give 5 millions each for the Laboring Association of England, France, Germany, Austria and Russia, and let the World celebrate a universal hallelujah.

With this fund to start the world's poor, who can doubt its success? The great question of Capital & Labor is solved, and he receives one of my ministers. Mr. W. H. VANDERBILT should come behind me and follow my footsteps. Under these conditions of American Society I will be the prime cause of the g. redeemer of My Countrymen such as never attempted by human mind, for the amseriation of the race and the ——. Washington has led the American people to independence and success—I shall lead a Nation to Opulence and Wealth, and all I ask from my people in return is to elect me President of the U. S. unanimously, that I may serve my Country, giving them my administration.

"The omission of words and letters, with the occasional confusion of ideas, are symptoms of paresis. The following is also the effusion of a paretic:"

MY DEAR DR.—God was with me last night and brought me my new Head of Hair as soft as velvet. He degree that you take me this morning, and as early as you can take me, to my wife to tell her that on Saturday you are to marry my Sister, her Mother, my Father and her Bro. my Sister in Law. I am appointed General in Chief of the whole and you are Surgeon General salary 1,000 dollars a month.

The writer of the following epistle had not lost his wit, if his wisdom was threatened. His letter was probably inspired by a "personal," which may, perhaps, have emanated from a brain quite as seriously affected as his own.

MY DEAR UNKNOWN—I feel my bosom heave in sympathetic response to yours, as I read in the Herald the brief appeal you make to the cold, heartless world. Let me inform you who I am, in order that you may fully accord with my outspoken feelings.

A young lady of culture and sensitive aspirations, my place of residence will be made known to you in the course of this effusion. I am like you, my dear unknown, in many particulars. Like you, I have an aspiring nature. I soar, I rise—even to the garret where I dwell. Like you, too, I am maligned. My poetical soarings are mistaken for imbecilities. My original opinions are considered those of an ass. But need I inform you that this is a monstrous slander? How can it be otherwise than that, since in all respects I so feature you, dear object of my regard?

You may wonder that I so divine your nature, but know that to the eye of affection, nothing is hidden. Know that to my sharp vision your soul lies bare as an open chart. Let me briefly describe you, beloved creature.

You are somewhat long and lean, with a face that awakens in the breast no active emotions. It merely suggests to the reflective observer the desire to peel it off with a knife and hide it in a box. But know, my friend, that beauty does not reside in the face alone. It resides in the soul, in the feet, in the back bone. Let us briefly consider each in turn. Your soul, my love, must be large and expansive. It must yearn to pour itself out, and be known of all men.

I know that some would cruelly wish you to pour it all out and have none left to pour. But these are malignant, they are ignorant, they cannot appreciate the beauty of your back bone. For, my friend, in considering the nature of your back bone, I am forced to the conclusion that you have none. You must be a limp clinging creature; a boneless soft caricature of a man; a libel on humanity. But, dear love, let us not hearken to the foul hiss of calumny. Let us unite our souls; together attain the bliss of perfect harmony. I will sustain and strengthen you. I will stiffen your back bone. I will pour into your soul the wine of love. I will tend you and nurse you like a child. You need it, my friend; you need it. Subject to the same healing influences as myself, nurtured in this noble institution, you will regain your colossal understanding. I do not mean your big feet; no, my friend, you have them already. I mean that small quantum of mother wit that left its dwelling empty. Sweet creature, let us pray for your restoration. Let me beg you to join me, and together let us regain our feeble wits in —— —— Asylum.

(For incurables only.)

[Signed] THERESANIA BIGIDIOT,

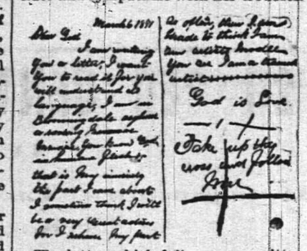
In the fac-simile following the chirography as well as the subject matter would locate the disease. The unhappy being felt that God alone could appreciate and sympathize with her troubles.



The letter which follows was written by a patient in a charitable institution and is a typical case of paranoia, which is defined as "a mental affection of hereditary origin, generally of a slowly-advancing character, with illusions and hallucinations and delusions, often of persecution or of grandeur. Sometimes the two varieties of delusion are combined. The emotional faculties are seldom deeply affected, and the logical power is the last to suffer, the patient reasoning acutely from false premises. The mental enfeeblement is not great. The chronic form of the disease is incurable, and many specialists will not admit of an acute form of paranoia."

To Mrs. —— ——, Hall, Errol Perthshire, Scotland, care of ——, British Vice Consul or British Consul General, etc.

I wrote you a letter last Sunday about my life in England. I remembered as I finished it further particulars. I joined —— circus at Reading and we made a circuit of the country. We intended traveling around the world only for what happened. I married a young lady attached to the circus and we were very happy indeed.

She bore me a son or so, etc.

I remember and several times have, since I came to this country, that I sent for you. You were present at performance in Birmingham or Manchester. I may have wrote about this before. I gave you 100 pounds. You saw my wife and me, etc.

I was at Newcastle, York, London, etc. I received the highest honors from her Majesty. She gave me a Victoria Cross, etc.

I won the Championship of the World against all the Bare back Riders in Existance whilst with that circus. My Performance stands unapproachable. My performance whilst with that circus was acknowledged to be Marvelous. I loved it. I received most high honors. They are recorded in some Public Building Museum etc.

I love my wife, but we agreed to separate. I broke my engagement with the circus. I think we seperated peaceable and quiet. I forget exact particulars. Some years ago I met her here but like me she had married again. She seemed to be very happy, etc.

I saw my son and gave an Exhibition in —— Circus, New York City. I rode with my son on Horse back. I have seen once or twice since and have had conversation with her, it was too bad we ever separated in the first place, perhaps it was God's Will.

I refused to ride in any Circus for less than 5,000 Dollars per week then, and since for less than 10,000 Dollars per week in Barnum's or 5,000 Dollars for one Exhibition.

Sometimes I go a year without thinking of something. My memory is not affected it is perfectly natural I cannot think of everything at once. Nor no one else, perhaps we may meet again.

I hope I shall soon be released from here it is horrible to be here I am at a loss to know why the British Gov as not interfeered in my behalf perhaps they got mad because I refused to be Prime Minister or Else because I refused Princess Alexander's Daughter. They have treated me as mean as the Americans who God knows have treated me very mean and cowardly I have not even received any answer from Either Gov the lady herself acknowledged I was Imposed but I am treated as if I was some Damn fool instead of a Wise and Clever Young Man.

There has been a deliberate attempt to cause my death or drive me Insane. The food is horrible enough to drive men crazy, but I thank God I am and have been kept in my senses, although Death would have been preferable to spending the time I have here one of the best years of my life wasted what the British Gov is Down on me for I do not know and may God serve them all as they have served me and ten time more so for I would not serve an animal the way I have been served since 1878, not previously. I do not know what it was for even nor do not believe they know themselves. The people of New York have been laboring under great Delusion.

I suppose the British government have 800,000 Pounds Gold belonging to me the Princess Alexandres said I would get my claim it don't seem so I believe they have been honing I would die and may God watch over me and punish and Damn all Implicated in the unjust and cruel persecution of me.

I was knighted twice and created Earl of Bristol and other titles and for Bravery each and every time. Now I am left here to starve or die amongst all kinds of sick, Insane and Dirty Persons.

I pray God I may have a happy release one way or other the Queen as treated me very mean indeed and may God punish her for it. She has had the power and refused to Guarantee me my rights I would like you to forward this letter to her in Person. God Damn each and every person guilty towards me and mine I will now conclude your son

Sir ——

Earl of Bristol

Etc. Etc. Etc.

Excelsior.

Please cable an answer.

Anyone delaying my letter will be prosecuted and may God punish him besides.

The wretched object of this imaginary persecution has been happily released by death.

There are probably as many people possessed of happy delusions as there are tormented beings. Charles Lamb in early life had an attack of insanity to which he referred in a letter to Coleridge, saying: "I look back upon it at times with a gloomy kind of envy, for while it lasted I had many, many hours of pure happiness. Dream not of having tasted all the grandeur and wildness of fancy till you have gone mad."

GUSTAVE BIBET.

A Diary Curious and Useful.

A Japanese journal describes a curious diary kept in a family of a well-to-do farmer in the province of Koshiu, in the center of the main island. It has been kept regularly for more than three hundred years. The diary has naturally become voluminous. Seven or eight oblong boxes, two feet wide by five long and two and a half in height, principally used in Japanese houses for storing bedding, are said to be filled with them. Recently a dispute is said to have arisen between two families in that neighborhood, each claiming to be the original family or stock. The dispute was settled by referring to Mr. Hazaka, the present head of the family with the diary, who discovered in one of the early volumes an entry made by one of his ancestors of a dinner he attended given by an ancestor of one of the parties to the dispute on the occasion of the latter's founding a branch family. As the entry was so detailed as to include even a minute account of the different dishes served on the occasion it left no room for further wrangling and the parties were quite satisfied.—Lloyd's Newspaper.

Lard as a Life-Saver

The school boy's composition asserted that pins had saved the lives of many people by their not having swallowed them; so lard has saved the lives of thousands by their having avoided food of which it forms a part. Hog's lard is responsible for much indigestion and dyspepsia, as any physician will testify, hence

SULLIVAN EASY FOR CORBETT

John L. Knocked Out by the Californian in 21 Rounds.

REPORTED THAT THE EX-CHAMPION WAS NOT IN CONDITION.

Corbett Wholly Uninjured and as Fresh as Ever at the Close—He Nearly Broke Sullivan's Nose, and Almost Finished Him in the Fifth—Story of the Battle by Rounds—Sketch of the Victor's Career.

NEW ORLEANS, Sep. 8.—A sicker lot of sports than those who backed John L. Sullivan it would be had to find. As was to be expected, the men who had lauded the champion to the skies before the battle, now roundly execrate him.

Corbett's victory carries with it not only the championship of the world but the ownership of the princely stake of $45,000. Sullivan was clearly out of condition and wholly unfit to fight a championship battle.

Corbett outfought his man from the opening of the first round until the end of the twenty-first, when the most notorious fighter of this generation surrendered. He showed more science, greater strength and was quicker than the mighty John L., who for the first time in his career found a conqueror.

Before the Battle.

Corbett got up at 7 a. m. and was feeling first rate. He took a sponge bath and then ate a square meal. He talked away to his trainers at such a lively rate that a stranger would have thought he had been drinking. He read the papers, got a shave and hesitated about allowing a barber with whom he was acquainted touch his pompadour style hair. He finally consented, and afterward gave the barber $2 for the job. He stayed in the house all day, not leaving it until he went to the fight.

He was expected to show up at the Southern Athletic Club, but at 11 o'clock sent word that he would not go over. A large crowd that had assembled to see him was disappointed, but they waited until 2 in the afternoon. The reception committee of the club were out in full force to say once more that they were delighted to have him as their guest, and they, also, were fooled.

Sullivan did not leave his room until about 10 o'clock. There was an immense throng in front of the St. Charles all morning to see him come down the stairs, but he bothered with nobody as he was taken to the Sportsmen's Gymnastic Club, where he took light exercise, "to prevent getting stiff, you know." He came back about 2 o'clock, having loafed in the club house, without doing any work to speak of.

He skipped the rope a few times and punched the ball for a while, but he quit early in each game. It was given out as a report that John L. had hit the ball so hard that he broke the rope twice, but that was untrue.

The mob went out to the club house in every car that started from anywhere along the line. It was a great mob in numbers and by half past seven the galleries were as full as they could have been. By 9 o'clock the house was packed to overflowing, and standing room was at a premium.

Bat Masterson was named as Corbett's timekeeper. Sullivan came on first, at 8:51 p. m. His last handlers, Johnston, McAuliffe, Joe Lannon and Casey were with him. Jack Ashton was not to be seen. Corbett came in almost immediately after, with several of his friends as well as W. A. Brady, his manager. Both men were stripped all the way up and down, except that they wore trunks and shoes and stockings.

Sullivan's trunks were of a bright green, and Corbett's of a queer mixture of white and a shade of slate. Corbett seemed nervous after he had taken his seat and swung his legs from the floor up and back again, like an amateur. Then all hands collected in the middle of the ring and shook hands, handlers and all. It was announced that Sullivan weighed 212 pounds and Corbett, 187.

Prof. Duffy, the referee, ran into corner, looking out for bandages, bodies and waists, and finding none, ordered things to go on. When the 5-ounce gloves were distributed, Sullivan had trouble in getting his hands into his. Corbett was ready in an instant. Sullivan laughed with his handlers as though he had told a funny story of his own, after he had shaken hands with Pompadour Jim.

Story of the Fight.

Round 1—This was a ridiculous exhibition of prize fighting. Sullivan made no less than seven feints with the left for Corbett, but Corbett ran around the ring each time, and no blow was struck.

Round 2—Corbett made no effort to do anything but walk around. The big fellow stood up leisurely and looked at Corbett, and then let go a left on Corbett's shoulder, and a clinch followed.

Round 3—Sullivan missed a left-hander on the jaw, and then touched him on the stomach. It was of no harm, however. The first good blow was struck by Corbett, who ran in on top of a run by Sullivan. Corbett also reached two lefts on Sullivan's body. Whenever Sullivan led Corbett ducked and John could not touch him.

Round 4.—Sullivan made two runs at Corbett, but Jim ran away and no blow was struck. Sullivan continued to run in on him, but Jim's feet were too good for the big fellow and he slipped away like a good sprinter. Sullivan, the big fellow, laughed at the business.

Round 5—In this round Sullivan caught Corbett a fairly hard blow on the chin, but Corbett clinched, and nobody was hurt. Sullivan missed with his left, and followed that with a trifler on the shoulder. Corbett smashed him with right and left on the stomach and face, and had the big fellow's nose bleeding in no time. Right and left, right and left, and Sullivan was not in it. The activity and cleverness shown by Corbett was so admirable that the house got up and yelled.

Round 6—Corbett jumped around like a cat and worried the big fellow, getting in two light blows on the stomach. Sullivan missed a left-hander for the face.

Round 7—Two slaps on the body, one from each, opened this round, and after a bit of fighting Corbett gave Sullivan two smacks on the face with left, and two more shortly after. Sullivan's nose was bleeding again freely. Corbett ran in and rushed Sullivan to the ropes, letting go right and left on the big fellow's body. Sullivan could make no return.

Round 8—Sullivan came out looking worried. He made a lunge at Corbett, but Corbett ducked cleverly. In a rally Sullivan landed his right on the ribs, but Corbett got in two good left jabs on the body and one on the face. Sully seemed to be played out.

Round 9—Corbett led out without effect. Sullivan led with his left, but Corbett ducked. Sullivan did not show any want of wind, although Corbett hit him five more times, one after the other, three on the body and two on the face. Corbett was away ahead in points.

Round 10—Corbett stood up like a major. Sullivan missed with the left. Both land on the face, but weakly. The same again. Sullivan's face again. Sully missed left, and Corbett jumped back. Corbett landed left on face.

Round 11—Sullivan could not get in a straight blow on Corbett. A couple of light passes and a good deal of running around by Corbett. Corbett hit Sullivan in the face twice with his left and right in a clinch. Sullivan's nose again bleeding.

Round 12—Corbett got in his left three times in the stomach, getting away each time. Great cleverness was shown by Corbett in the way he jabbed and got away, but his blows did not seem to be effective.

Round 13—Sullivan had a weary look when he came from his corner, and then let go his left. He could not get there, as Corbett ran away. This was repeated until the round ended.

Round 14—Sullivan led left on Corbett's neck, and Corbett landed left on neck, and both countered left on face. Corbett landed two lefts on the face, and in another attempt both missed. Each now touched the other with the left, and both missed. Corbett again got his left on Sullivan's face and then missed with his right.

Round 15—Sullivan went in to do Corbett this time, and rushed Jim three times. Corbett's long reach held the big fellow at bay, and he could not break in under the guard. On the contrary, Corbett's left found Sullivan's face twice. In two more rushes by Sullivan, Corbett held him off and plunked him on the ribs and stomach with left.

Rounds 16 and 17—Sullivan resorted to rushing tactics, but was met every time by Corbett's left on his stomach, nose and head.

Round 18—Corbett's cleverness in tapping the big fellow and getting away was greatly admired up to this time, and when he jabbed the big fellow four times in succession on the face the spectators raised a howl. Sullivan here got in a left on Corbett's breast, but it did not hurt. Then Corbett touched John L. up for two right-handers on the body.

Round 19—On coming together Sullivan hit Corbett on the neck with the left, pretty hard, and Corbett countered with the left on the stomach. Sullivan missed a left meant for the face. Corbett again came forward and landed his left on Sullivan's stomach.

Round 20—With left and right Corbett caught Sullivan on both sides of the head close to the ropes, and this same dose the Californian repeated several times before time was sounded.

Sullivan Knocked Out.

Round 21—That the contest would end in this round no man present believed. Corbett jumped back, rushed forward, hit John a blow on the nose that dazed him. Corbett went at him further, and the same nose was again smashed and more blood came out. Then he got a crack on the side of the head that made him close his eyes. With this, Corbett was on top of him in no time. Left on one side of the head and right hand on the other, Sullivan became an unconscious beaten man. He staggered about on his pins for a second or so, and while displaying this fatal weakness Corbett went down on him again.

A right on the ear and a left on the jaw settled the business and the championship. The last blow sent the great John L. Sullivan to the floor with a thump, the second time in all his long career as a fighter that he had ever been knocked down.

Then pandemonium reigned. In the midst of the tumult Corbett shook the hand of Sullivan, who had managed to regain his feet, and then the big crowd dispersed.

THE PEST IN HAMBURG

Carelessness in Burials Causes Fresh Outbreaks.

NEGLIGENCE OF THE HEALTH BOARD.

The President Has Been Dismissed—An Increase in Mortality Expected on Account of the Humid Weather—Cholera Seems to Have Obtained a Firm Foothold in Paris.

HAMBURG, Sep. 8.—The air is humid, there is no breeze, and it is much warmer. Consequently, an increase of mortality may be expected to-morrow.

There have been 916 fresh cases in the city to-day, 22 fewer than yesterday. The deaths number 302, or 15 fewer than yesterday. The disease has gained virulence in the suburbs. At Barmbeck the mortality has risen to five cases in seven. In Winterbude, near the Ohlsdorf Cemetery, where the number of cases had decreased steadily up to yesterday, there has been a fresh outbreak, and whole families are dying after a few hours illness.

This outbreak is supposed to have been due to the carelessness with which burials have been made in the cemetery recently. Hundreds of bodies have been placed at insufficient depth under ground, so that a few days of rain and sun have sufficed to bring out the germs of the disease and spread them on all sides. Scores of funerals from the hospitals pass through adjacent districts daily, and often 20 or 30 dead wagons have remained blocked at the entrance.

Although denying that the infection could be communicated from the dead wagons, the authorities have published a request that the few persons still inclined to observe funeral ceremonies, desist for the public good. No flowers are to be sent hereafter, and only the necessary bearers probably will be allowed.

The President of the Board of Health has been dismissed from office. This was done in partial deference to public opinion, which has held him responsible largely for the neglect which characterised the Board's conduct during the early stage of the plague, and for the falsehood with which it has tried to minimize its culpability.

Prof. Virchow is expected to come here from Berlin to-morrow or Saturday. He has just returned from a journey in Russia where he has been investigating the course of the cholera. He will remain here several days, and will be consulted by the Sanitary Department.

INCREASING AT PARIS.

Cholera Getting a Firm Foothold There—Government Precautions.

PARIS, Sep. 8.—The cholera appears to be increasing. There were 50 cases and 42 deaths from the disease, variously described as cholerine and cholera, in the city and suburbs yesterday.

The government is taking active precautions, in addition to those already adopted, to restrict the admission and transit of Russian Jews.

The attention of the government has been called to the recent arrivals of Jews from Russia, mostly passing through France on their way to North and South America, several hundred, however, remaining in France.

Still larger parties of emigrants are on their way to France from Odessa, and unless sanitary precautions are taken they may become a serious danger to France and Western Europe, owing to their filthy habits, coupled with the circumstance that many of them hail from the districts where Asiatic cholera is now raging.

The Minister of the Interior has decided that Russian Jews landing at Marseilles are to be sent to the Frioul lazaretto, where their clothes and their persons must undergo washing and disinfection.

The Prefect of Police has begun to issue daily bulletins of new cases and deaths from cholera in Paris and the suburbs.

The first gives 89 new cases and 47 deaths Monday; Tuesday, 41 new cases and 26 deaths in the city, and 9 new cases and 16 deaths in the suburbs.

Inspecting Vessels at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 8.—The steamer India came into port during the morning and was boarded by Health Commissioner Wende, who made an examination finding, all well on board and no danger of cholera. It now appears certain that the child supposed to have died of cholera had nothing but cholera infantum and had not been brought in contact with immigrants as at first reported.

Secretary Foster Meets His Wife.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 8.—Secretary Foster came down the bay on the cutter U. S. Grant with a party of friends and steamed alongside the city of New York, when the Secretary had a conversation with his wife and daughter who are on the steamer.

Steamers Quarantined at Lewes.

LEWES, Del., Sep. 8.—Several steamers are quarantined here, but the authorities say there is no sickness aboard any of them.

Shot By a Circus Man.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sep. 8.—While attempting to execute warrants charging the proprietors of Cook & Whiteby's circus with permitting gambling in their side shows, where, it is alleged, several persons were robbed, several shots were fired at the officers. One man had his necktie shot off. Two circus men were arrested. While pursuing another Officer O'Brien was shot in the side and probably fatally injured.

THE QUAKER POET.

His Death Causes General Sadness—Sketch of His Life.

AMESBURY, Mass., Sep. 8.—Amesbury is a saddened town to-day. The news of the death of John G. Whittier, poet, friend and citizen, has brought grief to every heart. The last few days were full of anxiety, but the hope has ever held sway with the people here that they might once again see the beloved form on the streets of Amesbury; but that has passed, and the tolling bells echo the grief in many a heart. The Quaker Poet died at Hampton Falls, N. H., yesterday morning.

His body has been brought to his home in Amesbury and the funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. on Saturday afternoon from his late residence on Friend street, the house in which many of his best poems were written, and the shrine of every visitor to Amesbury.

The body will rest in the Friends' Cemetery, connected with Union Cemetery, in the family plot where rest his parents, uncle, aunt, sister and brother.

All business will be suspended in Amesbury on Saturday during the funeral.

John Greenleaf Whittier was born in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 17, 1807. His parents were members of the Society of Friends, and the poet himself always conformed to the customs and usages of that sect, even to its peculiarities of speech and dress.

It was thus that he was early brought into touch with nature, his intimate acquaintance and knowledge of whose charms gives such a picturesque beauty to many of his poems. They reflect the country scenery of New England with a fidelity that has never been equalled.

His early schooling was of the scantiest kind, for it was only in the winter months that he had the opportunity of attending the neighboring district school. Later on he learned the shoemaker's trade, and by this means he earned enough to enable him to attend the Haverhill Academy during six months in 1827.

He was then able to teach school himself, thus obtaining the means of continuing his course at the academy another year. During all this time he was a regular contributor to the "Poets' Corner," in the Free Press, a paper edited by William Lloyd Garrison, at Newburyport, Mass., for his literary tastes had begun to develop when he was still a boy.

Garrison saw signs of promise in the young man, and their association at this time led to the life-long friendship which existed between them and brought them closely together in the anti-slavery crusade, which began in 1831 with the establishment of the Liberator, to which Whitter was a regular contributor and which caught much of its inspiration from his fervid lyrics.

After his father's death Whittier carried on the farm for five years until 1835, during which he was an industrious writer and contributed verses to many periodicals. He was also in turn editor of the "American Manufacturer," of Boston, the Haverhill "Gazette," and the "New England Weekly Review," of Hartford, Conn.

In 1836 he became the secretary of the American Anti-Slavery Society, and removed to Philadelphia, where he edited the "Pennsylvania Freeman" until the office of that paper was sacked and burned by a mob. In 1840 he returned to New England and took up his abode in Amesbury, where he lived a quiet and simple life.

During his seclusion Whittier has never been idle. From 1847 to 1859 he contributed editorially to the National Era, the Washington anti-slavery paper, and helped provide the material for the groundwork of the Republican party.

No American poet, with the exception, perhaps, of Longfellow, has been more popular than Whittier. This is ascribed to the noble simplicity of his character, which was reflected in all his writings, whether in verse or prose.

His first volume in prose and verse, "Legends of New England," was published in 1831, and since that time collections of his writings have appeared almost every year. The last edition of his poetical and prose works was published in 1889 in seven volumes.

RESCUED BY LIFE SAVERS.

Thrilling Experience of a Steamship's Passengers Off the Isle of Man.

LONDON, Sep. 8.—A thrilling scene was presented, shortly after midnight, off the southeastern coast of the Isle of Man. The steamer Monas Isle was carrying 500 passengers from Dublin to Douglas, the favorite resort for pleasure seekers from England and Ireland.

The night was dark and there was a heavy fog, making navigation difficult.

Suddenly the Monas Isle ran aground on Scarlet Point, near the entrance of Castleton bay.

The passengers were aroused by the shock, but displayed considerable courage under the circumstances.

Several ladies fainted, but among the men, as a rule, the chief anxiety seemed to be to aid in the work of rescue.

The passengers were promptly provided with life belts, and the crew cleared the boats.

Everything was in darkness, and even on the steamer people could see each other but a few feet away, owing to the fog.

The steamer was some distance from the shore, but the waves could be heard breaking on the point.

One passenger offered to swim ashore with a line, and was restrained by the crew with much difficulty.

Rockets were sent up and these attracted the attention of the coast guard and the people on shore.

Steps were at once taken to effect the rescue of those on the steamer. A number of men volunteered to assist the coast guard, and a lifeboat was launched and every person on the steamer was brought safely ashore.

Once there they had to be assisted by ladders up the steep face of the cliff.

The steamer Tynwald is endeavoring to dislodge the stranded vessel and bring it into open water.

PLAGUE SPREADS IN NEW YORK BAY

Ten More Persons Stricken With Cholera in the Port.

EIGHT OF THEM FROM THE NORMANNIA'S CREW.

No Deaths Reported Yesterday—Fifty-three Cases in the Hospital on Swinburne Island—Patrolling the East River. No New Developments on Hoffman Island—Baggage Ruined by Disinfection at Boston.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Sep. 8.—A resume of conditions in the lower bay on the infected ships and islands shows that the situation is grave without being increased in alarming features. Since yesterday's report the result is ten new cases, eight on the Normannia among the crew, who have been returned to the ship after their ablution and disinfection on Hoffman Island, and two on the Rugia among the steerage passengers.

The new cases of cholera are as follows:

NORMANNIA.

Max Gerhman, aged 24.
Stanislaus Knaus, aged 26.
Richard Ficher, aged 24.
Franz Gent, aged 31.
Emil Petri, aged 21.
Julius Solurz, aged 30.
Wilhelm Rennenbeg, aged 30.
Karl Borandt, aged 24.

RUGIA.

Katherine Tesarow, aged 22.
Orakie Kapoian, aged 28.

While it is common to term all cases cholera, it is reported that the cases on the Normannia are bowel troubles, resulting from the imperfect drying of the clothing after disinfection.

The ameliorating feature of the situation is the progress made towards securing a refuge for the safe detention of the uninfected voyagers. Dr. Jenkins has been working hard on this problem, and expects very soon the conclusion of an arrangement for the use of Fire Island Hotel for the cabin passengers of the Normannia.

It is also contemplated to erect barracks on Sandy Hook, and if the Fire Island is secured the steerage people can be cared for on the Hook.

Secretary Tracy's suggestion for tents will be carried out if they are furnished by the War Department, as Dr. Jenkins has advised Gen. Tracy that he can use them to advantage.

Great encouragement is felt at the fact that no new cases have developed among the Normannia's steerage passengers who are domiciled on Hoffman Island. This shows that they are not seriously infected.

The events at the upper boarding station have been the arrival of the Waesland, City of New York and the Spree. Chief interest has centered in the Inman liner on account of Dr. Chauncey Depew and other notables. Among the passengers on the Spree which came in at dusk are Mrs. G. Pierpont Morgan and children, Rev. Thomas C. Hall of Chicago and others well known.

Owing to the sensations printed about the arrivals via Hell Gate, which have been handled as customary, the action of Collector Hendricks in ordering the tug Narkets on patrol in the East river, will effectually check any further scares on that score. The Bourgogne will be released to-day and possibly the New York.

There are reported to be 53 cases in the hospital on Swinburne Island, the wards of which are ample for 750 patients.

Although strenuous efforts have been made by influential persons to get aboard the vessels at anchor off the upper station they have not been sucessful. A man of the name of Potter has a sister aboard La Bourgoyne suffering from cancer in the throat. She is constantly attended by a physician, but Mr. Potter could not go on board despite the entreaties for the desired permission. Last night he sent a number of necessaries aboard to her.

Another man displayed a telegram from a passenger who is on La Bourgoyne, saying that a New Yorker's wife was seriously ill and urged him to get aboard and stay there if possible. Permission was refused him as in all other cases.

It was stated this morning that the Federal Government would offer Sandy Hook as a camp for cabin passengers. If this were done quickly it would at once satisfactorily solve the question of their disposition. Those on the Normannia like the idea, and there is no question but that it would make an admirable station. Once used and a precedent established, it could always be used in the future.

Efforts to secure a boat on which to transfer the cabin passengers of the Normannia have met with no success. The passengers are preparing an appeal to the citizens of New York, praying that something be done to get them off the vessel. Many think that some isolated spot on the coast or some deserted seaside hotel might be secured, and the unfortunate persons transferred and kept there under strong guard until all danger is past.

RUINED BY FUMIGATION.

Disastrous Result of Steam Disinfecting on a Steamer at Boston.

BOSTON, Sep. 8.—Baggage of the Scythia's steerage passenger which had undergone disinfection by superheated steam was overhauled yesterday and it was found that in some cases the process had disastrous results.

The steam ruined everything in the shape of leather. Shoes were shrunken and twisted out of shape and rendered as hard as iron.

A pair of lady's 6 1-2 gloves had shrunk to the size of a man's thumb.

A lady's sealskin sacque had shrunk so that a baby could not wear it.

Almost every lot of baggage was damaged, and many of the women sat down and cried when their trunks were opened.

One woman and her two children could not get their shoes on and had to leave the wharf without any; and a man whose disinfected trousers did not reach his shoe tops tied them down with strings.

TO TAKE PASSENGERS OFF.

The Old Dominion Vessel to Relieve The Normannia—New Cases of the Disease on the Infected Ships and on the Island—Plans for Using Sandy Hook and Fire Island.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Dr. Jenkins's new order for advising the Quarantine officials at Fort Wadsworth of the appearance of any new cases of cholera on the three Hamburg steamers in the lower bay by the hoisting of the yellow flag, went into effect this morning. At 10 o'clock the flag was hoisted to the foremasthead of the steamer Eugia, and soon after the same colors appeared on the Normannia.

Dr. Sanborn, one of Dr. Jenkins's deputies, is stationed permanently on the Normannia, and with Dr. Breuer of the steamer is attending to the steamer's passengers.

The news from the Normannia this morning was, as usual, very meagre and indefinite, and no details had been received, either at Quarantine or in this city, of the fresh outbreak on that vessel, except the simple fact indicated by the hoisting of the yellow flag at her foremasthead.

The yellow flag was also raised on Hoffman Island.

Dr. Jenkins said to a reporter for the Evening Post this morning that he was going to purchase an Old Dominion steamer for $70,000, and if it was impossible to secure the hotel at Fire Island for the first and second cabin passengers of the Normannia they would be placed on it. He hoped to be able to do this to-day or to-morrow.

He thought, however, that he would be able to get the hotel, and in that case the steamer would be used as a transfer boat.

Dr. Jenkins said further that it had been decided to abandon the idea of using Sandy Hook as far as saloon passengers were concerned, but that it would be used as a receiving station for the steamers which were yet to arrive, and that all steerage passengers would be taken there.

ANOTHER DEATH.

A death is reported this morning of a cholera patient on Swinburne Island as having occurred last night. When the official report is received it is supposed there will be further additions.

At 9:47 the steamship Ravensdale got a clean bill of health, and proceeded up to her warf. Shortly before 10 o'clock the tug Col. E. A. Stevens started from the upper boarding station to take provisions to the Stubbenhuk and the three pest ships lying at anchor in the lower Bay.

Dr. Jenkins this morning seemed to be much worried, and the strain he has been under for the past two weeks is plainly telling on him.

The City of New York will be released to-day, notwithstanding the fact that there was cholera in Liverpool at the time of her departure. The steamships Elbe and Waesland will also be permitted to come up to their docks some time to-day. Mr. Depew and many other persons of prominence are on board these vessels.

Their Cells Should Have Been Farther Apart.

James J. Day, a tough-looking chap better known as "Buck", was arrested last night on complaint of Charles Perrine. The two had got into a quarrel through Day's opening up old sores. Policeman Frederickson locked Perrine up also, as a witness, and during the night the two patched up their difficulties, from adjoining cells. This morning Perrine refused to make complaint, and both were released, though Frederickson might have had Day punished for resisting arrest.

Safe, Quick and Effective.

The valuable curative properties of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are due to the employment of the highest medical and chemical skill. They are purely vegetable, and in ingredients and method have never been equalled; safe, quick and effective in their action; they do not burn or blister, but soothe and relieve while curing, and can be worn without causing pain and inconvenience.

Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. All other so-called Porous Plasters are imitations, made to sell on the reputation of ALLCOCK'S.

Ask for ALLCOCK'S and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

A YEAR OF GOOD WORK.

How the Needlework Guild Has Supplied Garments to the Needy.

Before the annual meeting of the Needlework Guild, Plainfield Branch, which takes place in October, the officers of the Branch desire to call the attention of the public to the following report of the first year of the organization of this branch, showing the number of garments received and how they were distributed. They congratulate themselves on the success of the first year, and hope not only that all who contribute will continue to do so, but that it will also interest others to join in this charitable work. The report:

A PECULIAR FATALITY.

Death of a Bright Young Plainfield Lawyer from Addison's Disease.

David K. Hodge, of the law firm of Hodge & Hance, whose office is in THE PRESS building, died at his home in Somerville, yesterday afternoon. He had been confined to the house only two days, but had been suffering from Addison's disease of the liver for a considerable time. This is rare and peculiar fatality, which caused the patient's flesh to turn a deep bronze.

Mr. Hodge was 31 years of age, and unmarried. He was a brother to Peter Hodge, the popular young druggist formerly in the employ of pharmacist J. G Miller. He was a young man of great ability, and was very popular in social and legal circles. Mr. Hance feels keenly the loss of his partner.

Mr. Hodge was for two terms private secretary to speaker Bergen of the House of Assembly at Trenton.

The Bicycle Stoop.

The safety stoop is becoming universal. The almost invariable tendency of the bicycle rider is toward the "racing form", and if this is persisted in an upright man, physically speaking, will be an exception among us and the "safety stoop" will become the rule. The "safety" bicycle is a practical machine, which the "ordinary" was not, but the "safety" has an influence upon its rider to stoop as in caressment which the "ordinary" did not possess in any marked degree.

The L. A. W. should incite the wheelmen to uprightness of carriage, which is next to uprightness of conduct, so that the threatened "safety stoop" may be nipped in the bud. The "stoop" is necessary in racing, where leg power is the great thing, but the human race can very well dispense with it.—Boston Transcript.

Sneden to Pitch Saturday.

Sneden did some fine practice pitching on the Crescent grounds, yesterday afternoon, getting in trim for Saturday's game. Captain Hofford says that Sneden is in fine form again, and joins the pitcher in predicting Somerville's defeat Saturday. Sneden promises to put up the game of his life.

The Champion to Appear at Music Hall.

Manager Demarest, after much effort and expense, succeeded in making a contract last week for the appearance of James J. Corbett at Music Hall, Tuesday evening, Oct. 4. This will give the people of Plainfield and vicinity an opportunity to look upon the perfection of manly beauty, the embodiment of courage, and the acme of athletic skill and power.

The Way Clearer for Dunn.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

The Plainfield Press, which recently trotted out Joseph W. Yates as a Democratic candidate for the congressional nomination in this district, has trotted him back again. Mr. Yates positively declines to aspire to that office. This, of course, makes the way clearer for the nomination of the Hon. John T. Dunn.

One in seven of all deaths comes from Consumption. That's about the proportion. And almost every death from Consumption comes from neglect and delay. There's neglect in preventing the disease—delay in curing it.

You can prevent it—and cure it, if you'll act in time, with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Poor and impure blood makes you an easy victim—a scrofulous condition of the system invites it.

You must reach the disease through the blood, and the "Discovery" does it. It's the most potent and effective blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, and every form of scrofula, and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it's an unequaled remedy.

And it's the only one that's guaranteed to do what is claimed for it. If it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

They Were Not in It.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Arlingtons of this city made a slight mistake when they called themselves the Stars in the afternoon down at Papiac Monday. Tee Arlingtons defeated the clerks from J. A. Smith's store in the morning, but were beaten by the clerks from J. F. MacDonald's store in the afternoon, and this is why they called themselves the Stars, so as to try to make people think they have lost only three games. Oh, Maurice, this doesn't work.

MR. CLEVELAND HIMSELF SAYS SO.

TO THE PRESS AND TO PLAINFIELD BELONGS THE HONOR AND GLORY OF FIRST SUGGESTING HIS CANDIDACY.

The Ex-President Writes That There is an Entire Absence of Any Claim, From Any Other Source, Which Establishes a Prior Right.

(From The Plainfield PRESS of June 28.)

Only because the varied claims from many people, of many parts, and by many papers, have caused the rise and progress of a doubt as to who by and where Grover Cleveland was first nominated for president in 1892, does THE PRESS put aside its natural and customary modesty to set at rest the question.

The honor belongs to THE PRESS and the glory to Plainfield! On March 6, 1889—3 years, 3 months, and 21 days ago—a big banner was printed in this office bearing the announcement of our faith and hope: "Cleveland in 1892." It was swung to the breeze by the hands of two of the reportorial staff at the railroad station that afternoon, and was then brought back where it hangs to-day on the walls of THE PRESS's composing rooms. The following from these columns of March 6, 1889, explains the occasion of such early public expression of our desire and expectation:

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom, and Col. Lamont and his family, passed through Plainfield this afternoon at 4:30, on their way to New York.

As the train dashed through this city, a large banner was displayed at the station inscribed:

CLEVELAND, IN 1892.

It caught the ex-president's eye as he gazed from the window, and he turned and bowed with a smiling face.

Further proof is needless of our right to the honor of first naming Mr. Cleveland for the nomination that has just been so gloriously accorded him. His appreciation of THE PRESS's esteem and admiration, he expressed as follows:

J. A. DEMAREST, ESQ.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter has been forwarded to me here, but the paper to which you refer has not reached me. I suppose it is at my office in New York.

Though my only political concern is to see the Democratic party true to the Democratic faith and honest in its professed adherence to the cause of the people, I am not insensible to the evidence your note furnishes of your friendship to me personally.

Yours Very Truly,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

GRAY GABLES,
BUZZARDS BAY,
MASS.

August 4, 1892

James A. Demarest, Esq.,

My dear Sir:-

I have received your letter enclosing a story with reference to a claim you make, together with the suggestion of my candidacy for the Presidency in the present campaign. An examination of the evidence you present leads me to concur with you, since there is an entire absence of any claim from any other source which seems to establish a prior right.

Very truly yours,
Grover Cleveland

"THE GREAT DEMOCRAT CLINCHES THE CLAIM."

(From The New York Journalist.)

The Daily Press, of Plainfield, N. J., claims the honor of having first nominated Grover Cleveland for the present campaign for the presidency. It recently published an article reciting the fact of its making that re-nomination, and Managing Editor Demarest sent a copy to Mr. Cleveland for corroboration. The great Democrat clinches the Press's claim to the honor, in the following letter:

GRAY GABLES, BUZZARDS BAY, Mass.,
August 4, 1892.

JAMES A. DEMAREST, ESQ.

MY DEAR SIR:—I have received your letter enclosing a story with reference to a claim you make touching the suggestion of my candidacy for the presidency in the present campaign. An examination of the evidence you present leads me to concur with you, since there is an entire absence of any claim from any other source which seems to establish a prior right. Very truly yours,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

A VERSATILE AND ACTIVE GENIUS.

The Camera World Was Suddenly Found to Move When a Plainfield Man Who Had Succeeded in Everything Else, Took up Photography as a Profession.

(From The New York Journalist.)

It has long been thought that there was nothing new in photography, except, perhaps, the ever-green amateur and perennial press-the-button kodaker; but since a universal genius and newspaper man in the person of Charles H. Davis adopted the profession of photography for his own, the camera world has suddenly been found to move. He is inaugurating new ideas, exploiting new processes, and the beauty of the results is apparent to even the casual onlooker. It can be said with simplicity and directness that the photographs produced by this gentleman and his fellow-worker, Mr. Sanford, at their studio on Fifth avenue, are calculated to jostle very rudely the complacent and steady going efforts of those photographers who from long experience and seniority in the craft serenely believe they have attained the topmost level of excellence. The distinctive characteristics of Mr Davis's efforts in photography consist in their being first of all the product of a born artist, with the inherent power to see, select and delineate. His poses are classic, graceful, often poetic. This coupled with a degree of scientific and technical skill that he has been quietly acquiring for years while exercising his energies in other directions makes him an interesting personality.

Mr. Davis is nothing if not a versatile and active genius, and a list of what he has been doing heretofore seems incredible for a man of thirty-five. He is known to be one of the most expert telegraphers this country has produced. General manager Phillips, of the United Press, says that his speed as a sender and receiver is phenomenal. He is the author of a standard electrical work. He has built telegraph lines and railroads; constructed machinery and many large buildings; planned and erected extensive steam plants; was for many years general superintendent of a large cabinet organ manufactory, employing 600 men—this factory he entirely rebuilt and refitted after its destruction by fire. Numerous patents have been issued to him; he has managed the business interests of several large concerns, in lines varying from merchandise to stained glass.

During the three years of the International yacht races for the America's cup, Mr. Davis was the cashier of The United Press, and did some clever reportorial work, enabling that progressive organization to easily distance all competition in the promptness and fulness of their reports of the races. This was accomplished by his bright scheme of connecting the telegraph lines skirting the shore with a Columbiad, mounted upon the top of the bluff some thousands of feet distant by means of insulated wire laid upon the ground. From this vantage point of observation, literally with a telescope in one hand and a telegraphic instrument in the other, he sent a complete and instantaneous story of the race direct upon the wires of The United Press. This feat involved an expert knowledge of yachts and their evolutions and an eye trained to telescopic observation. These requirements he possessed, as he is an astronomer and owns an elaborately fitted observatory at Plainfield, N. J., where he had accustomed his vision to minute observation while others slept.

He is a ready newspaper writer and a clever artist; his book cover designs are among the most unique produced by specialists and are to be found upon every book stand. All the various scientific, mechanical, literary and artistic pursuits seem one to Mr. Davis, for he handles them with equal facility. It is not surprising, therefore, that he shines in photography and that the products of his skill are attracting the attention of press and public alike.

HE'S "ONE OF THE OTHERS!"

That's John M. Crane as Gauged by a Shrewd Newspaper Man.

It appears to us that the directors of the American Casualty Insurance and Security company have acted judiciously in advancing John M. Crane to the position of general superintendent, thus placing in his charge the insurance, as distinguished from the financial part of the company's work. Mr. Crane is an able man, a man of large experience in casualty and fidelity insurance, a man popular with and respected by the agents, and—which is by no means of least importance—a man who appreciates and is esteemed by the insurance press. It is not the amount of money disbursed through Crane to the insurance papers that has made them like him—for that was never large—but the hearty manner of the man, which seemed to say that he knew every dollar of the money and more too was well earned. There are those who have no use for you until they get in a hole. Then there are others who have the good sense and the grace to know that the way to be sure of friendship in a hole is to be human and friendly when there is no hole in sight. John M. Crane is one of the others.—Insurance, New York, Aug. 10.

TIRED OF WRETCHED HORSE CARS.

New Brunswick Wants Plainfield's Trolley.

[New Brunswick Home News.]

During the first three weeks of the running of the new electric railroad in Plainfield the number of passengers carried was 27,585. Plainfield has only about 10,000 population. If such a road existed in New Brunswick, where the population is double that of Plainfield, the number of passengers carried would probably be 75,000. Speed the coming of an electric road, one that won't cater only to the graveyards.

Labored for the Young Men's Morals.

The following is the testimonial referred to in these columns yesterday as having been adopted by the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum over the departure of Father Stafford from Plainfield, and the publication of which in these columns was authorized by the lyceum:

WHEREAS, We learn that our beloved spiritual director, the Rev. J. A. Stafford, has been called to a higher field of activity, and is about to sever his relations with the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of Plainfield, N. J. WHEREAS, This information causes a feeling of deep sorrow to every member of this association,

Resolved, That we appreciate the great change his removal will make and we acknowledge the great loss that the C. Y. M. L. will sustain. We hereby record our sincere sorrow for the sudden and unexpected news of his departure. We cannot place too high a value upon his inestimable services. Every step of progress that the association has made is due to his energy and purpose. His work has been earnest and with a single motive, the moral advancement of the young men of Plainfield. How well his labors have succeeded is attested by the stability and growth that this association has attained. Our beautiful hall, his pride, its furnishings, its complete equipment, are a monument to his indefatigable labor. His anxiety for the result will always call pleasant memories to the members of this association.

Resolved, That we assure him that our prayers and best wishes will follow him to his new field.

Resolved, That an engrossed copy of these resolutions be presented to him, and that they be placed upon the minutes of this association, and also printed in the papers of this city.

Dr. Ripley's Gubernatorial Boom.

The Keyport Enterprise said on the 3d instant:

It looks as though a "dark horse" would get the nomination, and Hon. C. B. Ripley of Westfield looms up prominently.

Since then it appears the Judge Werts candidacy has been ended by a final and positive second letter by the judge to his friend, Senator Edwards. Add to the above the following suggestion of so worthy a gentleman and so stanch a Democrat as Judge L. S. Hyer, editor and proprietor of the Rahway Union Democrat, and the present status of Dr. Ripley's boom does not look so bad. Judge Hyer says:

The Westfield Leader comes out in a column editorial last week nominating Hon. Chauncey B. Ripley as a Democratic candidate for Governor. Mr. Ripley is of an independent turn of mind, politically, having been a Republican up to the time of Cleveland's first nomination we believe. As there appears to be considerable division of opinion in both the leading parties, as to candidates, why could n't they unite, for the sake of harmony, on Mr. Ripley?

A Merited Rebuke.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

It is little less than an outrage that such a paper as the New York World should take the risk of planting the seeds of cholera in the United States by sending its reporters, in violation of law and public safety, to get surreptitious interviews with passengers on the cholera infected vessels. And it is scarcely less to be condemned for filling page after page with reports and articles that keep the public mind in constant tension and fear on the subject of the impending scourge. One of the most effective safeguards against the cholera is a quiet mental condition and good judgment to ward off the impending danger. But such frightful reports and such masses of details as are published in that paper can only have the effect to inspire readers with fear and make them victims in case the disease gets a foothold. Between fake interviews and dangerously sensational reports the World richly deserves the boycott that it seems to invite.

The proprietors of Hy's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Hy's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was regained after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. BOTH WOMEN FINED.

Complainant and Defendant Each Adjudged Guilty, After an Amusing Trial.

The negro population had a great day in the city court this morning, when Gus VanAnglen and his wife Luvisa were tried on the charge of beating Mrs. Anna Freeman, wife of the well-known Abe. A large number of witnesses were examined, including the plaintiff and defendants, Jim Johnston Coleman, Mrs. Sarah Scott, James Ross, Stephen Carter, William Barnes, Robert Burns and Sarah Barrett.

Some amusing and much highly disgusting testimony was given. The faces, figures and costumes of the gathering would have made excellent material for a character-artist.

Luvisa VanAnglen was a short, stout, coal-black negress, with very thick lips and protruding teeth. She wore a blue waist, a light checked dress, a black straw hat with red velvet ribbon, and a heavy scowl on her forehead.

Mrs. Freeman was plainly dressed in black, with black cotton gaiters. She was rather prim and elderly, but a most voluble and garrulous talker.

Mrs. Scott had a willowy figure, and a very light complexion. She was tall and straight, and over her gingham dress she wore a neat white apron. Gold earrings swung in her ears, and an old-fashioned gold breastpin gleamed at her throat. She wore her straw sailor hat jauntily tilted to one side.

James Ross's principal garment was a huge pair of greasy engineer's overalls. He was good-looking, and posed handsomely.

Stephen Carter had elegant manners and showed pride in his flowing mustache and goatee.

William Barnes wore brown overalls, and the lime on his shoes proclaimed him to be a mason. He delighted the colored swells by his genteel and artistic manipulation of a fat cigar.

Sarah Barrett was a buxom woman, as jolly as she was fat.

Abe Freeman, a typical darky, happened in at the conclusion of the trial, with a kit of plumber's tools. He is a hard-working, good-hearted fellow, and knew nothing of the fight till all was over. He repeatedly scratched with seeming glee his hairless head, which he carried cocked to one side. A Salvation Army badge adorned his lapel.

The evidence showed that various of the darkies had participated in a disgraceful row, in which Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. VanAnglen were the ringleaders. The judge fined each of the two women $4. Old Abe scratched his head, showed his teeth in a broad smile, and chuckled. All of the colored people got great fun out of the trial, and considered $8 cheap for so much entertainment.

VanAnglen, who had acted as peacemaker among the women while the hair-pulling was going on, was acquitted.

HON. ANDREW D. WHITE.

He Will Ably Represent Us at the Court of the Czar.

One of the Small Class Who May Fairly Be Called at Once Scholars and Publicists by Profession — His Diplomatic Record.

The gentleman whom President Harrison has named as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Russia will bring to his post a reputation that makes his appointment a distinct expression of the kindly feeling of the republic to the empire. Hon. Andrew D. White, says Harper's Weekly, is one of the small class who may fairly be called at once scholars and publicists by profession. He was born in the little town of Homer, Cortland county, N. Y., on the 7th of November, 1832, and is thus in the very maturity of his powers. He was a student first at Hobart, and afterward at Yale college, from which latter institution he graduated in the famous class of 1853. He was attached for a time to the legation at St. Petersburg as secretary, beginning his training in diplomacy early. There he had the opportunity to study the great empire at one of the most interesting as well as one of the most mournful periods of its history, when Emperor Nicholas was putting forth in vain the utmost powers of his government to meet the combined forces of France, England, Turkey and Piedmont. It was a field on which history was making on a grand scale, when the "Third" Napoleon was at the very zenith of his influence, when Italian unity was in its birth struggle and when the sublime porte, in its momentary triumph, was really sinking toward extinction as a European power.

In 1857 Mr. White was appointed to the chair of history in the University of Michigan, but was obliged by uncertain health to return to Europe. In 1862 he was elected to the senate of the state of New York, where he took a prominent part, and always an honorable one. It was at that time that he became deeply interested in the plans of Hon. Ezra Cornell, who was also a member of the senate, for the foundation of the Cornell university. He was Mr. Cornell's most intimate and trusted adviser as to the new university, of which he accepted the presidency, and assisted actively in its organization and development. His first responsible diplomatic position was as a member of the commission which President Grant sent to San Domingo to examine the question of the proposed annexation of that little state. In 1879 he was appointed by President Hayes as minister to Berlin, which was then decidedly among the highest, if not the highest, post in the foreign service. He discharged its duties with entire satisfaction to the two governments, and availed himself of the opportunity to extend his historical studies, making at the same time a large circle of friends among the scholars of that scholarly nation. On his return he resumed the presidency of Cornell university, where he remained until 1885. "President" White, as he is usually termed, has always been deeply interested in public affairs, bringing to them the resources of a thoroughly trained mind, and always seeking the application of high standards of public duty. He has been a zealous supporter of the cause of civil service reform, and his influence has been widely felt.

It is not probable that in his new post he will have very difficult duties to perform, unless some delicate questions should arise in connection with the Jewish exodus. But he will have invaluable opportunities for his favorite studies. Russia is to-day bound by secret but clearly intimate ties to France, and there is hardly a statesman in Europe who does not dread a conflict, regarded as almost certain and possibly near between these allies and the triple alliance of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy. The change in the government of England may disturb the unstable equilibrium that has been maintained with such difficulty. Mr. White may be a witness of one of the great crises of Europe as he was nearly forty years ago.

Christening a Town.

According to a local tradition, probably invented, Sayville, L. I., received its name in a peculiar fashion. The settlers were gathered in debate upon the shore trying to agree upon a name for the place, and one after another proposed his suggestion with: "Say, how'll this do?" After many suggestions had been rejected some one, barren of imagination but sensitive of ear, proposed that the oft-repeated word "say" be made the first syllable of the name and that ville be added as the second syllable. The idea took, and, says the legend, then and there the settlement was christened Sayville.

ABOUT SOLAR HALOS.

Remarkable Phenomenon Recently Witnessed in Switzerland.

The accompanying cut represents a remarkable solar halo observed by a correspondent of La Nature, M. Phillippin, in the environs of Neuchatel, Switzerland, on March 28. The morning was foggy, but as it gradually cleared away the sun was observed to be surrounded by a circle (AA) showing the usual colors of the rainbow. A few moments later another concentric halo (BB) appeared, followed by an arc of a circle tangent to it (CC), and following this two smaller arcs (DD) and (EE).

The point Z was exactly in the zenith, and was of an unusual and remarkable luminosity. All of the circles and arcs were as brilliantly colored as any rainbow. After a short time the halo faded away, the various circles disappearing in a reverse order to that in which they appeared, that is the arc D vanished first and A last. The halo lasted for over an hour, the luminous point Z being the last portion to disappear, and persisting for nearly two hours.

Popular Science News, to which we are indebted for the foregoing, says that although solar and lunar halos are not uncommon, they are rarely seen as perfect as the one here described. They are formed by the refraction and reflection of light through drops of water or crystals of ice in the upper atmosphere, in a similar way to the ordinary rainbow. They are generally considered to indicate rainy weather, and in many cases they may do so, as they certainly indicate the presence of an excess of moisture in the air under conditions favorable to precipitation.

The old superstition that the number of stars included in a lunar halo indicates the number of days before the storm will be due has, of course, no foundation in fact. "Sun dogs," or mock suns, are similar phenomena to the solar halos, where certain points—like Z, for instance—are very bright and the connecting circles so faint that they are not easily seen. These conditions result in an apparent increase in the number of suns in the heavens, and are referred to by ancient writers as a most frightful omen and a prognostication of great evils to come.

AN AMIABLE WOMAN.

Mrs. John W. Foster, Wife of the New Secretary of State.

The wife of the new secretary of state was a young girl in Bloomington when she first met the man who is now her husband. He was then only sixteen and came up from Pike county, Ind., to finish his education preparatory to going to the Harvard law school, from which he afterward graduated. Little Miss McPherson was a lass of ten. Between the young student and the girl a strong affection developed, and after the former had gone away to Harvard, studied law for a time at Cincinnati and began its practice at Evansville, whither his father had removed from Pike county, he made Miss McPherson, now a grown woman, his bride. Shortly after the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Foster the war broke out. Foster was then twenty-four, pale and delicate, and was just beginning to practice law. His young wife made him promise he would not go to war, because he was not strong enough to walk in the infantry, and there seemed to be no chance to get an officer's commission and a horse to ride upon. But while Mrs. Foster was away visiting her father-in-law, sturdy old Judge Foster, whose patriotism the people of Indiana will never forget, secured from Gov. Morton an appointment as major for the young lawyer, and away he went to the war upon a horse. How well he served is a matter of history. He was in many battles and won promotion for his valor and usefulness. Few men looked less like a soldier than he or proved to be better soldiers. Such, at least, is the judgment of Gen. Walter Q. Gresham, who was his brigade commander.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster live in an old-fashioned but elegant house, which is filled with art treasures from all the countries they have visited in their travels and which is, perhaps, the most popular house in Washington among all classes, from the young congressmen and their wives to the titled members of the corps diplomatic. Mrs. Foster is accomplished, tactful, winning. Though a grandmother, she is young of face and youthful in heart.

MORE DEATHS AND NEW CASES

Cholera Continues to Claim Victims at Lower New York Quarantine.

VESSELS FOR THE TRANSFER OF CABIN PASSENGERS.

The Use of Sandy Hook for a Refuge Refused By the War Department—Several of the Detained Ships Allowed to Go to Their Wharves—The Jersey Coast to Be Patrolled—Canada Suspends Immigration—Thousands of Families in Hamburg in Want.

NEW YORK, Sep. 9.—The strong hold of the yellow monster upon the fleet of Hamburg vessels in the lower bay is still unrelaxed.

The clayey tenements of four more souls, but a few days ago buoyant with the hope that inspires the breast of the emigre, were last night crumbled to a few pounds of whitened ashes in the man-devouring retort on Swinburne's strand of the dead.

Death was impatient in his greed yesterday, two of his victims being from the Normannia and two from the Rugia.

The official record of new cases yesterday is as follows:

NORMANNIA.

Frans Albrect, aged 24.
Adolph Meier, aged 25.
Gottlieb Daunishon, aged 30.
Alexander d'Audile, aged 25.
Carl Grumich, aged 21.
All members of the crew.

RUGIA.

Gustav Wellschofer, aged 1 year.
Johnann Podritzkai, aged 44.
Telona Koneschin, aged 30.

The following deaths occurred yesterday on Swinburne Island:

Elfrida Schultz, aged 8 years, from the steamship Rugia, admitted Sept. 3.
Henry Frankel, aged 39, from the Normannia, admitted Sept. 4.
Jacob Kessler, aged 33, one of the crew of the Normannia, removed from Hoffman Island Sept. 4.
Christine Hansen, aged 10, from the steamship Rugia, admitted Sept. 6.

Late yesterday afternoon the City of New York and Wiesland were formally released and made haste to their piers. The passengers on these ships, as soon as the anchors were clear of the bottom, gave vent to their joy by loud cheers, and on the French liner the steam fog siren at the bow gave forth three weird shrieks, presumably expressive of the feelings of freedom.

In the hospital on Swinburne Island there are 67 cases now pending, viz.: 33 males, 19 females and 15 children. Of the total number 15 are sick and 52 are suspects. Dr. Walser has cleaned up on the Moravia as well as possible.

The features of the day, beyond the record of the status of affairs at Lower Quarantine, were the formal tender of the Sound steamer Stonington by Mr. J. Pierrepont Morgan, who chartered her at his own expense that the cabin passengers of the beleaguered Normannia may not longer be compelled to stay on the infected vessel. The Stonington will be here to-day and stationed at a convenient point, yet to be determined upon. She will be used for the purpose named until the Normannia's passengers have been released, and afterward will provide a home for first-class passengers on suspect ships yet to come.

The arrangement for the Camp of Refuge at Sandy Hook had been progressing all day, in ignorance of the War Department's refusal of the site. Secretary Foster, who with Secretary Tracy, is deeply interested in the matter, said yesterday morning:

"In all likelihood the Reading Railroad will begin relaying its track on the Point immediately. This track when finished, will, of course, greatly facilitate the transportation of supplies.

"If the plague continues for any length of time the railroad will, of course, be used by refugees as they are discharged.

"I do not know who will pay for the erection of tents, barracks, etc., whether it will be the State or Federal government or the steamship companies.

"However, there need be no present trouble on that score. A wealthy gentleman called on me and offered to undertake all construction and stand all expense and take his chances of getting his money back from the party liable therefor. I am not at liberty to give you the gentleman's name. He is not a contractor.

"As I understand the matter, only cabin passengers are to be put ashore on the Hook. Whether there will be any difference made between first and second cabin, I don't know.

"There has been some talk of the danger of the infection being increased by the presence of these passengers on land. So far as that matter is concerned I will say that I have the greatest confidence in the discretion of Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Jenkins. They will consider that point thoroughly."

But, when Dr. Jenkins and Surgeon-General Hamilton returned from Sandy Hook the former found several important telegrams awaiting him, and was made aware that there were serious complications which practically rendered negatory the entire work of the day. In answer to the telegram of the War Department for tents, which were expected here by to-night, he received the following from Acting Secretary of War Lewis A. Grant:

"Secretary Foster's telegram was received and an unfavorable reply sent him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. For this reason the 400 tents at our service have not yet gone forward, pending your advice."

The apparent conflict between the energetic intentions of Secretary Foster and Secretary Tracy (who have been in New York consulting for the benefit of the unfortunate people on the ships) and the wishes of the War Department were shown by the following dispatch from Austin Corbin:

"I am exceedingly sorry to get a dispatch from the War Department saying they had refused to the Secretary of the Treasury the use of Sandy Hook for the cabin passengers. Of course, this blocks any attempt on our part to erect barracks there. I had the lumber bought and it was being loaded, and it would have been at Sandy Hook this evening. A large force of carpenters had been engaged, including all from the Long Island Railroad, and it is quite too bad that we cannot bring relief in the form proposed."

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

During the morning Dr. Jenkins had wired Governor Flower for authority to get a special steamer for the Normannia cabin passengers, as he had not then received the offer of Mr. Morgan, and had in mind the obtaining of one of the Old Dominion steamships. The Governor replied:

"Rent if possible, purchase if necessary, a steamer for the purposes named in your dispatch."

With the check on the Sandy Hook proposition, it is most likely the health officer will avail himself of the Governor's authority to procure yet another steamer.

Secretary of State Foster said this morning that a portion of Sandy Hook had been selected which would not interfere with government proving grounds, and which he believed Acting Secretary of War Grant would permit to be used as a quarantine station.

IN HAMBURG'S HOSPITALS.

Thousands Consigned to Nameless Graves. Lakeney in Want.

HAMBURG, Sep. 9.—Thousands of persons in this city are under the burden of uncertainty as to what has been the fate of their relatives in the hospitals. Healthy patients are not admitted, and few patients give names. Therefore, most of the dead are taken to nameless graves.

Crowds watch day and night outside of hospitals begging for information which the officials cannot give. Scores of persons daily leave wreaths to be laid on the coffins of friends, whose deaths they guess by the fact of getting no news of their recovery.

There was a slight decrease in the number of new cases reported to-day.

Great unrest prevails among the poorer people. This is largely due to the closing of factories and shops, which has thrown half of the working population of the city out of employment. Thirty thousand men, who usually work as factory hands, longshoremen, or porters in business houses, are said to be idle. They are without means of earning a living, and are condemned to wait at home for the plague to abate before they can find work. Their families, according to the reports of the relief committees, are in want.

CANADA STORS IMMIGRATION.

Only Those on the Way to Be Allowed to Land There.

QUEBEC, Sep. 9.—The Provincial Government has issued a proclamation giving full force to the by-laws adopted by the Central Medical Board.

The proclamation provides briefly that no passengers whatever may be permitted to land from infected ports in any part of this province, and that no immigrants, no matter where hailing from, are to be landed here.

The Allan line officers immediately telegraphed to Liverpool prohibiting their steamships from carrying any immigrants while the new law is in force.

As regards the boats with passengers aboard which have already sailed for the St. Lawrence, an arrangement has been made by which the immigrants will be landed after undergoing whatever disinfection and examination in quarantine may be deemed necessary by the Central Medical Board.

FOR NEGLECT OF DUTY.

The United States Consul at Stettin, Germany, Suspended.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 9.—James C. Kellogg of Louisiana, United States Consul at Stettin, Germany, has been suspended from duty by Secretary Foster of the State Department for negligence of duty during the cholera inspection.

The action of Secretary Foster grew out of a complaint by the health officer at New York on August 9 that Consul Kellogg was absent from his post, and that the inspection of vessels from Stettin was very lax. On receipt of this complaint Secretary Foster sent telegraphic orders to Consul-General Edwards at Berlin to proceed to Stettin and make a personal investigation, and a report was also called for.

These reports were received yesterday, and Secretary Foster ordered Mr. Kellogg's suspension. The Vice-Consul at Stettin was assigned to the duties of Consul.

A FALSE ALARM.

The Story That a Cholera Ship Had Passed Father Point Denied.

TORONTO, Ont., Sep. 9.—A Quebec correspondent telegraphs that there is reason to believe that a case of cholera has been found on board the steamer Wandrahm from Hamburg, which passed Father Point yesterday.

MONTREAL, Sep. 9.—The story that the cholera had reached the St. Lawrence receives straight contradiction from Dr. Lachapelle, President of the Provincial Board of Health.

He says that the Wandrahm, the ship from Hamburg mentioned as introducing the disease, has not passed Father Point and has not been reported from any place in the gulf. She comes from Hamburg and Antwerp, and will not be allowed to pass Grosse Isle.

Jersey Coast to Be Patrolled.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 9.—The State Board of Health has decided to create a sea coast patrol to prevent cholera from infesting the State. The precaution was suggested by the finding of a pillow bearing the name Moravia. All wreckage and debris found on the coast will be burned and any persons attempting to land from the infected steamers will be prevented.

Medical Inspectors Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 9.—Surgeon-General Wyman of the Marine Hospital Service has authorized the appointment of medical inspectors at Suspension Bridge and Malone, New York, to guard against cholera from Canada.

NO NEWS FROM PEARY

A Second Relief Expedition May Be Necessary.

THE FIRST CANNOT REACH HIM.

Not In Many Years Have the Northern Seas Been So Blocked With Ice—Views of Capt. Jensen, of the Bark Fluorine, from West Greenland.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 9.—The bark Fluorine, second of the Cryolite fleet to arrive in port from West Greenland, brings no tidings of the Peary relief expedition. Capt. Jensen was able to free his vessel from the ice at Kajartalik the morning following the sailing of the Salina, Aug. 14, after three months' imprisonment.

"The Kite," said Capt. Jensen, "would not necessarily fall in with ice where the Fluorine lay, as her course would keep her far enough from the coast to have open sea."

"Not to the knowledge of any Greenland traders," continued Capt. Jensen, "have there been such immense blockades of ice as exists this year, and from what I saw, believe it impossible for any relief expedition to reach Peary at this time."

Davies Straits are believed to be closed to the north, and as to reaching Peary, by traveling over ice, Capt. Jensen thought it wholly impossible.

Mr. L. Smith of the Cryolite Company, and for nine years manager of the Cryolite Mines at Ivigtut, Greenland, in speaking of the Kite, said that from what he learned from the incoming vessels it was his opinion that Peary was further north than any relief party would reach for two years.

The fact that the Cryolite fleet were frozen in below latitude 62, and that Peary is in latitude 75, about gives reason for believing that a second relief party will be found necessary.

SEVEN KILLED, THREE HURT.

Frightful Wreck on the Clearfield & Cambria Railroad.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sep. 9.—Shortly before 6 o'clock last night, a work train collided with a passenger train on the Clearfield & Cambria Railroad in a deep cut near Rekenwood's Mill. Both engines and a number of cars were piled in a frightful wreck.

Engineer C. W. Ferry and Fireman Parish, of the passenger train, were instantly killed, being buried beneath their engine. Five of the crew of the work train, Italians and Swedes, names unknown, were killed and three injured.

Ferry lived in Altoona and Parrish was from Gallitzin. The wreck was caused by the work train disregarding train orders.

The Clearfield & Cambria Road is a branch of the Pennsylvania recently opened for travel.

THE STORY DENIED.

Reading Switchmen Not Discharged for Belonging to Unions.

BUFFALO, Sep. 9.—The discharge of several switchmen from the yards of the Reading railroad in this city has given rise to a story that the alleged order of President McLeod to discharge all members of labor unions had been put into operation here.

Supt. Fennell denies that such is the case. He says:

"Several switchmen have been discharged, but for causes entirely foreign to union membership. There is not a particle of truth in the statement that the men were discharged for union membership. We have men at work in the yards who served during the strike, and we intend to give them all the protection needed. If they are attacked by any man in our employ the man who commits the assault will be at once discharged."

DANIEL DOUGHERTY BURIED.

Archbishop Ryan Delivered the Sermon at the Funeral.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 9.—The funeral services over the remains of Daniel Dougherty were held in St. John's Roman Catholic Church, 13th street near Chestnut, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The honorary pallbearers were: George W. Childs, Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, Anthony Drexel, John Russell Young, ex-Judge Corrall Brewster, E. H. Hanson, Col. Francis Crilly and Edward W. Shippen.

The Rev. Father Crowley celebrated the mass. The Rev. Father Holahan was deacon and Rev. Father Garrity sub-deacon.

Archbishop Ryan, who was one of Mr. Dougherty's most intimate friends, delivered the sermon. The body was interred in the grave yard.

ORDERED TO VENEZUELA.

Rear-Admiral Walker Will Have Charge of the Squadron.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 9.—Rear-Admiral Walker will have command of the North Atlantic squadron ordered to Venezuela during the trouble there. Admiral Walker has been detached from command of the squadron of evolution and directed to take charge of the vessels ordered south.

Rear-Admiral Gherhardi, commanding the North Atlantic squadron, was detached from that duty and directed to proceed to San Francisco, where he will assume the duties of commanding officer of the vessels of the Pacific station, and bring them around to New York to participate in the grand naval review on the occasion of the opening of the World's Fair.

ECHOES OF THE FIGHT

What Will John L. Do Now, Poor Thing?

SOME OF THE WINNERS AND LOSERS.

Corbett Wears His Honors Modestly—He Is Coming to New York Monday, and Will Get a Big Reception—$120,000 Taken in By the Olympic Club for the Big Battle—Sullivan Broken-Hearted.

NEW YORK, Sep. 9.—James J. Corbett, champion pugilist of the world, will be tendered a monster reception at Madison Square Garden Monday night. He will appear in the ring costume he wore when he defeated John L. Sullivan, and will spar four rounds each with three first-class boxers. Other matches for prizes will take place.

Corbett will arrive at Jersey Sunday evening, about 7:30. He will be escorted over the ferry by a band, after which he will be driven with Mr. Brady and his trainers direct to the Coleman House.

It is estimated that the amount of money that changed hands when Corbett landed that last vicious jab on the big fellow's jaw and sent him to the floor was $300,000—that is, in this city alone. It cannot be guessed how much was won and lost at other places, but the reports published in the morning papers tell of a very doleful state of affairs in many directions.

A number of New York sports who had contracted big board bills, bills for hack hire, wine, etc., expecting to settle up from their winnings, are in a bad fix. After the battle they telegraphed hastily to New York for funds but received the following reply:

"Can't help. Everybody broke here."

While Sullivan's defeat was a severe blow to a great majority of the betting men, it is evident that Corbett's victory, in this city at least, is a popular one.

Now that the edge of the excitement has worn off and men are beginning to discuss the whys and wherefores of the big fellow's knock out, frequent complaints are heard about Sullivan's condition. The idea that he was too old to get into form is scouted. It seems to be the general opinion that the ex-champion did not train as he should. It is hinted that the whole truth has not been told about the life at Canoe Place Inn.

"John ought to have begun to train long before Corbett," said one oracle today in an uptown hotel. "That was his first mistake. His next was in not letting liquor entirely alone after he began to train."

There is already a great deal of sad speculation here among Sullivan's friends. What will the big fellow do now? is asked. It is acknowledged that a mistake was made in postponing the appearance of his book until within a few days of the date of the fight.

If it had been published a month before, they say, John would have netted a handsome sum. Now, they ask, who wants to read an ex-champion's book?

The big fellow's defeat will also have an effect upon his attractive powers as a star actor, and, in fact, will influence all of his future public appearances. One thing, though, is considered greatly in his favor. That is his manly and courageous speech when he had been put on his pins after the fight.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

The Club Took in $120,000 for the Fight. Sullivan's Condition.

NEW ORLEANS, Sep. 9.—The fight between James J. Corbett and John L. Sullivan was remarkable in more than one respect.

So much money was never before spent to witness a prize fight. Probably not in this generation will so much money be spent again to see one.

Many a political meeting in New York has represented 20 times the wealth of the 7,000 spectators who saw the champion pugilist of the world knocked out and a new king of sports crowned.

Many audiences at the Metropolitan Opera House have represented 100 times more money, but the spectators paid 50 times as much as any political mass meeting ever cost in this country, and Patti when she drew for a single night $12,000 to the Metropolitan Opera House, drew only one-tenth as much as was paid to see Corbett dethrone Sullivan.

So far as the betting is concerned every man who came from New York came with the intention of betting. It cost Charlie Johnston $25,000 and Jimmy Wakely close to $10,000. Foxall Keene sent in $5,000 on Sullivan to the pool rooms, and John Kelly, acting for a syndicate of sporty baseball players, scattered away $18,000. Jack McAuliffe took $8,500 of his own money, part of the earnings of his victory, and bet them on Sullivan. Jack's second, Jimmy Nelson, was also out $1,800—$1,000 that Dick Roche had given him and $800 that Jack made him a present of.

The way in which the young Californian won over the town is decidedly interesting. Five days ago it was nothing but Sullivan. His approach to the city was like a triumph. Every town through which his train passed turned out to give him an ovation. His arrival was heralded like that of a hero.

Corbett's departure from New Orleans will be made with a flourish. Hero worship is strong here, as it is in every true sporting city. The young Californian came in like a lamb, but he will go out like a lion.

Aside from the glory he has gained Corbett has earned a neat fortune. His friends and backers are also many dollars ahead.

A careful examination of Sullivan made by Dr. Charles L. Seaman after the ex-champion had had a few hours' rest after his defeat found him in a pitiable condition. He was still weeping at what he considered his disgrace. His nose had been split and required three stitches, his face was swollen and his lips were cut. Sullivan is really heart broken.

He turned to Charley Johnson and said: "I'm sorry about my friends losing their money."

"Never mind," said Johnson; "I'll put up $20,000 on you any hour to fight Mitchell or any one else, barring Corbett. He seems to be a clever young fellow."

"Yes," said Sullivan; "he's cleverer than any fighter I ever met in my life. I let him hit me one or two body blows purposely, with the idea of catching him as he landed, but I couldn't catch him. Well, he has won the championship, and he had better keep it. My advice is that if he wants to keep it he had better not meet the nigger, Jackson. If he ever does he will get licked."

CLEVELAND'S

One rounded teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of any other. A large saving on a year's bakings.

BAKING POWDER

A pure cream of tartar powder. Used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of Cookery.

Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome, as it contains no ammonia, no alum, no adulteration.

A few hours later Sullivan cheered up and went into the barroom of the St. Charles Hotel.

"He licked me fair and square; he is quicker than I am but he is the only man in the world who can lick me." Thus spoke the ex-champion. John was beginning to whoop it up as few can, but he spoke from his heart. He was not one half so much broken up as he appeared a few hours before.

Corbett bears his honor with becoming modesty, and so far his head remains at its usual size. That he is perhaps the happiest man in America is not altogether unnatural, and that he shows his joy is not to be wondered at, but he speaks to his friends and even to his casual acquaintances as he has always done and appears like the Jim Corbett of a year ago.

Corbett, in speaking of his victory today, said that it was his fight from the start, and that he could have finished the champion earlier. He admits that he was greatly surprised at the poor fight Sullivan put up, as he really expected much harder work. He says Sullivan acted the gentleman after defeat, and he has nothing but the kindliest feeling for him.

Corbett's Brother Won Heavily.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 9.—Harry Corbett, brother to Jim, now the heavyweight champion, stated this morning that he had won $12,000 on the fight. It became known this morning that Mrs. Corbett, Jim's mother, was thrown out of a buggy last week and had her arm broken. No one was allowed to see her, and news of the accident was kept from the newspapers and correspondents so that it would not reach Jim.

Fear He Will Take to Drink.

CHICAGO, Sep. 9.—There is a great deal of sympathy expressed here for Sullivan's defeat. It is feared by many that John L. will feel so bad over the affair that he will take to drink and be ruined for ever and that if so all hope for him was gone.

WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Chief McClaughry and Inspector Lewis to Be Charged With Murder.

CHICAGO, Sep. 9.—Attorneys Sullivan, Knight and Brown threaten to avenge the death of Col. Jim Brown by bringing various serious charges against Chief McClaughry and Inspector Lewis.

Attorney Brown said yesterday: "We shall have Chief McClaughry arrested and charged with murder. I have had quite a long conversation with different eyewitnesses to the shooting and according to them we can easily form the charge of murder against the chief. Inspector Lewis will also be arrested on the same charge.

"Witnesses state that after three shots had been fired Brown turned around and cried: "Don't shoot." The police advanced and he then drew his revolver. It was not until then, the witnesses claim, that Brown fired and then he did so in self defense.

"If this be true we can easily convict both McClaughry and Lewis under the decision given in the case of Anarchist Spies, et al., on the well known conspiracy point.

"The police had no right to break down the gates and enter the track, and, besides, commit deliberate and premeditated murder. For we consider it premeditated, as we can prove that McClaughry and Lewis instructed the men to make arrests if blood had to be shed.

"Perjury, conspiracy and attempted bribery will be the other charges against the chief.

"We also intend to arrest Windsor on the charge of perjury. We have a clear case against these parties, especially the charge of murder against the chief.

"While the police are giving different versions of the shooting all our witnesses tell the story in about the same words."

By unanimous consent it was decided not to race until after Col. Brown's funeral had taken place, as all of the racing men attended in a body.

Incidentally it was given out that racing would be resumed very soon.

MORE CHOLERA.

ARRIVAL OF ANOTHER INFECTED SHIP FROM HAMBURG, IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

The Wieland Approaches Flying the Yellow Flag—More Cholera on the Normannia and the Island—Deaths on the Wyoming, which is Ordered into Quarantine—No Cases in New York City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The steamship Wyoming, which has been in quarantine since Sept. 6, has been sent to Lower Quarantine. The Wyoming is from Liverpool.

Elias Pepper, Russian, aged 3 months, and Victoria Eleake, 6 months, died on the ship last night.

The children had a diarrhœal complaint. Dr. Jenkins won't say it is cholera, but there is little doubt that it is.

Two children and mother are also sick on the Wyoming with symptoms of cholera.

Dr. Jenkins says all those who have been in contact with them will be sent to Hoffman Island.

The bodies of the two dead children will be cremated.

The Wyoming belongs to the Guion line.

The steamship Wieland, direct from Hamburg, entered the lower bay this morning with the yellow flag flying from her foremasthead. The marine observer at Sandy Hook at once notified the Quarantine Office, and when at ten minutes before seven o'clock the steamer was abreast os Sandy Hook Point, the Health Officer's tug was on her way down the bay to meet her. The Wieland sailed from Hamburg an hour before midnight on the 28th of August, just ten days after the cholera was officially declared prevalent in that city. She carried only first-class passengers.

After passing Sandy Hook at 6:50 o'clock this morning the Wieland turned into the main ship channel and continued on her course for the Narrows, her evident intention being to come up to the regular anchorage inside Fort Wadsworth. The Health Officer's tug, however, intercepted her, and sent her down to the detained fleet south of the hospital islands. The Wieland is commanded by Capt. R. Karlowa, and is the fourth vessel of the Hamburg-American Packet line that left Hamburg after the outbreak of cholera in that city.

The news that the Wieland was flying the yellow flag created considerable alarm at Quarantine, and news from her was anxiously awaited there all morning. The doctor's tug did not return to the Quarantine Station after leaving the Wieland, but hurried over to Hoffman Island. From this it was inferred that several persons on board are ill with cholera. The fact that the tug remained alongside the steamer only long enough to allow her captain to make his report to the doctor and then to receive his orders is looked upon as an indication that the conditions on the Wieland are serious.

The regular 10 o'clock bulletin stated that there was no cholera in the city.

JOE ENGLISH IS DEAD.

The Man Who Founded Plainfield's Reform Club Meets a Tragic End Aboard a Ferry-Boat.

While crossing the North River on the Pennsylvania ferry-boat Washington, at 3:40 yesterday afternoon, Joe English, the temperance revivalist who founded the Plainfield Reform club, had a violent hemorrhage from the lungs. Before medical assistance could be called he died.

Mr. English, who was familiarly known as "Joe" English, was 74 years old, and he leaves a wife and four children who live in Poughkeepsie. He came to Jersey City last Monday night, and with A. Lincoln Graham began a series of temperance revival meetings in Tabernacle Hall. The meetings were very successful. Mr. English was to have appeared at a meeting last night, but the crowds that gathered around Tabernacle Hall in Henderson street were met by pastor John L. Scudder and sent away with the intelligence of Mr. English's sudden death.

Mr. English had been a worker in the field of temperance for twenty-five years, and during that time he met with a great deal of success. When he came to Jersey City he complained of feeble health, and when friends advised him not to enter upon a hard campaign he told them that he would pull through all right.

James E. Martine for Congress.

(From The Constitutionalist.)

The name of our respected fellow-citizen, James E. Martine, has been prominently mentioned in connection with the congressional nomination in this newly formed District, and most favorably received.

Mr. Martine would make a live congressman. His honor and integrity stand unimpeached, and his ability to act well the part of a national legislator cannot be justly called in question. He is a man of the people, closely allied with their interests, thoroughly conversant with their rights, and bold enough to defend them against every species of opposition.

Let our next congressman be James E. Martine, of Union county. He is a principle-swayed Democrat and comes squarely up to the sound Jeffersonian standard.

THE GIFT OF A HANDSOME BANNER.

Franklin Council Has a Pleasant Evening With Its Feminine Friends.

At the entertainment and reception given under the auspices of the good and welfare committee of Franklin council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., in their rooms on West Second street, last evening, to the members and their feminine friends, a handsome blue silk banner was presented the council by the ladies. On the banner, in gilt letters, is the following inscription: "Franklin council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., organized Oct. 6, 1887, Plainfield, N. J."

The banner was presented in behalf of the ladies by deputy state councilor George W. McFarland in a speech dwelling principally on the objects of the order, and was received in behalf of the council by the councilor John P. Reed in a few well chosen words.

The entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and addresses, was highly appreciated by all present. The talent consisted of the following brothers. Joseph C. Martin, of Somerset, 104, Herbert S. Thatcher, of Franklin, 41, and George Laible, of Franklin, 41, one of the smallest members of the order. George Rogers presided at the organ. Among those who made addresses were: State council secretary William H. Miers, of Trenton, deputy state councilor George W. McFarland, of Trenton, National vice-councilor H. A. Kibbe, of New Brunswick, and others. After the entertainment a bountiful repast was served by the committee in the banquet rooms. The committee were; J. V. Beekman, chairman, G. S. Martin, secretary, F. A. Long, treasurer, C. I. Young, H. S. Thatcher.

BEAT HIS FELLOW-PASTOR.

Dr. Richards Scores Against Rev. Newell, at the Opening of a New Bowling Alley—A Treat for Hope Chapel People.

A goodly company gathered at Hope chapel last evening to attend the formal opening of the reading-room and bowling alley that is to be used by both young and old in connection with the chapel. After singing and prayer, short speeches were delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, the Rev. G. K. Newell, H. C. Squires, Amos Andrews, and others. The speakers emphasized the value of the social element in church work. Dr. Richards spoke of the criticism made against many Christian communicants that they offered no place of amusement but the saloon. He know that criticism could no longer be made about the Fourth ward. The reading-room and alley would be open to all who behaved themselves like gentlemen. After the speeches Mr. Squires announced that the Scientific American, Frank Leslie's, Harper's Weekly, Youths' Companion, THE PLAINFIELD PRESS, Evening News and Courier would be found regularly on the tables of the reading-room.

The first game on the new bowling alley resulted in a victory for Dr. Richards over the chapel's pastor. While the bowling was going on, ice-cream was served to those who could not get into the alley.

MORE CONVENTION DELEGATES.

Republican Voters of the Third and Fourth Wards Hold Their Primaries.

The Third Ward Republicans held their primary last night for the appointment of delegates to the State convention at Trenton. F. E. Marsh presided, and O. B. Leonard acted as secretary. John W. Murray, sr., was elected convention delegate, with William T. Kirk as alternate. There was no opposition.

The Fourth Ward Republicans met with John Manchester in the chair, and Herman Weber as clerk. B. F. Millington, W. W. Coriell and John Manchester were voted for as nominees for delegates. Manchester got 41 votes, Millington, 39, and Coriell, 8. Manchester and Millington were declared the duly elected delegates. The alternates chosen were John W. James and John P. Thompson. Tunis J. Carey and Smith Garretson served as tellers, and Abram Angleman acted as clerk.

Mayor Saunders Objected Only to Mr. Howland's Sentiments.

An impression is said to exist among a few of W. Wallace Howland's host of friends, that during mayor Saunders's remarks on suburban rapid transit at the last meeting of the North Plainfield council, a personal attack was made upon Mr. Howland. This is entirely a misconception. On the contrary the mayor expressed the sincerest regard and respect for Mr. Howland, and opposed only the sentiments of a communication from that gentleman which was then before the meeting. Mr. Howland's objection to "street railways, manufacturing establishments and all so-called improvements", was, in the opinion of mayor Saunders, against the interests of the borough.

Tried to Wreck the Cigar Store.

A horse belonging to A. L. Cadmus of 200 South Second street was left untied in front of a baker's shop on North avenue this morning, while the driver was unloading flour barrels. The horse got excited and dashed across the street, upsetting the wagon and narrowly escaping crashing into Mosher's cigar store.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

Various Notes of Special Interest to Plainfield Cyclers.

The Republican wheelmen's club met in the Crescent rink last evening for drill.

The Manhattan Bicycle club will have a team in the Wheelmen's Bowling league this winter, as will also the clubs of last year, excepting the Gotham Wheelmen. The Elizabeth and Plainfield Bicycle clubs are among the new clubs which will make application for admission to the league in November.

There will be representatives from twenty clubs in the Newark-Princeton Century run, on September 18. The following route has been mapped out: Start from Military Park, Newark, 10 a. m., thence to Orange, South Orange, Milburn, Springfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Princeton. The route will be somewhat changed on the return, and will be as follows: Blawenburg, Bellmeade, Somerville, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Cranford, Elizabeth, Newark, arriving at 8 p. m. A stop of two hours will be made at Princeton. Captain Kirkpatrick of the Business Men's Cycling League, will have charge of the run. Souvenir medals will be given all those who finish the run.

THE SOMERVILLE RACES—ENTRIES AND OTHER DETAILS.

In an interview with Dr. Charles B. Mathewson, the energetic chairman of the race committee for the cycling events to be run off next Wednesday at the Somerset county fair, it was learned that the entry list had become so large as to more than fulfill the most sanguine hopes of the fair managers. They expected a large number of entries, but the pack of filled blanks which Dr. Charles showed THE PRESS this morning proved beyond a doubt that the fair officials have made no mistake in offering the handsome prizes for the winners in the different events. The lists closed last night with one hundred and fifty-five entries in the four events. The team race seems to be the one in which the greatest interest is centred. There are seven teams entered, as follows: Elizabeth Wheelmen, represented by Charles Brown, F. C. Gilbert and Wm. Bettner. Plainfield Bicycle club, enters George Mahon, A. T. Hinrichs and E. V. French. The Union County Roadsters will send James Blake, A. C. Watson and W. J. Mooney. The Orange Wheelmen will try and win with Paul Grosch, George Coffin and Charles Coffin. The latter team will come very near taking home the punch bowl as Geo. Coffin was the winner of the 100-mile race from Philadelphia to Newark last June. The Business Men's Cycle league of Newark have entered E. L. Blauvelt, Whitfield Smith and Charles Heuber. The Hudson County Wheelmen will be represented by Wm. L. Darner, Victor Meyer and W. C. Hudson. E. Brinkerhof, G. A. Beckwith and J. A. England will ride under the colors of the Tourist Cycle club of Paterson. The entrance of seven teams will make it necessary to run two heats beside the final. All of these clubs have sent their speediest men and the race will be a great one. The other races are well filled. The one mile novice race has 28 entries, among them being Lon Titsworth and Charles Maltby of Plainfield. They are also entered in the one mile handicap. The last named race has 62 men entered, A. C. Watson, U. C. R., and Charles Brown, E. W., being among the number. There are 44 entries in the two mile handicap, Watson and Brown being in this also.

WILL NOT LIVE WITH HIM.

Alexander Snediker Abuses His Wife, and Is Forced to Provide for His Family's Support.

Among those arraigned at the Elizabeth police court yesterday morning was Alexander H. Snediker, formerly of West Third street, Plainfield, and now an employee of the Suburban Electric Light works at Elizabeth.

Snediker was arrested at 4:20 yesterday morning at his home on a warrant obtained by his wife, who charged him with being a drunken and disorderly person and with ill-treating her.

When informed by the court of what the charge against him was, he denied it in toto, saying that the whole difficulty was that his wife could not be pleased. He asserted that his wife was displeased because he was not at home more. This was impossible, as he could not leave his work just when he felt like it.

Mrs. Snediker denied the assertion made by her husband, saying that if he would only behave himself there would be no trouble at all. He made it a common practice of drinking up his wages and then abusing her. This she declared she had stood just as long as she intended to, and then exclaimed: "I say right here, before you all, that I will not live with him another day." She then said that all she asked of her husband was that he support his two children; that so far as she herself was concerned she could earn her own living.

Snediker, who appeared to be pleased at the opportunity of getting clear of his wife so easily, readily agreed to contribute so much toward the support of his children as the court might think was just and right.

Overseer-of-the-poor Lutz, on being consulted by justice Hetfield, said that he thought $3.50 a week for each child was sufficient. Justice Hetfield, however, thought that $3 per week was about right, and asked Snediker if he would agree to furnish that amount, to which he replied that he would.

Mrs. Snediker was not satisfied, however, saying that in her opinion $7 was little enough, that her husband could get along himself on $4 or $5 a week. The court held a different view of it, and on Snediker promising to pay over to the overseer-of-the-poor $3 per week for the support of each child, he was discharged.

The World-Wide Popularity of John M. Crane.

(From The Insurance Critic.)

An important change has been recently made in the official staff of the American Casualty Insurance and Security company, by the selection of John M. Crane to conduct the newly created office of general superintendent.

Our readers need no introduction to Mr. Crane, for his abilities, general adaptability and world-wide popularity have been often referred to in the columns of this journal in unmistakable terms during many years past. If there is any one who, better than another, makes and retains friends, it is one who is unqualifiedly loyal to those with whom he is engaged in business, conscientious and fearless in the discharge of duty, upright and honorable in social and private life. Such a man we regard John M. Crane.

The American Casualty Insurance and Security company is in superb financial condition, as may be observed by reviewing its statement, and under present auspices it is well equipped to pursue with characteristic vigor and energy the grand career upon which it has entered, with the very best prospects of continued success.

The high character of its officers and board of directors naturally commends the company to the confidence and favor of the public.

Proclamation by the Governor.

Whereas, by a joint resolution, approved June 29, 1892, it was resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled: "That the President of the United States be authorized and directed to issue a proclamation recommending to the people the observance in all their localities of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America on Oct. 21, 1892, by public demonstration and by suitable exercises in their schools and other places of assembly;" and

Whereas, the President of the United States, in pursuance of said authority, did on the 21st of July, 1892, issue his proclamation; and

Whereas, the Executive Committee of the National Columbian Public School celebration has urged the issuing of proclamations by the Governors of the several States, recommending the people to observe said day for the purposes set forth in said joint resolution of Congress;

Now, therefore, I, Leon Abbett, Governor of the State of New Jersey, in order to carry out the purposes of said resolution, do hereby recommend that October 21, 1892, be observed by the people of this State as a general holiday; that our citizens cease from toil and devote themselves on that day as far as possible to such exercises in their schools and other places of assembly as will properly celebrate the day and carry out the purposes of said resolution.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be hereunto affixed, at Trenton, this twentieth day of August, eighteen hundred and ninety-two.

[L. S.] LEON ABBETT.

Peaches and Ice-Cream.

At the Warren Mission chapel last night a peach and ice-cream festival under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. was opened. All of the tables were in charge of good attendants who served the candy, peaches, cream and cake provided for the occasion. The festival is to be continued this evening, and a good time is anticipated. The proceeds are for the benefit of repairs of the mission.

Yet It'll be Shorter Than Harrison's.

Democrats in Washington are confident that Mr. Cleveland will produce a letter "that will make it clear to even the most zealous Republicans that President Harrison has not said everything in his long political address, nor exhausted argument on the tariff, commerce, schools, tinplate, nor even free elections."

AT NEW YORK THEATERS.

Proctor's and the Broadway Offer Attractive Bills.

Robert Mantell makes a number of quick changes of costume in his dual role in "The Face in the Moonlight", at Proctor's theater, New York, which adds much to the effectiveness of his own and the author's work. In the last act one of these changes is made particularly interesting by the substitution of J. M. Fedris as a double of Rabat the criminal, and both of the characters played by Mr. Mantell are seen on the stage together. Mr. Fedris, who is a nephew of Mantell's, bears a very strong personal resemblance to the popular actor, and when made up it is extremely difficult to distinguish one from the other. On the stage this likeness is remarkable, and the substitution is made so quickly and unexpectedly that the effect is greatly heightened. Mr. Mantell is enjoying good business, and it looks as though his play would have a successful run.

"Wang" goes merrily at the Broadway theater, New York city. Its bright, tuneful music, contagious fun, pretty girls, gorgeous scenery, brilliant costumes, and numerous amusing features, continue to attract large audiences. The inimitable comedy of Hopper has never had such a congenial vehicle as that afforded him in the brilliant and witty lines furnished him by the author, and no light musical entertainment ever given in the metropolis, has been better equipped with pretty, tuneful numbers of solo, chorus and orchestra. Then, too, Mr. Hopper is supported by a strong comic-opera organization, which comprises many popular favorites, who, with the comedian, are surrounded by an admirably drilled chorus, composed principally of excellent singers and pretty girls. The fourth week of Mr. Hopper's present engagement at the Broadway opened with a special "Labor Day" matinee on last Monday afternoon, and it is needless to state that the spacious theater was crowded to overflowing. On Monday evening, Oct. 2, the 450th performance, and the 50th night of the comedian's third "Wang" engagement in New York city, will take place. The event will be commemorated by the distribution of handsome souvenirs, of unique and novel design.

ECHOES OF THE PICNIC.

Thrilling Tale of Two Shipwrecked Boatloads of Plainfield People.

The genial face of Edward W. Milligan was a pleasant sight at the Labor Day picnic. With his family he took the opportunity to run down to the beach to meet old friends from Plainfield. He had been down to Texas on an extended business trip. He was accompanied by Will Kenzell, one of the jolliest of companions, and a good fellow withal. The only cloud that flecks his sky is the fact of his being a bachelor. But his friends think they see another cloud on the horizon, about the size of a lady's hand.

The president of the Grocers' association and a row-boat load of friends ran their boat on a mud-bank, the pilot having failed to take proper observations. The boat threatened to go to pieces on the hard, treacherous mud, when the tide turned, floating them to deep water. It is only fair to say that the vessel was not provided with a compass.

One young man who hired a boat early in the day so as to spend his time visiting foreign shores to beguile the seductive crab or to tempt sea-bass by hook and line, together with his best girl, rowed over near Staten Island, when one of the treacherous billows of Staten Island sound tore the oars from his grasp and floated them down to Cape May. With the hungry waves lapping the boat, he cast anchor. They were too far from shore to be heard or to attract attention, and they came near being run down once by a passing vessel. They were eventually taken in tow by a passing Staten Islander, and were brought to the Jersey shore. The young man expects to stick to Jersey after this.

THE ABSURDITY OF MCKINLEYISM.

Mayor Saunders of the Borough Continues His Able Attacks on Republican False Doctrines.

The Hon. Wm. L. Saunders continues to be a valued contributor to periodicals of the day on campaign topics. A recent issue of the New York Evening Post contains from his pen a masterly presentation of convincing arguments in favor of tariff reform for the wage-earners' benefit. Mayor Saunders says:

"The absurdity of the McKinley Bill is in no way more conspicuous than in the tariff which it puts on the New South Wales wool. The tax which we are compelled to pay for every piece of cloth containing a thread of wool is for the purpose of feeding the sheep of a Vermont or Ohio farmer, in an effort to enable him to compete against nature; and, do the best we can, we have failed to produce from this winter-fed sheep the long hair and the fine quality of wool which we get from New South Wales. This is simply because Australia is better fitted by nature to raise sheep and produce wool. No juggery of argument can convince me that it adds to my prosperity to pay a tax to the Government for every suit of clothes, pair of socks, or baby's wrap that I buy, because they contain a stitch of merino wool, grown in an Australian climate, where sheep feed in the open fields all the year round."

Borough Democrats Will Float a Flag.

At the regular meeting of the North Plainfield Democratic association, last evening, first vice-president John Bodine presided. The committee on banner reported a preference for a flag, and the meeting voted the authority to purchase one.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Mayer, Waverly, N. Y.

CRIME AND CRIMINALS.

An Able Essay by Ex-President R. B. Hayes.

A Social Problem That Threatens Society and Imperils American Institutions—Application of the Golden Rule the Only Cure.

"The World and Its Duties Toward Criminals" is the subject of an able essay by ex-President Hayes in the Illustrated World's Fair. From it we take the following pertinent extracts:

Not only are we in some sense responsible for crime, not only are the causes of crime and the perils that threaten our country to-day linked together as adamant, but where is the man who can say with assurance that his family and those he loves best are proof against the spirit which makes crime in this country? This spirit which leads to crime is abroad in the community, and it may reach and it may ruin the purest and the happiest hearthstone to be found within it. It has been so ordained, whether we would have it so or not, that we are, we have been, and we ever shall be, our brothers' keepers.

This, then, is the general principle and its scope, reaching the sources of crime. Let us briefly consider a few facts in detail. Take, for example, the criminal at the beginning, the first step. It is the first step too often that leads down to doom. How do we, as good citizens, meet it? The boy who has committed his first misdemeanor, where do we send him? All over the United States, with but few exceptions, he spends the first night after his arrest in close contact with hardened criminals, professors of burglary, instructors in larceny, adepts in counterfeiting and in every crime. There is no need of it. In Boston they have a jail through which 200,000 criminals have passed, no two of which ever made acquaintance in that jail. Yet all over this country, in ninety-nine out of a hundred of our jails and lockups, the boy who has committed his first offense is placed under the instruction of the old criminals. We have spent a great deal of time and money in seeing that our jails are comfortable, but how about preserving pure and virtuous those who go in there for the first time? Now we have in the United States from three to four thousand of these jails. Suppose that only one boy per year passes into each one of these jails to be made a criminal for life; that makes from 3,000 to 4,000 a year, 30,000 to 40,000 in ten years, 50,000 to 60,000 in the lifetime of a criminal. Does anyone think that it is strange that crime increases and criminals are multiplied when at the country's expense these compulsory schools of crime are kept up?

Then as to the man who is hardened in crime, who has finished his education and is ready himself to start a normal school in any jail he happens to be in, where he not only teaches young men to be criminals themselves, but how to teach others to be criminals—how shall we treat him? There is but one answer to that question: get rid of the fixed sentence. Where you have a hardened criminal, put him in prison to stay until he is cured.

And now, what chance has our brother, the discharged convict? Our brother, indeed! Who treats him as a brother? Who thinks of employing an ex-convict? There is a small society in Chicago looking after discharged convicts. Let us make it larger. Isn't it a work worth our while to try to give to the discharged prisoner a chance to lead that honest life which he really desires to lead and which he can lead?

One other question. Wherever prisons are ruled upon the political spoils system, it is to the injury of the party that does it and to the injury of the prison in which it is done. Who are the good wardens in our great prisons to-day? Without exception, they are those who have been long in their positions, who have not happened to be turned out when the see-saw of the state election changed the control of the executive office or the legislature of the state. If political considerations should be left out anywhere it should be in dealing with the criminals of the community. There are some offices in which the question of a man's party affiliations should be absolutely left out of sight. The man who is to be the superintendent of a lunatic asylum or of any state benevolent institution, above all of a prison, should be utterly independent of the results of party elections.

Ain't Then He Lets.

He—Had my photo taken at Sereno's the other day.

She—Yes. I saw it.

He—Ethel thought it rather insipid in expression.

She—I don't know. I thought it very characteristic of you.—Harper's Bazar.

True to His Art.

Podsnap—I fail to see why you call that landscape of yours "Cows in Pasture." There isn't a cow in the whole picture.

Smeere—That is true art, my dear Pod. We must leave something to the imagination.—Jury.

The Lady Was Out.

"What's the matter, Jack? You look broken up."

"I am. You know, I came three hundred miles to see Miss Hardcastle. Well, I called on her last night, and by mistake sent up a pawn ticket instead of my card."—Life.

Evasive.

George—Did you sell your horse for as much as you paid when you bought him?

John—Well—er—I sold him for as much as he was worth when I bought him.—N. Y. Weekly.

One Admirable Trait.

"Mr. Goslinghead is very smart, don't you think?"

"No. Why, he never even opens his mouth."

"But that's just where he's so smart."

FAITHFUL OLD FLY.

A War Horse That Is Yet Frisky at the Age of Thirty-Seven.

"Old Fly" was foaled in 1855 and reared on the farm of George A. Barrett, near Stewartsville, Posey county, Ind. On the enlistment of the First Indiana cavalry in June, 1861, Mr. Barrett presented Fly to his son, George M. Barrett, under whom she was mustered into the service of the United States in Company B, First Indiana cavalry, at Evansville, Ind., July 21, 1861. Ridden by her owner Fly was in the following battles: Fredericktown, Mo., Round Hill, Helena, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Mount Elba and Mark's Mill, Ark., also Oakland, Miss., and numerous other skirmishes.

"OLD FLY."

She was in the army three years and two months, having been "mustered out" in Indianapolis in September, 1864. During her term of service she was ever ready to do her duty, and even now, at the age of thirty-seven, she will act like a colt on hearing the sound of a cannon. She is in good condition and bids fair to live several years.

Fun at Aunt Hetty's.

Mother—I did not know that Aunt Hetty was having her house repainted, or I wouldn't have sent you children there to spend the day.

Young Hopeful—Oh, we had a nice time. Aunt Hetty didn't bother us at all, she was so busy with the workmen. We went upstairs all by ourselves, and played keepin' zoological garden.

"What did you do for animals?"

"We hadn't any 'cept Aunt Hetty's Fido, and the canary, and the cat, but we painted them six different colors."—Good News.

A Thorough Sport.

Pelham Parker—Charlie Meadowbrooke's horse ran away with him at the last hunt, and he rode down the hounds and finally overtook and passed the fox.

Reggy Westend—Couldn't he stop?

Pelham Parker—That's what the whipper-in asked him, but Charlie said he couldn't think of stopping when he was ahead of the game.—Life.

The Great American Hog

Is welcome abroad once more, and abroad he may go. As long as Lard was a requisite in every kitchen, the Great American Hog was highly esteemed at home; but now that modern science has introduced the new vegetable substitute for Lard, poor Piggy's occupation's gone.

COTTOLENE

The reason for this is threefold. COTTOLENE is cleaner, healthier and much more economical. A trial has convinced thousands as to this. It will convince any "convincable" person. Will you be convinced?

SIX PEST SHIPS NOW IN PORT

The Scandia's Arrival Makes the Situation a Most Critical One.

SHE HAD THIRTY-TWO DEATHS FROM CHOLERA DURING THE VOYAGE.

NUMBER OF NEW CASES REPORTED.

Three Deaths on the Wyoming from Liverpool, and One Among the Crew of the Normannia — Believed That the Real Fight With the Scourge Has Only Begun. Dr. Jenkins' Reply to the Complaints of the Normannia's Passengers—Sir Edwin Arnold's Views on Cholera—Chesapeake Bay Guarded.

NEW YORK, Sep. 10. — The critical period in the fight which New York is now making down the bay to repulse the insiduous advance of the Oriental scourge has arrived. Its advent was heralded by a thrill of excitement at Quarantine last evening when the news was flashed under the water from Fire Island that the long dreaded steamship Scandia, having on board 900 immigrants from the plague-swept city of Hamburg, had been sighted.

Dr. Byron boarded the ship after midnight, and sent the following telegram to Dr. Jenkins:

"Have visited the Scandia and find the following: Total number of passengers, 1,086. Cabin, 28; steerage, 984; crew, 77. On the voyage there were 32 deaths, of which 29 were in steerage, one in cabin and two among the crew. I am now transferring seven cases stricken with the plague to Swinburne Island."

The Scandia lies among a bunch of infected vessels, about two miles below Swinburne Island in Lower Quarantine.

Several days ago Dr. Jenkins was presented with a cablegram by the agents of the line stating that another of their ships, the Bohemia, left Hamburg on Aug. 31 with 670 steerage passengers, all having been isolated from five to eight days, and that the steerage and baggage were disinfected.

The Scandia, Capt. Kopff, left Hamburg on Aug. 28, many days after the outbreak of cholera in that city, and it had been expected all along that she would have the worst record of cholera of any of the incoming emigrant ships. She is the last but one to come with immigrants from Hamburg.

The official record of deaths during the day is:

WYOMING.

Eleas Persson, aged 3 years.
Victoria Persson, aged 6 months.
Mrs. Persson, mother of the dead children.

NORMANNIA.

Carl Blossing, aged 38 years; one of the crew

The following new cases are reported:

WYOMING.

Two Russian children; names unknown.

NORMANNIA.

Adolph Weiss, aged 21; one of the crew.

In the hospital on Swinburne Island there are 70 cases now pending, viz.: 33 males, 19 females and 18 children. Of the total number 15 are sick and 55 are suspects.

After a careful examination of every one of the 161 cabin passengers aboard the Wieland, from Hamburg, the Health officers reported them in excellent health. This statement was doubted by many persons, because of the fact that the Wieland was one of the latest departures from the infected port of Hamburg, but subsequent official reports confirmed the news that the ship was free from the pest.

The following ships are now at the lower quarantine: Moravia, Normannia, Rugia, Wyoming, Scandia and Wieland.

Speaking of the situation, Dr. Jenkins said that it was slightly discouraging. It is grave enough now he believes, to justify the enforcing of the most stringent quarantine regulations, until it is manifestly safe to release any vessel.

He is extremely gratified to find the health of passengers on the Wieland in such excellent condition, and, although the Scandia has the pest aboard, he thinks that the efforts of the health officials will be successful in keeping the scourge from the city.

Dr. Jenkins stated this morning that it had not yet been definitely decided to buy or rent Fire Island, but the chances were that the Island would be secured right away. The hotel can accommodate almost all of the cabin passengers. Certain police regulations will be instituted. Some of the passengers will be taken from the Normannia and Rugia. He also said that Sandy Hook would also be used now that the consent of the War Departmenet had been obtained. This action of the Department in suddenly reversing its ruling was brought about by a peremptory telegram from President Harrison to Acting Secretary Grant, directing him to turn over to the New York health officers such portion of the Sandy Hook reservation as Secretary of the Treasury Foster might indicate.

The New Hampshire, which was offered Dr. Jenkins by Secretary Tracy, has been accepted and fitted by the officials of the Hamburg line at their own expense. She will have accommodations for 500 people.

In regard to the appeal sent to Gov. Flower charging negligence on the part of the Health officials, Dr. Jenkins said it was false. Water had been taken out of his own reservoirs and supplied the passengers on the Normannia daily. It was transported by the tug Manhattan. He said it was the duty of the Hamburg company to see that water was supplied the passengers on the infected vessels, and that there was no interference or interception on the part of the health officers when the company sent water taken from Croton Lake.

On the contrary, he said he assisted them in every way possible, and he did not hesitate to supply it himself. He had sent disinfectants to all the ships in the lower bay, and his assistants performed their duty faithfully. Dr. Sanborn, he said, had personally disinfected the ships thoroughly.

It was absolutely false that dead bodies with the knowledge of the physicians had been allowed to remain on any ship. It was contrary to instructions, which were in no case violated, and the bodies were removed as quickly as possible.

He did not know how long the Wyoming would be detained in the lower bay, but thought it possible after those persons who had been in contact with the two children who died had been removed that she might probably be allowed to proceed to the Upper Quarantine.

The effort to secure a steamer under authority granted by Governor Flower on Thursday night is still occupying Dr. Jenkins' attention. Mr. George O. Lord, representing C. L. Morgan & Co. of the Western Line, is here to present a proposition by which the use of a propeller with accommodations for 250 passengers can be secured. The vessel has been in traffic through the Sound, and was in fact due to leave for Boston when she was thought of as a means of helping some of the detained passengers to a safe place of refuge.

As showing the caution used in the way of safeguards, it is worthy of note that the quarantine officers refused a permit to land 302 bales of rags from the steamer Massachusetts because they came from Bassorah, on the Persian gulf. She will have to take them back to the other side.

Ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt yesterday generously offered the use of Plum Island to the health authorities, if they can use it, for quarantine purposes, in order to relieve the dangerous detention of passengers on infected ships.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD AND CHOLERA

Th Says Hydrochloric Acid and Tea Will Kill the Germs.

NEW YORK, Sep. 10.—Sir Edwin Arnold, who is stopping at the Windsor Hotel, does not think the cholera is very dreadful.

"More people die from bronchitis, teething and measles," the poet says, "than from cholera. I have helped carry into hospitals many persons afflicted with it in the streets of India. It is no more than a colossal protean stomach ache. Simple precautions will ward it off.

"Five drops of hydrochloric acid in a cup of tea every other day will kill the bacillus. It cannot live in an acidulated stomach. I think the English and American constitutions are almost proof against the disease when care is exercised."

CHESAPEAKE BAY GUARDED.

Two Revenue Cutters Will Stop and Inspect All Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 10.—The Acting Secretary of the Treasury has sent out the following letter to the Collector of Customs at Baltimore:

"You are informed that the revenue steamer Crawford has been ordered to stop and inspect all vessels entering between Capes Charles and Henry; that the Marine Hospital steamer Charles Foster has been commissioned as a revenue cutter for the same purpose.

"Telegraph Department arrival of any vessel at Baltimore without certificate of inspection from United States Quarantine officer at Cape Charles. Full penalties will be imposed on any vessel refusing to stop when hailed by either cutter."

MINNESOTA FEARS CHOLERA.

A Proclamation Issued by the Governor to Guard Against It.

ST PAUL, Sep. 10.—In view of the danger to the State from the spread of cholera the Governor is determined that everything possible shall be done to prevent its getting a hold here, and to that end he yesterday issued a proclamation calling on all cities, villages and towns in the State to place their respective localities in a state of sanitary defense against the invasion of cholera.

No Such Passenger as Weaver.

NEW YORK, Sep. 10.—An article which appeared in a Minneapolis paper relative to the dramatic escape of an alleged Normannia passenger, named George C. Weaver, instigated an investigation into the matter here. From the fact that no such name as Weaver appears on the Normannia's passenger list it is to be inferred that the story is simply a canard.

DECREASE IN RUSSIA.

Gratifying Cholera Returns from the Infected Districts.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 10.—Official cholera returns from all the infected districts in Russia show a gratifying decrease in the number of new cases and a still more gratifying decrease in the number of deaths.

The figures for Thursday, compared with those of Wednesday, show a decrease of 843 new cases and 1,109 deaths. It is hoped that the disease is losing its strength, and that the frightful mortality that has thus far marked its course will henceforth decrease.

There was also a decrease in both new cases and deaths reported yesterday at St. Petersburg. The new cases were 103, 16 less than were reported Tuesday, while the deaths were 31, a decrease of 8, compared with those of the preceding day.

Of the patients in the hospitals in the city 82 were discharged yesterday as cured.

MEXICO'S PRECAUTIONS.

Vessels from Infected Ports to Be Quarantined There.

TAMPICO, Mex., Sep. 10.—The Federal government has directed the health officers at Tampico to quarantine all vessels from cholera infected ports for fifteen days.

There are now five vessels in port taking on and discharging cargoes at Monterey and Mexican Gulf wharves—the Yumiri, of New York; Ackenham, of Antwerp; Wellhaven, of Mobile; Start, of Cardiff, and Regulator, of Pensacola—all of which will clear within 48 hours with clean bills of health.

THE NEW YORK APPORTIONMENT.

Appeals From the Lower Courts Soon to Be Argued.

ALBANY, Sep. 10.—All the indications point to a very exciting contest between the Secretary of State and the County Clerks over the new Legislative Apportionment law. The General Term of the Supreme Court in the Rochester District having affirmed the decision of the Special Term that the apportionment was unconstitutional, the whole matter will come up before the Court of Appeals when it meets in this city on October 3.

It is a question whether the Governor has power to convene that court at an earlier date—most of the legal minds being of the opinion that he has not the right. But the Clerk of the Court, who is supposed to reflect the opinions of the individual members of that body, says that the Governor has the undoubted right to convene the Court of Appeals in the same way that he can convene any other court.

As the matter now stands the law is unconstitutional, and the Secretary of State could not proceed under it to serve notices upon the County Clerks to prepare their election blanks. Anticipating this, the Secretary of State served such notices upon the Clerks three or four days before he knew that the General Term would give an adverse decision upon the law. He has now been notified that, on the 12th of the present month, a motion will be made before the Supreme Court at Saratoga to compel him to serve notices upon the County Clerks in accordance with the old apportionment.

Should some of the counties elect under the old law and some under the new, there would be a surplus of Assemblymen in Albany next January to take the oath of office. In that case the trouble might be a very serious one.

THE COOLEY BRUTES.

Their Latest Outrage Near Masontown, Pa., Causes Great Excitement.

MASONTOWN, Pa., Sep. 10.—Excitement in this vicinity is still intense over the latest outrage by the Cooley gang, which occurred late Thursday night. Six members of the gang entered the house of John A. Walters, near here, when all were in bed, and after tieing Mr. Walters and Jacob Cover, and locking Mrs. Walters in her room, they began the search for money.

Finding none, they lit a lamp and held it to the feet of their prisoners, also drawing a razor and declaring they would cut their victims' throats if they didn't tell where the money was.

The marauders finally compelled the Walters' to give up their money, which amounted to $200, the most of which belonged to Mrs. Walters. Besides the money, a fine watch, a revolver and a lot of fine clothing were taken. The house was ransacked.

The gang finally departed, leaving their victims tied hand and foot and gagged. All are old people, and were unable to offer resistance.

NINE WERE KILLED.

The Wreck on the Cambria & Clearfield—Engineer and Fireman Missing.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sep. 10. — Engineer Yoder and Fireman Dunn of the work train, charged with violating orders and causing the wreck on the Cambria & Clearfield Railroad, disappeared after the accident and have not been seen since. The conductor also disappeared, but has returned. He says they ran away, Diligent search is being made for the missing men.

Later investigation shows that nine men were killed. They were Engineer Ferry, Altoona; Fireman Parrish, Gullitzin; Samuel Rolland, New Holland, and five Italian laborers.

THE LATEST FROM VERMONT.

Returns from 228 Towns Give Fuller a Majority Over Smalley of 18,794.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sep. 10.—Returns from 228 towns give Fuller's majority over Smalley as 18,795; over all, 17,395. The Republican majority in 1890 was 12,000. The towns last reported do not show a vote corresponding to those first given, and as the vote of the 15 remaining towns is small the prospect now is that the Republican majority will hardly exceed 19,000.

Sufficient voting booths were not furnished in some towns where voters were disposed to vote, and from the expressions of sentiment received it is quite probable that a movement will be made to repeal the present election law.

Want Breckinridge or Nothing.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sep. 10.—Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge still refuses to make any statement regarding his World's Fair speech. His friends, however, are indignant over the attacks made on him. One colonel very close to Breckinridge says that if the Chicago people keep up their warfare on Breckinridge much longer Kentucky will not make an exhibit at the World's Fair. He says the bill appropriating $100,000 for a State exhibit passed the House by a small majority, and, as Gov. Brown has declared the bill unconstitutional, the chances for voting any appropriation whatever will be slim if Col. Breckinridge is snubbed.

Cholera on an English Steamship.

LONDON, Sep. 10.—The British steamship Ironopolis, hailing from Middlesborough, has been quarantined at the Crimean seaport, Kertch. Eleven of her crew have been stricken with cholera and two have died.

PARIS, Sep. 10.—M. Loubet has finally decided not to admit Russian, Turkish or Roumanian Jews, and has issued orders against allowing them to land. Sixty-five fresh cases of cholera and 49 deaths are reported.

THE READING TROUBLE

A Final Conference to be Held Monday.

WHAT THE MEN ARE FIGHTING FOR.

They Say It is Over Objectionable Clauses in the Blanks Which New Employes Are Compelled to Sign—Statement of President McLeod.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 10.—After the conference with President McLeod the committee representing the employes of the Reading Railroad system held a meeting at the St. Charles Hotel. Engineer Clapp of the Jersey Central Road, who is chairman of the committee, presided. After the session ended Chairman Clapp announced that the conference with President McLeod was not altogether satisfactory and that there would be another and probably final one on Monday.

A member of the committee says it was a mistake to believe that the present trouble with the Reading Road was over the discharge of any engineers. He declared that it is over clauses in the blanks issued to applicants for employment in the company which read thus:

Are you a member of a labor organization and if so what one?

If a member will you withdraw and refuse to support or belong to any labor organization if you take service with this company?

Are you willing to become a member of the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association?

The men say they are fighting for their rights as American citizens, their right to belong to fraternal beneficial organizations having for their purposes the payment of death and accident benefits, the establishment and support of a home for the care of disabled members of their craft and to save the brotherhoods of locomotive engineers and firemen.

The men say they do not underate the power of the Reading Company to cope with a strike. They say there are thousands of men in the employ of the company wiping engines and running donkey pumps who are capable of running a locomotive, either freight or passenger, and it is these men that the company can call upon in the case of a strike by the Brotherhood of Engineers.

President McLeod makes the following statement for publication in regard to the conference:

"In the first place, these men had absolutely no grievance to submit. Their visit was prompted solely by a desire to inform themselves as to the attitude which the Reading Company intended to assume toward labor organizations, and they complained of no wrongs for which to seek redress. To two of our rules they object. One of these requires that every employe of the Reading Company shall become a member of the Reading Railroad Relief Association.

The other rule is that relating to the employment of new men. We require that every applicant for a position, before becoming an employe of the company, must pledge that he not only does not belong to any labor association whatever, but that he will not do so while in the employ of the company. I may state that this rule only applies to new men.

"None of the men employed on any of our lines who became members of labor organizations previous to the adoption of of this rule are in any way interfered with. And the same may be said of the employes on lines which we have recently leased. Many of these were members of various federations at the time of the roads passing into our hands and we have permitted them to remain so."

"Well, what was your reply to the men, Mr. McLeod?" was asked.

"My reply," he answered, "is indicated by the rules I have quoted. They embody the position of the Reading Company toward organized labor. Let me repeat that these men had no complaint to make, and only sought to know our position in the matter. I told it to them as I have told it to you."

BIG BREAK EXPECTED.

Reported Disruption in the Ranks of Granite Manufacturers.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—It is expected at Quincy that there will be a big break in the ranks of the Quincy Manufacturers' Association unless the Association comes to some understanding with the locked-out granite cutters.

Three members of the Association who are dissatisfied with the long lock-out, threaten to leave the Association if the struggle is continued.

They are perfectly well satisfied with the proposal of the men to compromise on a March 1 date for the bill of prices to terminate, and if the Association persists in holding out to make the date February 1 these manufacturers will leave it, sign the bill and open their yards.

Mill Hands Strike at Marinette, Wis.

Windle next tried the flying start, half, making it in 1:00 1-5. George F. Taylor lowered Zimmerman's flying mile to 2:08 1-5.

The New Jersey rider was then sent after Nancy Hanks a second time, eclipsing her record made on a regulation track by 1-5 of a second. His time was 2:06 4-5.

Yesterday he drenched the skirts of three women, and then turned and laughed at them. He should be hauled up before the court.

—The streets ought not to be sprinkled except with pure city water. The water used by French's cart, from the mill race, is very foul and offensive. It's odor is positively rotten, and the liquid must be full of disease germs. It leaves a permanent stink in the streets. The board of health has power to abolish the nuisance. Let it act!

—The local physicians are highly incensed at the News and Courier for publishing such sensational and outrageous articles attacking Plainfield's healthfulness. One of them said: "We're not surprised at the News, but we did think the Courier editor had some sense. He's lived here long enough to know better than publish such scandalous things."

Erickson, Marsh and Bird, accompanied by chairman Fisk, of the financial committee, and chiefs Doane and Martin and foremen Vroom and Ball, visited Jersey City, yesterday, and witnessed a fine fire-truck exhibition. The truck was of the famous Hayes pattern, and such an one will doubtless be purchased by Plainfield.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

DANGEROUS RAILROAD CROSSINGS SHOULD NOT BE LEFT UNGUARDED.

Simon Mantz of Plainfield Terribly Injured by the Cars—His Horse Killed—Two Doctors Striving to Save His Life.

Simon Mantz, owner of Walker's bakery on North avenue, met with a serious and possibly fatal acciden on the Lehigh Valley railroad at South Plainfield, this forenoon.

He was driving over an unguarded crossing at the end of a dangerous curve, when a fast train swept into view.

The locomotive crashed into the bakery wagon, completely demolishing it.

The horse was instantly killed.

Mr. Mantz was frightfully cut and mangled from head to foot, but miraculously escaped instant death.

When picked up he was bleeding from wounds all over his body. A local physician bound up his worst injuries, and the unfortunate man was brought in a country wagon to Plainfield. He was conscious when he reached home, but soon relapsed into insensibility.

Dr. Long and a Dunellen physician have been in constant attendance ever since Mr. Mantz was brought home, and his immediate relatives have been gathered together about his bedside, as it was feared he cannot survive the surgical operations that he is forced to undergo.

It is said that Mr. Mantz waited for one train to pass, then started to cross at the rear of it, when a second train came along on another track from the opposite direction and struck him.

LATER.

THE PATIENT'S RECOVERY POSIBLE.

Dr. Endicott is now in consultation with Dr. Long over the case.

The physicians say the worst injuries are to the man's head.

The scalp is frightfully torn, and the bone of the skull scraped.

It is feared that erysipelas may set in.

The doctors say that if Providence is good to Mr. Mantz, he may pull through.

PETER EMMONS STRUCK OUT.

Rare Frolic of Congenial Spirits at a Hospitable Mountain Home.

A merry party made a moonlight call on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark at their lovely home at Washingtonville, near the chapel, last evening. There were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. VanWinkle, Mr. and Mrs. A. Swalm, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. G. Q. Doliver, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force, Mrs. Garret VanWinkle, Mrs. C. P. Leggett, Mrs. G. L. VanEmburgh, Miss Jennie VanWinkle, Miss Lillian A. Force and Master J. H. VanWinkle, jr., all members of Mr. Schenck's Trinity church flock. They enjoyed very much the fine ride and the charming evening. Ex-street commissioner George Conover of the borough piloted them in his big stage. The visit was a happy surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Clark. The people were given a hearty welcome, and were liberally entertained with choice refreshments by host and hostess. College songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Clark and their sons, Robert and Edward. Games were played, and many a hearty laugh was relished over the frolic. Peter Emmons was the source of special amusement. He boasted that he never got left, but elder Doliver and counselor VanWinkle struck him out amid much laughter, and he was retired to the foot of the class.

Every one was heartily sorry when the time for departure came.

Slater and Gavin were therefore declared elected. They were empowered to fill their own vacancies.

SURE CHOLERA CURE.

Here 's something of Vital Interest to Everyone, at This Time of Threatened Plague.

A well-known Plainfielder has compiled the following valuable information concerning cholera and its cure:

The following extract is from an editorial in the Chicago Tribune of September 3:

The cable news from Hamburg states that great interest has been aroused by the introduction of a very simple but apparently effectual treatment for cholera. It is nothing more than copious enemas of warm salt water (injections into the bowels). It is claimed by some that the result of this treatment is truly marvelous, the death rate having been reduced fully fifty per cent. in a few days by this method of fighting the disease. In some cases a cure has been effected by it through the application was delayed till the patients were in such a state of collapse that it was impossible to discern the beating of the pulse, and this stage is usually regarded as beyond hope of recovery. It is claimed to cure almost every case when tried.

Cholera is a disease of the alimentary canal. The germs are taken in with the food or drink. The germs are supposed to multiply in the small intestines and colon. The sickness, griping pains and diarrhea, are caused by the tremendous efforts of the system to rid itself of the death-dealing poisonous agency. As about seven-tenths of the alimentary canals of the human species are constipated, or in a measure exhausted by the use of cathartics or in some way out of order, nature, unaided, is unable to cope with the disease and the patient succumbs, under the terrible strain put upon the nervous system, before the required evacuation of the bowels, is completed.

When the cholera germs have reached the bowels, as is the case when the disease manifests itself, medicine administered through the stomach will be slow in reaching the seat of the disorder and then can only mingle with the poison with the hope of neutralizing it. The chances are against such neutralization however. It is next to impossible for a sufficient quantity of medicine to reach the disease, scattered as it probably is throughout the entire length of the bowels, in time to kill the poisonous germs before they get in their deadly work. For this reason the drug system has entirely failed, thus far, in coping with this disease.

The warm or hot water injections reach the seat of the disease. It has been demonstrated, in thousands of cases, by those who are using the Dr. Hall system, that when a sufficient quantity of water is injected into the colon, it will not only find its way through the entire length of that organ, but will also find a passage through the convolutions of the small intestines as well. The water causes the sensitive muscles of the intestines to contract against its expansive force, with a consequent expulsion of their contents, together with the fetid corruption which is the source of the trouble.

This treatment is not only good for cholera, but for all its relatives, called Morbus Infantum, Cholerine, Dysentery, Diarrhea, etc.

Prevention is much better than cure, however. The best way to guard against the disease and ward off its attacks, is to keep the human house in order, so that there is in it no fetid matter for the disease germs to feed, breed and multiply upon.

It is suggested that weak ammonia water would be superior to salted water. For, as before stated in THE PRESS, the presence of ammonia gas in the atmosphere is credited with preventive qualities, it being noted that persons working about horse stables were not attacked by cholera in the former visits of the disease to New York.

As the coming summer will bring a grave danger from this scourge, every reliable remedy, or preventive should be given timely publicity.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

Various Notes of Special Interest to Plainfield Cyclers.

A. A. Zimmerman yesterday rode a mile in 2:06 4-5, with flying start. This is faster than the time made by the queen of the turf Nancy Hanks on a regulation track.

Cycling of all kinds has become very popular here, but the love for wheels has not yet become a craze, as it certainly has in some parts of Europe. In London, long tandem tricycles capable of seating eight or more passengers have been introduced, and one is now being used as a rival to the tram or street cars. The owner of the vehicle occupies the front seat, collects the fares, and steers, but the passengers have to provide the motive power, and if they do n't move their feet freely, very poor time is made on the journey. Such a means of locomotion would not prove a success here, but it is said that in London the seats are booked and paid for a week in advance.

Why Sullivan Was Beaten.

Why was John L. beaten? Because he was blind to the fact that years of dissipation had undermined his strength. Blindness of another kind may be stealing upon you just as unconsciously. Do not delay, therefore, having your eyes examined that you may now their real condition. A visit to Collier's is all it will cost you.

You see the last of Catarrh, if you'll take Doctor Sage's Catarrh Remedy. With the poisonous, irritating snuffs, strong caustic solutions, "creams," balms, and the like—you don't. They may, perhaps, help you for a time. But when Catarrh is driven from the head by such means, something else is sure to suffer. Usually, nine times out of ten, it's the lungs. With Dr. Sage's Remedy, there's a perfect and permanent cure, by sensible methods. The worst chronic cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. Not only Catarrh itself, but Catarrhal Headache, Cold in the Head—all the troubles that may cause Catarrh or may come from it.

There's either a perfect and permanent cure, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing—or there's $500 in cash for you.

The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy, in perfect good faith, agree and contract to give you one or the other.

MELON THIEVES PUNISHED.

They Utterly Destroyed Mr. Wilson's Fine Patch, and the Law Took Them in Hand.

James Wilson, who resides at New Market, had a fine lot of melons that he took a great deal of pride in showing to his friends; but when his attention was called to the fact that his melons were stolen and what the thieves could not take they had broken, his patience ceased to be a virtue. He has suffered the loss of his melons for two years. He took pains to find out the names of about ten boys and young men who were among those who destroyed his melons. He then went to the squire's, and swore out a warrant for them for petit larceny. They were tried and adjudged guilty, and were fined $4.50 apiece; and were warned if ever they were caught at such tricks again they would be charged with malicious mischief and sent to jail.

The Slander Sheets at Their Dirty Work.

The News and Courier are again trying to scare people to death over one isolated and effectively quarantined case of scarlet fever. If there is the most meagre chance to spread abroad the impression that Plainfield is in the throes of a plague, the Courier and News may be relied on to blacken the fair city's reputation.

GUARDING AGAINST CHOLERA.

Railway Cars to be Watched in New Jersey—Action of the State Board of Health—Agreement of the Railroad Companies—Now Commuters Will Hold Their Noses.

The State Board of Health of New Jersey, as a result of a recent conference with Gov. Abbett, has just issued a circular letter to the various railroads and transportation companies in the State, with a view to warding off any impending danger of a cholera epidemic, and asking of them such sanitary system and police regulations, as will permanently improve the conditions for healthful travel.

The letter is issued by President C. F. Brackett and Secretary E. M. Hunt and urges that there be immediate sanitary inspection and cleansing of all cars and station fixtures. All waiting rooms must have clean floors, clean seats, clean walls and in general, evidence of the most thorough house-keeping; closets, sess-pools, and sewer connections must have daily attention; all cellars, coal or furnace pits, beneath buildings, must be examined and put in the best sanitary condition. All water holders as well as the water in them must be above suspicion.

All cars must have daily cleaning and the most minute attention paid to water and water holders in them, to the closets, and to the condition of floors and seats. Scrubbing, wiping, and disinfection must take the place of the ordinary care. Carpets or rugs must be dispensed with in passage ways. There must be some method for the speedy separation of any who are taken seriously ill. Car loads of mingled compost passing along railroads and often side-tracked amid populous villages must not be allowed; new vigilance must be given to all transportation of animals.

Already the leading railroads of the State have made prompt response to a private address. Secretary Hunt feels confident that because of present warnings, and of the prospect of special travel next year, the railroad companies will find it their policy to spare no sensible efforts to secure great reforms in railroad sanitation. The board has been assured of the full support of the State authorities in the exercise of the powers conferred by Chapter 68, Section 8, Laws of 1887, in case of need, and believes that this care of the great highways of travel is a matter of the most vital importance in preventing cholera and in limiting its spread should it occur.

HIS ARREST KILLED HIM.

Henry Palmer, Accused of Obtaining Goods by False Pretences, Dies in Court.

Henry Palmer, aged 32, died suddenly Thursday afternoon in justice Blauvelt's court at Newark from excitement caused by his arrest at the instance of the Sherman Outfitting company, who have a branch in this city, for obtaining goods under false pretences. This company sells furniture and apparel on installments, and Palmer, just before he died, explained to the justice that he bought some trifling things of the company when he was at work, and that shortly afterward he lost his place and had been unable to get work for several weeks. He was handing justice Blauvelt a collar button, one of the articles purchased, when his face twitched, his hands were thrown up above his head, and he fell to the floor dead.

At 182 Eighth avenue, Newark, Palmer's wife and seven children are destitute. Mrs. Palmer was distracted yesterday afternoon upon receiving tidings of her husband's death. County physician Wrightson viewed the body, and concluded that death was caused by heart trouble, brought on by mental agitation.

Cheap Burglar Alarm.

A new use for the newspaper after it has been read has been discovered. Already it serves a multitude of purposes. The latest form its usefulness has assumed is as a burglar alarm. Spread a good sized newspaper across the hall floor The burglar cannot leap over it without making a noise. The same result will attend an effort to fold it up, and to walk on it will arouse the house. Spread a few newspapers on the stairs, one on the rail, so that the man cannot take to that, and sleep in peace until the crisp rustle comes that lets you know of danger or the cat. There can be no silent prowling over newspapers.

To Rebuild the Old South Plainfield Bridge.

Yesterday the Middlesex Freeholder committee on the South Plainfield bridge over Green brook met at the bridge, accompanied by counsel H. B. Willis. Evidence was produced by the neighbors that the bridge has been a county bridge for the last forty years. The committee decided that the county will rebuild the bridge upon the condition that J. W. Brinker, owner of the mill adjacent, shall maintain the gates connected with bridge, also the abutments and approaches forever, while the county will maintain the flooring and the bridge proper. An agreement to this effect has been sent to Mr. Brinker, and as soon as he signs it the work will go on.

Give Mr. Garretson His Due.

As the circumstances of the occasion are now recalled by those connected with it, baggage-master Jeremiah Garretson is entitled to a very large slice of the credit for first proposing the Hon. Grover Cleaveland for president in 1892. It seems he was the first to come to THE PRESS office and suggest the printing of a banner; and it is also a fact that he held one end of it as the train in which was seated the ex-president, flew past.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. A Constant Incentive to Consecration.

At a special meeting of the Children's Home association held on Friday, Sept. 9, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove suddenly from a long and useful life our friend and associate, Mrs. Helen M. Eaton; therefore Resolved, As an association we bear our testimony to her faithful service through many years. Her loving heart and interest in the children carried her often far beyond her strength.

Resolved, That we will cherish her memory as a constant incentive to more entire consecration to our work for the little ones.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, be entered on the records of the association and published in the city papers.

GREAT LOSS TO FARMERS.

Their Prize Fruits Stolen by Wholesale, or Recklessly Ruined.

The farmers in the vicinity of Washingtonville are incensed over the series of petty thievery that has taken place lately.

Daniel Acker has a fine lot of sweet corn which he expected to bring to market. But when he went into the corn patch he found some one had taken advantage of the light moonlight and the fact that he had gone to sleep to pick about five hundred choice ears.

On learning of this, his neighbor, Robert Clark, visited his patch, when he found it stripped of every eatable ear.

Augustus Wilson has a fine peach orchard, and when he went to it the other day he expected to pick about 30 baskets of peaches, but found some one else had picked them through the night. Besides breaking limbs loaded with fruit, they shook off a great many green ones which will be a total loss.

Melon patches have been invaded with impunity, and the melons broken off the vines; the largest ones tapped, and if found unripe were smashed on the ground.

Some one will be caught; and the pleasure of being entertained at the expense of the county, or the privilege of paying for the damage, will be accorded them.

PECK'S REPORT.

ABSURDITY OF HIS CLAIMS FOR M'KINLEYISM.

His Rash Conclusions Groundless—General Growth of Prosperity, Not McKinley, Did the Work—Progress in Spite of Protection.

Labor Commissioner Peck, of Albany, has prosecuted an investigation and made a discovery. He has investigated "the effect of the tariff on labor and wages" and discovered that protection is a boon and the McKinley law a blessing.

It would hardly seem to be the function of the state bureau of labor statistics to go into partisan politics, especially in the midst of an exciting campaign. But Commissioner Peck, seeing that the Republicans were fighting for protection and the Democrats fighting against it, felt it to be his official duty "to establish the truth or falsity of the premises taken by the two great political parties of the country." Accordingly he set out to investigate the condition of labor in this state the year before and the year after the McKinley law took effect.

He discovered that in the industrial field he covered there was an increase in the latter year of $30,000,000 in products, $6,000,000 in wages and $28 in the average yearly earnings of workingmen. As this prosperity appeared after the enactment of the McKinley law, therefore, as the situation looked to Commissioner Peck, the McKinley law must be the cause of it.

This conclusion, with the figures from which it was drawn, is duly set forth in the ninth annual report of the bureau of labor statistics, the essential part of which The Herald has already published. The Republicans have hailed its publication as a boom for protection from a Democratic official in the greatest of manufacturiug states, and will doubtless flood the country with it as a campaign document. Some of our Democratic contemporaries, on the contrary, seem to be affected by a feeling of indignant amazement, bordering on panic, that a Democrat should put forth such a report at such a time.

Now let us see what Peck's discovery amounts to. He finds first that more products were turned out and more wages paid in manufacturing industries in 1891 than 1890. Well, what of that? It is just what any well informed person would expect. The increase in the aggregate of wages and products in manufactures has always been as steady and sure as the increase in population. That great truth prevailed in this country long before the McKinley bill was ever thought of, and it will prevail long after that law disappears from our statute books. Had Commissioner Peck extended his investigation backward he would have found in every year before the McKinley law a volume of wages and of products greater than that of the preceding year.

The industrial march of New York may be demonstrated by comparison of the federal census manufacturing statistics of 1880 with those of 1870—the figures for 1890 not yet having been published by the census bureau. In 1870 the value of manufactured products was $628,000,000; in 1880 it was $1,080,000,000. In the former year the amount of wages paid was $114,000,000; in the latter it was $198,000,000.

This shows during the decade a yearly increase of more than $45,000,000 in the value of products and nearly $8,500,000 in the amount of wages. A more striking progress could be shown in the decade between 1880 and 1890 if the figures for the latter year were available. Yet when Mr. Peck discovers an increase between 1890 and 1891 of $6,000,000 in wages and $30,000,000 in products he thinks it can be attributed only to the McKinley law.

Mr. Peck made no inquiry into the prices of the necessaries of life or the cost of living. The nearest he comes to dealing with the rate of wages is to report an increase of twenty-three dollars in the yearly average of earnings. A comparison of federal census statistics on this point discloses a yearly average of forty-eight dollars higher in 1880 than in 1870. Turning to Mr. Peck's annual report for 1888 we find that he then went into this question by asking nearly 5,000 employers whether the prevailing rate of wages was higher or lower at that time than in 1883. Twenty-nine hundred reported that the rate was about the same, 1,650 replied it was higher, and less than 450 said it was lower. The result of all the replies was a marked advance.

These figures are sufficient to show that an increase in the rate of wages or in average yearly earnings is to be attributed to the McKinley law with about as much certainty or reason as the exceptional strikes of this season are to be attributed to the nearness of Mars. As for the volume of wages and that of products they have steadily and naturally risen with industrial progress. This progress, like the advance of national prosperity, has gone on and will go on under high tariff and low tariff. It has gone on in spite of excessive protection.—New York Herald.

"One Cent a Day."

A Republican speaker abandons the cry that the foreigner pays the tax and resorts to mathematics to show how easy it is for us to pay it, claiming that "one cent a day from every person in the United States would pay the duty on all our imports."

But one cent a day is $3.65 a year; and for a laboring man with a wife and five children this would amount to $25.55 a year. Our population is now about 67,000,000; and one cent a day for every man, woman and child means a yearly tax of $244,000,000—to say nothing of what the domestic protected industries collect for themselves.

By a judicious mixture of shoddy woolen goods are made cheaper than before the McKinley law. "A cheap coat makes a cheap man," indeed, when adulteration is the first requisite to a covered back. The foreigner, poor as he is, has at least woolen clothing. His rags we can use, ours he cannot.—St. Louis Courier.

ABRAHAM W. SMITH.

Nominated for Governor by the Republicans of Kansas.

Hon. Abraham W. Smith, the republican candidate for governor of Kansas, is a native of Maine, and is forty-nine years of age. His education was acquired in the common schools of his county, and at the age of nineteen he enlisted in the army. Falling a prisoner in September, 1863, he was confined in the Andersonville prison for a year and a half, when he was released. The iron regions of Pennsylvania attracted him, and he secured employment in the Cambria mills as a day laborer, and gradually worked his way up to the position of foreman. He remained there several years, when he settled on a farm in McPherson county, Kan. He displayed a taste for politics, and was soon recognized as a leader, his county electing him to the legislature five successive terms. In the winter of 1887 he was made speaker of the house of representatives, which distinction brought him into prominence as a candidate for governor four years ago. He was, however, defeated in the nominating convention by Lyman D. Humphrey, the present governor. Mr. Smith has been actively engaged in agriculture during his entire residence in the state of Kansas. He is president of the state board of agriculture and the state world's fair bureau. Last year he was unanimously elected president of the National Farmers' congress, made up of the leading agriculturists in the United States. Mr. Smith has the reputation of being an able legislator, a forcible and convincing public speaker, and a gentleman of irreproachable character.

A TYPICAL FISHWIFE.

Discovered by an Englishman in the City of Boulogne, France.

In Boulogne it matters not whether emperor or president reign, the steamboats pass to and fro and hotel touts compete keenly. And the auctions go on in the fish market every day, and the women and girls still wear the white-frilled halo caps. The slim, daintily-shod girls broaden into the "flesh and blood" of the dames de Halle, and so life goes on. I do not know, writes a Pall Mall Budget correspondent, if there be any women's suffrage agitation here. I think not, for women already seem to have their rights assured. The man is sent out to catch the fish, but when he has done his duty he is a quantite negligeable. The women do all the negotiation and bargaining, and Jean and Pierre and Jacques, after a spell ashore, are sent away again. Wife beating! I should like to see the man who would lift his hand against a "Dame de Halle!" Her tongue would pulverize him. At the head of the pier in the evening a fishing boat goes sailing out into the west, and as she passes out between the pier heads and disappears into the dusk the women who stand watching cross themselves reverently.

No Soap at the Posada.

"The first night in Barcelona," says an American artist, "I went to a sort of posada in one of the by-streets, and managed to get a room by paying in advance one peseta, which was rung on the table with an evident suspicion of its genuineness. Having two days' railroad grime upon me, I thought it a comparatively small favor to be allowed to wash my hands. On timidly inquiring of one of the servants I was led to a little toy tin affair containing water, and was furnished with a towel about large enough to dry the hands of a medium-sized clock. But when I asked for soap I was stared at in a manner that made me very uncomfortable. I have not asked for soap since in Spain, for I do not wish to lose my life by violence, having voted for slow death by starvation in the cause of American art."

Odd Turkish Superstitions.

If a cat enters a chamber where a person is dying, and manages to pass over his or her body before being driven from the room, both the dying person and the cat become vampires, and live ever after by sucking the blood from living people. If one finds a piece of bread lying upon the ground he must pick it up, kiss it and carry it until he finds a hole into which it can be inserted. To step upon a piece of bread or to leave it lying upon the ground is one of the unpardonable sins and dooms the offender to the third hell, where he is perpetually gored by an ox that has but a single horn, that in the center of his forehead.

He Had Observed It.

"By the way, Johnson," said the man who was looking over the new Chicago Directory, "have you noticed how the Johnsons lead the Smiths this year?"

"Hum—yes," replied young Mr. Johnson, somewhat embarrassed. "I expect to—er—to lead one of the Smiths to the altar next week myself."—Chicago Tribune.

if it is made with Cottolene, the new pure substitute for lard. Cottolene is simply pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet, two of the healthiest foods known.

Properly combined they are better than lard for all kinds of shortening, and everyone can eat, digest, and enjoy food cooked with it. Food that was indigestible when cooked with lard is easily digested when cooked with Cottolene, and many of the leading housekeepers of the land say they can make nicer bread, rolls, biscuit, cakes, cookies, ginger bread, pies, patties, tarts, griddle cakes, croquettes with Cottolene than with either lard or butter. Get it of your grocer and try it. Beware of imitations.

ARMED REBELS AT FIRE ISLAND

They Do Not Want the Place To Be a Pest Hole for New York.

MEN OF ISLIP THREATEN TO BURN THE SURF HOTEL.

GOVERNOR FLOWER ON THE SCENE.

The Cepheus, on Which Are the Passengers of the Normannia, Not Allowed to Land—They Were Transferred From the Worthless Stonington and Are Worse Off Than Ever—One Death Yesterday and Three New Cases on the Scandia—The Situation in Hamburg.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Sep. 12.—Men from Islip, Babylon and other points on Long Island, appear to have decided to prevent the landing of quarantined passengers by force if necessary. They defy the Governor and the State health officers, and claim that their "common rights" justify them in guarding Fire Island from intrusion by people who may be infected with cholera.

They intimidated the pilot last night so that he refused to bring in the Cepheus, and they threaten to burn the Surf Hotel, unless the attempt to use it for a quarantine station is abandoned.

Twenty of the men have been sworn in as special constables, and they have over 100 assistants. The men admit that they are armed, and declare that they will not give way to New York policemen, or any one else.

Forty French cooks and waiters, who were sent down from the Hoffman House, were stopped at Babylon and stoned. They were not permitted to embark for Fire Island.

Gov. Flower came down from Albany this morning to direct operations in person.

The munificent gift of the Sound steamer Stonington for the reception of the cabin passengers of the Normannia proved of little present avail. The boat was pronounced unseaworthy, and after she had been filled with passengers fleeing from the plague stricken Normannia it was found that there were not facilities enough on the Stonington for properly cooking their food. Accordingly the Normannia's cabin passengers were transferred again, this time to the iron steamboat Cepheus, which it was thought would land them as quickly as wind and tide would permit on Fire Island.

But, as above stated, the men on Fire Island determined to prevent them from landing at all hazards.

Cholera caused one death on the Scandia and there were three new cases yesterday.

The death list of the Scandia now foots up to 38, including two unknown. Fifteen cases have developed on her so far.

Now that the infected ships are clear of their passengers, the question arises as to what should be done with them. Of course the companies are anxious that they be allowed to proceed to their docks after thorough fumigation and a reasonable detention, but it has been suggested by not a few that they be sent back to the ports from whence they came or to any other port outside the United States that is willing to receive them.

Just or unjust, Dr. Jenkins is coming in for a goodly share of abuse. The charges made by the Normannia's passengers have caused considerable adverse comment, and on the whole, many hard things are being said about him.

The chief topic was the alleged lack of fresh water on board the Normannia. When Captain Hebich's charge that the ship had been without a supply for two or three days after her arrival, during which time she had to depend on the supply in her tanks brought from the river Elbe, the doctor said the allegation was true. On the ship's arrival he had ordered her water supply boiled for the purpose of purifying it, and as it was the business of the Hamburg line to supply water as much as any other class of provisions, he had notified the company to that effect. They later reported it impossible to get water boats to go to the lower bay, owing to the crews, they being in fear of infection.

If the company did not furnish the water, the doctor said, he failed to see how he could be held responsible for their short-comings.

At the end of the second or third day finding the ship still without water he had sent one of the tugs at his command, with three thousand gallons drawn from local reservoirs.

As to the charge that disinfection and fumigation had been neglected, the doctor denied emphatically that such was the fact, because the work had been performed under the supervision of Dr. Sanborn, one of his most valued assistants.

He said the complaints of the cabin passengers were unreasonable in as much as they could not be permitted to leave their own part of the ship, to inspect the quarters of steerage and thus invite possible infection.

It is reported that a petition is being circulated by Mr. A. M. Palmer's family physician, addressed to the State government, demanding the removal of Dr. Jenkins.

When asked about it the health officer was inclined to believe that the alleged effort was the result of his refusal to grant special privileges to the physician in question, the latter wishing to go alongside the Normannia, in which Mr. Palmer is a prisoner, in a steam yacht.

Dr. Jenkins to-day shows strong evidences of the strain on both mind and body which he is undergoing, and it would not be surprising should he break down.

Quarantine officials express the belief that it will not be necessary to detain the Normannia's passengers on Fire Island longer than a week, that is, of course, if cholera does not break out among them, and that the passengers transferred to Sandy Hook may be dismissed at the same time. As to the immigrants on Hoffman Island, there is no knowing how when they will get away, as the disease has shown itself there every day during the past week.

12,000 CASES, 7,000 DEATHS.

The Record in Hamburg Up to Date—Plague Not Decreasing.

HAMBURG, Sep. 12.—The expectations as to the abatement of the plague are not realized. Yesterday there were 810 fresh cases, or 22 more than Saturday. To-day there have been 798 fresh cases, or 12 fewer than yesterday, and 281 deaths, or 24 more than yesterday.

The number of persons in the cholera hospitals and barracks on Saturday was 8,124, and to-day has been 8,289. A city physician says that the average rate of mortality has been two cases to every five. To-morrow official statistics for the whole plague will be given out by the municipal government.

There is much curiosity to know whether the sanitary officials have chosen to acknowledge that they have published falsehoods, or to keep on publishing falsehoods.

The agitation in Berlin in favor of curtailing the State rights of Hamburg has given a new motive for concealing the truth, and many influential citizens have secretly advised the authorities to minimize in their report the ravages of the plague, in order that the Imperial government may have less excuse for interfering with the city affairs.

The most conservative figures place the number of cases until to-day at 12,000, and the number of deaths at 7,000.

The want of food among workingmen's families increases and Social Democratic organs call for government loans to alleviate it. They say that there are 15,000 persons in Hamburg who are absolutely destitute, with hardly clothes to cover them, and neither money nor food from one day to the next. The suburbs, Hammerbrook, Horn and Barmbeck, are said to contain the largest number of impoverished families, and for all three immediate relief through government loans is demanded.

If such help is not forthcoming soon, the Social Democratic editors prophecy the city will experience such desperation and misery as no city has experienced since the revolution of 1848-49.

The President Replies to Gov. Abbett.

LONG LAKE, N. Y., Sep. 12.—President Harrison has replied to Governor Abbett's protest against the use of Sandy Hook as a quarantine camp, and also to his complaint that infected articles from the quarantined ships were being tossed into the bay with reckless disregard of health, that the Attorney-General would be instructed to look into the legal points involved in the case; that the Secretary of the Treasury would see that every precaution would be taken if the camp is established, and that the steamship companies would be warned to desist from the reckless practice or take the consequences.

Russia's Cholera Report.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 12.—The decline of the cholera, shown by recent official figures, was only temporary. The official figures for the whole of Russia for Wednesday are 4,679 new cases and 2,858 deaths, an increase of 918 new cases and 927 deaths over Tuesday. In St. Petersburg Friday 100 new cases and 25 deaths were reported, showing a decrease of three in new cases and six in deaths since Thursday.

The Stubbenhuk at Her Dock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The German steamer Stubbenhuk, which left Hamburg Aug. 21, reaching this port on Sep. 3, and released Saturday afternoon, is now at her dock discharging her cargo. The Stubbenhuk was stopped at Lower Quarantine on the morning of her arrival and kept there until the afternoon of the 4th, when she was ordered to Upper Quarantine, where she was anchored until released.

Immigrants for New York.

ANTWERP, Sep. 12.—The steamer Pennsylvania has started for New York with 600 immigrants. One death from cholera has occurred in the hospital in the last 24 hours, and three new cases were admitted. Fourteen deaths have occurred at Boer in the past week. At the docks 700 small vessels have been disinfected. Dock laborers are supplied with cocoa gratis.

PANAMA, Via Galveston, Sep. 12.—According to the quarantine regulations now operative at all Columbian ports, every passenger originally from a cholera infected port, arriving on shipboard, must present, before being admitted, a certificate signed by the Columbian Consul that he has resided in New York for ten days before sailing.

The Cargo of Rags Can't Come In.

Run Into and Sunk at Sea.

AMESBURY, Mass., Sep. 12.—Advices received here state that the new British steel ship Nora D. Hooper, Capt. J. A. Silloway, was run into and sunk and that the crew, with the exception of the second mate, who was lost, had been landed at Havre, France.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 12.—Nothing official has been received at the State Department concerning the reported resignation of Minister Porter, but the report is generally believed in official circles.

SAY A STRIKE IS INEVITABLE.

The Reading Difficulty—Deciding Conference To-Day.

CHICAGO, Sep. 12.—Grand Master Wilkinson of the Order of Trainmen held a conference yesterday with several men occupying various positions in the railroad labor organizations. The conference was held behind closed doors. Two representatives of local railroad labor organizations were closeted with the company for over two hours. It is said the subject under discussion was the trouble on the Reading.

Mr. Wilkinson is now on his way to Philadelphia to meet the heads of the other railroad organizations. As to the anticipated strike, this is what Mr. Wilkinson had to say: "I cannot tell you anything of the matter beyond this: For a long time the men on the Reading Railroad have been complaining of the treatment they received. Now they have organized."

It is the opinion of Chicago men that a general strike on the Reading Road is inevitable.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 12.—The most prominent labor leaders in the country will be present at the conference with President McLeod to-day at the Reading Railroad's general offices in this city. They will include Chief Engineer P. M. Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, P. H. Morrissey, Chief of the Brakemen's Union; S. A. Wilkinson, Chief of the Trainmen's Brotherhood; Chief Ramsay of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and Chief Clark of the Order of Railway Conductors.

F. P. Sargent, the head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, who is in Cincinnati, was telegraphed to attend, but replied that the business of the annual convention would prevent him.

As President McLeod will undoubtedly adhere to his declaration that all employes must be members of the Reading Relief Association and that no new men will be hired on the Reading system who belong to any labor organization or will join such, the outcome of the conference is awaited with interest.

PECK HAS NOT RESIGNED.

He Characterizes the Published Report as Ridiculous.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sep. 12.—A local paper announced that Labor Commission Peck had resigned and that the resignation had been requested by Gov. Flower. Mr. Peck was seen at his home to-day and said: "The report is perfectly ridiculous. I have no intention of resigning and nobody has mentioned such a thing to me. You may say that there is no truth in it."

It is said that Mr. Peck's counsel will try and secure delay at Kingston, and that even if Judge Fursman gets out a writ of peremptory mandamus, allowing E. Ellery Anderson to look over Mr. Peck's figures, a restraining order will be immediately issued by some other judge in the Supreme Court.

$70,000 Fire in Pittston, Pa.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sep. 11.—A destructive fire broke out in Pittston last evening. The Twin mine shaft and five dwellings were destroyed. The fire department and many citizens fought the flames for five hours before they could be extinguished. The loss will aggregate $70,000 and three hundred miners are thrown out of work.

The Engineer Was Killed.

EASTON, Pa., Sep. 12.—A collision between a detached engine and a mixed freight train occurred on the Central road at Springtown, N. J., yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. Both engines and a dozen cars were wrecked. Henry Lott of Phillipsburg, N. J., was killed, and Harry Billany, engineer, of Mauch Chunk, was injured.

Plattsburg's Big Fire.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sep. 12.—The distruction of the big kindling wood factory by fire Saturday falls heavily on the owner, Benton Taylor, as there was little insurance on the concern. Besides the owner's loss one hundred men are thrown out of employment.

Burris Located in Paris.

NEW YORK, Sep. 12.—Elliot Burris, carriage cloth commission merchant of 58 and 60 Worth Street, who disappeared from the city July 6, having drawn $8,000 cash from his bank and left liabilities of about $150,000, has been found in Paris.

THE ENGINEER BLAMED

Said He is Responsible for the West Cambridge Wreck.

THE DEAD NOW NUMBER NINE.

Thirty-six Injured, Some of Them Fatally—Three of the Hurt Died Yesterday—Horrible Scenes at the Wreck—Engineer Goodwin Had No Right to Run by the Signal, Even Though it Were Foggy.

BOSTON, Sep. 12.—To a dense fog and apparent carelessness on the part of the engineer of the freight train is to be charged the fatal accident on the Fitchburg Railroad shortly before 11 o'clock Saturday evening, at West Cambridge, by which six were killed and many injured, three of whom have since died.

The official investigation into the cause of the accident will undoubtedly result in placing the blame where it belongs, but the railroad men themselves do not hesitate to charge Engineer Goodwin of the freight train with the responsibility. The switches at the junction of the Watertown branch with the main line are moved from a signal tower and are protected by signals, which, under the interlocking system now in such general use by the railroads, cannot be wrongly set, and which, if seen and obeyed, will prevent even the possibility of accident.

That Engineer Goodwin ran by one of these signals set at danger is clearly apparent. It is also evident that had he seen and obeyed the signal and brought his train under control, as the rules of the road require, he would never have crashed into the rear of the passenger train.

While the fog may have obscured the signal from Goodwin's sight, it is said the rules of the road require that he should come to a full stop if necessary to see and read it before passing.

The complete list of killed and the injured so far as known follows:

KILLED.

S. J. SULLIVAN, 50 years old, a pawnbroker, of No. 12 Norman street, Boston.

Harry Elliott, 69 Moore street, Newton, cuts and bruises.

Thomas Cane, Watertown, painful bodily injuries.

Thomas Lennon, Watertown, cuts and bruises.

John Cullin, Watertown, slight injuries.

Michael Mullin, Watertown, badly hurt.

Mrs. Stevens, painful injuries.

Mrs. Welch, Watertown, back injured.

Richard Hollis, Watertown, side and chest hurt.

The passenger train was heavily loaded, as is always the case on Saturday night, and had arrived at the junction, where it was waiting for an east bound freight to pass before crossing the main tracks to the Watertown branch road.

While the train was standing on the main line, the express freight, which had followed from the Boston yard, crashed into the rear car, crushing it to pieces, and jamming its human freight beneath the ruins.

The force of the collision smashed the front end of the boiler and cylinders, and the escaping steam added horror to the situation of those already imprisoned.

As quickly as possible, word of the accident was sent to Boston, Cambridge, Waltham and other points within reach, and physicians were on the spot as quickly as they could get there by different modes of conveyance.

The work of removing the dead and injured was commenced, and the station at West Cambidge was converted into a morgue and hospital whither the victims were carried.

Many of those taken from the wreck were terribly scalded, in addition to their other injuries.

Several terribly mangled and badly charred bodies were taken from under the wreckage several hours after the accident.

Elmer Smith, of Fitchburg, was a passenger on the wrecked train, having taken it by mistake, and intended to leave it at Waltham.

He was seated in the next to the rear car, with his feet on the seat, in a doze. He was thrown violently to the floor by the shock, and says that nearly every person in the car was also thrown down.

He says that two men and a boy jumped from the rear end of the car, and that they were the only persons in that car who were not bruised in some manner, many being seriously hurt.

He says the engine ploughed through the rear car, splitting it in two, carrying death before it. He was completely unnerved by the shrieks and cries of the wounded, and hopes never again to be called upon to witness another such scene.

The dead and injured lay in every direction, and ambulances and wagons were taking the dead and injured to the hospital as fast as they could be loaded.

The passengers in the other four cars of the train were terribly shaken up, many being thrown from their seats.

He said that nearly every seat in the rear car was occupied when he passed through it before the train left Boston.

The work of removing the victims progressed as rapidly as possible, ambulances, express wagons and other conveyances being pressed into service.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

CONVERSION MAY CONDEMN HER.

In Religious Frenzy a Woman Tells of a Murder and Gets Arrested.

MILLERSBURG, O., Sep. 12.—Mrs. William Johnson recently became converted and confessed to some ministers holding revival services at Dresden that ten years ago she poured oil on the clothes of her weak-minded sister-in-law and set her on fire, letting her perish in the flames.

She told of this while in a state of religious excitement attendant upon her conversion. The ministers, after consultation, reported the matter to the grand jury, which thereupon found an indictment of murder in the first degree against Mrs. Johnson, and she has been placed in jail to await trial.

It was ten years ago when the people in the vicinity of Tunnell Hill were startled by a cry of fire which came from William Johnson's house. Among the first to arrive were near neighbors, who plainly heard the shrieks of a woman inside the house.

Forcing their way partially within they saw in the flames in an inner room the form of Mr. Johnson's sister. The fire had obtained such a start that they were unable to effect a rescue.

Mrs. Johnson was the only other member of the family around at the time. She said that Martha poured oil upon her clothes and then set herself on fire, with evident suicidal intent. Martha was weak-minded. The story was not doubted then.

KILLED DAUGHTER AND HERSELF.

Desperate Deed of Mrs. Cora Targetta of Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sep. 12.—Mrs. Cora Targetta, a widow aged 30 years and her daughter Ethel, aged 11, were found dead in bed yesterday morning at 2099 Mervine street by Mr. Alexander, from whom they rented their room. Four gas burners were turned on at full head and the room was tightly closed to prevent the gas escaping.

The mother was a proof reader at the "Times" printing house until two weeks ago, when she resigned to take a rest. She had been a long sufferer from neuralgia and it is supposed became insane through despondency, imagining she had brain trouble.

It was believed Mrs. Targetta turned on the gas after the daughter was asleep. She was in comfortable circumstances, having been left a snug income by her husband, who died eight years ago.

Latest Returns Give Fuller a Majority of 17,000.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Sep. 12.—Returns received from all of the 243 towns in the State, except Croton and Stannard, Caledonia county, give Fuller (Rep.), 88,646; Smalley (Dem.), 19,115; Allen (Pro.), 1,439; scattering, 291.

Assuming that the vote of the two towns not heard from is relatively the same as those reported, Fuller's majority over Smalley is 19,695, and over all, 17,900 in the whole State. Comparing the vote with 1888, the Republican loss is 9,078 and the Democratic loss, 341. Comparing with 1890, the Republican gain is 5,899, and the Democratic loss, 194.

The returns show 44 Democratic Representatives elected, 19 less than 1890, and two citizens' candidates.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Washington, Sept. 12—Forecast till 8 p. m. Tuesday: For New Jersey, Showers; Easterly Winds.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The sale of furniture on September 13, at 101 Duer street, North Plainfield, is postponed indefinitely. T. J. Gillies.

—The Democrats of Piscataway township will meet in Maier's hall, Dunellen, to-morrow evening at 8, to organize a campaign club.

—A most foul-smelling hole is the sewer-basin at Peace and Second streets. Especially after nightfall are its noxious vapors offensive.

—Just now when cholera is knocking at the door, swill wagons are permitted to drive through Plainfield's streets with the barrels uncovered.

—The regular meeting of the Cleveland and Stevenson campaign club will be held this evening at 8:30 at its rooms in the Crescent rink building.

—The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, will hold a called meeting to-morrow afternoon at 4:30 in the parlors of Vincent chapel.

—The fine condition of the newly macadamized section of East Fourth serves to emphasize the wretched state of the pavement on Broadway, which badly needs repairs.

—Once more has the advice of THE PRESS been heeded. The borough fire-gong now gives its daily test-blow at the decent hour of 7 p. m., instead of the unearthly hour of 9.

—Simon Mantz, who was struck by a Lehigh Valley train at South Plainfield, Saturday, passed a bad night at his home on North avenue, last night. It is feared that erysipelas may set in.

—If in a contest between two gladiators one of the fighters gains the victory by foul play, is n't the other justifiable in refusing to meet him again? And is n't the same thing true of base-ball? Make a local application, Crescent League.

—Somerville's team Saturday cost $155 outside of its expenses. Sharrott alone was paid $20 in advance and $15 additional after the game. Mr. Mack is counting on Plainfield making up the cost to him next Saturday. Stay home, Crescents, and make him pay it out of his own pocket.

—George Conover has opened a livery stable at Somerset street and Manning avenue, and is prepared to let out fine driving and saddle horse. His equipment is excellent in every respect, and he is sure of liberal patronage. When you want a most enjoyable drive, call him up by telephone (No. 44) and engage your team of him. He has a large new stage, seating 24, to rent for picnic excursions.

—If Plainfield plays Somerville Saturday, Sharrott will pitch, and the case for Plainfield will be more hopeless than ever. Remember how hard it was to win against Sharrott when he pitched for Westfield and was handicapped by having a catcher who could not hold him and for whose sake he had to let up in his pace. What could Plainfield hope to do against Sharrott with the great Jocko Fields to hold him?

—The Plainfield local union of Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor will hold an interesting meeting at the First Presbyterian church, Dunellen, on Thursday evening at 7:45. The Rev. William C. Dolan, of Westerly, will give an address, taking for his subject: "Christian Endeavor as a Moral Force." Mr. Dolan is an able and entertaining speaker, and a profitable as well as pleasant time may be expected.

—After the game Saturday, the Westfield and Elizabeth players and heelers present crowded around the Somervillians and heartily congratulated them on the result of the conspiracy between the three towns to rob Plainfield. Manager Mack thereupon invited them all to "Come up next Saturday to Somerville, boys! we're going to have a love feast and I should be very happy to have you join us". And Mr. Mack is expecting Plainfield money and help to pay for it all. Will he get it?

—E. S. Lyons, manager and part owner of the Roberts livery stable on North avenue, has long been dissatisfied with the service his patrons were getting. He proposed that they should have the best attention in the land, yet feared his employes were careless and neglectful. A close watch and investigation convinced him that his suspicions were correct, so he has made a clean sweep in the establishment, discharged every employe and engaged a new set. He says there has been gambling among the men and Saturday he found four gallons of whiskey stored away for Sunday use.

THE GLORY IS PLAINFIELD'S.

TO SOMERVILLE BELONGS DISGRACE AND OBLOQUY.

Victory Gained by Foul Methods Over the Crescent League—The Plainfield Management Protest the Game, and Refuse to Consider It a Regular League Contest—Disruption Ended the League a Week Ago, and Plainfield Is Therefore Tied with Somerville for Leading Place.

The Central New Jersey Base-Ball League ended last week with the disbanding of the Westfield and Elizabeth teams, and the standing of the four teams at the close of the disrupted league season must go on record as follows:

CHAMPIONSHIP RECORD.

	Plainfield	Somerville	Elizabeth	Westfield	Games won
Plainfield	x	1	6	4	11
Somerville	3	x	4	4	11
Elizabeth	0	2	x	3	5
Westfield	2	2	1	x	5
Games lost	5	5	11	11

	Games won	Games lost	Per-centage
Plainfield	11	5	.687½
Somerville	11	5	.687½
Elizabeth	5	11	.312½
Westfield	5	11	.312½

As long as a game with Somerville had been scheduled for Saturday, however, the Crescent League management did n't care to disappoint an expectant public, and so the Crescents went bravely into a hopeless, unfair, unequal contest against an aggregation of Somerville, Westfield, New York and St. Louis players. But the Plainfield management protested against the imported hirelings on the Somerville team, and refused to consider the game as one of the championship series in a league which no longer existed.

The Crescents played a good and plucky game, but their colts were of course far outclassed by such an aggregation of old National Leaguers. Sneden pitched a good game, and the fielding of the Crescents was of a sharp and superior order; but the imported Leaguers were experienced in run-getting, and might easily have made the score 17 to 1 if they had half-tried. There was no use bucking against such an unfair combination, and the great throng of people could get up no enthusiasm over the exhibition of pigmies, though never so valiant, fighting against giants of a class far above them. Chicago herself could n't have whipped that much-padded West End team.

Not only were the Plainfielders heavily handicapped by the force of the mob against them, but they played in the hardest kind of luck, as seen in the record of 8 men left on base and 15 long flies captured by the fleet-footed West End fielders. Many of those flies deserved to be base hits; and many of those men on bases would have scored, had there just been a little more Crescent luck at the opportune time.

But it all was a hopeless fight, nevertheless. Sharrott and Gore and Fields could bring in runs whenever they desired, and Somerville herself did n't need to do anything but depend on her hirelings.

Though Sneden pitched a good game, it was somewhat erratic. For instance, he gave not only Carbonell his base on balls after he had two strikes on him, but Cadmus as well, and Cadmus especially was dead easy to strike out. And the costliness of bases on balls is seen in the fact that twice were they responsible for runs.

The contemptible tactics of Gore won hearty dislike from the spectators. Once when the ball was fielded in to shut him off at the plate Hofford had him out by six feet; but Gore plunged viciously into him and knocked him over and over, causing Hofford to drop the ball, and making the run score. That's Somerville method all over.

Of the seven runs, New York, Westfield and St. Louis as represented by the imported hirelings were directly responsible for 5, and indirectly responsible for the other 2. So Somerville does n't deserve the least particle of credit.

How the runs were made is familiar to everyone, for all the town was there, and there is no need of going into details.

As if there were n't enough imported hirelings engaged to win the game for Somerville, the strongest of the Elizabeth and Westfield players were on hand to help if necessary.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. I. A DAY OF MANY WRECKS.

Fatal Accidents Reported from All Parts of Central New Jersey.

Yesterday seemed to be a fatal day in the history of the Jersey Central and Reading railroad companies.

Early in the morning a wild-cat engine going from Hampton Junction to Phillipsburg crashed into the rear end of a coal train when near Springtown station, wrecking both trains and blocking the tracks for nearly ten hours. Passengers were transferred around the wreck until far into the afternoon.

The engineer of the wild-cat engine, Henry H. Lott of Phillipsburg, jumped when he saw a collision was inevitable and was instantly killed, being buried under the ruins of his own engine. Harry Bellamy, another engineer, of Mauch Chunk, was badly injured. The coal and freight cars were wrecked.

About the same time in the morning the rear car of a Long Branch train jumped the track at a broken frog near Claremont, and was overturned. The passengers escaped with the exception of one woman who was badly injured. It has since been reported that she has died.

In the early evening the passenger train which leaves Plainfield at 7:05 when near Cranford struck and killed an unknown man. It was apparently a clear case of suicide, as the man was walking directly toward the train when the engine struck him in the breast and killed him.

The Philadelphia and Reading also had their share of disaster yesterday. About 3 in the afternoon a long freight train was wrecked near Belle Mead. Thirty cars filled with merchandise were demolished, and the contents were scattered over the tracks. They at once caught fire, and in a short time everything was burned. The cause of the accident was a broken rail. It was said that two brakemen perished in the flames, but it has since been denied.

Train No. 9 of the Lehigh Valley railroad, leaving New York at 2:15 p. m. on Saturday, arrived at New Market safely on time, but in starting out from the station both cranks of the locomotive wheels broke, and a delay of one hour was the consequence before the train could proceed on her way. Fortunately, no one was injured.

Frank Jones arrived in this city early this morning from an extended trip through the Prohibition State. He reports having had a fine time, and plenty of sport with the rod and reel, but his face assumes a far-far-away look when he tells about that 20-pound cod which—got away.

—No more Somerville in ours!

—William Smalley, of North Plainfield, was, he says, set upon by his brother-in-law, last night, without provocation, and badly pounded in the face.

—At 9:30 Saturday evening a telephone call was sent the central office from Netherwood saying there was a fire near Hand's brick yard. Chief Doane was notified and the steamers were ready, but before starting the chief asked for further particulars and received word that the fire was out.

BASE LIBEL ON PLAINFIELD.

Ungrateful Blackguard Sheets Spreading Slander Broadcast Against the Town Whose People Give Them Their Daily Bread.

As a result of the publication of libelous articles in the News and the Courier attacking Plainfield's reputation for healthfulness, papers throughout the State and country are publishing all sorts of stories calculated to keep people away from the Crescent city. Here is a sample of the scare heads appearing everywhere:

SCARLET FEVER IN PLAINFIELD

THE DISEASE BREAKS OUT IN THE HEART OF THE CITY.

The News is a perpetual disgrace and injury to the town, and the Courier is fast following in its footsteps.

ENTERPRISING BUSINESS MOVE.

Morris VanArsdale Withdraws from the Shoe House of Which John H. Doane and Seely Edsall Assume Control.

Seely Edsall has again given proof of his enterprise as a progressive business man by deciding to add to his already great business a fine shoe department. He has purchased Morris VanArsdale's interest in the firm of Doane & VanArsdale, and the business will be continued under the firm name of Doane & Edsall.

An archway will be cut through the wall of the two adjoining stores, and the stores will thus be thrown into one. With a shoe department, Edsall's will be complete in every particular, and the business will be a great credit to the community.

Another Refutation of the Slander Sheet's Falsehoods.

Now it is the North Plainfield Board of Health that is up in arms against the Somerset street slander sheet. That journal said on Friday that there was a case of malignant scarlet fever on Pearl street. The borough board of health authorizes THE PRESS to deny utterly the story, and state that there is no case whatever of scarlet fever in North Plainfield. A mild case of measles exists on Pearl street, and that is all. The local physicians and health authorities are highly indignant at the News's outrageous falsehood.

—As a first baseman Freddy Jones can't be beaten. He covers the bag "out of sight".

Rosy cheeks are not made from the outside. Pure blood, an active liver, good appetite and digestion—these are the things that give them. And these are the things that you get with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

First and foremost and above all things, it purifies the blood. Not only in March, April, and May, when the sarsaparillas claim to do good, but all the year round, it cleanses, renews and invigorates the system, raises every organ into healthful action, and drives out blood-poisons of every name and nature. For the worst forms of Scrofula, the most stubborn Skin and Scalp Diseases, such as Salt-rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all diseases or disorders caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

If any thing could, it would be guaranteed, just as the "Discovery" is. If that fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. Is any thing that isn't sold in this way likely to be "just as good?"

See that you get the genuine medicine

LET THIS BE THE LAST!

PLAINFIELD SHOULD NOT ASSIST IN SOMERVILLE'S DISHONEST WORK.

Manager Mack Has Betrayed His Own Pledge of Honor, and Deserves Not the Slightest Consideration—There Is No League, and Plainfield Would Be Foolish to Play Into Somerville's Pocket—Instead of Another West End Farce, Let There Be a Players' Benefit.

The advice of THE PRESS to the management of the Plainfield Crescent League base-ball team is to give up an unfair and unequal contest and play no more games with Somerville.

Somerville has once more proved herself false to every profession of honor. She has made promises and has broken them. She has demonstrated that her words are a deceit, her pledges a pretense and a fraud, her principles a shameful mockery on integrity. By the help of National Leage hirelings, she has wrested merited honors from the Plainfield team, and has secured by foul tactics the coveted first place in the Central New Jersey championship series.

When the league season first opened, manager Mack of the West Ends was the first to make the proposition "Let us have no George Gore business this year!" The wily Hebrew knew that Somerville's methods were viewed with distrust by Plainfield, and he hastened to give his assurances that he would not resort to his old-time trick of importing rare players of a higher class to beat Plainfield on critical occasions. The pledge thus proposed by Somerville was accepted, and Plainfield gave its word of honor, as did all the other league team managers, that the players should be restricted to a certain class. The managers were permitted to secure the best men available outside of the big League ranks, but into that League they were not permitted to go. Hence the games began with four properly-constituted and evenly-matched teams in the field. If any one of these four teams was especially stronger than the others, that team was the Crescents', for the selection of players for Plainfield was made with the rare judgment of painstaking discrimination and long experience; and each man was assigned to his position in accordance with his personal fitness. The men were carefully drilled under the steady, reliable guidance of a captain whose leadership inspired self-confidence; and perfect teamwork, the great essential to victory, was the result.

To-day Plainfield's list of players is of exactly the same class as she opened the season with; indeed, they are not only the same identical men as have worked for her not only all this season, or the greater part of it, but some of them are men who have been with the Crescents for years.

In this as in every other respect, Plainfield has kept its pledges. But who can say the same of Somerville!

The record—the shameful, disgraceful record of duplicity and dishonesty—of Somerville, is known to all the base-ball world. Crooked work has characterized the West Ends' methods ever since Somerville found that with her fair and square team she was gradually losing her grip. Plainfield steadily kept up her even, honest pace; and by hard work and earnest, upright effort slowly but surely advanced towards the championship goal ahead of all competitors.

"Anything to beat Plainfield!" became the war cry. The town's own papers acknowledged it. Manager Mack's own organ brazenly confessed in bold-faced type that "Manager Mack would stop at nothing to defeat the Crescents!"

Where were the pledges of the crafty, unprincipled fellow! Where were the assurances that there would be no hiring of George Gores this season!

The value set by Somerville on her word of honor may be estimated from the fact that the first man she sought to secure in padding up their team to wallop Plainfield was the redoubtable Gore himself. She strove hard to get him time and again, and finally succeeded in hiring for a fabulous sum the player who had won so many games for the New York and St. Louis League teams, and who once before had consented for a consideration to help Somerville in its dirty work of stealing triumph honestly due to Plainfield.

Not only Gore of New York and St Louis, but Jocko Fields, another famous leaguer, did Somerville secure. In every conceivable way, by underhand trickery, was the West End team braced up, and at the last pinch manager Coding of Westfield, it is charged, joined in the piratical scheme and sold out Sharrott to the robbers.

Sharrott and Fields and Gore, the three old leaguers, are the men who won last Saturday's game from Plainfield. The credit is New York's, St. Louis's, and Westfield's. The discredit, dishonor, disgrace, are Somerville's!

When men of integrity arrange a series of races among trotting horses, they put the contesting steeds into classifications according to their records and their speed. It would be mainfesty unfair and dishonest to permit 2:20 horses to trot as equals against those of the 3-minute class. Just such differences exist between the big league players and those of the minor leagues; and to pit one set of men against those of a much higher and superior rank, in a useless and hopeless contest, is the height of folly.

Somerville is certain of victory, if Plainfield plays her again. Of the triumph she is confident, and now concerns herself only as to the money the game will bring her. She will get all of the gate receipts, in case a game is played, and Plainfield will pour funds into her treasury. That money is just what Somerville is greedily itching for. She has expensive players on her hands, hired at enormous expense to rob Plainfield of the pennant. She wants Plainfield to contribute heavily towards their salaries. The advice of THE PRESS is: Let her put her hand into her own pocket, and pay her hirelings as best she can. Cancel this week's game, and quit Somerville and her corruption forever.

The money! the money! the money!—that is all Somerville is hankering after and calculating, now. She has bought her supremacy with a price, and is anxious to bleed the Plainfield public to pay the cost.

What would Plainfield gain by going to Somerville. Added expense would be hers, and not a cent of income. She could not possibly win the game; and even if she did, what would be accomplished? She would still be tied with Somerville and Somerville would say: "We 've got our gate receipts, you can whistle for your deciding game!"

That's just the way Somerville plays her dirty tricks on Plainfield, and then laughs. Manager Mack himself acknowledges that there is no longer any league, and impudently sneers: "What are you going to do about it?" He virtually admits that when Westfield and Elizabeth disbanded that ended the league. Therefore Saturday's game between Plainfield and Somerville was not a league contest. The league games ended a week ago Saturday, the last time all the four teams played; and Plainfield is still at the top of the list, with Someville tied for first place.

The Crescent masgement said Saturday: "Mr. Mack, we protest Gore and Sharrott! You have never given notice of signing Gore since he went to St. Louis, and you haven't signed Sharrott." Mack replied: "Well, there's only you and me. You vote for your protest, I vote against it. What are you going to do about it?" The old cry, that, of fraud triumphant over others' trampled rights.

"What are you going to do about it", Crescent League! There is but one thing to do, for men who have stood faithful to their pledges. There is but one thing to do for men who would maintain their dignity and stamp with their disapproval and disdain the contemptible deeds of a dishonest opponent. Spurn the serpent with your heel! Shun the enemy as you would a viper.

An outraged community stands ready to sustain your course, Crescent League, in refusing further games with Somerville. Spare yourselves the humiliation and undying disgrace of abetting piratical robbery! Be strong; quit you like men!

End the local base-ball season this week by a good honest old fashioned game on your own grounds, for the benefit of the faithful undaunted players who have served you so well. Enter not into the camp of the enemy, for within those gates unmerciful slaughter and ruthless pillage await you!

Blessed is the man who walketh in his integrity. Assert your firmness of spirit, your moral courage, and withstand with dignified unconcern the vile assailments of the wicked whose hirelings have despoiled you. You have fought a good fight; you have kept your faith. Honest men who are true to their pledges of honor are greater and far more mighty than the wicked who by fraud and deceit acquire flashy honor and worldly glory and capture a base-ball pennant. The just shall be beloved and honored at the judgment-seat of decent people, but the wicked shall sink into obloquy and oblivion.

ACTUALLY RESERVED SEATS.

Numbered Coupon Tickets Sold by the Adam Forepaugh Shows.

The reserved seats which will be introduced here by the Adam Forepaugh shows will be an agreeable novelty in themselves. They are said to be as commodious and as comfortable as the best seats to be had in a first-class theater. They are reserved by coupon tickets, numbered so as to correspond with the numbers upon the seats. No one can occupy one of these seats without holding the ticket which is issued for it at each performance. The purchaser of the ticket will, therefore, find his seat awaiting him when he reaches the shows—no matter how late he may be in his coming. The seats are really actually reserved seats well worth the reasonable trifling amount asked for them. With this sort of seats and tents that are water-proofed and made absolutely and entirely impervious to rain it will be seen that every effort possible to secure for the patrons of the Adam Forepaugh shows the same degree of comfort that the finest of theater affords. The compulsory correct deportment of all the attaches of the shows lend no small amount of aid to that end. In all component parts the Adam Forepaugh shows are a high-class, gilt-edged concern throughout. As they will here on Friday, the 23rd inst., everything pertaining to them is of more or less interest just at present as it seems that everybody is bent upon seeing them. There is no doubt about their being well worth the seeing, and there will be a general disappointment if they do not prove to be very much the best and largest shows that will have ever visited this city. Wherever they have been so far this year the newspapers declare unqualifiedly that they are, and such a unanimity of favorable opinion would not be expressed if it was not merited.

Sousa's Band to Play in Plainfield.

John Philip Sousa gave his last White House concert with the U. S. Marine band, July 30, to a great throng of people who gathered to see the great leader conduct the government band for the last time. The President called him to the south portico, and bade him a regretful good-bye, and wished him every success in his future position as Director of the New World's Fair band, organized for him by the Blakely syndicate. This band will be heard in concert here soon, and there is quite a widespread desire to hear it, as it promises to surpass anything heretofore heard in that line.

The Seeds of the Grove Were Washed Ashore.

Harry Campbell has just completed a deal for the famous Forrest orange grove. It is a natural grove. The seeds were washed on the shores of the Halifax river from a shipwrecked vessel, thirty-three years ago; and since the orange industry has become so famous in Florida the trees have been budded, thus making one of the finest groves in the State. The fruit from this grove took first premium at the Ocala fair in 1891, and as Messrs. Kelly & Campbell market most of their fruit in this city, Plainfield may look for prize oranges this coming season. They expect their first shipment about Nov. 10.

WALKER OFF FOR VENEZUELA

Sent There to Check the Aggressiveness of Great Britain.

CALLS OF THE SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLIC FOR AID.

The Admiral Directed to Pursue a Vigorous Policy in Dealing With the Situation—His Three Vessels to Confront Three English Ones—The Most Important Mission That Has Been Entrusted to an American Naval Officer for Years.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 12.—There are good reasons for believing that the sealed instructions which were yesterday delivered to Admiral Walker on board the Chicago entrusted him with a mission more important, perhaps, than any that has been confided to an American naval officer in recent years.

The protracted conference which President Harrison held with Acting Secretary of State Adee on his recent visit to Washington; the long consultation between Secretary of the Navy Tracy and Mr. Adee before Admiral Walker's instructions were finally agreed upon; the carefully worded official statement given out through these dispatches that Admiral Walker "was directed to pursue a vigorous course in dealing with the situation, especially in connection with foreign aggression," all take on new significance when the fact is stated that Admiral Walker's mission to La Guayra with his squadron will be to proffer the friendly intervention of the United States to the Venesuelan authorities, whoever they may be by the time he arrives out there, for the purpose of preventing the final absorption of Venesuelan territory by Great Britain and further to secure the restoration of the status quo as to boundaries as it existed prior to 1877, and to obtain consent for the submission to arbitration of the question of title to the territory in dispute between the two governments.

The keynote of the whole expedition is to be found in the following extract from a dispatch addressed to Mr. Blaine before his resignation of the State Department portfolio, by Mr. Peraza, the Venesuela Minister at Washington.

"The Hon. Mr. Blaine is already aware that agents of the government of Great Britain have taken possession, unduly and forcibly, of the port of Barima, at the mouth of the Orinoco, which up to that time had been possessed by Venesuela, whose title to it was indisputable. It is only necessary to cast a glance at the map of South America in order to see the vast importance of this aggressive step of Great Britain. When a European maritime power has once obtained a foothold at Barima, it absolutely controls the Orinoco river and its numerous afluents. Through that artery it may penetrate as far as the Rio de La Plata. This is not a danger which threatens Venesuela alone; it threatens all Ameria, and is more serious than the possession of the Panama canal by a European power.

Mr. Peraza, on behalf of the Venesuelan Government, earnestly and almost pathetically begged the United States Government to intervene to prevent the republic from final disruption and to secure the submission to arbitration of the question in dispute with Great Britain.

Of course the Venesuelan Government is not prepared to resist these bold encroachments, otherwise they would hardly be attempted. The government here has been endeavoring for more than six months past to re-establish diplomatic relations, restore the status quo of 1886, and have the question of boundary referred to arbitration, but without the slightest prospect of success.

It may be that with a powerful United States squadron in the harbor of La Guayra, under the command of an admiral especially instructed to aid and assist to the full extent of his power, Venesuela may be able to renew the overtures for arbitration to better purpose. Honors will at least be easy so far as the display of physical force is concerned.

Immediately after the consummation of the seizure of Barima the British authorities ordered three war steamers of their Barbadoes squadron, the Bellerophon, the Emerald, and the Partridge, to rendesvous in Demerara waters for the supposed purpose of intimidating Venesuela and securing acquiesence in the seizure.

Admiral Walker's three cruisers, the Chicago, the Concord, and the Kearsarge, will very neatly offset the British squadron and will just a little out-class them.

TRANSFERRING INSANE PATIENTS.

Changes Ordered by the New York State Lunacy Board.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sep. 12.—The State Commission in Lunacy have issued orders for the transfer of the remaining insane patients, 29 in number, in the Broome County Alms House, and 61 patients now in the Willard State Hospital, who formerly resided in the counties of the Southern tier, to the Binghamton State Hospital, in order to have them nearer their friends and relatives for convenience of visitation.

These 100 patients will just fill the second of the State care cottages which have been erected on the grounds of the Binghamton State Hospital.

The vacancies thus created at the Willard State Hospital will be filled by the transfer thereto of 70 patients from the Buffalo State Hospital, which is at present somewhat crowded.

The Servia in Collision.

LONDON, Sep. 12.—The steamer Servia, which sailed from New York on Sept. 3, reached Queenstown yesterday. Capt. The vessels came together with little force, and neither one was damaged.

Want Corbett and Jackson to Fight.

NEW YORK, Sep. 12.—The Coney Island Athletic Club proposes to offer as much as any other athletic association in the country for a contest between Jackson and Corbett, and it is the belief of the management that it will succeed. FOR CHARITY'S SAKE.

Young Women Who Devote Their Lives to a Good Cause.

The Chicago Training School and Deaconess Home—The Talented Woman Who Founded the Institution—Rules of the Establishment.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

"She spoke of justice, truth and love,
How soft her words distilled;
She spoke of God and all the place
Was with His presence filled."

So says Miss Frances Willard in her introduction to a book by Mrs. Lucy Rider Meyer on "Deaconesses."

"A deaconess? What is that?" You will probably ask as did a voice at my elbow when a remark had been passed on a sweet-faced woman in a black peasant's cloak and quaint bonnet, who had just boarded the car and sat down opposite.

"One of a noble order of women from the Methodist church, who visit the sick and the needy and who have consecrated their whole lives to city missions," was the low reply.

Questions as to the origin of the society would be best answered by going to the mother of the deaconess movement, whose dwelling place is a handsome five-story brick edifice on the North side, at the corner of Dearborn avenue and Ohio street.

Pausing to note the legend inscribed on the side of the steps leading to the outer hall, we see in large letters: "Chicago Training School for City, Home and Foreign Missions."

On ringing the little bell in the vestibule, the visitors are greeted by a young woman with a grave, sweet face and a Bible. She is on her way to class.

"Mrs. Meyer? Yes, she is in. Please be seated," and we are left in the soft embrace of great arms belonging to Sleepy Hollow chairs, which form a part of the luxurious furnishings of the room. Here to the left is a windowed alcove, peopled with big Japanese vases. An upright piano, with its companion, a laden music rack, guarded by a handsome engraving, occupy another space. A beautiful Japanese cabinet, with its wonderful contents of Oriental pottery and other curios, invites curiosity in a corner, and a chief beauty of the apartment is the wide, triple-arched window looking toward the southern sun, crowned with stained glass and curtained with soft white silk.

Further comment is checked by the entrance through the wide-arched doorway of a little, big-eyed woman, whose plain garb and smooth hair remind one of nothing in the world so much as a little, brown-coated wren; but what an unlimited amount of melody is in the wren's small compass!

This diminutive personage, with so much fire in her eye as she talks, has an inexhaustible fund of resources within herself; she is a writer, a lecturer, a teacher, and an untiring worker in all. By her efforts, supplemented by those of her noble husband, Dr. J. S. Meyer, this wonderful work was organized and carried on from a mustard-seed beginning of four students six years ago to its present proportions of 115 pupils, two large buildings here and the Wesley hospital on the South side, nearly 500 young women sent to labor in the vineyard, besides the remarkable record of having aided 21 and completely equipped 18 of the 27 deaconess homes in existence.

MRS. LUCY RIDER MEYER.

This was accomplished in a large measure, in its beginning at least, by the same bright idea that Miss Willard later turned to account in securing by penny banks the great sum of money to build the Woman's temple.

Small collection books were scattered broadcast through the land, each containing a clipping from one of Mrs. Meyer's papers read before a preachers' meeting, when she was agitating the deaconess movement. The clipping read:

"Can a twenty-five thousand dollar home be built out of nickels? That sum would give us a home, large enough for a few years, in a healthy location in this city, yet near enough to the crowded and degraded localities to furnish abundant opportunity for practical work. There are one million women in the Methodist Episcopal church of the United States to-day. Some one pleads for a penny a day from each of these women for the cause of missions. I would not ask that—three hundred and sixty-five cents every year—but five cents from each, not once a day, or once a year, but once a life time—five cents, the despised nickel, that we hand out so readily for a street-car fare or the daily paper—and fifty thousand dollars, twice the amount asked for, would be in our hands for this building!"

There was, as in Miss Willard's case, a generous response, and since by solicitations, lectures and procuring other subscriptions the present property belonging to the home, amounting to $64,000, was acquired. The services of all the teachers, resident and non-resident, including the principal herself, Mrs. Meyer, and the business superintendent, her husband, are gratuitous.

Of the teachers and directors, eight are resident and thirty are non-resident.

A word may here be said of Miss Eva Gregg, a young woman who entered the school little over two years ago, after graduating at the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant, Ia., and who is such an untiring worker in the cause and proved so efficient that last year she was made assistant principal.

Mrs. Meyer has written for several years stories for children, which have all found their way into such periodicals as Harper's Young People and the Youth's Companion; she is also the author of three books.

But she is very modest indeed about the great good she has accomplished.

"You see," she says, deprecatingly, "people have been so very good to us in contributing so nobly to the support of the home."

"But you were the one who talked to them and raised the money by hard work and lecturing," puts in Miss Gregg, who has entered unseen.

"Yes," replies Mrs. Meyer, with her rare smile. "But God blessed the seed and caused the harvest and not I. You see," turning again to the visitors, "we saw such need for better Bible education on the part of our young people.

During the three or four years of my traveling Sunday-school work in Illinois and other states, I became greatly impressed with the astonishing, and to me alarming, ignorance of the Bible on the part of our church people, Sunday-school teachers and Christian workers. My own knowledge of the Word of God was superficial enough, but when I saw people looking for Jude in the Old Testament or for one of the minor prophets in the new, I realized the great need of more thorough and comprehensive Bible study on the part of those who were or might become religious teachers."

"Then, too," remarked Dr. Meyer, who had come in at the dismissal of the noon class, "she had seen how many of the workers in the field, both at home and in foreign lands, had failed through lack of knowledge of ways to get and how to meet emergencies. They had met with many things they did not expect, and grown faint-hearted because of them. Here may be secured a thorough training in Bible study, nursing the sick, house-to-house visitation, Sunday-school work and all the many branches of religious teaching."

Producing here the annual report of the school, he showed with great pride what he considered all the work of his wife, keeping himself generously in the background.

The report showed over 4,000 calls made in the work, more than that number of tracts distributed, and over 12,000 children taught in the Sabbath school, over 6,000 in the industrial school, besides numberless cases of distress and destitution relieved the count of which they left with the All-seeing Eye.

The young ladies in the school are required to be over twenty years of age, to furnish a few articles necessary to the equipment of their rooms, to pay $3 a week for board, lights and fuel, the house being heated by steam and lit by gas. This, excepting $5 or $10 for the year's books, is all the expense necessary, no charge being made for tuition.

In addition to this, each lady is expected to assume her share of the general light house work of the home, the time allotted to each girl being one hour daily, except in case of sickness or great emergency. Those who desire to be excused from the hour of house work on account of health, or for any reason, pay $5 weekly instead of $3.

The students of the school do not wear uniform, only the deaconesses and the nurses being required to do so.

Deaconesses are of two kinds—nurses and visitors or evangelists. Both are educated fully in Bible doctrines. The training usually occupies two years, the course beginning in September and ending in May.

It is a band of noble, true women doing a great work.

Apropos of the visiting, several amusing anecdotes were told. One teacher tried to impress her class of boys that they must pray for the Holy Ghost, and one of them replied, promptly: "My pa don't believe in ghosts."

A visitor found a woman one day struggling with two babies. She urged her rather abruptly to be a Christian and was electrified by the response, in an aggrieved tone of voice: "Be a Christian! Look at them twins!"

REPULSED BY THE ARMED MOB

Passengers on the Cepheus Twice Driven Away From Fire Island.

MONSTROUS INHUMANITY TO HELPLESS WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

SENATOR M'PHERSON'S VAIN APPEAL

The Normannia's Passengers, Who Were Transferred to the Cepheus, Are Without Proper Food and Bedding—Conference Regarding the Injunction Prohibiting the Using of Fire Island for a Quarantine Station—What Governor Flower Would Do If He Were Captain of the Cepheus—No New Cases on the Islands or on the Infected Fleet—Reports of the Plague from Many Quarters.

NEW YORK, Sep. 13.—The armed rebellion of the Babylon and Islip "baymen" against the landing of the Normannia's cabin passengers on Fire Island is as yet victorious.

The Normannia's 488 first and second cabin passengers are still afloat, in spite of the orders of the Governor of New York and of the Health Officer of this port.

Dr. Jenkins refuses to accept for the Normannia people ample accommodations offered by the Federal government at Sandy Hook. It is said that his action in chartering the Cepheus was taken without consultation with the Quarantine Commission.

Although Fire Island is nine miles from the nearest point on the mainland and separated by an expanse of salt water, the panic stricken crowds of Islip watched all night to prevent the landing of passengers. The fleet of plague ships is now less than nine miles from this city.

There have been no new cases of cholera on any of the ships on the islands within the past 24 hours.

The attempts to land the Normannia's passengers from the Cepheus yesterday proved abortive, and were accompanied by scenes of violence.

Another Attempt to Land.

The Cepheus was sighted at 1:05 o'clock, twelve miles west of Fire Island, making for the inlet with the flood tide in her favor.

Word was received at 1 o'clock from Lawyers Reed and Fischel, of Babylon, that Justice Barnard had granted a temporary injunction, restraining the landing of the Normannia's passengers from the Cepheus.

The dispatch caused great excitement among the people assembled on the island, who became more than ever determined to prevent the Cepheus from touching at the pier.

The people on the pier declared they would use force if necessary to keep the Cepheus off.

At 2:20 the Cepheus rounded the point, after coming through the inlet. As the crowd caught sight of her the greatest excitement prevailed. Three hundred men gathered around Supervisor William Young, and up went every hand as that official swore them in.

The injunction papers were expected to be brought on the steamer Ripple from Babylon. Dr. Voight, on hearing that the mob had been sworn in by Supervisor Young, approached the Supervisor and showed him a dispatch from Dr. Jenkins appointing him a Deputy Health Officer and giving him command of the Fire Island Quarantine Station.

Mr. Young, who is President of the local Board of Health as well as Supervisor, said that he did not recognize Dr. Jenkins' jurisdiction over Fire Island.

Dr. Voight then said:

"As a special health officer and in the name of the law, I command you to order this crowd to disperse. And I warn you that all who remain commit a violation of the law, which will be duly punished."

This utterance was received by the crowd in dead silence, and the mob then moved toward the pier. The Cepheus arrived in front of the pier at 2:30. The mob had lined up on the pier armed with clubs and firearms.

Turned the Hose on the Mob.

The pressure of the mob was so great that the passengers could not get through.

Orders were given for the crowd to disperse, but no attention was paid to them, and the officers and crew of the Cepheus began to play the hose upon the crowd on the pier.

The crowding of the mob was successful in defeating the efforts to land the passengers.

After a time a second attempt was made with a like result. The Cepheus then backed off and anchored in the channel.

Officers Driven Off.

After the Cepheus came to anchor, two police officers rowed to the landing and asked that a letter be taken to Dr. Wright. The mob refused to allow the letter to come ashore, and drove the police officers off with threats. As it was getting dark and no satisfactory answer had arrived from the first boat, a second boat put off from the steamer, rowed by two police. In the stern stood a tall, gray-haired man, Robert Thompson.

As he approached the landing, the mob gathered threateningly. He asked to be heard in behalf of the 200 women and children on the steamer, who were suffering from hunger, exposure and exhaustion. After several minutes of insulting retorts by the mob, he was allowed to speak.

He said the men on the steamer did not ask to land. The young women would remain, if necessary, but the old women, some of them grandmothers, and the children, suffering, not for comforts, but for decent care, should be allowed to land. They would be returned to the steamer after a night's rest and one meal.

Attorney Willard P. Reid answered that if the captain of the steamer would come ashore, the people for whom he spoke would consider the request.

Mr. Thompson returned to the steamer after saying that he would attempt to bring the captain back with him. When the boat came back a tall, spare figure was seen, standing in the bow.

"It is Senator McPherson of New Jersey," called out Mr. Thompson, who was still in the stern. Senator McPherson stood silent for some moments looking at the mob. He could dimly see the crowd at the edge of the water ordering the police back when the boat drifted too near.

Senator McPherson's Appeal.

"Citizens," said the Senator, at last, "the captain declines to come ashore. If you will give me your injunction papers I give you my word of honor I will give them to him, and he will accept them as legally served."

The crowd clamored for the captain to come ashore.

"If we can bring him ashore, will you agree to let these suffering and helpless people land?"

"They cannot land," yelled the mob. The Senator turned his face up to the mob, and in an impressive voice said: "I appeal to you men, in the name of God, not to be longer led into heartless cruelty by this attorney, but to give your consent that these women and children can be taken from this boat."

The crowd still refused, but finally the Health Board allowed food and blankets to be sent to the unfortunate passengers.

Both Sides Determined.

The State authorities are to show cause Thursday as to why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Both sides are determined in the fight. Gov. Flower declares that Fire Island will be used as was intended when bought by the State, and that the passengers will be landed, even under military protection if necessary. Of course, the decision of the court will be obeyed, but the State authorities have no fear of serious delay from that quarter.

Will Resist Invasion.

A close watch is being kept over the hotel and cottages by heath officers from New York as it is feared that an attempt will be made to burn them down.

Many of the men of the village of Babylon are armed and say that they will resist the threatened invasion of the Normannia's passengers. Justice of the Peace James B. Cooper says he fears the hotel and cottages will be burned if a landing is attempted. It is thought, however, that the State already has a sufficient force of men now at Fire Island to cope with the baymen and villagers should they attempt any more violence.

Situation on the Islands.

The situation on the islands in the bay is thus described by Dr. Byron in his report to Dr. Jenkins:

There are no cases of gastric or intestinal trouble among the Rugia's passengers.

On Hoffman Island Max Sithwern, aged 2 years, who has bronchitis, is improving. The personal baggage of the Normannia's passengers is being disinfected and fumigated. All patients O. K. for the past 15 hours.

On Swinburne Island all O. K. for the past 15 hours, and all patients are on the way to recovery. Up to midnight there had been admitted to Swinburne Island hospital 121 persons; of these, 56 were suspects; 27 were treated; 14 were admitted dead; 13 died in the hospital; 11 were transferred to Hoffman Island, and 1 was discharged.

Of the deaths, 8 occurred within 2 hours after the time of admission.

The French liner La Champagne has been added to the cholera fleet in the lower bay. She was anchored in Upper Quarantine, and it was believed she had no sickness on board, when it was suddenly discovered that one of the stokers was ill. An examination disclosed unmistakable symptoms of Asiatic cholera, and the man was removed to Swinburne Island and the steamer ordered below.

Conference at Upper Quarantine.

The most prominent feature of the day at Upper Quarantine was the visit of Gov. Flower and Representative Bourke Cockran, who arrived from New York about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and held a conference with Dr. Jenkins on the cholera situation, and more especially in regard to the injunction issued against the Governor by Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court, restraining the former, or his agents, from taking possession of Fire Island as a place of refuge for the passengers on the detained pest ships.

The conference was held on the police steamer Patrol. It is impossible to learn the exact nature of the discussion, or what result, if any, was reached, but at its conclusion the three gentlemen came ashore and went direct to the telegraph office and kept the wires hot for some time.

On being asked whether he would insist that the island be secured, by force, if necessary, the Governor said that no matter what were his personal wishes, he was bound, as Governor of the State, to not only obey the mandates of the court, but it was his duty also to see that others did not violate the law.

He had not been officially advised of the action of Judge Barnard in restraining the State from taking possession of the island, but, assuming the report to be trustworthy, he was endeavoring with aid of Mr. Cockran, to learn what rights he had under the statutes. He had not yet fully satisfied himself that the injunction was legal, and would further consider the matter.

The Governor said, however, that if he was captain of the Cepheus he would make a landing at Fire Island and willingly serve two months in jail for the infraction of the law in order that the people on the stricken ship could at least live in comfort while they were detained under the law.

Before leaving Quarantine the Governor authorized Dr. Jenkins to provide blankets, provisions, etc., for the passengers on board the Cepheus, now lying at the pier at Fire Island, which was promptly done.

The rumor that Senator McPherson, Commodore Thompson and other influential people of the Normannia's passengers had been allowed to go on board the tugboat Peruix is without foundation. They are, without exception, with the other passengers on board the Cepheus.

Gov. Flower says: "The feeling, as first voiced to me from Babylon and New Islip against the occupancy of Fire Island, was intense. If the senders of them were placed where the passengers are, with deaths occurring daily under their feet, they would think no sacrifice too great to relieve them.

"Sober second thought will convince them that Dr. Jenkins's action is wise and for the best interests of the whole country, as well as their own homes."

Gov. Flower's Plain Words.

Doubtless the most important factor of the entire sequence of occurrences was Gov. Flower's suggestion to the health officer just before leaving for the city. In few words, the Governor advised Dr. Jenkins that if the people on the Cepheus could not be landed on Fire Island because it may appear Suffolk county has the law on its side, then he ought to take the bull by the horns and "let them go up to New York city. They are as well as you or I," being about the Governor's exact words. It is understood the Governor will issue a proclamation commanding the sheriff of Suffolk county to disperse all assemblages in attitude of rebellion to the wishes of the State. Bourke Cockran will endeavor to have the injunction set aside, because of a flaw which makes it defective.

Palmer Not Asking for Privileges.

Dr. Jenkins has received the following letter:

Steamer STONINGTON, Sep. 11.

DR. JENKINS,

My Dear Sir:—I am distressed to notice in the papers that Dr. Robinson is censuring you for refusing to let myself and family have particular and peculiar privileges under the quarantine. This has been done out of the very best and friendliest motives toward me on the part of Dr. Robinson, but I desire to say to you that it would be manifestly improper for you to grant me any privileges above those accorded to my fellow passengers. I ask none, and should accept none, and while I am firm in the conviction that the quarantine against us has been unnecessarily and cruelly prolonged, I am willing to share it with my unfortunate associates to the end. Yours very truly,

A. M. PALMER.

NO CHOLERA ABOARD.

The Catalonia Arrives at Boston Without a Trace of the Plague.

BOSTON, Sep. 13.—The Cunard steamship Catalonia, from Liverpool, arrived in quarantine about 1 a.m., with 120 first cabin, 151 second cabin, and 692 steerage passengers on board.

Grave apprehensions have been felt regarding her condition, as it was said that a large number of her steerage passengers came from the continent and it was feared that some of them had passed through Hamburg.

Dr. Coggeswell, the port physician, at once put off to the Catalonia on the Board of Health steamboat Vigilant. The result of his examination was entirely satisfactory. Nearly every one of the ship's big family was in first-class health, and although the physician made a strict examination he could find no signs of cholera.

NO CHOLERA IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Reported Death of An Immigrant From the Asiatic Scourge a Canard.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 13.—A special from Jeannette, Pa., an industrial town 12 miles from this city, says a Belgian, name not yet learned, who arrived in that place last Saturday from Europe, was taken ill yesterday and died in a few hours.

Physicians in attendance pronounced the case one of Asiatic cholera. An investigation is being made.

It was at first reported a case of Asiatic cholera, but this was proved untrue.

New York's Quarantine Condemned.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 13.—The Rev. Dr. J. W. Holland, Chancellor of the Western University, who has been in Europe since June, has returned. In an interview he severely arraigned the New York health authorities, and pronounced the quarantine inspection a farce and the detention of healthy passengers on the same ship with cholera patients a heartless jeopardy of life. The force assisting in the inspection, he said, is inadequate, and the quarantine measures should be placed in the hands of the national government.

Strict Quarantine at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 13.—The steamship Ohio of the International Navigation Company is at the breakwater with a clean bill of health, but as the President's proclamation, declaring 20 days' quarantine went into effect the day she sailed from Liverpool she will be detained.

Quarantine Suggested for Jogales.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 13.—The Treasury Department has received from the Department of State a copy of a despatch dated 30th ult. from the U. S. Consul at Jogales, Mexico, suggesting that it would be advisable to establish a quarantine at that point in view of the fact that vessels from the cholera-infected districts of Europe are constantly arriving at Guaymas and Mazatlan.

Three Cases at Stettin, Germany.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 13.—A cablegram receive at the Department of State from the Vice-Consul at Stettin, Germany, says three cases of cholera had developed at that place, two of which, it is thought, will prove fatal.

Hamburg's Official Reports.

HAMBURG, Sep. 13.—If confidence is to be placed in official reports, the disease is abating. It is stated that the number of deaths yesterday was 110, and there were 404 new cases.

Colored Voters' Address.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 13.—A the colored voters' convention yesterday an address to the people at large was adopted, demanding that the use of money to debase colored voters be abandoned at all elections; asking that the colored men be drawn for jury service, and holding that the color of the skin, or the texture of the hair, should debar no one from politics recognition, or advancement to public place. The right to a place in the management of the World's Fair at Chicago is also asserted.

Reading Employes Anticipate a Big Strike.

THE COMPANY PREPARING FOR FIGHT

Officers of the Various Brotherhoods Assembled at Philadelphia Awaiting President McLeod's Return—The Conference May be Had To-Day—Statement by Chief Arthur.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 13.—The substance of the letter sent to President McLeod of the Reading Road by the labor leaders, but which he did not receive owing to his absence, is: "The laws of the Brotherhood of Local Firemen, Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Trainmen and Order of Telegraphers, whose members are in your employ, require that when a difference arises between them and their employers that they cannot settle satisfactorily to send for the chief executive officers of their respective organizations.

"It is their duty to come and use all honorable means in their power to effect a peaceable adjustment. With that object in view we will be pleased to meet you with a committee of your employes, at your earliest convenience, if you will be kind enough to grant us an audience. Please inform bearer of time and place."

Chief Engineer P. M. Arthur said "it would be premature to talk of a strike at present, for the situation has not arrived at that point, and I hope and believe that it can be settled without any extreme measures.

"A strike would be a very serious affair," said Mr. Arthur, "for its limits cannot be judged. It would affect the whole country. We do not question the right of Mr. McLeod to employ anyone whom he pleases nor the terms upon which he employs them. But when he discharges honest, faithful men simply and wholly because they are members of the Brotherhood, that is another matter, and one against which we are prepared to enter an earnest protest. That is what we understand has been done, and that is what we are here to talk to Mr. McLeod about. He has a legal right to do even that I suppose, but not a moral right."

It was stated that Grand Master Workman Powderly and President Gompers had been summoned by telegraph to attend the conference, but Chief Arthur professed ignorance on this subject.

James Dennison of the Baltimore & Ohio, Chairman of the Engineers' Committee, A. A. Wilson of the Pennsylvania and H. V. Valle of the Lackawanna system, have arrived to swell the crowd.

It is said that the trouble was precipitated by the discharge of William Schaefer, an engineer of the New York division; William Grakelam, of the Blue Line, and John Bowman, also of the New York division, all of whom are Brotherhood men, and that this fact was the cause of their discharge. These men are with the Grievance Committee, and will be used at the conference.

PREPARING FOR TROUBLE.

Precautions Taken By the Reading Railroad at Various Points.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sep. 13.—The Reading Railroad is preparing for trouble. Station agents have been ordered to remain on duty all night. One hundred constables have been sworn in for duty at the Corton yards.

The company has extensive property at that point. Two car loads of constables reached Hazleton last evening. They came from Philadelphia.

A Brotherhood fireman told a reporter this morning that the men expected to be ordered out at any moment.

Two more prominent members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have been discharged, Spotters tracked them five weeks, and found that they arranged for meetings of the brotherhood during the time of the railroad strike.

AT THE PRINCE'S FEET.

Sensational Suicide of a Penniless Gambler at Monaco.

BERLIN, Sep. 13.—The "Fremdenblatt" has a despatch from Monaco giving an account of a sensational tragedy at that place. Prince Albert of Monaco, and his wife, the Princess Alice, on returning from their recent tour, were received with great enthusiasm by the people of the principality, the attaches of the Casino turning out especially in strong force to greet him.

The little army of members was drawn up at the landing as a guard of honor, and the governor and council were present to deliver addresses.

The cannon thundered a greeting, and the scene was of a most joyous and festal character, when suddenly a young man burst through the throng and rushed toward Prince Albert and the Princess.

He was well dressed, but his wild and disordered appearance at once caused dismay among the group which surrounded the sovereign.

In his hand he grasped a weapon, and before anybody could interfere he raised the pistol, for such it was, and putting it close to his head fired and fell dead at the feet of the Princess Alice.

The Princess, who had a moment before been all smiles, nearly fainted. She gave a cry of alarm and sank back in the arms of her husband.

A dozen officers sprang forward and seized the prostrate body, only to find that life was extinct. The life blood which oozed from the wound almost stained the garments of the Princess.

On searching the body not even a centime was found, but there was a ticket to the Casino which told the story of his fate.

He had evidently been overcome by despair, after losing all he had in the great gambling establishment which supplies a revenue to support the Prince of Monaco in luxury, and had determined to end his life at the feet of the Prince.

Prince Albert and the Princess were so shocked that the reception ceremonies came to an almost abrupt conclusion, and they both hurried once more aboard their magnificent yacht, and sailed toward the south.

Another Big Strike On.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 13.—The 6,000 miners in the lower pool of the Monongahela River have passed their first day of idleness, and the 80 coal mines are closed. The strike or lock-out, the result of the operators refusing to continue the old rate of pay, promises to be a long and bitter fight.

PEARY'S DISCOVERIES.

Great Interest Taken in the Success of the Arctic Explorer.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 13.—Scientific men here are much interested in the discoveries reported to have been made by Lieut. Peary, whose safe arrival at St. John's has just been chronicled.

The despatch from St. Johns says that Lieut. Peary and party are all safe and well, with one exception.

Lieutenant Peary made a sledge journey with dogs of 1,300 miles over the interior ice, which he found available. He was out ninety days and returned all right August 4. He made important discoveries confirming his theory.

Mrs. Peary remained at the winter quarters, McCormack's Bay. She enjoyed excellent health.

Had the Kite not arrived, the party meant to retreat toward the South in open boats.

Mr. Verhoff, the meteorologist of the party, went on a two days geological trip to a neighboring settlement. Failing to return at the end of that time the party started after him, but found no trace of him.

On the sixth day they found some minerals placed by Verhoeff on a rock and traces of his footsteps to a large, wicked looking glacier, and here all signs of him were lost. No sign of the missing man was found and they were forced to believe that he had met his fate in one of the numerous crevasses.

The accident is the only sad shadow in all the varied experiences of the party.

The party left McCormack's Bay on August 24. They bring home a splendid collection of flora and fauna, much ethnological material, including tents, costumes, sledges, kahaks, and dogs of northern Eskimo, meteorological and tidal observations and a large number of photographs of natives, dwellings and Arctic scenery.

The expedition was a great success, among Lieut. Peary's discoveries being one of a great bay in latitude 81.37, longitude 24, opening out east and northeast, which he named Independence bay, in honor of the day, July 4, and the great glacier flowing north into it, Academy glacier.

He succeeded in covering 1,300 miles on inland ice, exploring the great fiords and glaciers emptying into Kane and Hall basins and Robeson channel and has mapped the north end of Greenland.

LOSS HALF A MILLION.

The Damage at Albany's Fire Greater Than First Supposed.

ALBANY, Sep. 13.—The loss by the fire of yesterday morning is much greater than at first estimated, and it is now thought that it will exceed $500,000. The fire originated in the Old Middle Dutch Church building on Beach street. Part of the building was occupied by James B. Lyon, State Printer, and part by the Williams Printing Company.

Everything contained in the Hudson Avenue building is a total loss. The lower floor was divided into stores and was occupied by F. G. Mix, agent for the Columbus Wagon Co.; W. C. Geel, umbrellas; John Ingmire, hangings; H. H. Walsh, saddlery. The four upper floors were occupied by Russell Lyman, shirt and collar manufacturer, and Hughes & Simpson, paper box manufacturers.

Adjoining the Lyon building on the east is the four story brick building owned and occupied by Edwin A. King, bonnet bleacher.

Then the State Printing building caught fire and in a very short time was a mass of flames.

At four o'clock the fire communicated to the rear of the Hotel Columbia and in a short time what was once the armory of the Jackson Corps was destroyed.

The fire worked into the interior of the building, and it was soon gutted.

It next entered the Hotel Fort Orange, and between fire and water the interior was soon a wreck.

Williams's Printing Co.'s plant is also a total loss.

MRS. HARRISON WORSE.

The President Will Not Make His Intended Trip Through Central New York.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sep. 13.—An unexpected complication has added itself to Mrs. Harrison's illness, and her condition is now so grave that it will prevent the President from being absent from the sick room.

In consequence the trip through northern and central New York, which the President had anticipated making, has been given up.

Much solicitude has been expressed at the sudden turn in Mrs. Harrison's condition. There was no business transacted by Mr. Harrison this morning.

NEW YORK, Sep. 13.—President Harrison has telegraphed Chairman Hackett of the Republican State Executive Committee that he greatly regrets to confirm the dispatch that Mrs. Harrison's condition is such as to make it impossible to take the proposed trip through this State.

CORBETT IN NEW YORK.

A Tremendous Crowd Crowns the New Champion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—James J. Corbett, the new king of the ring, was given a grand reception by the New York sporting public at Madison Square Garden last evening.

It was a crowd elegantly attired that turned out to do honor to the new champion, more ladies being present than ever greeted a prize-fighter at a show of the kind in the metropolis.

The big Garden has held greater and more enthusiastic crowds, but none which conducted itself more properly.

About 5,000 people were present in all, and while some might have been disposed to criticise Corbett, all were compelled to honor him for the frank and manly way in which he spoke of the man he so recently defeated.

It Is a Case of Suicide.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., Sep. 13.—The mystery surrounding the death of Rosa Preston, of North Pleasantville, has been given more light by her Germantown lover, who says that she attempted her life once before while residing in Germantown. The murder theories have all fallen through, and there seems to be no ground for anything else but that of a case of suicide.

To Chicago in a Steam Launch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sep. 13.—George C. Mallory, of Morris Cove, is planning a trip to the World's Fair on a small steam launch. His route will be to New York, then up the Hudson, through the Erie Canal to Buffalo and then by the lakes to Chicago, a sail of about 1,100 miles.

MRS. GARFIELD TO TAKE PART.

The Martyred President's Widow Will Bless This Plainfield Congregation's House of Worship.

The pious and zealous congregation of the First Church of Christ have at last nearly completed their new chapel on Grove street near Green Brook, and they hope to open it for services and dedicate it to the worship of God the first Sunday in October.

The good brethren of this new and prosperous denomination have proved themselves worthy disciples of the Master by putting their hands as well as their hearts into the erection of the new building. By their own toil they dug the cellar; by the sweat of their own brow they made solid the foundations; by their own skill and ingenuity they reared and fashioned the shapely edifice that now stands a monument to their enterprise and a credit to their workmanship.

The structure is a plain and simple one, but attractive and commodious. The interior is finished in the natural wood, glossy with varnish, and very pleasing to the eye. No attempt at ornate decoration has been made, but the stiffness and severity often seen in the architecture of a large, square meeting-place have been relieved and dispelled by neat designs formed of mouldings, and ornamenting walls and ceiling. The plans of the building, and much of the carpentry work itself, were done by Andrew Jackson Stewart, the faithful treasurer of the board of trustees, and one of the principal mainstays of the church.

The edifice is well-lighted during the day by the abundance of windows, and at night by electric lamps. Comfortable chairs will be used to seat the people. The pulpit is broad, and the desk easily seen from every part of the house. Beneath the pulpit is a well-built tank for baptismal purposes, with steps leading down from the pulpit. Adjoining the tank are convenient dressing-rooms for candidates.

At the dedication of the new house of worship the Rev. J. B. Cleaver, founder of the church, will of course be present and take prominent part, as will also the Rev. Dr. Tyler, pastor of the Church of the Disciples, New York. Mrs. James A Garfield has also been invited to participate, and has promised if possible to join in blessing the new structure.

The church is now officered as follows:

Treasurer—John Staats.

Secretary—Henry VanMiddlesworth.

Board of Trustees—B. W. Hand, president; A. J. Stewart, treasurer; Wm. H. Warner, secretary; S. P. Hoffman, A. J. Nicholson, Hiram A. Mears.

Elders—B. W. Hand, A. J. Stewart, Joseph Schnitthels.

Deacons—H. A. Mears, John Ackerman, John Dayton, David Bush, David Smith.

Sunday-school superintendent—Benj. Hand.

The congregation has no regular pastor, but elder Hand preaches very acceptably, with occasional substitutes.

TROUBLE IN TRENTON.

DELEGATES MACDONALD AND NASH KICK AGAINST RING RULE.

State Organizer Ulrich Wanted to Bring About Harmony, but He Can't be Found—There May be a Public Split in the Union County Representation.

TRENTON, Sept. 13, 1:20—There is a great crowd in attendance at the Republican gubernatorial convention here today. The Trenton House is filled and surrounded by enthusiastic mobs of rival delegations, parading, shouting and cheering, and headed by bands of music.

Plainfield's representatives are working hard for John Kean, jr. The Union county delegates met in room sixteen and after much stormy speech-making on the question of unit rule it was resolved that Union county's full vote of forty-six delegates be cast for Mr. Kean.

Vincent W. Nash vigorously opposed the motion, saying he was not here to be bound by anybody. He was unpledged and was not going to submit to dictation of ring rule. Fred MacDonald took the same stand and fought bitterly. Both voted against the resolution which was adopted by a majority vote. Geo. Kyte voted for the resolution but expressed privately his opinion that the unit rule was unfair.

Elias Pope, J. W. Murray, J. B. Coward, Frank Bergen and other leading politicians are seeking to placate Nash and MacDonald. If the two men are not won over a stormy time may be expected from a Union county split when the chairman seeks to cast the county's unanimous vote in favor of Kean, at the convention.

Mr. Ulrich has not shown up, and his absence is being specially commented on. He is wanted to work for Kean and help keep the Union county delegates in harmony.

Base-ball Coding of Westfield is working hard for Kean, who is also pushing vigorously his campaign in person. The Grubb contingent is large and enthusiastic and doing great work, but Kean is confident of nomination on the first ballot.

The colored men of the State are promising to make trouble for the Republicans. They presented to the convention a demand for not only a share of the offices in each county, but also membership in the big State committees, etc., that disburse the funds and where only the white bosses have been wont to congregate. The petition was referred to the committee on resolutions.

John W. Murray was chosen one of the vice-presidents of the convention, and H. N. Spencer of North Plainfield is one of the committee on permanent organization.

B. A. Hegeman, jr., of the North Plainfield delegation, says that Somerset county will first cast her sixteen votes as a compliment to senator Thompson. After that they are about evenly divided between Grubb and Murphy.

At 1:15 the Convention adjourned till 2:30.

At 2:30 the convention re-assembled and proceeded to ballot.

The first ballot resulted as follows: Kean, 381; Grubb, 178; Murphy, 167; MaGowan, 75; Griggs, 2. Necessary to choice 403.

LATER.

John Kean, jr., was nominated on the second ballot. On motion the nomination was made unanimous.

Plainfield Men in To-Morrow's Races at Somerville.

At Somerville at noon to-morrow, the bicycle races of the Somerset fair, will be wheeled off. The entries from Plainfield are not many but comprise some speedy men. In the one mile safety novice race, Chas. Maltby and Lon Titsworth enter from the Plainfield Bicycle club. William Havens enters from Plainfield and D. S. Lewis enters from Netherwood. In the mile team race for the silver punch bowl, exhibited in THE PRESS windows, the Plainfield Bi. club sends Geo Mahon, E. V. French, and A. T. Hinrichs to represent them. Their color is light blue.

In the one mile handicap, J. R. Hazelton of the Rockaway Athletic club is scratch man. All the other sixty odd have from 35 to 120 yards start of him. Plainfield men entered are handicapped as follows: W. Havens, 110 yards; George Mahon, 120 yards; Charles Maltby, 90 yards; Lon Titsworth, 110 yards; A. T. Hinrichs, 90 yards; A. S. Fritts, 100 yards; J. H. Milligan, 100 yards; D. S. Lewis, Netherwood, 100 yards. In the two mile handicap, Hazleton is also the scratch man. Geo. Mahon gets 190 yards start of him, and Hinrichs 155. All of the men entered seem to have a long lead on Hazleton, and he will have some difficulty in catching at least McLean of the K. C. W., Gracey of the P. A. S. C., and Paul Groech of the O. W.

—In the absence of justice Nash at Trenton, to-day, the suit of Tobin, Leander & Co. against F. H. Martin, was adjourned for one week.

PLAINFIELD SENDS WERTS MEN.

The Second Ward Primary Puts Them on Record Against Race Tracks and Coal Combines.

The result of the Democratic primaries held in this city last evening, for the election of delegates to the gubernatorial convention at Trenton to-morrow, was the choosing of men in favor of George T. Werts as New Jersey's next governor. Similar reports from other places makes it seem probable that he will be nominated in spite of his declination and against his desire. The most of Plainfield's delegates were instructed. In the Second ward the following was adopted as a "request":

Resolved, That the delegate elected by this primary be requested not to vote for any man who has been affiliated with any race track legislation, coal combine or any other monopoly contrary to the interests of the people.

The First ward primary was held at 67 North avenue. Justice Louis F. Wadsworth assumed control of the primary without any nomination for the office. After W. L. Force had nominated John J. Kenney for secretary and James Merritt for judge of election, nominations were made for delegate to the State convention. John Rafferty received 19 votes and W. L. Force 15. Charles B. VanWinkle was selected as alternate, Mr. Force declining the honor. A unanimous resolution was passed that the vote of delegate Rafferty be cast for Hon. George T. Werts, for governor.

Among those present at the Second ward primary were the Hon. Joseph W. Yates, county attorney W. K. McClure, ex-councilman L. Spangenberg, Seymour Marsh, E. W. Conklin, L. G. Timpson, E. VanBuren, B. M. Stover and J. M. Moore. W. K. McClure was chosen chairman and J. A. Demarest secretary. The election of a delegate resulted in the choice of J. A. Demarest on the first ballot, his opponent, J. W. Yates, receiving but 6 votes.

The session of the Third ward Democrats was held at Stelle's livery stable. A. Saltzman presided, and Frank McInerny was secretary. James Clark served as inspector of election. John F. Sheehan was elected State delegate, with power to appoint his own alternate.

The Fourth ward Democrats met in St. Mary's hall, with Joseph Shepherd in the chair, and Peter Flynn acting as clerk. Winfield Chase and Martin Roth were elected inspectors of election, and James H. Searing was chosen judge. Elmore D. Moffett and Jacob Kriney were the unanimous choice of the voters for delegates to the State convention, and Peter Flynn, jr., and Winfield Chase were appointed alternates. Vincent L. Frazee was re-elected member of the County Democratic Executive committee.

Another Victory for the Arlingtons.

The Arlingtons of this city played the Stars of Dunellen Saturday morning on the Park avenue ball grounds and defeated them with ease by the score of 19 to 6. Only seven innings were played. The Arlingtons played all around the Stars, as the score will show. At the end of the seventh inning the Stars thought that they had had enough of it, so the game was called. This makes the fifth straight game that the Arlingtons have won from the Stars this season. Following is the detail of the game:

In Memoriam.

The following was adopted at the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U., in this city yesterday:

Remembering and missing, as we gather here for our annual meeting to-day, the face and voice of Mrs. Helen M. Eaton, who has been for years intimately associated with us in our work, we bow in submission to the One who has called her to come higher to the rest which remaineth for those who love and serve Him. And we, mindful of the summons which may also come to us in an hour that we think not, do here reconsecrate ourselves for the Master's work, who has bidden us to be also ready that we may die the death of the righteous, that our last days may be like hers.

Somerville Threatens THE PRESS.

The editor of THE PRESS received the following warning by mail from Somerville this morning:

Don't you come to Somerville if you value your life! The gang will hang you if they get the chance! It was awful! Worse than war times!

It's money thrown away when a medicine doesn't help you. It's your risk and your loss. But that's the way you have to buy every medicine for woman's ailments, except Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

With that, there's no risk—it's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in all the chronic weaknesses, painful disorders and functional disturbances that afflict womankind, you have your money back. But you won't ask it—you'll be cured.

Give it time, if your case is obstinate. The troubles that come slowly, have to go slowly. The tainted and squalid remedy is the "Favorite Prescription." It builds up and invigorates the system, regulates and promotes the proper functions, and restores health and strength.

For everything that's known as a "female complaint," it's a positive specific.

If you're an overworked or suffering woman, it's a medicine that's made especially to help you—but you pay only for the help that you get.

On these terms it's the cheapest sold.

ONE OF IRV. YOUNG'S AGENTS GONE.

He Was President of a Christian Endeavor Society, but Was Stopped on His Way Towards Admittance to the Church.

Charles J. Campbell, manager of the White sewing machine office in Washington street, Hoboken, disappeared from his home in Hackensack on Monday of last week, and there were rumors that his departure was hastened by inaccuracies in his accounts. It was said that he was in arrears to the company, and that he had been trying to dispose of new sewing machines at auction at Cooke's auction rooms, 209 East 125th street, New York. Inquiry at that place elicited the information that about Aug. 20 Campbell put up two machines for sale, but a few days afterward the order was countermanded and the machines placed on storage. On Tuesday Edward M. Paton, a builder in Hackensack and brother-in-law of Campbell, called at Cooke's, paid the storage, and took the machines away, telling the cashier that Campbell had "done him" out of seven or eight hundred dollars.

Irving Young, formerly of this city, and whose wife is the daughter of Mrs. John Neighbor of East Front street, is the general manager of the White Sewing Machine company at 22 Union square, New York. He said that Campbell's whereabout was unknown to him, and he was anxious for information on that point. Subsequently Mr. Young said that the company would lose nothing, as Campbell was under $1,000 bonds, with David A. Post, in the employ of the Manhattan bank, and brother-in-law Paton as security. Mr. Young would say nothing positive about the condition of Campbell's accounts, and he professed to know no reason why the young man should run away.

In Hackensack, where young Campbell has lived for about a year, there were many stories regarding his disappearance and his life. Last January Campbell married Mrs. Ida Kincaid, a plump young widow and daughter of John Paton. About that time the missing man began to attend the Asbury M. E. church, and was admitted on six months' probation. He was so zealous in his religious life that he was made president of the Christian Endeavor society. On the first Sunday in August he was to have been admitted to full membership in the church, but this was stopped by John L. Merritt, Hackensack agent for the New Home machine, for whom Campbell worked about six months. Merritt is a member of Asbury church, and charged Campbell with defamation of character. This matter is still under investigation by the church officers. Merritt says that Campbell robbed him while in his employ, and slandered him when they separated. He also says that Campbell showed him his discharge papers from Sing Sing, where he served two years for forging an order on the president of the Erie railroad.

The Rev. Mr. Johns, pastor of the Asbury church, was grieved to learn that Mr. Campbell was in trouble. He said the young man came to him and confessed that he had been in prison, but expressed a desire to lead an upright life and hoped the church would aid him. Mr. Johns said the church officers had done all in their power to place Campbell on the right path morally, but the result appeared to be very discouraging.

Mrs. Campbell was on a visit to Connecticut when her husband disappeared. She expressed entire faith in his honesty, in which she was backed by her mother, and believed her husband would return, as he promised in a letter she said she received from him the other day. Father-in-law Paton does not share in the sanguine views of his wife and daughter, and brother-in-law Paton sides with his father. Mrs. Paton volunteered the declaration that they could not understand why Charley ran away, unless it was that he was afraid to face his creditors, but she was sure there was "no woman in the case".

Carrying the Base-Ball News into Salvation Camp.

The following story from the Philadelphia Times will be appreciated in Plainfield, where base-ball and the Salvation Army are both so popular:

The Salvation Army is evidently on the increase in the small Western towns. There was a grand turnout of the army in Springfield the other night. The bass drum, the cornet, the tambourines were inspiring, and I marched along penetrated for the first time by an appreciation of these men who leave pleasure and worldly thoughts to battle with right against vice and worldliness. They were singing "We are marching with the angels, we are fighting for the Lord", when one of the brethren stopped his shouting and asked me: "What's the base-ball score to-day?"

"Nineteen to nothing", I answered.

"We will fight against the devil till we think we have him floored", shouted the Salvationist; then he asked me, "In favor of which side?"

"In favor of the home nine", I replied.

"Hallelujah!" he screamed, and the whole army took up the cry "hallelujah!" I can not say with any degree of certainty whether they were cheering the victory over evil or the home club's victory on the diamond, but I have yet to see the American who is too saintly not to care for the national game.

Bret Hart's Plainfield Daughters.

(Press and Printer.)

Bret Harte, the writer, is the father of two charmingly pretty daughters. Jessamine, the elder, has just made a successful debut in literature. She is a tall, distinguished looking girl, with a strongly marked personality. She wears her light hair short and it curls daintily, making a shining halo around her pretty face. In her dress is her individuality particularly shown, as her gowns are all made after the same model, a long, clinging bell skirt and a full blouse waist with a low round neck. Such is the costume she wears continually.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

EXCUSING THE DECEIVERS.

Manager Reed of the Plainfield Team Gives Reasons Why Those Who Broke Word and Faith Should n't be Unfairly Treated.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Allow me to correct through your columns a mistake for which I am largely responsible. At the time protest was made against the playing of both Gore and Sharrott in last Saturday's game, it was believed by both Mr. Mack and myself that no written notice of the signing of Gore had ever been given me. Mr. Mack thought that he had given me verbal notice, while I was sure he had not. He did not, however, intimate that the league was at an end or that it would be his vote against mine, or make any similar remark. Last evening he sent me word that he found he had given written notice of the signing of Gore on July 20, and, after searching through a large collection of base-ball literature, I found his notice, showing that we had both been mistaken about it. He has never released Gore and, consequently, though that player was ineligible to play in our league during his connection with the St. Louis team, yet upon his release from that club, he became again eligible without further notice. Therefore I have withdrawn my protest.

Now as to the game next Saturday. It is true that early in the season it was tacitly agreed there should be no padding up toward the end of the season, "No more of the George Gore business", and Plainfield and Elizabeth have kept that agreement, while Somerville and Westfield have not, but is that any reason why we should so demean ourselves as to refuse to pay our debts? We agreed to play three games at Somerville in return for three games played by them here. They have performed that part of their agreement and we owe them a game at Somerville and, it seems to me, are just as much bound to play that game as if they had already paid us in money, instead of by a game here, to come there. If they had paid us in advance in money to play at Somerville next Saturday would anyone say that it would not be dishonorable to keep the money and refuse to play the game? Yet what would be the difference in principle? I fail to see how a dishonorable action of theirs will justify us in an equally dishonorable action.

We have kept all our agreements, tacit and express, so far and have played honest ball all summer, and if I can be allowed my way we will go to Somerville on Saturday. We will win if we can, but if we cannot we will die game, beaten by a team hired for the occasion at our expense which shows how greatly the team of colts with which we opened the season, is feared by the enemy. Then, though we lose the pennant, we lose it with honor to ourselves and win the respect of all true sportsmen.

Sept. 13, 1892. CHAS. A. REED.

WHOSE BODY IS THIS?

He Was a Grand Army Comrade, and May Have Friends in Plainfield.

The unknown man who was struck by a Jersey Central train near Westfield, Sunday evening, as told in these columns yesterday, was instantly killed. The unfortunate man was walking on the track and going towards Westfield when he met his death. The body was carried to the freight-house, where it remained until yesterday. Morgue-keeper Jensen, of Elizabeth, took the body to the morgue at Elizabeth, where it lies for identification.

The deceased wore a black derby hat, blue sack coat, diagonal vest and light striped pants. He was cleanly shaven, with hair cut short, and was about 55 years of age. A Grand Army badge was pinned on his vest. A deep gash was made on his breast where he was struck by the engine.

OBITUARY.

The Rev. Dr. Alexander L. Brice.

After a brief illness, the Rev. Dr. Alexander L. Brice, who was presiding elder of the Elizabeth District of the Methodist Episcopal church, and formerly presiding elder of the Newark District, died at his home, 548 Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth, Sunday afternoon. He was 69 years of age, vigorous and active till within a few weeks of his death. He was well-known and very popular in Plainfield, where he had preached on various times, especially during Conference here.

He was born in Suffield, Conn. His father was Alexander L. Brice, who at one time a partner of the late Cyrus W. Field. Dr. Brice leaves a wife, one daughter, Belle, and two sons, Harry B. and Walter L., of Newark. He was associated with the presiding elders in conducting the Newark Conference camp-meeting held at Mount Tabor last month, taking charge personally on the opening day. It was here that he was first taken sick and was obliged to return to his home.

He began to preach in 1847, the first appointment being Stanhope, N. J., and, in itinerant succession, at Red Mills, Haddonfield, Trinity church, Bridgeton, and in later years he became pastor of the more prominent churches in the Conference—Nyack, N. Y.; Simpson church, Jersey City; First church, Hoboken; St. Paul's, now St. James's church, Elizabeth; the old Clinton Street church, St. Luke's, Franklin Street and DeGroot churches, in Newark, besides serving his time as presiding elder of the old Morristown District, Jersey City District, and two terms in the Newark District. His terms of presiding eldership covered about twenty years.

At the Conference held in Hoboken in 1889, he was appointed presiding elder of this district, where he has served for four years and five months, and was just planning for a tour with horse and buggy to visit the remote parts of the territory.

He was twice elected a delegate to the General Conference, in 1864, held at Philadelphia, and in 1872, held at Brooklyn, besides several times having been elected alternate. He was for many years a member of the mission board of the church, and was sent as a delegate last fall to Cleveland, O., at the missionary convention. He was also a trustee of the Hackettstown Collegiate Institute and of the Mount Tabor Camp-Meeting Association, and was treasurer of the Centenary Fund and Preachers' Aid Society of the Newark Conference.

"This blessed man of God has now entered into sweet rest."

Dr. Brice was one of the leading Methodist clergymen of this State, and was well known and deeply loved in this city. The funeral will be held to-morrow at 3 p. m. in St. James Methodist Episcopal church, Elizabeth. The Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, of this city, will be one of the bearers.

News of the Wheelmen.

Zimmerman, the bicycle wonder, has beaten Nancy Hank's best record. It is a marvelous performance, even with the flying start, and it shows not only that men are superior to horses but it indicates the possibilities of the bicycle. For as yet bicycling is merely in its beginning. Its actualities are already great, but its possibilities can scarcely be imagined. The time will come—as an excellent rider said this morning—when a man's bicycle will be as necessary to him as his pair of shoes.—Elizabeth Journal.

Says an authority: "Nothing is more injurious to the health and wind of a cyclist than the pernicious habit of smoking cigarettes on a run. In spite of this fact, many wheelmen indulge in this ruinous practice, and are generally the first to get 'winded' on a spurt or long hill."

The Plainfield Bicycle club will meet Saturday evening of this week to hear reports of the carnival committee and gymnasium committee and take action on changing the class night from Saturday to Wednesday. A gymnasium instructor will be present to give an exhibition after the meeting.

The Farmer Orator Everywhere.

The Democrats of Elizabethport made an enthusiastic demonstration in favor of Cleveland and Stevenson on Saturday night, on the occasion of the raising of a handsome banner bearing the names of the candidates. It was the first political demonstration of the kind in that section this season, and was attended by from 5,000 to 6,000 people, "who cheered themselves hoarse when the banner was flung to the breeze". Prominent speakers, including James Martine of this city, discussed the tariff and the Force bill, and music, bonfires and fireworks were other features of the occasion.

But He Won't Be This Time.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

The indications are that Hon. John Kean, jr., will receive the nomination for Governor on the Republican ticket. The delegation from Union county is practically solid for him. Essex county favors his nomination, and Monmouth and Camden and Passaic will give him their votes in the convention next Tuesday. This will not be sufficient to secure the nomination, but there are other counties that will undoubtedly cast their ballots for him though they have not as yet been heard from. It is a significant fact that whenever a Union county man has been nominated for Governor he has been elected.

The valuable curative properties of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are due to the employment of the highest medical and chemical skill. Attended on Suspicion.

While policemen Fredrickson and Saunders were returning from duty about 5 this morning they saw two junk wagons being driven at a break-neck speed down South avenue. There were two men in each wagon.

The policemen gave chase and succeed in stopping one of the wagons and arresting the occupants. They could give no satisfactory account of themselves and were locked up on suspicion.

Chief of police Grant thinks that the men under arrest are members of the gang who some time ago attempted to steal a quantity of lead pipe which lay in the yard of Charles Fisk's residence on Seventh street. The chief will investigate the matter.

Warriors Will Meet To-Night.

Miantonomo Tribe No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, will advance four hunters to the Warrior's degree to-night The candidates are Wm. Reynolds, Nelson Wyckoff, Charles Pope and John Y. Barrett.

This same tribe will on the evening of Oct. 8, celebrate the third anniversary of the founding of the tribe with an elaborate banquet in the Wigwam in the Music Hall building. The great Chiefs of the State will be present, and Col. Julian Scott, of this city, will deliver a lecture on traits and habits of the original noble red man. There will also be speechmaking, singing and instrumental music galore.

A Priest Wars on Illegal Liquor-Selling.

Elizabeth whiskey-sellers are in a panic over the crusading of a Catholic priest who marches into their dives at hours when they should be closed. The reverend gentleman collects evidence of the infraction of the law and notifies the proprietor that he will be brought to the attention of the grand jury. The priest says that his flock is demoralized by the Sunday saloons, and he is acting in their defence. Usually, the defenders of illegal saloons argue that those who insist in the enforcement of the law are the Presbyterians and Puritans. They will find the case of the Rev. Father Gessner a hard nut to crack.

HOW MAUDE CHANGED CARS.

Fielding Sketches an Average Woman Traveler.

She Does Not Arrive at Her Destination, But a Small Portion of Her Clothing Goes Through on the First Train.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

This story isn't worth a cent unless you believe it. I can prove it by nineteen witnesses. Two are lawyers, one is a reporter, another is the advertising agent of a summer hotel, and the remainder are women. After mature reflection I have decided to ask the reader to just simply take my word for it.

Of course, it would be easy enough for me to sit here and invent things. I have been complimented on my inventive powers by a great many people, including one of our leading tailors, for whom I have gotten up a new story once a month for the last three years. But what the people want is the truth.

Having thus shown where I stand on the question of veracity I will proceed with my simple story of how Maude changed cars at Utica. Maude was going up to Gravesville in the northern part of this state for a two weeks' visit. She was to take the four o'clock train from the Grand Central depot. She was to be accompanied by a very dear friend whom I will call Jennie, and by her brand new nickel-plated bicycle which was to astonish the natives of Gravesville. Maude planned it all out to have Jennie and the bicycle and me at the depot on time. She can't bear to be hurried at the last minute when she is to make a journey. I offered to bet her the price of two weeks' board in Gravesville that if any one of us four was late at the depot it would not be Jennie nor me nor the bicycle, but she declined to rob me on so easy a wager.

The janitor's boy, Tom, was to ride the bicycle to the depot; I was to come up from the office, and Jennie was to come over from Brooklyn. Tom and I arrived at 3:30; Jennie appeared at 3:55; and Maude was not there at 3:58. This did not surprised me at all. Every deep student of human nature must have observed that when a woman carefully guards against the commission of a blunder by somebody else, it is only for the purpose of leaving herself a free field wherein to execute that very blunder in a thorough and satisfactory manner.

I had urged Maude to let me have her ticket because that bit of cardboard would be necessary in order to secure permission of the railroad people to put the bicycle into the baggage car. Maude had replied that the idea of trusting me with anything so important might enter the heads of strangers, but never that of my wife. When Maude arrived at 3:59½ the door of the baggage car had been locked so securely that I could not open it with a two-dollar note. It seemed necessary to send the bicycle to Gravesville by express, but after I had put her aboard the train she put her head out of a window and told me that she had learned from the porter that there was a train an hour later which overtook hers at Utica. If I could get the bicycle aboard that train she could manage to have it changed at that place. She continued to give me instructions after the train started, and I walked along beside the moving car till one of those gentlemen who push strange and infernal baggage trucks along depot platforms cleverly intercepted me, and then abused me for making a dent in the side of a sheet-iron trunk with my head.

I put the bicycle aboard the later train, and there my duty ended. A knowledge of the subsequent proceedings I have picked up from various witnesses. It appears that Maude and Jennie decided to sit up till they got to Utica, in order to be ready to look out for the bicycle. Having so decided, of course they went to bed at ten o'clock.

If they had only firmly resolved to go to bed the chances are that they would have sat up. Since a woman is certain to change her mind, why can't she learn to make it up dead wrong in the first place?

It was a hot night, and the girls very sensibly laid aside a considerable portion of their clothing when they retired. I have not obtained a bill of particulars from Maude, but I drew my own inferences from the fact that when the conductor of the car, about one o'clock in the morning, called "Utica" outside the curtains of Maude's berth she exclaimed to Jennie: "Oh, dear; I shall never be able to dress in time. Don't my hair look perfectly horrid?"

She began to dress in feverish haste, but before she had made much headway the engine bell rang, and she was nearly driven wild with the notion that the train was starting. I have noticed that there is always some employe of a railroad on hand to ring a bell at the most unfortunate moment. Many a time I have swallowed the latter half of a leaden sandwich, and fled from the lunch room with my mouth full of hot slumgullion only to sit ten minutes in the train before it started, thinking of the amount of dyspepsia I might have contracted if I had known how long we were to stay.

The bell scared Maude just that way. She seized a long waterproof cloak, which entirely covered her, and left a good many things which she ordinarily regards as essential behind her in the car. By a stroke of good luck she found the bicycle, and by a stroke of bad luck she had it put into the wrong baggage car, and it went on its way to Zanesville, O.

Just as this feat was accomplished Maude saw, to her horror, that the train was starting. At the imminent risk of her life she swung herself upon the nearest platform, and then made her way toward the rear of the train in search of her sleeping car. She reached the last platform and did not find that car. Then she went forward to the door of the smoker and she still failed to find that sleeper. But she found the conductor, and confided to him in a voice full of hysteria that her sleeper was lost.

"That sleeper don't go on with this train," said he; "it's switched on the other one at Utica."

Well, almost anybody can understand how Maude felt when she heard this piece of news. She simply fell on her knees at the conductor's feet and implored him to stop the train and let her walk back.

"Can't do it, miss," said he. "And, besides, we're four miles out of Utica already. You couldn't get back, anyway. The only thing that you can do is to get off at the next station and wait for your car to come along."

Perhaps this scene is too painful to describe. The idea of a woman being borne away from a large portion of her clothing at the rate of fifty miles an hour in the middle of the night is enough to move any heart to pity. Let us return to Jennie. She had vainly endeavored to induce Maude to wait for her, and, failing, had dressed herself and gone out upon the platform. While she was there the car began to move. It was being transferred to the other train, but she supposed it was continuing its journey.

"Oh, goodness gracious!" exclaimed Jennie. "Maude will be left without the waist of her dress."

She rushed back to the berth, piled all their belongings—as she thought—together in a miscellaneous pile, and fled to the door. The porter tried to stop her and explain, but she brushed him aside. How she ever got off the car without breaking her neck I do not know. It wasn't going very fast, and she managed it safely. Then she began a frantic search for Maude; but that unhappy young woman was already speeding away, as has been related. Finally she got back to where the sleeping-car had been, but the train had gone on, and she was informed that no person answering Maude's description had boarded it.

Meanwhile Maude waited in dreadful suspense for the arrival of that sleeping-car. When it came, after what seemed an age but wasn't more than twenty minutes, she fled to it as a haven of refuge. Her feelings when she discovered the absence of Jennie and the garments must have been too deep for tears. She was carried on to the next station, where she secured a carriage and went to a hotel.

Early the next afternoon I went up the road to straighten things out in response to three telegrams, as follows:

UTICA, July —.
Maude missing. Come at once. JENNIE.

RIGGSVILLE, July —.
Jennie missing with all my clothes. Come at once and bring my other trunk. MAUDE.

GRAVESVILLE, July —.
Received yours asking me to look out for girls and bicycle. Nothing arrived on the train but a pair of light blue corsets. Do not know what has got the rest of the party. Come at once. UNCLE BILLY.

I had always been averse to allowing women to travel unaccompanied by men, but if they can get as much joy s this out of a little run of three hundred miles perhaps it is as well to let them go it alone. HOWARD FIELDING.

Growing More Liberal

That's what the human race is doing—particularly the American part of it.

There are a few left who are satisfied with ancient history. But most people are ready to apply modern progress and common-sense to the treatment of the human stomach—an organ that demands its rights whether or no; that resents the insults of worn-out methods. All this is to emphasize the facts about

COTTOLENE

There was once a prejudice against Cottonseed oil. But people who are alive, who investigate, who have no bigotry in their composition, have found that pure, refined cottonseed oil combined with selected beef suet is a better article in every conceivable way than hog's lard. And so they wisely use it for cooking—and are correspondingly healthy and happy. The sales of COTTOLENE are enormous and constantly increasing; a proof that it is appreciated by appreciative persons.

LANDED AT LAST ON FIRE ISLAND

The Normannia's Weary Passengers Finally Reach Terra Firma.

MOB SCATTERED WHEN THE MILITIA WAS CALLED OUT.

NO NEW CASES ARE REPORTED.

Dissolution of Judge Barnard's Injunction—Departure of Troops—A Heavy Gale Compels the Steamer Which Carries Them to Put In at Sandy Hook for Shelter—The Five Hundred Persons Aboard the Cepheus Overjoyed at Their Deliverance—A System of Night Signals Arranged—The Plague Abroad.

NEW YORK, Sep. 14.—At last the ill-starred cabin passengers of the steamship Normannia are on dry land. Their eventual transfer to Fire Island ends a series of misfortunes and vicissitudes that is without parallel in the history of American tourists returning from summer visits to Europe. They would probably still be confined on a frail pleasure steamer, at the mercy of a raging storm, if a General Term of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn had not dissolved the injunction forbidding them to land, and the action of the Governor in sending troops to the Island had not scattered like chaff the inhuman mob.

Here were a number of citizens of this Republic, who could, individually and through friends, raise, it is estimated, $1,000,000. Yet their lot since Saturday last has been worse than that of the most impoverished immigrant who started from Europe with them on the ill-fated Normannia. Indeed, though concededly free from cholera infection, these well-to-do and influential citizens found themselves in a condition to which that of the pest suspects in the steerage—save for the fear that they might become plague-stricken—was preferable.

These latter were warmly housed and properly fed. The saloon passengers were hustled from vessel to vessel without enjoying either proper shelter or sufficient food. Hurriedly transferred from the Normannia to the Stonington, they discovered that the Sound steamer had an insufficient water supply, and was absolutely devoid of culinary facilities. Again hurried to the iron steamboat Cepheus they had the terrible experience of finding the vessel unvictualled and unprepared with necessary beds and bedding.

Of course this may be explained by the fact that when the Normannia's cabin passengers were placed on the Cepheus it was expected that she would run to Fire Island in two hours, and in less than that time discharge her passengers at the hotel prepared by the State for their accommodation. But still the fact remains that since Saturday afternoon until 3 p. m. yesterday, or for just three days, not only men, but frail women and delicate children, and many infirm persons, almost in the shadow of Liberty's statue—people who have unlimited financial means at command—have been in worse straits than the most abject pauper in this great land.

The inhumanity of the Long Island baymen who refused suppliant women and dependent children food and bed clothing on Monday night was not more wonderful to see than their cowardice in fleeing when the announcement was made that troops were on their way to disperse them.

Governor Flower had spent all of Monday night considering plans to overcome the opposition to the use of Fire Island as a quarantine camp. He was in consultation here and there with different health officials, lawyers and various city officials, and at 4 o'clock yesterday morning sent a despatch to Adjutant-General Porter instructing him to have the Sixty-ninth Regiment assemble at their armory.

As a result an order reached the 69th regiment's commanding officer at 5 o'clock from General Porter directing him to hold 250 men of his command in readiness to proceed to Fire Island immediately.

By 7 o'clock Col. Cavanagh, Lieut.-Col. Moran, Major Duffy and most of the officers of the regiment were assembled in the armory. Shortly after ten o'clock the battalion left the armory and proceeded to pier 26 North river and embarked on a steamer in waiting.

Rev. Hugh O'Kelly, chaplain of the regiment, accompanied the troops.

They were joined by the Naval Reserves, and after the latter had embarked, the steamer pulled out for Fire Island.

Captain Miller of the first battalion Naval Reserves, acting under orders from Governor Flower, reported his battalion fully equipped for service at Pier 26, North river, at 8:30 a. m., where they embarked on a steamer for Fire Island, supplied with heavy underwear and two day's rations.

Including officers, the battalion is over 300 strong, and these men, armed with cutlasses, revolvers and rifles, on board tugs in Great South bay or patrolling Fire Island beach, could keep off all intruders. They are all well drilled.

Four howitzers and four Gatling guns were received from the Navy Yard, and taken along.

Two thousand rounds of ammunition are also stowed away on the Pegasus, the steamer on which the reserves sailed.

Owing to the severe gale the Pegasus was obliged to put in at Sandy Hook for shelter.

The news of the coming of troops added fuel to the already heated condition of the Bayshoremen, who refuse to listen to reason, argument or even the law. They knew that the State authorities were determined to land the passengers at the first opportunity and they were determined, if possible, that this opportunity should not occur.

Many of the hotheaded shoremen went around heavily armed, some with clubs, guns, revolvers and other implements of battle.

The announcement from Brooklyn that the General Term had handed down a decision vacating the injunction restraining the State officials from using the Island fell like a bombshell among the excited shoremen.

The more conservative members of the mob shrugged their shoulders, remarked that that settled the matter and that there was nothing left for them but to submit, and walked away, but the hot-headed element declared that if it was to be fight they were ready, and that the passengers should not land.

Soon after the arrival of the news of the setting aside of the injunction, plans were begun for the landing of the imprisoned people on board the Cepheus.

The Cepheus made the landing at the dock at 4:20 p. m. The help, waiters and servants, were taken off first.

Hardly a native could be seen on the beach in either direction. A few yachts watched the proceedings off shore. They were filled with curious spectators from numerous villages on Long Island, and they hovered around the Cepheus, watching the preparations for disembarkation.

An offer has been extended by wealthy Bay Shore citizens, offering help, provisions and servants.

The passengers from the Cepheus were landed between 5 and 5:30 p. m. They were a delighted and happy lot. The chambermaids and French waiters of the Surf Hotel had American flags and waved them most vigorously while their prospective guests disembarked. The cheering was lusty and almost incessant, three cheers being proposed for Gov. Flower and heartily responded to, the band joining in the demonstrations of delight by playing most vigorously.

There were no new cases of cholera on the infected fleet or on the islands yesterday.

It is now believed that the quarantined cabin passengers may be released by the latter part of the week.

The 13th Regiment of Brooklyn left for Fire Island last night, and is now in command of the situation.

NEW YORK, Sep. 14.—A despatch from Fire Island states that one of the quarantined lady passengers on board the Cepheus was safely delivered of a baby boy.

CHOLERA REPORTS FROM FRANCE.

Reported Abatement in Paris—Sad Fate of a Dressmaker.

PARIS, Sep. 14.—The cholera is said to be raging in the small town of Brionne, in the Department of Eure, in the northwest of France.

There were twenty deaths from cholera in Paris. No new cases were reported. A report issued by the Public Health Department says that there has been a rapid decrease in the number of isolated cases of the disease occurring in the northern departments.

Mme. Brunet, a dressmaker, who lived in the Rue de Flandre, vanished a week ago. Persons who called on her found her door locked. Yesterday the police were notified.

They broke in and on the floor her dead body, terribly decomposed, was found.

Everything indicated that she had been stricken with cholera and died without being able to call help.

TO SIGNAL AT NIGHT.

System of Colored Lights and Rockets to Be Used.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 14.—A system of signalling at night by means of colored lights and rockets has been established in the lower bay. This will enable the people on Hoffman and Swinburne Islands, on the quarantined vessels, or at Sandy Hook, to communicate with each other or with the police patrol boats.

This was found necessary, as there was a small riot among the steerage passengers on Hoffman Island two days ago, and considerable difficulty was experienced in summoning the police to quell the disturbance.

Will Ship No More Immigrants.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 14.—Secretary Foster has received a telegram from Collector Hendricks of New York informing him that the steamship companies would cordially co-operate in preventing further shipments of immigrants to the United States from European ports, and moreover, that they pledged themselves not to attempt any evasion by shipping immigrants as second cabin passengers.

BERNE, Sept. 14.—The French steamship line has repaid the passage money, travelling expenses, and money spent for board while waiting, to 315 emigrants booked here to sail for the United States via Havre. Twelve Swiss-Americans booked at Basle have been accepted as second cabin passengers.

THE GENERAL TERM DECISION.

Said That Assemblymen Must Be Elected Under the Old Apportionment.

ALBANY, Sep. 14.—Under the decision of the General Term of the Supreme Court of the State of New York handed down at Buffalo, which affirms the opinion of Judge Rumsey in which the Assembly apportionment was pronounced unconstitutional, the election of Assemblymen this fall must be made under the old apportionment. New York can have only its old number of 24 members and Kings its old number of 12, etc., as it is probable that action by the Court of Appeals cannot be had until after preliminary legal steps have been taken under the Ballot Reform act, preparatory to the nomination of Assembly candidates. It is believed that an extraordinary session of the Legislature will have to be held to cure defects in these preliminary proceedings, in case the Court of Appeals reverses the decision of the General Term.

On the other hand counties which have been reduced in representation by this new apportionment, etc., will be justified in making their nominations in accordance with the General Term's decision. In case of a reversal by the Court of Appeals such nominations will be illegal and a remedy will have to be applied by action of the Legislature in extraordinary session before election day.

The decision is a lengthy one, and dwells chiefly on the question of the constitutionality of the extraordinary session. Unless set aside by the Court of Appeals, it will prevent the present Legislature from being called in extraordinary session between now and election time to make still another apportionment.

The opinion of the Court is that the apportionment was made by the same session of the Legislature that made the enumeration. The provisions of the constitution with reference to this matter are held to be mandatory, and not advisory. If, therefore, the extraordinary session of last winter had no power to make an apportionment no other extraordinary session of the present Legislature can make a valid one.

The Justices signing the decision are Lewis and Dwight. Justice Macomber dissented.

NEW YORK, Sep. 14.—Gov. Flower was considerably surprised when he heard that the General Term had sustained Judge Rumsey's decision in the apportionment case.

"If the Court of Appeals should sustain the General Term decision," said the Governor, "an extra session of the Legislature would be necessary."

MRS. HARRISON'S CONDITION.

It is So Grave That Specialists Are Hastily Summoned.

LOON LAKE HOUSE, N. Y., Sep. 14.—Mrs. Harrison passed a comfortable night, but her condition is of such a serious character that additional medical aid has been summoned, and a diagnosis of her case will be made as soon as possible, in order that the attending physicians may be fully prepared for emergencies.

Dr. Gardiner, the family physician of the President, who has been in constant attendance on the mistress of the White House since the beginning of her illness, decided to call to his aid Dr. Dougherty, a specialist of New York, and the latter arrived at about midnight. A special train from Plattsburg to this place was placed at his disposal.

To-day Dr. Trudeau, who is noted in the Adirondack regions as a specialist in pulmonary diseases, will arrive here from Saranac Lake, and he, with Drs. Dougherty and Gardiner, will hold a consultation, at which they will discuss Mrs. Harrison's condition thoroughly and inform the President and his family of their opinion as to the true state of her health.

TWO WERE KILLED.

Accident to the Fast Philadelphia Express at Deans, N. J.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sep. 14.—The rear car of the fast express from Philadelphia jumped the track at Deans station, about five miles south of this city early last evening.

After the car had jumped the track, it toppled over and fell against a freight train standing on the inner track. John Boder, a track walker, was caught between the passenger car and freight train and instantly killed.

A brakeman on the train named Allison, from Philadelphia, was also fatally injured.

The passenger train was crowded with delegates returning from the Republican convention at Trenton.

Not one of the passengers was injured beyond slight cuts by flying glass.

Travel was delayed for over two hours.

IN STATE CONVENTION

Massachusetts Republicans in Session To-Day.

DEMOCRATS MEET AT TRENTON.

Nominations and Platform of the Convention of New Jersey Republicans—John Kean, jr., Chosen for Governor—Connecticut Democrats Chose a Standard Bearer.

BOSTON, Sep. 14.—The Republican State Convention to nominate a State ticket and Presidential electors was called to order shortly after 11 a. m. in Tremont Temple by Chairman of the State Committee Eben S. Draper. In a brief address he urged hard work, the getting out of every vote and the avoidance of the danger from over-confidence.

After the usual committees had been appointed, a recess was taken until afternoon.

Hon. Charles H. Allen of Lowell, the defeated candidate for Governor last year, will be permanent chairman.

The platform to be adopted has been prepared by Mayor Elihu B. Hayes of Lynn, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, who was father of the Australian ballot law in this State.

Lieut.-Gov. William H. Hale, of Springfield, will probably be nominated for Governor by acclamation.

The principal contest will be over the Lieutenant-Governorship, between the friends of Roger Walcott, of Boston, a lawyer, and F. W. Breed, of Lynn, a young manufacturer.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRATS.

A Candidate for Governor to be Named To-Day.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 14.—The Democratic State Convention was called to order at noon to-day by Speaker Bergen. A recess was taken after the appointment of committees.

With regard to the Gubernatorial nomination, it is Banker E. F. C. Young, of Jersey City against the field. In the field are General John A. Donnelly, of this city, John F. Stockton and Judge Lipscott of Hudson, and ex-Chancellor Theodore Runyon.

Judge George T. Werts, who was the candidate of the Governor Abbett faction, is positively out of the race, having written a letter to State Committeeman Dan Hone declining to accept if nominated.

REPUBLICANS AT TRENTON.

Kean's Nomination for Governor—Sketch of the Platform.

TRENTON, Sep. 14.—The nomination of John Kean, jr., by the Republican State convention ends what was thought would be a stubborn fight. The friends of Gen. Grubb were hopeful to the last, and were sure that the nomination would ultimately come to him.

The convention was called to order at noon by John Kean, jr., and immediately after prayer Henry M. Nevius, of Monmouth, was chosen temporary chairman with the following secretaries: John I. Foster, of Essex; J. Herbert Potts, of Hudson; A. S. Barber, of Gloucester, and J. Cox, of Hunterdon.

After the appointment of committees a recess was taken.

When the convention met again the Committee on Permanent Organization reported in favor of the temporary officers for permanent ones.

In the absence of the Committee on Resolutions, the counties were called for nominations.

The following candidates were named: John Kean, jr.; E. Burd Grubb, Franklin Murphy and Frank McGowan.

The platform was then read and adopted.

Balloting immediately began, and the first ballot resulted in 371 votes for Kean, 180 for Grubb, 75 for McGowan and 173 for Murphy.

A second ballot was ordered. Essex and other counties went solidly for Kean, and he received the nomination, which was made unanimous.

The Presidential electors chosen are as follows: At Large—Frederick Frelinghuysen of Essex and A. G. Cattell of Camden.

First district—George Holes, Salem; Second—Ferdinand Roebling, Mercer; Third—Adolph Mack, Raritan; Fourth—Luther Kountze, Morris; Fifth—Donald McKay, Bergen; Sixth—Frederick Kuhn, Essex; Seventh—E. Perkins, Hudson; Eighth—Winfield S. Chamberlain, Monmouth.

The platform indorses the tariff as improves the administration of President Harrison; denounces as utterly vicious, scandalous and against public policy the passage of the bill by the last Legislature legalizing the combination of coal mining combinations; favors a change in the law giving fees to clerks in the Chancery and Supreme Courts; favors reverting the proceeds of the sale of riparian lands to the school fund; denounces pardoning convicts for a money consideration; denounces race track gambling, and in conclusion the Democratic party for atrocious crimes against the suffrage and rights of the people.

MORRIS FOR GOVERNOR.

Connecticut Democrats in State Convention at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sep. 14.—When the Democratic State Convention reassembled Mr. Vance took the chair as permanent chairman.

Ex-Gov. Waller made a speech when he rose to nominate Luzon B. R. Morris, of New Haven, for Governor. Prof. S. E. Baldwin, of New Haven, seconded Judge Morris' nomination, which was made by acclamation on a rising vote amid great applause.

Ernest Cady, secretary of the Pratt & Cady Company of Hartford, was nominated for Lieut.-Governor. John J. Phelan, of Bridgeport, for Secretary of State, Marvin H. Sanger, of Canterbury, for Treasurer, and Nicholas Staub, of Hartford for Comptroller were then nominated by acclamation.

Presidential electors were then elected as follows:

Electors-at-Large, E. C. Benedict, of Greenwich, and E. J. Hubbard of Middletown.

First District, State Senator Wilbur G. Foster, of Vernon; Second District, Elisha Leavenworth, of Wallingford; Third District, Thomas S. Marlor, of Brooklyn; Fourth District, Senator David M. Reed, of Bridgeport.

The platform was adopted as presented.

Fast Livers and Fast Drivers Hauled up Before Judge Codington.

Elijah Robinson, colored, got into an altercation last night with another colored man in Windham & Crowley's saloon on East Front street. Robinson was filled with whiskey and an ugly desire to "lick" anybody and everybody. He was arrested. In the city court this morning judge Codington imposed a fine of $5.

Patrick Murphy got intensely intoxicated last night, and amused himself by ringing door-bells and asking for "tin cints" with which to buy a drink. He was locked up. This morning city judge Codington sent him to the county jail for 10 days.

Leonard Steen and Antonio Manx, the two junk-dealers arrested early yesterday morning for fast driving on South avenue, were fined $1 each by judge Codington yesterday afternoon.

GOVERNOR WERTS!

The Popular Democrat Nominated on the First Ballot.

TRENTON, Sept. 14, 5:15 p. m.—Judge Werts, THE PRESS's favorite candidate, was nominated on first ballot, before vote could be completed.

As soon as Union cast her votes for Werts, the convention gave "three cheers for little Union!" and Mercer, which had voted for Donnelly, threw her ballots to Werts. This gave him the majority.

The nomination was made unanimous.

THE NEWS AT NOON.

TRENTON, Sept. 14.—Union county in caucus at the State Democratic convention this morning cast 36 votes for Werts, 3 for Young, 2 for Cutler, 1 for Blodgett, and 1 for Ripley. James Ritchie of Farwood changed his vote from Cutler to Werts, and J. J. Willis of Westfield changed from Ripley to Werts.

Somerset county will cast 13 for Young, 3 for Werts, 1 for Cutler, and one for Alvah Clark.

Everything looks like Werts.

CHOLERA IN NEW YORK CITY!

FOUR VICTIMS OF THE ASIATIC SCOURGE SUCCUMBED IN THE LAST FEW DAYS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—There have been four deaths from Asiatic cholera in this city within the past few days.

This startling information has been announced by the health board, which gets its information from Profs. Biggs and Deenham, who performed the autopsies last night on the bodies of Segmund and Sophia Wiegard, who died at 761 Eleventh avenue the day before yesterday. These died of cholera.

Charles McAvoy, who died on the 6th (residence not given), and an unknown woman (residence not given), who died yesterday, also died of Asiastic cholera.

All these cases were originally reported to the Health Dspartment as suspected cholera and have been under investigation.

All of the adults have been in this country for many years and the child was born in this country.

There is no knowledge in the health board as to where the people caught the disease.

The houses have been thoroughly disinfected, and the bedding and other articles destroyed.

The bodies will be buried to-day in hermetically sealed coffins.

Dr. Edson says that there is no cause for alarm as all proper precautions have been taken, and there have been no new cases since the first ones.

MORE BUSINESS CHANGES.

Quite a Little Revolution in Plainfield's Mercantile World.

Following closely the announcement of the dissolution of the firm of Doane & VanArsdale and the organization of the firm of Doane & Edsall comes the news of VanEmburgh & White's dissolution, which takes effect to-day.

Messrs. White and VanEmburgh have been in partnership for five years, and their house has had the high esteem and liberal patronage of the entire community. Mr. White will take in Morris VanArsdale as partner, under the style of White & VanArsdale, and this new firm of energetic and enterprising young hustlers will continue in business at the old stand, with enlarged quarters. An addition 21x63 feet will be built adjoining the store at the rear, on the Somerset street side, with large archways connecting the two. This enlargement will be for the purpose of increasing the millinery and household goods departments.

Mr. VanEmburgh, who is held in the utmost respect as a sound and reliable business man, will form a new partnership with his son Fred. M., who for 14 years has been with the well-known house of Spellman Bros., 8 years as their buyer. He has a great deal of vim and push, and the new house and new stand of VanEmburgh & Son is bound to be a great success.

It's ineffective, except for the moment—the ordinary pill. Because it upsets your whole internal economy, you needn't think it's doing you good. It only shocks and weakens your system.

Take something that's better. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do good that lasts. They regulate the system, as well as cleanse and renovate it; mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively—no griping nor violence. They're the smallest and the easiest to take, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and the best liver pill ever known. Only one little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick or Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

They're the cheapest pills you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

Can you ask better proof of the superiority of these little pills.

The Lions' Play at Music Hall.

Charles P. Rice, who is engaged as stage director for George Peck's production of "Under the Lion's Paw", was asked about the play yesterday and said:

"When I read the play I was pleased with it, but when we commenced the rehearsals I was delighted. I consider the play one of the strongest I ever had anything to do with. The story is one that appeals to the heart, is told in good, crisp English, and carries with it some of the funniest comedy ever produced. The idea is new, entirely so, and is particularly pleasing from the fact that it has not been written to fit any one person, but every person, even to the smallest in the cast, has a chance to show his audience what he can do. The company Mr. Peck has engaged is a very strong one and I am satisfied will give a splendid performance at Music Hall next Saturday night. Every bit of wardrobe used in the play is new, made for this production, and some of the dresses are grand. Everybody will be on their mettle, Saturday night, as there will be a number of New York actors, managers and newspaper men in the audience."

GRIM DEATH WAS VERY NIGH.

PLAINFIELDERS HAVE A TRYING EXPERIENCE IN A RAILROAD WRECK.

Two Coaches Smashed, While Going a Mile a Minute—Miraculous Escape of the Passengers—Two Men Killed—The People, Grateful at Their Deliverance, Subscribe a Generous Thank-Offering.

John W. Murray and Walter Irving Clarke of this city narrowly escaped destruction in an extraordinary smashup that occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad midway between Dean's Station and Franklin Park at 5:20 yesterday afternoon.

The fast express from Philadelphia to New York, leaving Trenton at 4:49, was crowded with prominent Republican delegates and lawyers returning from the Republican State Convention, besides men and women from Philadelphia. Mr. Murray was one of the delegates from Plainfield, and Mr. Clarke had been representing THE PRESS and other papers at the convention.

The train was a few minutes late, and was speeding along through the open country at sixty miles an hour, to make up for lost time.

Suddenly the passengers in the rear two cars were terrified to find the coaches plunging violently over the ties, swaying and lurching from side to side, and threatening every minute to be precipitated down the steep embankment at the right. The train kept ahead at full speed, and it seemed to the affrighted people as though their terrible suspense were never to end; every moment they expected to be dashed to pieces. Presently the couplings gave way between the rear two cars, and the last car was tumbled up on its front end, ploughed up the heavy stone ballast like a giant snow plough at work, and finally buried its nose in the roadbed and came to a stop, while the rear end swung across the next track over against some stationary freight cars and their locomotive and battered itself to pieces. Both ends of the car were smashed and torn to splinters, and the passengers were all piled in a heap, with tons of broken stone ballast, fragments of glass, timbers and twisted and shattered ironwork, flying and piling all about them. They gathered themselves together as best they could, and after extricating themselves from the debris rushed pell-mell from the wreck.

The next to the last car clung to the train and ran on over the ties, ploughing up the roadbed, for an eighth of a mile farther, till its trucks crashed through the planks and ties of a bridge, leaving the dismantled wreck of the body of the car deposited just the other side of the stream and the broken bridge. The passengers here also were piled up in a heap, and were so weak from fright and nervous shock that they could hardly scramble from the wreck. One woman fainted outright, and the shrieks and screams of the others, who were panic-stricken, gave rise to the belief that many were terribly injured.

A trainman therefore immediately ran on to the nearest station and frantically telegraphed to New Brunswick for the city's entire staff of physicians.

When the dazed passengers had had a breathing-spell they were astounded and rejoiced to find that not one of them had been dangerously hurt. All were fearfully shaken up, and the condition of many bordered on prostration, while several were bruised about the body and cut on hands andd face. But no serious wounds were found on any occupants of the wrecked cars.

Less fortunate were trackwalker John Roeder, of Dean's Station, and brakeman J. R. Tierney, of Monmouth Junction. They were standing on the track across which the rear cars were thrown, and were buried beneath the wreck of the last car. Roeder was instantly killed. He leaves a widow and four children. Tierney was horribly mangled, and died in the surgeons' hands. He was unmarried.

The passengers, grateful for their miraculous deliverance, subscribed a thank-offering of two hundred and fifty dollars in cash for the widow and orphans of Hosmer.

The peculiar cause of the accident was the opening of a switch when the foremost cars had passed over it. The switchman had neglected to insert the customary padlock bar through the staple that holds the switch firmly in place, and the jar of the wheels threw the switch open as the next to the last car was crossing.

Had the engine plunged through the switch instead of only the last two cars, the disaster must have been most distressing, as the entire train would have been telescoped.

The wrecking-train crew which was summoned threw the fragments of the shattered cars down the embankment and burned them up. All travel was delayed for a few hours. Two tracks were torn up for nearly half a mile so that it will take much time to relay them. The freight locomotive and cars into which the derailed passenger coaches crashed after derailment were lifted partly over to one side by the concussion, and their sides were torn away for a considerable distance. The ponderous mass of machinery was lifted up as easily as a toy, by the collision, and huge pieces of iron were torn and shattered as though the pieces of metal were so many gingersnaps. The crew of the freight train escaped injury by jumping. The rear passenger car had its forward truck carried completely away at the first shock, and the car tilted on end kept grinding its forward end to pieces while ploughing up a deep gully in the broken stone of the roadbed, while the rear end was hammering itself to pieces on the freight cars against which the coach had swung. Messrs. Murray and Clarke were both in the rear car. They speak of the suspense as something awful to experience. The sensation was one of sickening horror and terror. The continuous plunging and grinding jarwas very disturbing to their department of the interior, and most of the shaken-up passengers to-day feel quite distressingly weak and sore internally.

The trackwalker who was killed was the man who had charge of the neglected switch.

Not only was the stone ballast torn up by the wreck, but the ties were wrenched out of place and the rails neatly swept off the ties, the bolt-heads snapping off as though a cold-chisel had been applied.

Among the others in the last car were Mayor Rankin and C. A. Fowler, of Elizabeth; Wm. Chamberlain, of Rahway; W. S. Chamberlain, of Bayonne; Wm. Parkinson, of Orange; Joseph Fischer of New Brunswick, of the State Labor Bureau; W. T. West, of Roselle, and these delegates from Newark: Frank Belknap, John L. Kuser, W. H. Murphy, J. B. Lurger, E. Q. Keasbey, Jos. Coult, C. R. Hedden and James M. Seymour.

Gov. Abbett and candidate Kean were in the next to the last car. Each was surrounded by friends and politicians, including counselor John S. Voorhees of New Brunswick.

The most alarming reports about the accident were flashed over the wires in both directions.

The first story that reached New Brunswick was that fifty people had been killed and injured, and no time was lost in despatching a corps of physicians to the scene.

Exaggerated reports also reached Trenton, and the utmost consternation prevailed among the remaining delegates.

Wrecking crews from New Brunswick and Newton were also sent without delay by the railroad authorities.

After a delay of about two hours the express train, minus its last two cars, but conveying all its passengers, who crowded aisles and platforms, continued its journey.

Telegrams asking about the safety of Gov. Abbett and John Kean, jr., continued to be sent from Trenton and other points all the evening.

Henry Allison, brakeman on the passenger train, was thrown from the platform and seriously injured, but will recover.

Passenger T. Adams was cut so severely as to require the attention of a physician when the train reached Jersey City an hour and three-quarters late.

The passengers considered it a great mercy and a miracle that all were not killed.

LOCAL HISTORY IN VERSE.

Mrs. Patton Drops Into Rhyme, in Telling of the Doings of the Creche.

The following novel and interesting report of the work of the new Day Nursery, or Creche, has been prepared by Mrs. Patton of East Ninth street:

In the twilight of our reveries, for uplifting fallen man,
We thought we'd try another, a more effective plan.
Instead of constant pleadings with men and women grown,
We thought we'd look beyond them to the children coming on,
And see if by encircling, with a homelike affluence,
We might gain them, from the cradle, by Christian influence.

A Day Home for the babies of mothers working hard,
Where loving care and shelter would fall to every ward,
Good food and entertainment, with fresh air and sunshine,
Were what we wanted, and to which a few were well inclined.

To test the earnest workers which just fill this Plainfield town,
We suggested a reception, where in prettiest of gown
We would meet and entertain the whole list of the elite,
Providing they would pay a fee and give us the benefit.

We summoned all the choicest flowers that maidenhood can boast,
Who give their lives as Daughters of the King and Temperance host.
They sang, they played, recited, and behind the daintiest bowers
Enticed the unsuspecting and poured candy out in showers.

In the evening when we counted to see what we had earned,
One hundred, five and ten in dollars came the word.
Our hearts went right up higher, we saw the work begun,
We all felt tired and sleepy, but victory was won.

And so, with this small pittance, we really did begin,
And under our auspicious friends, we fairly started in.
We now have home and babies, a matron in full charge,
And lots of friends, who send us just what we want at large.

To pay the rent and wages, gold and silver we must get,
To fill the mouths of babies, milk and cereals in the net.
We accept what e'er is sent us, from a cradle to a cheque,
And because we have succeeded, we're not now going to fret.

On the first of April early, our rooms were open thrown,
And the minute we were ready nine babies found a home.
We still go on increasing and in spite of the great heat
Our roll counts nineteen darlings, some awake and some asleep.

The little ones are happy, the mothers free-dom feel,
They come with early morning, they take the evening meal.
We give them games and rattles, and a swing upon the porch,
They love the nest provided, their little hearts rejoice.

And now, in midst of summer, when July's heat o'erpowers,
And all who could have scampered to cooling rills and showers,
A kind friend to our children invites them to her grounds,
And treats them all like fairies, while strewing gifts around.

O hearts! not yet awakened to the good we all can do,
Won't you come and see our "Bird's Nest", just look it through and through?
You'll be charmed with our surroundings, you'll want to stay and rest,
When you see the transformation of the worst into the best.

From July to September are two and fifty days
That our matron has dealt cheerfully with babyhood's ways,
With an average of six, each working day to mention,
Three hundred and twelve children have been under protection.

The outcome and the income I know is not quite equal,
And the five cents admission is cause for this sequel.
But cents grow into dollars and as aid to the debit,
We have two and twenty dollars to add to our credit!

Mongst the thirty-six friends who have given gifts of clothing,
Cribs, toys, mattresses, dishes, things filling;
There is one who sends us flour by the barrel whole,
If you wish it I will tell you, 'tis—yes—Mrs. Voehl.

We started on a pittance, our faith meanwhile to test,
The God who owns the Vineyard will send us what is best.
We started independent of guaranteed support,
We started an experiment, but we still hold the fort.

And now, our undertaking, we lay it at the feet
Of the Woman's Temperance Union, and beg a humble seat
In the list of her well doings, in the love of her arrest heart,
And unite this baby effort as a small important part.

We toddle in our infancy, we cannot go alone,
We need the Christian mothers' love to help us to atone
For all the ills that circumstance and poverty have cast
Among the wee small foundlings, who found us out, at last.

As we go on increasing, our minds are growing too,
What shall we teach the babies, I leave it now, with you.
We want a Kindergarten, a lesson every day,
Who, so well as mother, can manage it, I say!

The summer heat is over, our bodies all refreshed,
Are ready for the season's work, consider what is best.
Our treasury is depleted, more money must come in,
Will you now stand by your youngest, and take the infant in?

The babies' cries are piercing, the mother can't withstand,
We'll take the "Union's auspices" as meaning heart and hand.
We'll pull now all together, our ribbon white wave high,
And keep the children's nursery as the apple of our eye.

IN MEMORIAM.

O, dear friends, since we parted for summer recreation,
The God we serve has sent to us a sudden sore affliction,
One dear kind friend and helper, one valued supporter,
He has taken home to heaven, a crown to give her.

Mrs. Helen M. Eaton's name pure,
A benediction leaves, as sure
As her sweet, calm face a blessing gave
To everyone she tried to save.

We've lost a dear, dear sister,
We loved her, now we miss her,
But while we mourn, with hearts grief-torn,
We must praise the God who lent her.

WOLFE'S QUEER DEFENCE.

He Signed a Contract, Then Refused to Pay, Claiming He Was Over-charged.

The case of the F. M. Bissell Plow company, of South Bend, Indiana, against John P. Wolfe, of North Plainfield, an agent of the concern, came up for trial before borough magistrate Thomas R. Crosley, at 1:30 yesterday afternoon.

Bissell sued Wolfe for a balance of $133.74, which he claimed was due him on a quantity of farming implements which Wolfe had sold for him as agent.

The defendant claimed that he was entitled to an allowance, and averred that he had been over-charged for several plows. He also claimed that the terms offered him were higher than the terms given to other agents of the Bissell company in this vicinity.

Harry C. Runyon, for the plaintiff, produced the original contract between the parties, the existence of which the defendent pretended he knew nothing about.

Mr. Runyon, in summing up, took the ground that even admitting that the defendant had been charged more than the regular price offered to agents, he was not entitled to any allowance, from the fact that he had signed a contract in writing agreeing to pay the prices named thereon, and that after finding out the alleged over-charge the defendant had ordered goods to the amount of $40 on the same terms.

Justice Crosley rendered judgment in favor of Bissell for the full amount of his claim, with interest and costs.

Somerset-Street Morrison Has an "Outing".

(New Brunswick Home News.)

Editor Hugh M. Boyd and the Rev. Dr. M. H. Pogson, who have been on a week's horseback tour, were heard from to-day at Somerville, where they were doing the fair. They will be home this evening.

They were deserted at Lake Hopatcong by Editor Morrison, of Plainfield, whose tender joints could not stand the racket. Mr. Morrison has been dining off the mantelpiece ever since he undertook the awful journey to Hopatcong.

Juvenile Base-Ball.

An interesting game of base-ball was played on the Fourth street grounds, Monday afternoon, between the Atlantas and the Stars of Plainfield. The score was tie 6 to 6, in the sixth inning, but the Atlantas played better ball and defeated the Stars by the score of 10 to 7. The feature of the game was the way D. Kane played first base for the Atlantas. E. Connors of the Stars made a three-base hit. Batteries: Stars—Barry and Connors; Atlantas—Shannon and Higgins.

Hard Luck for Patrick Kiely.

Patrick Kiely of Steiner place, whose wife had an ankle badly sprained recently, and whose son had a leg broken by a fall from a bicycle, is in hard luck again. This morning he had the misfortune to fall from a ladder while cleaning out the gutter on the roof of his house. Luckily, no bones were broken, but his bruises and internal injuries are very painful, and he is confined to his room.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Mayer, Warsaw, N. Y.

SOMERVILLE, Sept. 14.—The weather was heavy this morning, but cleared off before noon, and the bicycle track was in magnificent condition. Fully three thousand people saw the races. Hazelton of the R. A. C. did not appear, and George Coffin was made scratch man in both the one and two-mile handicaps. He was outclassed, by good men being given too much of a handicap, and did not even catch the last man in either race.

BUTCHER SHARKEY SUED.

The Phoenix Beef Company, of Newark, Want to Recover $122.50 on Protested Checks.

The case of the Phoenix Beef company of Newark, against John Sharkey, the Liberty street butcher, which was to have been tried before justice Nash at 10 this morning, has been postponed for one week to allow Sharkey time to procure counsel.

Harry C. Runyon, of this city, appeared for the plaintiff.

The suit is brought to recover the face value of two checks dated July 20 and 23, of this year, which were allowed to go to protest.

The first check was for $87.50 and the other for $36.

Lawyer Runyon does not know what Sharkey's defence will be.

HONOR TO COLUMBUS.

How Plainfield Institutions Will Observe Discovery Day.

At the regular meeting of the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum held a week ago, they appointed, as already stated in these columns, a committee of ten members to arrange an appropriate plan for celebrating the four-hundreth anniversary of the discovery of America.

Last night this committee reported progress, and stated that they had no definate plan yet. The entertainment, however, will probably be a lecture on the history of the voyage, with tableaux representing familiar scenes incidental to the expedition that resulted in the sighting of land at San Salvador. Music and historical songs will also form a part of the entertainment. The celebration will be held in the Lyceum hall, October 21.

The St. Mary's parochial school will follow out the programme advised by the National Board of School Representatives.

READY TO BUILD.

Just as Soon as Peace Street Is Settled, Up Goes Y. M. C. A. Hall.

A meeting of the building committee of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. was held last evening, when plans for the proposed building were approved. Estimates were received, but the committee found themselves absolutely unable to locate the building until the matter in connection with the extension of Peace street is definitely settled. A. L. C. Marsh, the architect, submitted plans which had been modified to suit the ideas of the committee.

A Somerville Policeman Shot Him Dead.

James Hahn, a laborer of Raritan, was shot and killed by policeman Gottlieb Stauch of Somerville on the main thoroughfare of that town yesterday. A gang of toughs got in a fight on the street and the officer sought to quell the disturbance. The men became abusive and the officer attempted to make arrests, when he was attacked by the crowd. He clubbed several on the head and then drew his revolver, and says it went off accidently in the melee. Hahn was shot through the abdomen and sank to the pavement dead in a few minutes. Special officer Corcoran arrested the policeman and four witnesses and took them before justice Burns, who committed them to jail.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

Her Sympathy.

Little Dorothy takes a trip alone in the horsecars every morning, under the conductor's care, on her way to the kindergarten. On her return at noon she always has some story to tell of what she has seen on her journey.

"What did you see in the car this morning, Dorothy?" asked her mamma at dinner one day.

"Why, mamma," said sweet-tempered Dorothy, sorrowfully, "I saw a man and a woman sitting side by side quarreling! So I went and sat between them, for I felt so sorry for that poor man, mamma!"

At Two Dollars an Hour.

"I am sorry it has taken me so long to get ready Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman, leisurely fastening her gloves, "and it is a shame to keep the driver of the carriage waiting outside so long. I fear he has got tired and driven off."

"No, Miss Bullion," replied young Spoonamore, with forced calmness. "It's a livery stable outfit. He'll wait. He isn't wasting any time."—Chicago Tribune.

THE ITALIAN ARMY.

What It Costs to Maintain the Immense Establishment.

A Burden Which May Cause the Downfall of the House of Savoy Any Day—The Pride of the Army Are the Bersaglieri.

The average annual cost of the Italian army is 190,000,000 lire. Service is compulsory upon all Italian subjects between the ages of twenty and thirty-nine, with the exception of convicted criminals. The annual number of conscripts who are actually available for service is 160,000. These are divided into three categories. The first and second, says Leslie's Monthly, join the permanent army for eight years, the mobile militia four years and for the remaining period the territorial militia. The army comprises the men with the colors and those on unlimited furlough. The mobile militia is liable to be called out in time of war, or for training, or for the preservation of the civil peace. A member of the territorial militia must attend for instruction at least thirty days, spread over a period of three years. The third category of the annual levy of recruits pass their whole nineteen years of service in the territorial militia.

About 8,000 volunteers are annually accepted, who serve for three years or for a special term. The nominal strength of the army is 790,000; mobile militia, 320,000, and territorial militia, 880,000. But of these about one-half are entirely untrained. For actual service the regular forces would probably number 430,000 men. The army has 12 territorial commands, 24 territorial divisions and 87 districts for recruiting purposes. Each infantry company contains about 90 men.

Alpine regiments are distinct in character, and are recruited from the border districts.

Volunteers pay for their service in the cavalry 2,000 lire per annum, and 1,500 lire for service in the infantry. Under these conditions a volunteer's service is made up thus: One year's active service, seven years on furlough, four years in mobile and seven years in territorial militia.

The permanent army is thus arranged: The general staff, the staff corps, the artillery and engineers, infantry, cavalry, royal carabiniers, corps of invalides, sanitary corps, commissariat corps, corps of paymasters and the veterinary corps.

The artillery contains 12 regiments of field troops, 5 of fortress and 2 brigades of horse artillery; with 5 companies of artillery artificers and 1 company of veterans. The officers number 1,434.

The engineer corps has 4 regiments, with an additional one of pontoniers.

There are 96 regiments of infantry of the line, each of 3 battalions, and a depot. The famed Bersaglieri comprise 12 regiments, each of 3 battalions of 4 companies, and a depot. The Alpine regiments are 6 in number, each of which have 20 battalions, or 72 companies.

The cavalry makes a total of 22 regiments, of 6 squadrons each, and depot.

The royal carabiniers are composed of 11 territorial legions and 1 legion of pupil carabiniers. This body is really a police force similar to the French gendarmerie.

The corps of invalides and veterans has a staff and 4 companies. The sanitary corps contains 742 medical officers, who are responsible for the sanitary arrangements of the army and the hospital service. The commissariat corps looks after subsistence and barrack quarters. It numbers 346 officers. The corps of paymasters keeps the accounts of the army. The veterinary corps numbers 153 officers.

To attain the rank of commissioned officer the candidate must be eighteen years old and have served two years as a noncommissioned officer, or one year as a volunteer, or pass direct as lieutenant from a military institute.

The Bersaglieri were formerly recruited in northern Italy almost exclusively, but of recent years the tendency has been strong in the Italian army to destroy the feeling of sectionalism, and the result is that now men from all sections of the country are found in the Bersaglieri. The latter troops, with their great plumes of feathers, rolling, jaunty, rhythmical gait, and lightning use of their limbs and arms, are soldiers of whom any country might be vain.

Ice Water Without Ice.

Here is a wrinkle—how to get ice-cold water in places where there is no ice. Wrap a jug—a porous jug—one of those common earthenware things—in flannel — wet flannel — wrap it all around, leaving no place exposed to the air; place it, filled with water—or with claret cup, which some sinners prefer to water—in an open window, exposed to all the air there is. Keep the flannel wet; in an hour the contents of that jug will be almost as cool as if they had been iced. This is a tropical trick which tricks the tropics.

A GIGANTIC ELM.

A Relic of the Primeval Forest in Vermont, 102 Feet High.

The elm figured herewith is doubtless the largest tree in Orleans county, Vermont, if not in all of the northeastern part of the state. It is, unquestionably, a tree of the original forest, and it was, to the eye, nearly as large in all its dimensions when the region was first settled, in the early part of the present century, as now. Its height, by careful measurement, is 102 feet. Three feet from the ground its circumference is exactly 20 feet, while at five feet it is 18 feet and 2 inches. Its small head is probably due to the fact that it grew in a close forest and had no opportunity to spread.

It stands close to the highway, which is also the main street of the village of Derby Line—so named because this street extends to the international boundary line between the United States and Canada, and is continuous with the main streets of Rock Island and Stanstead, Canada. Rock Island is situated upon an island in the Tomefobi river, which is almost exactly on the line at this point, and Stanstead Plain is a village closely adjacent on the north bank. The whole territory for fifty miles around consists of the finest agricultural land. On the Canadian side it is known as the Eastern townships, in large part is settled by New Englanders, who, before the line was strictly defined, "made their pitches" without much regard to where their citizenship and allegiance might fall. In addition to this Yankee element there was a large introduction of English immigrants, mostly soldiers from the disbanded armies of Great Britain after the final overthrow of Napoleon I. There is only a moderate intermixture of the French Canadian element in this part of Canada, and its principal town, Sherbrooke, now a city of some 12,000 people, is of British antecedents and environment.

THE OLDEST BUILDING.

Erected in New York One Hundred and Fifty Years Ago.

Valentine, in his history of old New York, gives a map showing the few buildings that dotted Manhattan island in the very earliest period of its existence. Over the oldest building of those days he placed an eagle; the next in seniority had two eagles, and the next three eagles. The first of these was Col. Rutgers' homestead, which was at the corner of Monroe street. It has gone now, and the place which knew it once was built over many years ago; but there is a memory of it left in the title of Rutgers place. The second was a grocery on the northeast corner of Division and Clinton streets, also gone, but the building designated by three eagles is still standing, and is now No. 480 Water street.

There is good authority for stating, therefore, that this is the oldest building in New York. It dates back over a century and a half, and, strange to say, has been occupied all this time by the same family. It is a ship joiner shop now, as it was when it was first built, and even the joiners employed there may be said to have inherited their jobs. The foreman has been there forty years, and his father was foreman before him. There are the vigorous gray headed chaps in this workshop whose fathers were there before them.

Has Its Teeth in Its Stomach.

There is a curious snake (Hydrael yeti) in South Africa that lives wholly upon birds' eggs. It has no teeth or signs of teeth in the mouth, its whole dental array being located in the stomach. Buckland says that they are not true teeth, but that they serve all purposes. They grow from the center of each vertebra. They pass through the walls of the stomach and are covered with enamel, just like true teeth. This is nature's provision for breaking eggs without running the risk of losing the precious contents, as would be the case if the egg-eating serpent had its teeth in the proper place. When the egg is safely inside the abdominal walls contract and crush it against that long row of vertebral teeth.

Big Six-Year-Old.

The largest child in Connecticut for her years is reputed to be the six-year-old daughter of J. L. Humphry, of Torrington. She weighs 125 pounds, and is gaining fast.

Too True.

"I've got an axiom for you."

"What is it?"

"Many a racehorse that's handsome ends up by being a hansom horse."—Rider and Driver.

Two Kinds of Children.

There are two kinds of children—your own good little darlings, and the badly behaved, mischievous little demons owned by other people.—Jury.

How Was It Done?

Wiffles—Well, sir, Boyer is a finished actor, let me tell you.

Taddles—You don't say? Did the audience kill him?—Judge.

MAKING THE MOST OF IT.

Historical Item.

Professor—You seem to be very dull. When Alexander the Great was your age he had already conquered the world.

Student—Well, you see he had Aristotle for a teacher. If he had had you it would have been very different.—Texas Siftings.

Cheaper Than Moving.

Mrs. Van Leever—Didn't you once say that it was cheaper to move than to pay rent?

Van Leever (dubiously)—Yes; but I was younger then. Now I'm convinced that it's cheapest of all to burn out and get your insurance.—Jury.

Posting Him.

Stranger (at big hotel)—I notice you fee the waiters. Do you get better service?

Regular Guest—No.

Stranger—Then why do you do it?

Regular Guest—So they won't spill the soup down my back.—N. Y. Weekly.

His Prospects Assured.

Pater—Do you think that I would allow a man of your uncertain prospects to marry my daughter?

Suitor—Yes; because if I married her, you see, my prospects wouldn't be uncertain.—Harper's Bazar.

A Misunderstanding.

Laborer—I want a pair of kid gloves for my wife.

Saleslady—Yes sir. What number?

Laborer—Number 18; but you needn't throuble to send them. Eighteen Pine street, where I live, is too far.—Demorest's Magazine.

Doubtless a Slander.

"Yes, I know her. Married a funny man about a year ago. Poor girl! Has an incurable malady."

"Hiccoughs?"

"Gracious, no! Melancholia."—Chicago Tribune.

A Professional Adviser.

Old Dr. du Mond (to wayward nephew)—My boy, you should try to profit by advice.

Jack—I might, uncle, if I got five dollars a visit for giving it, as you do.—Judge.

The Fashions.

You call her "Child of Nature!"
Pray, let me know your reasons
Because, in form and feature,
She changes with the seasons.

No Spectacles; Ergo No Wisdom.

Miss Russellina Dorchester (of Boston)—Solomon could not have possessed the wisdom with which he is usually accredited.

Miss Penelope Biddle (of Philadelphia)—Do tell!

Miss Russellina Dorchester—No; because spectacles were not even invented in Solomon's time.—Jewelers' Circular

A Good Investment.

Morris Rosenberg—What do you think, uncle? I'm goin' ter get married. She's a beauty. Hair like jet, lips like rubies, teeth like pearls, und eyes like diamonds.

Uncle—Mein gracious, Morris! you've vun a prize.—Judge.

Explained.

The Veteran—Speakin' of bravery! why, durin' the wilderness campaign, single-handed, I made forty confederates run.

His Hearers—How was that?

The Veteran—Well, they chased me.—Harper's Weekly.

HAVE NO FEARS OF AN EPIDEMIC

New York's Health Board Confident of Keeping Cholera in Check.

NO CASES REPORTED IN THE CITY SINCE WEDNESDAY.

NO RELAXATION OF QUARANTINE.

Dr. Jenkins Astonished at the Development of the Plague, and He Says He Cannot Imagine How it Entered the Metropolis — Normannia's Passengers May be Freed To-Day—Stormy Voyage of the Pegasus—Another Infected Ship in Port—Panic in Prices After the Health Board's Report—A New Case on the Scandia—Scourge Steadily Abating in Hamburg.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 14.—Viewed from the Health Officer's official residence this morning the cholera scare is not the pleasant picture of progress in stamping out the disease which has existed for the past few days. The report that actual cases of Asiatic cholera have existed in New York the last week, in spite of the daily official bulletins to the contrary, spreads a wet blanket over the doctor's keeping the scourge from passing the ocean gateway.

The flash of discouragement which spread o'er the face of the Health Officer when told of the official admission made by the New York Board of Health yesterday afternoon was certainly natural, while his instant exclamation: "I don't believe it got in by quarantine," simply voiced the belief of all who have been stationed here and watched the enforcement of quarantine regulations.

This is the list of deaths to date in the order in which they are said to have occurred:

Charles McAvoy, died Sep. 6 at 879 10th avenue.

Sophia Wigman, died Sep. 10 at 768 11th avenue.

William Wigman, died two days after his wife.

Charlotte Beck, died Sep. 13 at 1,764 2d avenue.

Minnie Levinger, died Sep. 11 at 411 East 46th street.

All these deaths were reported to the Board of Health and investigated with the utmost care. All of them were of a suspicious character.

Nothing but the decision of the microscope was needed to complete the diagnosis of Asiatic cholera, and that diagnosis Prof. Biggs has now made.

He communicated his decision to the Board of Health, and President Wilson summoned President Martin of the Police Board. After consultation behind closed doors the cholera was announced.

Two physicians of Dr. Moreau Morris's staff are on duty in each of the infected houses. Their orders are never to leave the house. One physician must always be there.

Medical Commissioner of the Health Board, Dr. Bryant, said to-day:

"I do not think that the disease will become epidemic. This, he says, "is almost assured from the fact that no suspicious cases have occurred since Wednesday."

"There seems to be but little danger," said he, "so far, and the public need not be alarmed. Every precaution has been taken by the Board of Health to combat and crush the disease wherever it may appear."

Dr. Edson of the Bureau of Contagious Diseases is also of the opinion that there will be no cholera epidemic here.

"I think its spread will be less than typhus fever," said he. "As to where the cholera came from that is the question we are trying to solve. It is in the city, and it must have come from some outside source. It must have passed some quarantine. I think within 24 hours we will have run down the direction from which the disease came. There may be cases of sporadic cholera over the city, but I think the disease will be speedily overcome."

The Chamber of Commerce up to 9 o'clock a. m., reported that Treasurer J. Pierpont Morgan had secured $92,230 in subscriptions to the Quarantine Emergency Fund.

The details of the day here have been few but important, viz.: The arrival of the tank steamers Heligoland, reporting two deaths at sea; a new case on the Scandia; the arrival of the State of Nevada from Glasgow, the first ship amenable to the 20-day rule of the Treasury circular, and Dr. Jenkins' statement that in spite of cholera cases in the city there will be no diminution in the stringency of quarantine regulations, sum up the incidents of yesterday.

To-day the transfer service which began with taking the Normannia's cabin passengers to Fire Island is being continued in earnest. The Rugia's cabin people will be placed on the New Hampshire, and the Wyoming's cabin will be taken to Fire Island. If Camp Low is ready before night the steerage people of the Normannia, who have long been on Hoffman Island, will be moved there as will also those on the Moravia, from whom encouraging reports have been received daily of late.

The Normannia's cabin baggage, which is partly on the ship and partly on the Stonington will be thoroughly disinfected to day and sent to town as quickly as possible. Steamer Wieland of the Hamburg line will be released to-day, while the ill-starred Normannia will be moved to Upper Quarantine where her cargo will be discharged into lighters. It is the Health Officer's present intention not to allow the Hamburg express steamer to go to her dock.

Dr. Jenkins' statement that he will release the Normannia's passengers now at the Surf Hotel on Fire Island some time to-day has thrown the unfortunate people into a wild state of joyful expectancy, and if anything should happen that this promise could not be fulfilled, the disappointment could very likely be better imagined than described.

The unwilling guests of the hotel are making the best of their situation, but they are anxious to get away and nothing less can cheer up their drooping spirits.

The sufferings of the last night and day on board the Cepheus will live forever in the memories of those on board of her.

The quarantine line at Fire Island is drawn just to one side of a hotel. This hotel was the headquarters of the bay-men.

A number of the women on Fire Island will be removed to the floating hotel which Mr. Bayard Cutting offered to the Health officers and which was accepted by them, as soon as it gets to the landing at Fire Island. The hotel will accommodate about fifty persons and will be more comfortable than the Surf Hotel.

Several of the passengers were seen and talked to by a reporter. They described the terrible experience they had had aboard the steamboat and their suffering while they were prisoners aboard the vessel. They told in pathetic words of a woman who Monday night gave birth to a little child on board the boat. Several other women were also shortly to give birth to children, and their situation was terrible.

Some of the female passengers and children are still suffering from the effects of their terrible experience, but none are regarded as seriously ill.

The woman who gave birth to a child while on board of the Cepheus is reported to be doing well.

Everything possible is being done for those who need medical attendance. Gov. Flower has telegraphed to the Quarantine officials to spare no expense.

A. M. Palmer, Senator McPherson and Miss Lottie Collins, the English actress, unite in saying that they would rather meet death than pass through another such experience.

Quite a clearing out of the upper Quarantine fleet took place shortly before noon.

Among the vessels which were released were the Netherlands Steamers Didam and Maasdam, which arrived here Tuesday; the Red Star steamer Belenland, which arrived on Monday from Antwerp and the National Line steamer England which arrived here during the morning from London.

The situation on the pest ships now in Lower Quarantine and on the islands where the immigrants are being cared for has shown little change in the past twenty-four hours, and Dr. Jenkins is greatly pleased at the outlook.

The fact that but one case of the plague has developed in several days strengthens the hope that the worst has been met and successfully repulsed.

Dr. Walser, however, fears the effects of the heavy early morning rains and the extreme humidity on the health of those confined on the ships and islands in the lower bay, and while it does not necessarily mean an increase of cholera cases, it is favorable to the propagation of cholera germs and may result in the more ordinary sickness due to confinement in crowded quarters.

The Pegasus, with the men of the 69th Regiment and the Naval Reserve aboard, returned to her dock shortly before noon, after a night's battle with a heavy sea and southeast storm.

Much anxiety was felt throughout the night and morning when no news was received of the arrival of the boat at Fire Island. It was very rough on the ocean, and some fears were had that the boat might have met with an accident.

The steamship companies of this city are now paying a heavy penalty for their carelessness with their steerage passengers, as may be seen from the fact that the North German Lloyd steamship Spree left this port yesterday for Bremen with only ten first cabin and twenty-five second cabin passengers. She carried no steerage passengers.

The Hamburg-American liner Columbia will sail for Southampton to-day without a single passenger, cabin or steerage, and also without a single ounce of freight.

STILL ABATING IN HAMBURG.

The Oder Polluted—Plague Reports from Many Sections.

HAMBURG, Sep. 15.—The cholera epidemic continues to abate. Dr. Koch and Dr. Pittinkofer arrived from Berlin this morning and attended a meeting of the City Council to give advice as regards the purifying of the city. In Altona the cholera has declined until no apprehension is felt by the Health Board.

In consequence of the appearance of cholera in Stettin, a sanitary commission was appointed to examine the water of the Oder. The river was found to be thoroughly contaminated, and several commissioners cannot understand how the city has escaped with so few cases, while using the water. It is believed that the infection was brought in by Hamburg steamers in the water ballast, which was discharged by them before loading at Stettin.

PARIS, Sep. 15.—It is reported from Lille, Department of the North, that Sara Bernhardt was last night obliged to substitute "Camille" for "Cleopatra" because the dresses she was to have worn in the latter play were with-held by the health authorities for disinfection.

LONDON, Sep. 15.—When the steamer Holdemess arrived at Hull from Cronstadt, Russia, the captain reported that during the voyage two firemen in the crew had died of cholera. The steamer was at once fumigated and placed in quarantine.

AMSTERDAM, Sep. 15.—The cholera has not spread in any part of Holland so far as heard from, but occasional deaths from the disease are reported at different localities.

PANIC IN PRICES.

The Cholera Scare Causes a Decline in New York Markets.

NEW YORK, Sep. 15.—The trouble with the market yesterday was all in the last half hour, and was caused by the report that Asiatic cholera had actually found a foothold in the city. Its effect was panicky, so far as the market was concerned.

Prices began to crumble, and did not cease falling until the gong sounded the close. It was no more than had been expected.

The fear that such a visitation might take place has been one of the chief deterrent factors in the market ever since the arrival of the steamer Moravia. As it was the general list fell off 1-2 to 1 1-9 under the pressure caused by the fright.

THEY FEAR THE WORST

Mrs. Harrison's Illness Likely to Result Fatally.

BULLETIN OF THE PHYSICIANS.

The Toppings to Withdraw the Watery Substance in the Lung Cavity Attended With Great Danger—Russell Harrison and Mrs. McKee at the Bedside—A Slight Improvement This Morning.

LOON LAKE HOUSE, N. Y., Sep. 15.—The anxiety of the President and his family over the critical condition of Mrs. Harrison is intense, and they make no attempt to conceal their great alarm at the situation. The physicians advise them to hope for the best, but offer no real encouragement. They have, so it is said, quietly intimated to the President the strong probability of a fatal result.

The President is a most faithful companion, and rarely leaves Mrs. Harrison's bedside. In fact, he really shares the nursing of the invalid with a professional attendant.

Russell Harrison and Mrs. McKee, the President's son and daughter, are also in constant attendance. The former was summoned from New York as soon as the disease took a dangerous turn.

Dr. Gardner made a careful examination of Mrs. Harrison late last night. He found that the abeumulation of the watery substance in the lung cavity was not sufficient to justify another operation for its withdrawal. "These tappings," Dr. Gardner said, "are attended with great danger on account of the weak condition of Mrs. Harrison, and each time a puncture is made she suffers from the shock." Her respiration this morning is less labored and she is able to take small quantities of liquid nourishment at intervals.

The great danger lies in the watery accumulation and constant watchfulness on the part of the doctors is required to prevent it from bringing about a fatal termination. The accumulation has a tendency to smother the patient by filling the air valves, and it also brings abnormal pressure to bear on the heart.

The first operation of tapping was performed Sunday, and the second 24 hours later.

Following is the bulletin which was issued by Drs. Gardner, Doughty and Trudeau, yesterday:

"Primary disease or tuberculosis of right side associated with nervous prostration. Recent complication, sub-acute pleurisy, with rapid effusion of water in the right chest, necessitating two tappings, with some relief.

"Present condition critical, on account of tendency to reproduction of fluid; removal to Washington at present impossible; prognostication as to immediate future uncertain."

PRESIDENT POTTER'S TRUNK.

Asked That it be Taken from Custody of the Clerk of the Court.

BOSTON, Sep. 15.—Senator William E. Chandler, Chairman of the Senate Bank Investigating Committee, has written to Thomas P. Beale, Receiver of the Maverick National Bank, formally asking him to apply at once to the court for a revocation of its order placing President Asa P. Potter's trunk in the keeping of the clerk of the court.

Testimony is cited in proof that a written engagement was entered into between Mr. Potter and his counsel by which Mr. Beale and Mr. Hutchins are to have at all times access to all the papers in the trunk. The committee do not understand that any agreement made in behalf of the United States by which the receiver and his counsel may examine this trunk and its contents while the Comptroller of the Currency and a committee of Congress are excluded therefrom.

The Senator, therefore, asks Mr. Beale to procure access to the trunk, and allow an inspection of its contents by the committee.

SHUT DOWN ON FRUIT.

New York Merchants Cannot Dispose of It Because of the Cholera Scare.

KEYPORT, N. J., Sep. 15.—The New York produce commission merchants have notified the farmers throughout this section of the country not to send any more fruits or melons to them as they are unable to dispose of the stuff on account of the cholera scare in the city.

The farmers have been holding back their fruits during the past week to some extent, and are now considerably worried over the new state of affairs.

Their peaches, apples and pears are rotting, while their melons are becoming worthless. Unless there will be a change for the better in a week or so they will be ruined.

Sixty New Cases in Paris.

PARIS, Sep. 15.—There were 60 fresh cases of cholera in this city yesterday and 44 deaths.

HAVRE, Sep. 15.—Seven deaths from cholera were reported yesterday and eleven new cases.

Boston Provisions a Floating Hospital.

BOSTON, Sep. 15.—The ferryboat Franklin, owned by the city, has been provisioned and supplied with beds and will be ready at a moment's notice for use as a cholera hospital, in case the disease should be discovered in this city.

False Report from Ohio.

ADA, Ohio, Sep. 15.—The report of an emigrant train being quarantined here with ten cases of cholera aboard is false. There is not a case of cholera in this section.

WERTS FOR GOVERNOR.

Proceedings of the Democratic State Convention at Trenton.

TRENTON, Sep. 15.—Whether George T. Werts will stand by his letter and decline the nomination for Governor so overwhelmingly tendered him is now the question.

When the convention reassembled yesterday afternoon, the Committee on Permanent Organization reported as follows: Chairman, Edward F. McDonald, Hudson; Secretaries, Edward Sharp of Warren, Michael T. Barrett of Essex, James Deshler of Middlesex and J. J. Matthews of Union.

The aisles of the theatre were thronged with spectators, and there was so much crowding, pushing and disorder that 20 delegates were appointed to act as sergeants-at-arms for the purpose of preserving order. They failed utterly in their efforts, and the greatest confusion prevailed.

The platform was adopted as read. The Committee on Credentials reported in favor of the Gourley delegates from Passaic.

Nominations being declared in order, the first name presented was that of George T. Werts by the chairman of the Camden delegation. Judge Daly for Hudson, nominated E. F. Young.

Mercer, through W. Holt Apgar, nominated Gen. R. A. Donnelly; Morris county nominated Augustus W. Cutler of Morris.

This closed the list and the first ballot was taken. It resulted in the nomination of Werts amid such confusion that no figures were kept, a dozen counties going to Werts before the result was announced.

Hudson county refused to vote for Werts and, therefore, his nomination could not be made unanimous. The result of the first and only ballot was:

Werts, 710; Young, 138. The Donnelly and Cutler votes all went to Werts.

Before adjournment the following Presidential electors were chosen: At Large—Philip Baker, of Cumberland, and Millard F. Ross, of Middlesex.

First district—Charles Mann, of Camden: Second district—Thomas Prickett, Burlington; Third district—James Deshler, Union; Fourth district—Theodore Simonson, Sussex; Fifth district—James G. Morgan, Hudson; Sixth district—Edward Balbach, Essex; Seventh district—Col. E. A. Stevens; Eighth district—Martin D. Cook, Hudson.

MASSACHUSETTS REPUBLICANS.

Hale Nominated for Governor and Wolcott for Lieutenant-Governor.

BOSTON, Sep. 15.—The programme of the Republicans in State Convention was carried out as outlined in these dispatches. After the appointment of the committees Henry E. Turner, of Malden, made the report of the permanent organization. The Permanent Chairman, Hon. Charles H. Allen, was received with applause and cheers. When quiet was restored, he proceeded to deliver his address.

Willard Howland, of Chelsea, in a brief speech, moved the nomination by acclamation of the Hon. William 'H. Haile of Springfield for Governor, and the motion passed unanimously.

The following Presidential electors were then chosen:

First district, Joseph Griswold, Greenfield: Second, George W. Johnson, Brookfield; Third, Edward D. Glasgow, Worcester; Fourth, James Phillips, jr., Fitchburg; Sixth, Peter C. Smith, Andover; Seventh, Elisha S. Converse, Malden; Eighth, Edward Glavis, Somerville; Ninth, J. A. Lamb, Boston; Tenth, John Shaw, Surrey; Eleventh, John H. Ballard, Dedham; Twelfth, B. S. Lovell, Weymouth; Thirteenth, John Simpkins, Yarmouth.

The first ballot for Lieutenant-Governor was: Thomas Hart of Boston, 2; Samuel C. Darling of Somerville, 89; Francis W. Breed of Lynn, 151; John B. Adams of Lynn, 411; Roger H. Wolcott of Boston, 444, and there was no choice.

A second ballot was ordered taken. The convention meantime renominated William M. Olin for Secretary of State, Albert S Pillsbury for Attorney-General, John W. Kimball for Auditor, and Geo. A. Narden for Treasurer and Receiver-General.

The second ballot for Lieutenant-Governor stood: Hart, 1; Darling, 3; J. B. Adams, 473; Wolcott, 499. Necessary for choice, 486.

Mr. Wolcott's nomination was made unanimous.

LATEST FROM MAINE.

The Republican Plurality Will be About 12,668—The Legislature.

LEWISTON, Me., Sep. 15.—Returns from 449 towns, nearly the whole State, give Cleaves, Rep., for Governor, 65,408; Johnson, Dem., 53,116; Hussey, Pro., 3,180; Bateman, People's, 2,262, Republican plurality 12,658.

The remaining towns will not materially alter this result.

So far as heard from the Republicans have elected 111 Representatives and the Democrats 34, with 5 districts to hear from.

The last House consisted of 110 Republicans and 41 Democrats.

Iron Hall Redivivus.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sep. 15.—The Iron Hall resurrectionists, who have been in session here since Monday, devoted the day to the consideration of changes in the constitution, which will curtail the authority of the Supreme officers in handling the funds of the Order. The following officers were elected: Supreme Justice, Samuel E. Town of Philadelphia; Vice-Justice, H. S. Jones of Boston; Supreme Accountant, W. F. Lander of Indianapolis; Supreme Cashier, Albert Cobb of Indianapolis.

Favors Establishment of State Parks.

CONCORD, N. H., Sep. 15.—Austin Corbin has written a letter to Senator Chandler concerning the preservation of New Hampshire forests. He thinks the State should have a dozen parks equal to or larger than his own at Croydon and believes they might be made to pay the interest on the cost. He says he will in various ways contribute five per cent of the cost of a State Park up to $1,000,000.

The Alliance Ordered to Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 15.—Orders have been received at Mare Island Navy Yard for the old cruiser Alliance to start within ten days for Honolulu. As the Alliance arrived on Friday from China she is in no shape for another long voyage, and it will be quick work to coal and provision her in the time required. LOST IT ALL ON THE "24"

Details of Miss Armstrong's Suicide at Monte Carlo.

EFFORTS TO SUPPRESS THE FACTS

The Young Woman Left New York in August—Becoming Possessed of the Gambling Fever, and Winning at First, She Staked and Lost Her Entire Fortune.

NEW YORK, Sep. 16.—Further particulars have been received here of the suicide of Miss Jane Armstrong, of this city, after she had lost a fortune at Monte Carlo.

Miss Armstrong was an orphan, 26 years old. She sailed from New York early in August, and, after having visited friends in Trieste, went to Nice.

She first went to the Casino at Monte Carlo on Sep. 3. She played insanely, the first day, and won 100,000 francs on the "24." She was so possessed of the desire to try her luck again that she stopped with acquaintances over night at a hotel nearby, that she might begin playing as soon as possible in the following day. As on the first day the "24" won, six times in succession. Miss Armstrong continued to play it, and lost heavily.

She remained at the table from mid-day to midnight, and quit it $200,000 loser.

On the third day she recovered what she had lost, and left the Casino, saying she was ill and would never play the game again. She returned, however, and began betting again on the "twenty-four." She lost steadily until her whole fortune of $250,000 was gone. As the croupier took in her last gold coin she rose and left the Casino.

To an acquaintance who met her at the door and remarked on her paleness, she said she had lost all, and was going to friends in Trieste, who would see she got back to the United States. She did not go to Trieste, however, but shot herself in a room in a villa at Ventimiglia.

The usual effort was made at Monte Carlo to suppress the news, and a report was sent out that the Miss Armstrong who had killed herself was an elderly lady who had left Monte Carlo for Trieste some days before, and had committed suicide there.

Two men, said to be Englishmen, who had lost all their money at the Casino, sprang into the sea on the night of Miss Armstrong's suicide. These suicides also are denied by the Monte Carlo people.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 15.—The fifth annual convention of the National League of Republican Clubs was called to order at Music Hall at 10 o'clock this morning by John W. Scatherd, a member from Erie county to the Republican State Committee. About 300 delegates were present at the opening, and the hall was filled with spectators. Judge Haight delivered the address of welcome. President Clarkson made a ringing address, after which the convention took a recess until 2 p. m.

The report of the secretary will be read, and following that the usual committees will be appointed.

The next order of business will be the reports of State leagues as to their growth and work in their territories, and this will be one of the most important features of the convention.

In the evening there will be a mass meeting in charge of the local committe, and, although the arrangements are not entirely completed, the speakers will include Governor McKinley, J. Sloat Fassett, E. O. Wolcott, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster and Governor Brown of Rhode Island.

To-morrow the league will consider the resolutions to be promulgated by the platform committee and will elect officers for the ensuing year.

In the morning Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, President of the Women's Association, will call to order a meeting of women and Hon. Whitelaw Reid is expected to make an address.

In the afternoon the League of College Clubs will have its own meeting. President James Francis Burke will make an address, and after some routine business is transacted, Governor McKinley will address the assemblage.

At night there is to be a parade reviewed by the notables present.

GUILTY OF CONTEMPT.

Sheriff Lawmaster Imprisoned for Refusing to Execute a Murderer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 15.—Judge Murphy found Sheriff Lawmaster guilty of contempt of court for refusing to execute murderer John McNulty, and sentenced him to 24 hours imprisonment in the county jail.

McNulty was found guilty of the murder of Thomas Collins and was sentenced to be hanged August 19.

Governor Markham, however, granted a reprieve of 15 days.

A new trial was refused, but the sheriff at the expiration of the reprieve refused to proceed with the execution without a new order from the court.

An order was issued fixing the date of execution for October 14. Judge Murphy holds that the first order, fixing the date of the execution, was still good after the reprieve had expired.

The judge accordingly found the sheriff guilty of contempt for not obeying it.

The sheriff is considering the advisability of appealing from the decision.

TO PLAY OR NOT TO PLAY.

With Manager Reed Rests the Decision About Saturday's Somerville Game.

At the informal meeting of Crescent League members held at the club-house last night the subject of going to Somerville Saturday was openly discussed. A vote was taken to secure an expression of the sentiments of those present, in the matter of playing again with Somerville. The vote was 19 to 18 in favor of staying at home and cancelling this week's game. Secretary Hallock was requested to notify manager Reed of the result of the meeting, in the form of a protest against playing Somerville. Manager Reed is still inclined to play the game, but several of the players will undoubtedly refuse to go. If the game is played, it will probably be with a scrub team, and the Plainfield people will stay home anyway. Scores of those opposed to going to Somerville were absent from last night's meeting, while the handful in favor of going were out in full force.

BUTTERFLIES ON THE LAWN.

Merry Social Gathering of Friends to Greet the Hostess of "The Pines" on Her Natal Day.

LANWOOD never had a more delightful entertainment. That was the verdict of everyone. The affair took place last Friday evening at "The Pines", the home of the Pentz family.

The occasion was the twenty-first birthday anniversary of Miss Annie M. Pentz, and in honor of the occasion a lawn dance was held.

The grounds presented a most attractive appearance, decorated as they were with Chinese lanterns of all colors and designs. For the comfort of the dancers a platform thirty feet square had been placed upon the lawn.

The dance was entirely an informal one, for the gentler sex attended in summer gowns and Gainsborough hats, while the masculines were all in happy-go-lucky summer costume.

The dancing was kept up until midnight, varied by promenades beneath the shade of the giant pine trees which give the Pentz home its name.

Among the guests on the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pentz, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Lacy, the Misses Kyte, all of Fanwood; Mr. and Mrs. W. McMaster Mills and Miss Mary E. Mills, of New York; the Misses Tappen, of Bernardsville; the Misses Hazen of Plainfield; and Miss Bacon, of Brooklyn; Messrs. A. Johnson of Perth Amboy, Lozier and Dodd of Brooklyn, Birney of Elizabeth; and many others as well known in social circles.

The hostess of the evening, Miss Pentz, was assisted by her sister, Miss Jean, and her brothers, Messrs. Wm. R., A. Maclay, and Stanton W. Pentz.

An informal supper was had from 10 to 12.

The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and the hope was expressed that the affair would soon be repeated.

A party of a dozen remained over at the "Pines" until Saturday and Monday.

F. M. Hulett of Plainfield furnished excellent music.

The conditions were five men to a team, each to shoot at twenty-five blue-rocks under American Shooting Association rules.

Saved—the life that is fighting against Consumption.

Only—act promptly.

Put it off, and nothing can save you. But, if taken in time, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will certainly cure.

It must be done through the blood—and the "Discovery" is the most potent blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, and every form of Scrofula and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering coughs, it's an unequaled remedy. It's the only one that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

Can anything else, at any price, be really as cheap?

You pay only for value received.

Something else, that pays the dealer better, may be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is, for him, but it can't be, for you.

Driver Kelley Severely Bruised.

William Kelley, a driver for the United States Express company, fell off the end of his wagon at the North avenue railroad station yesterday and was severely injured.

Kelley was lifting a very heavy trunk from the platform to the tailboard of the wagon when the horse suddenly started. Kelley slipped and fell to the ground between the wagon and the platform with the trunk on top of him. He struck his head against the wall of the platform, was knocked senseless from the force of the blow, and remained in an unconscious condition for fifteen minutes. He was picked up and taken to his home.

Kelley was on duty this morning, although very stiff and sore from his many bruises.

TWO GOVERNORS TO BE THERE TO-DAY.

Incumbent Abbett and People's Choice Worle Are to Take Part in the Big Day at the Somerville Fair.

GREAT day is this at the Somerville fair. It is the "big day" of the twenty-third annual exhibition of the Somerset County Agricultural society. Everything has been done by the management to make the fair this year a success, and they have succeeded most admirably.

Just twenty-two years ago this fall the first exhibition was held on the grounds purchased by the society and used at the present time. Before the year 1870 fairs were held occasionally in Somerset county by what was known as the Franklin society. One year it would be held on the county lot in the rear of the court-house in Somerville; the following year in Raritan, and once in Bound Brook.

As early as 1854 Col. David Saunderson, well known throughout the State on account of his great control over horses, was the prime mover. The exhibitions were not held every year, but whenever the Franklin society saw fit and was in a proper frame of mind.

When the present society was formed, Rynear Veghte, at that time one of Somerset's prominent men, was chosen president.

Since 1870 the fair has been held yearly without a single break. Two years ago, in 1890, the management changed hands, and Jacob Klotz was elected president.

Mr. Klotz is especially adapted for this office, as he had control of the Hon. John R. McPherson's stock farm at Belle Mead for a long time, and is an able judge of horses and cattle. Through his efforts the standard of the meeting has been raised to a high degree. The farmers have become interested, a thing unheard of before, and the owners of the stock farms in Somerset county strive one and all to outdo the others in the excellence of their exhibits.

One offer made to the farmers last year, and repeated this season, was three prizes for the best beets, field-grown, from the seed furnished by the society. W. W. Crater of Peapack scored a beat on the others last fall, and was awarded first prize. The Hon. George LaMonte came in second, while Alfred DeCordova, who owns a country place near North Branch, took the third.

Another prize offered by the association is to the farmer having the best-kept surroundings to his place. Even the towns-people have taken hold, and there are on exhibition specimens of the dainty handiwork of the Somerset county maidens, not to speak of canned goods, nice flaky bread and fine fruit-cake. The judges of the culinary department are especially chosen for their internal fitness, and go into training at least two months in advance of the exhibition.

In the fruit and vegetable tent one can feast his eyes on heaps of golden pumpkins, large juicy beets, yellow squashes, baskets of onions, turnips, tomatoes ripe and red, fluffy heads of cabbage, early rose and late rose potatoes, sheaves of corn with the husks on, plates of rosy-cheeked apples, pears, large bunches of purple and white grapes, and other good things galore. You can scarcely tell which are the best, and certainly not if you are a judge.

This year a new departure has been made in giving the people a chance to see running races. One is run each day, no less than twenty horses being entered in each event. The trotting classes are all well filled, and the handsome bicycle prizes have drawn a great number of wheelmen from all parts of the State.

A balloon ascension each day delights the rustics' eyes; this is another new feature. Besides all these there are the usual number of fakirs, confidence-men, nickel-in-the-slot-machines, base-ball catches, wheels of fortune, candy-butchers, peanut-venders, and hot-sausage men, all bent on wheedling the dimes and quarters out of one's pockets. The town has assumed quite a lively aspect. The hotels have filled up, and the police force has been increased—a sure sign that lively times are expected to-day. Every train is bringing into town those who expect to make money at the fair. At the station the sparrow-hackman pounces upon one and almost drags the unwary into his conveyance. His is the first hack off, and will take you direct to the grounds for 10 cents—so he says.

All the politicians are to be on hand to-day, including Governor Abbett and the Governor that is to be.

THEY BOW TO "THE PRESS".

Good Democrats Everywhere Rejoicing that Plainfield Nominated Grover.

(New Brunswick Daily Times.)

A good deal of discussion is going on in the papers in regard to who nominated Grover Cleveland. First the New York World thinks it did. A western paper says the same thing, and New Jersey says "we did", and rightly, too. The honor belongs to The Daily Press of Plainfield. This wide-awake sheet stretched a large banner inscribed "Cleveland in 1892" in front of the Central Railroad depot at that place on March 6, 1889, and as Cleveland's train passed through the city taking him from Washington to New York, he saw the banner, turned and bowed to the crowd at the depot, thus answering The Press. Later Mr. Cleveland wrote The Daily Press in reply to a letter received and thanked them for their courtesy, which letter The Press now has. We bow to The Press.

A PLAINFIELD MAN WHO BUILDS.

Important Achievements of the Rising Young Engineer Who Laid Out the Plainfield Street Railway.

Alfred B. Nelson, a most efficient civil engineer and surveyor, has opened an office in the Stelle and White building, 2 East Front street. Mr. Nelson is an engineer of wide experience, as may be seen from the following interesting record of his achievements:

From college Mr. Nelson went on the Geodetic Survey of New Jersey, a department of the United States Coast Survey. When the annual appropriation ran out, he quit the Government service, and secured a position with the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he continued nine years, during which time he had charge of their New York, Jersey City and New York Harbor work, for three years; the building of the Rahway river bridge, surveys for and construction of third and fourth tracks through Rahway, from Metuchen to Millstone Junction, and several smaller pieces of double tracking; the erection of two iron bridges in Trenton; a survey of the Belvidere division and the location and construction of the Long Beach Railroad, 25 miles, with over 6,000 lineal feet of bridging; the construction of the Pleasure Railway at Sea Isle City; and the location of the Manumuskin and Maurice River Railroad; the construction of the piers, docks, etc., at South Baltimore; the laying out and building of all freight yards on the Chestnut Hill Railroad, together with the erection of the freight-houses, and laying out and paving, guttering and macadamizing of the driveways; the construction of several large bridges, and many small ones, etc.

Since leaving their employ as an engineer, he has done considerable work for the Pennsylvania Railroad, on the main line west of Philadelphia, and the construction of the Bridgeton terminal. He has also located and built the Seven-Mile Beach Railroad, and been consulting engineer for the Philadelphia and Seashore Railroad. He has surveyed and laid out Barnegat City and Avenel, N. J., which are built on his plans, and has also surveyed and divided into blocks and building lots about seven miles of Barnegat Beach, a large part of Sea Isle City, and seven miles of Seven-mile Beach. During the past year he has done considerable work on Long Island, and some United States Government work at Willett's Point, New York Harbor, and at Fort Delaware.

His last work was the superintendency of the construction of the Plainfield Electric Railroad. Three years ago Mr. Nelson took up the subject of water-works and sewers for the city of Plainfield, and prepared all the plans, specifications, estimates, etc., on which George M. Dorrance, of Philadelphia, made a proposition to the last common council. The proposition was not accepted at the time because of non-agreement on some minor points. It may be further considered later.

NOTHING CAN SPOIL BAD EGGS.

All the State Proud of the Crescent League, and Disgusted at Somerville Blackguardism.

(From The New Brunswick Times.)

The West Ends, of Somerville, took another championship game from the Crescent League, of Plainfield, Saturday afternoon, with the aid of all the professional players they could pick up in New York city and vicinity. The game was one-sided throughout, and the West Ends held up their title as the champion base-ball blackguards of New Jersey nobly. They kicked from the time the game started until the last man crossed the plate, and made the Plainfield crowd so sick and disgusted with their playing and mouth work that many left the grand-stand before the game was finished.

Of course it is a matter of the championship of New Jersey to the West Ends if they win next Saturday's game, and a tie with the Crescents if they lose, but we, as disinterested onlookers, would rather see the Plainfield boys lose next Saturday's game than to resort to the West Ends' style of playing ball and win.

The Crescent League has a good name to sustain, while the West Ends—well, nothing can spoil a bad egg.

The Enemy Advises Its Own Tactics of Hiring Outsiders to Help.

(Harkinstown Bladder.)

Who runs the Crescent team, Charlie Reed or The Daily Press and the rest of the sore-headed mob? Saturday will show which really does. If "Charlie" runs the team, the Crescents will show up like men and play the final game; if not, why, they will stay at home and prove their sneaking cowardice to the whole of New Jersey. All eyes are on Plainfield. Don't "crawl" like a writhing, slimy serpent, but go, get Rusle and Ewing and win the game. Men can be hired in New York who can play as well as Gore, Sharrott and Field, but it takes money to get them. Win the game in Somerville next Saturday, and The Press will take back what it said about the league season being over. Come up like men. Half the battle is in trying.

Prefer the Jersey Central's Management.

The Reading in New Jersey is no more, and great is the rejoicing among the employes on the Jersey Central. When Chancellor McGill's decision was announced and the order issued that the Central would hereafter be conducted under the old management, a sigh of relief might have been heard all along the line, from Jersey City to Easton, with the murmur "may they never come back!"

A Valuable Remedy.

Hon. Edmund L. Pitts, the late president of the New York State Senate, writes: "STATE OF N. Y., SENATE CHAMBER, ALBANY, March 11, 1886. I have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family for the past five years and can truthfully say they are a valuable remedy and effect great cures. I would not be without them. I have in several instances given some to friends suffering with weak and lame backs, and they have invariably afforded certain and speedy relief. They cannot be too highly recommended.

AN OLD TIMER'S TRIBUTE.

He Writes Enthusiastically of the Delights of a Popular Resort and Its Charming Belle.

Eat Hotel Netherwood have for the past two weeks enjoyed weather that is simply perfect. Were it not that the golden-rod has assumed a brownish hue, and that the liquid notes of the plaintive wood-thrush have the mournful cadence announcing its early flight to the tropics, one would scarcely realize that summer had passed, and autumn was here—so gentle and gradual has the change of seasons been.

Our company at the Hotel Netherwood remains numerically about the same as in August. Many of the summer guests have departed, but their places have been filled by the wise ones who by experience have realized that our autumn season is the true time to enjoy country life.

Among our latest arrivals have been Theodore Sutro, a New York lawyer, and his gifted and charming wife, whose musical ability as a pianist is something phenomenal. Musical critics sustain me in the assertion that as an amateur performer on the piano she has no superior and few equals even among professionals. Her execution is simply marvelous, for its versatility, and for her ability to render the most intricate and complicated music with the same graceful ease with which she plays less elaborate pieces.

The entire absence of musical rant and violent gesticulation that (to me) spoils some great performers, is peculiarly noticeable in Mrs. Sutro's playing.

But Mrs. Sutro's gifts do not end with her admitted musical genius. With large claims to beauty of figure and face, she adds the charms of the ingenuous girl, with the poise of the thoroughly self-possessed woman. Altogether she is simply charming, and one does not wonder that her husband watches her every motion with lover-like devotion, though their "honeymoon" is now in its seventh year.

A. N. OLTIMER.

The Lions Safely Landed Here.

There was excitement around the station this morning while the carpenters of "Under the Lion's Paw" company were unloading the magnificent lions which are used in the production and which arrived here last night. The work was superintended by Col. E. D. Boone, the lion tamer, and the animals were safely landed on the stage at Music Hall ready for the performance Saturday night. Their performance will be a most novel one. It will be a strange sight to see these huge, shaggy, African felines playing see-saw, jumping rope, wrestling, forming pyramids and riding chariots and bicycles. The cage used is a monstrous one weighing 6,000 pounds. It is 14 feet high and 30 feet in diameter. Col. Boone is a fine specimen of American manhood, standing six foot two inches high, and is a man who evidently does not know what fear is as he enters the cage alone with these monstrous brutes who play with him like kittens.

A Desperado Captured.

Officer Manning Crow of Somerville made a capture yesterday that reflects great credit on him. "Jack" Hall, who is well known throughout the State as a desperate character from his being associated with Dominick McCaffrey in the Raritan robberies, has been wanted by the State for the last three months on the charge of assaulting officer Stauch, now in jail for killing young Hahn. "Jack" has been at liberty since serving his time in Hunterdon county. He was seen on the street early yesterday morning by Crow. The officer drew his revolver and told "Jack" to give up. "All right"—replied Hall.—"I'll go wid you." Crow held the pistol at his head until officer Vanaman could be called, when the nippers were put on Hall and he was taken to jail.

Candidate Kean at the Somerville Fair.

John Kean, jr., the Republican nominee for Governor, made his debut in the fall campaign by driving on the Somerville fair grounds early yesterday afternoon behind a team of prancing bays in company with Maj. E. J. Anderson. Mr. Kean looked very well. He was attired in a new suit of black, and the part in his raven hair was particularly noticeable. Ex-Senator L. A. Thompson and ex-Assemblyman C. S. Hoffman took him in hand and introduced him to the farmers of Somerset as their coming chief executive. He was kindly although not enthusiastically received. The horny-handed sons of toil have too much Jeffersonian principle about them for that. Mr. Kean left early to get into condition for a trip to Mt. Holly to-day.

Seeking to Avenge His Brother's Death.

"Diamond" Hohn, a brother of James Hohn, who was killed in Raritan, Tuesday, by officer Gotlelb Stauch, caused some excitement at Somerville yesterday, by appearing on the street early in the morning armed with a revolver, swearing eternal vengance on the man who had slain his brother. He says that if Stauch is released from jail on the grounds that the killing was accidental he will put a bullet through him the first time he gets his eyes on him. The inquest has been postponed until Friday afternoon, on account of the excitement in the town.

Oh, Agnes, Where Art Thou? Harry Seeks.

The following pathetic advertisement appears in the New York Herald:

AGNES KING (CHAMBERMAID), IN Plainfield last week. Please send address and say where I can meet you to HARRY, Herald office, New York city.

The proprietors of Hyp Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Hyp Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Watertown, N. Y.

A Bound Brook Man in Trouble.

Christopher Waldron, 34 years old, of Bound Brook, was a prisoner before city judge Codington this morning.

Waldron was arrested by sergeant Lynch at 6 last night on complaint of saloon-keeper Charles Bock, of East Second street, who charged Waldron with using foul and indecent language in front of his place.

Waldron, through his counsel, W. A. Coddington, pleaded not guilty. Counsel then asked for an adjournment to procure witnesses for the defence. Judge Codington set the case down for September 22, at 10 a. m. Defendant's counsel went bail for $100.

John Jordan, who was arrested last night by policeman Frederickson, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and was fined $3.

TWO GREAT JURISTS.

David Dudley Field and the Earl of Selbourne.

The American Bar Association Will Present to Each of Them a Gold Medal of Exquisite Design and Perfect Workmanship.

Two handsome gold medals, containing $100 worth of pure gold each, have just been struck at the mint in this city, says the Philadelphia Press. They were designed by Charles E. Barber, chief engraver at the mint, upon an order from the American Bar association, and will be presented to two of the most eminent jurists and law reformers of the century—Hon. David Dudley Field, of New York, and the earl of Selbourne, of the English bar—for distinguished services in advancing the science of jurisprudence.

The obverse side of the medal bears a sitting figure of Justice, sword in right and scales in her left, in bold relief. Encircling the figure are the words in raised letters: "The American Bar Association, Founded A. D., 1878." On the reverse, surrounded by a finely executed wreath of oak leaves, is the inscription (the blank being left for the name of the recipient and the date of presentation): "Awarded to * * * * * for distinguished services in advancing the science of jurisprudence."

Hon. David Dudley Field is one of the foremost jurists in America and a member of a noted family. He is a son of Rev. Dr. David Dudley Field and was born in Haddam, Conn., in 1805. He graduated from Williams college in 1825 and was admitted to the bar in 1828. He went to New York city immediately afterward and has been conspicuous at the New York bar for more than half a century. In his busy life the eminent jurist has given much time to the reform of the law, and has contributed numerous articles to reviews and issued numerous pamphlets showing the necessity of reconstructing the modes of legal procedure. In 1847 he was appointed commissioner on practice and pleadings by the legislature of New York, to merge law and equity so that the rights of litigants under each might be decided in a single action. The system or code which he devised for New York has been adopted in many other states in the union and has been substantially followed by Great Britain and many of her dependencies. The Field code of criminal procedure has been adopted by fifteen states.

A penal, political and civil code was also formulated by Mr. Field's commission. In 1873 he was elected president of an association for the reform and codification of the law of nations, which was formed at Brussels during that year. He is also an ex-president of the American Bar association.

The earl of Selbourne is probably better known to the American bar as Sir Roundell Palmer. Before his elevation to the peerage he was long known not only as a leader of the chancery bar of England, but also as a successful leader in the house of commons of important measures for law reform, and as a distinguished member of the commissioners on the condition of the law of marriage, on the reorganization of the system of judicature and on the subjects of naturalization, extradition and neutrality. He was one of the counsel in the German arbitration between Great Britain and the United States in 1871. Twice while a member of the house of commons he proposed, though unsuccessfully, a bill for the establishment of a university for instruction in jurisprudence.

During his first term of office as lord high chancellor he brought forward and carried through the judicature act of 1873, by which Great Britain abandoned that system of pleading and procedure which had been the growth of a thousand years and substituted for it substantially those methods which had been previously codified by Hon. David Dudley Field and adopted by so many of the states in the union.

Island Cattle.

For perhaps one hundred years the sandy islands, rich in salt grass, skirting the Atlantic coast has been used as breeding grounds for a hardy race of wild cattle. They are small creatures, but as it costs nothing to feed them, and they live without care from their owners, they are profitable. The islands that fringe the Maryland coast have long been used in this fashion and also for the raising of wild hogs, long-legged creatures of the razor-back variety, common among the pine forests of the eastern shore. Even as far south as the lower tip of Florida wild cattle are raised, and on the mainland of the peninsula single owners sometimes possess herds that number thousands. These cattle seldom attain a weight of more than five hundred pounds, and many of them weigh less than three hundred and fifty pounds. They are exported to Cuba in large numbers, where they fetch a fair price.

Successful Women Essayists.

That women are going ahead, and in many cases outstripping their brothers, is apparent to anyone who reads the newspapers carefully. A recent illustration was afforded in Boston, where three of the four prizes offered to graduates of high schools for historical essays were won by women.

STRANGE FRIENDSHIP.

The Rhinoceros Bird and Its Strange Mission in Life.

The rhinoceros is neither a very safe nor pleasant companion for man or beast. When provoked he charges with terrible fury upon anything that happens to be in his way, trampling it underfoot and tearing it to pieces with his great horn. The natives, however, who live in the country where he is found, hunt him for his flesh, which they eat; for his horns, which they form into drinking cups and various other articles, and for his hide, which is so impenetrable that nothing can be found of which to make shields that will so well protect their naked bodies from the arrows and spears of their enemies.

He has, however, one friend—a lovely little brown bird, that, instead of living in trees, as other birds do, selects the back of the rhinoceros for her home, and except to build her nest—which no one has ever succeeded in finding—and while rearing her young seldom quits it.

A strange pair of friends, indeed. But the great, ugly beast never molests his little companion, but allows her to ride upon his back wherever he goes and even to probe and prick into his heavy skin; and when he lies down he will turn on one side, and then on the other, to enable the bird to search for the insect that troubles him.

In return for this accommodation the little creature keeps a faithful watch over her huge friend. As the rhinoceros cannot see very well with his small and deep-set eyes, partly on account of their position in his strangely shaped head, and partly because his great horn is in the way, it is not difficult to approach him. But the bird's eyesight is very keen, and, flying away at the first approach of danger, she awakens the short-sighted brute's attention by a shrill cry of warning.

If the rhinoceros happens to be asleep when the hunters draw near the faithful little creature pulls at the ear of her unconscious friend and shrieks into it until she succeeds in awakening him and making him aware of his danger.—N. Y. World.

AN EDUCATED ROBIN.

Taught by a Nightingale to Imitate All Its Notes.

A most remarkable instance of a young pupil's not only imitating but far surpassing his tutor is related by an English gentleman who owned a large aviary, numbering no less than three hundred and sixty-six inhabitants, all first-rate songsters; and his fame as an amateur was widespread. Among the multitude of his visitors was a friend who informed him that a relative of his was possessed of a most wonderful bird that he should much like to have him see and hear. He took the address, and went at an early day to see the prodigy. On entering the house referred to and presenting his card, he was at once ushered into a drawing-room. He there saw two cages—nightingale cages—suspended on the wall. One of them, with a nightingale in it, had an open front; the other had a green curtain drawn down over the front concealing the inmate.

After a little conversation on ornithology, the host asked him if he should like to hear one of his nightingales sing. Of course he was all expectation. Placing him beneath the cage, and drawing up the curtain before alluded to, the bird above, at a whistle from his master, broke into a succession of strains that he never heard surpassed by any nightingale. After listening some time, and expressing his astonishment at the long repeated efforts of the performer, so unusual, he asked to be allowed a sight of him. Permission was granted; the curtain was raised, and he saw before him—a robin.

This bird had been brought up under the nightingale from its earliest infancy, and not only equaled but very far surpassed its master in song. Indeed, he put him down and silenced him altogether. In this case the robin retained not one single note of his own whereby the finest ear could detect him.

Surprised Pig.

Little Pete never intends to misstate things, but his very figurative imagination sometimes gets the better of his facts. He starts out to tell something which is perfectly true, but before he is done he has generally drifted off into some picturesque exaggeration. The other day he exclaimed to a companion:

"Just think, Billy! Out in Chicago they aren't going to be cruel to the pigs any more when they kill them. They're going to chloroform them."

"How do they do it?" asked Billy.

"Why, they just put a sponge in front of the pig's nose, and he goes right to sleep, and when he comes to himself he says: 'Why, my ham's gone!' And by and by he says, 'Goodness! Somebody's sawed my leg off!' and then he finds out that he's all cut up!"

MONKEY HARVESTERS.

Joker Meets Some of His Relations in Mexico.

Grandpapa took Harry and Joker with him upon a trip to Mexico.

"Ah! this is like India," said Harry, "only much more beautiful."

Grandpapa had come on business which made it necessary to go on horseback far up into the country. Harry rode a pretty Mexican pony named Chicha (Cheecha). Joker used to ride beside him. All three were great friends.

Joker often wondered if any of his relations lived in Mexico. So far he had not met any. One day, however, while riding past a corn field, he caught sight of a troop of queer little folk making for it. By a pinch he urged his young master to look that way.

"What is that moving yonder? Why, there are so many I could not count them all; what can they be?" cried Harry, turning to the man with the big hat and high boots, and silver lace on his clothes, who acted as guide.

"Only monkeys," he answered, in broken English. "The rogues! they are earliest at the harvest. From behind these trees you can watch them."

The monkeys drew near. It was the strangest procession Harry ever saw. An old fellow, the chief of the band, walked ahead upon two legs, carrying a staff in his hand to help him keep upright. The others followed on all-fours, from time to time looking to him for directions.

Then by a queer noise the leader called a halt. He motioned to several monkeys who took their stand as sentinels at different points, for they seemed to think the owner might object to having his corn gleaned by such harvesters. Then the chief and the rest of the band rushed in and began to plunder and eat as fast as they could.

After awhile other monkeys took the sentinels' places, and gave them a chance to rush in and plunder.

Now came the most curious part of it all. When the leader thought they had eaten enough, he gave a signal. All stopped, but instead of hurrying off each monkey picked up three or four fat ears of corn, and, thus laden, the whole troop hied homeward as quietly as they had come.—Mary C. Crowley, in Our Little Men and Women.

An Accommodating Valet.

Strawber—I think I should tell you, old man, that I am very sure your valet had your dress suit on the other night while you were away.

Singerly—He did, and it was all right. His looked better than mine, and I changed with him.—Judge.

Everything Big.

Mr. Gotham—Is your home in a good section for farming?

Western Man—I sh'd say so. Everything grows like mad. Why, I've seen hailstones as big as hen's eggs.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Remote Possibility.

"I wonder what Widdifkins does with his money. He has a good salary and yet he's in debt at nearly every place in town."

"Perhaps he is saving it."—Chicago News.

A Paradox.

"How polished Mr. Smithers is in his manner."

"Yes—it's rather queer about Smithers. One so polished as he has no right to be so abominably dull."—Life.

CAUSES LITTLE ALARM

General Opinion that New York's Health Board Can Throttle the Cholera.

BUT ONE NEW CASE IN THE CITY AND NONE IN THE BAY.

Mary Conity, a Young Domestic, Stricken With the Disease and Removed to the Floating Hospital—Believed by Some that the Board of Health is Suppressing Facts—Proclamation by the Mayor—Normannia's Passengers Free To-day—Quarantine Against New York Vessels by the United States of Columbia.

NEW YORK, Sep. 16.—The most important development of the cholera situation is the discovery of the first living cholera patient in this city, and her prompt removal to the reception hospital. The intricate and carefully planned municipal machinery for combating and stamping out the cholera, which was made ready before its use became necessary, is now in active operation.

Its practical effect has been demonstrated during the past two days, and the results obtained in the city proper are the best arguments against any alarm in the city over the situation. An immense amount of work was transacted yesterday by the Health authorities and the other city officials.

Down the bay the news is cheering. There were no deaths and no new cases on any of the quarantined ships, nor on Swinburne Island yesterday.

The steamship Bohemia, the last of the line from Hamburg, which has on board more than 1,000 steerage passengers, is due at Sandy Hook at any hour. It is the last of the immigrant-bearing fleet that will come in.

The Health inspectors have reported another case of cholera. The victim, Mary Conity, 19 years old, residing at 692 2d avenue, has been removed to the St. John's Guild Floating Hospital.

Miss Conity came to this city from Ireland six months ago. She remained with a family named Lyons living at 692 2d avenue until she secured employment, seven weeks ago, when she entered the employ of Mrs. Maria Finn, who keeps a boarding-house at 221 East 31st street.

She was taken ill at 9 o'clock, and by midnight the entire household was excited a the girl's condition. Dr. Kane, who was called in, pronounced her a sufferer from Asiatic cholera. Dr. Dillingham of the Bureau of Contagious Diseases visited the house and found the girl in the second stages of Asiatic cholera. He caused her removal to the hospital. Immediately upon her removal the work of fumigation and disinfecting was begun, everything with which she had come in contact being destroyed.

How the girl contracted the disease is a mystery, and intense excitement prevailed in the tenement house from which she has been removed.

Mayor Grant has issued a proclamation to the public in which he says the Health Department has shown entire competence to deal with the cholera. He anticipates no spread of the disease, and asks the people to have confidence in the provisions adopted by the Board for the safety of the people. He also invites their aid in enforcing sanitary regulations for the maintenance of health.

The Board of Coroners have decided to co-operate with the Health Board in combating the disease, and all the coroners and their physicians are requested to be on duty every day, so as to meet all emergencies.

It was decided by the Health Board to send all immigrants who are sick on Ellis Island directly to North Brothers Island by boat, instead of through the city as formerly.

It is said that rags from European ports are being landed in Brooklyn daily. The authorities have been notified, and are making an investigation to-day.

The public having been notified that Asiatic cholera has made its way into this city and that six deaths have already been caused here by the pest, the people are anxious to know whether there are any cases of the disease still in the city.

The Health Board is accused of holding back the news until the last moment, and it is now believed by some that the Health Officers are likely concealing other facts and that they may be aware of other cases at the present moment. The charge that news of the arrival of cholera was held back is not altogether true. The cases were reported by the attending physicians as suspicious, but it was not until after an examination that the true facts were learned, then the public was notified.

Investigations have shown where the cholera probably came from in at least one case and suggests the source of the other contagions. It came through the port of New York. Immigrant passengers on the steamer Friesland, which arrived here on Aug. 29, seem to have brought the disease to little Minnie Levinger, who died on Sep. 11. They are traced back to Antwerp, which they reached from other cities in Europe, no doubt infected with cholera. When they reached Quarantine there was illness reported on board, and after a few hours' detention and so-called fumigation, they were permitted to proceed.

From the steamship pier the passengers scattered over the city and country.

Four young women of the company went to No. 411 East 26th street, where little Minnie lived. It appears that being greatly interested in the child they spent some idle hours playing with it.

There is every reason to believe that the infection was in their clothing; that they innocently carried it about with them, escaping its dangers themselves, and that from their clothing the child got the disease which carried it off in 24 hours.

In the case of Callahan a plausible connection seems to be established between him and immigrants who, arriving in the city by transatlantic steamers, went south by the Mallory line, to whose pier Callahan was often taken by his business. He was a butcher.

In the other instances the relatives and physicians have not been able to suggest the precise method of the infection, but it seems not unlikely that it came about in some similar way.

The quarantined passengers on Fire Island are in excellent spirits at the prospect of their early release.

Everything there is quiet and the few troops that are left seem to be out of place and anxious to get away.

Dr. Jenkins says the passengers of the Normannia will not be released from Fire Island until this afternoon by their request, as they prefer to wait, until then, and be transferred to the city by boat.

An inspection this morning of the Normannia's passengers quartered on Fire Island shows that all are well.

It is stated that the baymen in their sail boats took off about fifteen of the Normannia's passengers, quarantined on the island, during the night at the rate of $25 per head. The passengers who thus escaped from the island were landed at some isolated point along the shore, and had to wade for a considerable distance through the marshy ground to reach terra firma. Other boats having on board refugees from the island that tried to land at the steamboat dock were driven off by the sentries.

The steamboat Cepheus has arrived at Fire Island to take on the baggage of the Normannia's passengers, and be ready to start back with them.

Half a dozen Custom House officers arrived for the purpose of inspecting the baggage of the quarantined passengers in order that it will not have to be done when they reach New York. Three physicians also arrived from New York.

BETTER TIMES FOR HAMBURG.

The Plague Thought to Have Run Its Course—Business Activity.

HAMBURG, Sep. 16.—Autumnal weather has set in and the heat of the last two days is relieved by light winds and a falling thermometer.

There have been 608 fresh cases to-day, or 29 more than yesterday; 206 deaths, or three more than yesterday; 331 burials, or 18 more than yesterday. In the cholera hospitals and barracks the number of patients has fallen to 1,309, the lowest number of the last 16 days.

Two-thirds of the patients are women and children. The men now stricken, the physicians say, are those who have had little constitution to resist the disease. Many of them have been hard drinkers and others have been weakened by privations so as to become easily infected. Among people of normal health and habits the plague is believed to be at an end.

HAVRE, Sep. 16.—There is but little change in the cholera situation, except a decline in the number of deaths. Thirteen new cases were reported here yesterday, against eleven new cases and seven deaths on Tuesday.

PARIS, Sep. 16.—Eight deaths from cholera were reported in this city yesterday, up to eight o'clock at night. No new cases were reported.

ROTTERDAM, Sep. 16.—A case of cholera was reported yesterday in this city.

Evidences of the revival of confidence are apparent on all sides. The infantry regiments which left Hamburg, Luebeck and Altona to take part in the Mecklenburg manœuvres have returned to their barracks, although a week ago it was thought that their absence might be prolonged until October. The Stadt and Thalia Theatres have been reopened, and most of the beer garden variety shows have resumed business.

The fugitives continue to return, and scores of shops, which had been closed, have begun advertising for trade.

CINCINNATI QUARANTINED.

Extreme Measures Adopted to Guard Against Cholera.

CINCINNATI, O., Sep. 16.—Mayor Mosby and Health Officer Prendergast had a conference, and as a result Cincinnati is under rigid quarantine. City police and physicians are stationed at Maysville, Ky., where they will meet C. & O. trains, others at Lovekind, Dayton and at every point where trains from the East can enter the city.

The quarantine will include persons from infected points, foreign or otherwise. All railroads have been notified that no more immigrants will be allowed to enter the city, and if brought to Quarantine station they will be thrown upon the care of the road bringing them.

Dr. Prendergast says:

"I have declared the city of Cincinnati under quarantine. It will be as strict as martial law during the war.

"We are threatened with an enemy whose ravages are horrible to contemplate, and no effort or expense will be spared to prevent its introduction into the city.

"Every port in the State will be quarantined and guarded."

ANXIETY AT WASHINGTON.

Railroad Traffic by Way of New York May Be Restricted.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 16.—The Treasury Department is seriously considering the question of imposing restrictions upon railroad traffic into Washington by way of New York City should there be any further cases of cholera reported in that city.

Secretary Foster this morning sent for District Commissioner Douglass and will talk over matters with him. He desires especially to know the sanitary arrangements made in the White House lot where sleeping apartments have been erected for 25,000 men during the G. A. R. encampment.

There is some question as to whether the Local Health Officer of Washington has the power to establish medical inspection of passengers coming from infected cities or whether it is the province of the general government.

Scarlet Fever, Not Cholera.

BABYLON, L. I., Sep. 16.—The scarlet fever case at East Islip, which was magnified into one of cholera, created considerable excitement in the towns along the bay. It was contradicted before the report gained much headway. The patient is a young lady, the daughter of a grocer.

Another Victim of the Wreck.

BOSTON, Sep. 16.—Cornelius Doyle, of Waltham, a young receiving clerk who was internally injured in the Fitchburg railroad accident, has died of his injuries. This makes the ninth on the list of the dead.

A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

The Doctors, However, Give No Hopes for Mrs. Harrison's Recovery.

LOON LAKE HOUSE, N. Y., Sep. 16.—On the whole, it may be said there is a slight improvement in the condition of Mrs. Harrison to-day. It must also be said that it is only of a temporary character. She passed a restless night, and for the last two weeks a comfortable night has been the exception with her. However, she was not more tired than usual when she awoke from her last nap, and this indicates that the invalid has fairly well held her own.

Mrs. Harrison continues to consume the regular amount of liquid food every two hours. As long as the liquid does not form in considerable quantity and get into the chest cavity she will not lose strength rapidly, but the tapping operation is particularly wearing, because of the nervous prostration it produces. This operation, which has been performed twice, consists of the insertion of a needle, to which is attached a suction piston, between the ribs, and the withdrawal of the fluid from the cavity of the pleura. Mrs. Harrison of late has taken narcotics with much difficulty, and she cannot be made insensible when the operation is performed. Cocaine is used locally—sprayed over a considerable area of the side into which the needle is inserted.

The consumption of the right lung is pretty firmly fixed, and in the event of the mastering of the fluid formation complication, this disease still remains to be fought. Mrs. Harrison is not mentally seriously sick. The long strain and nervous prostration have, of course, had the effect of exciting and disturbing her brain somewhat. When the recent complication was making its appearance, toward the end of last week, Mrs. Harrison moaned for hours in the night, continually declaring how nervous she was and insisting on being taken home.

Dr. Gardner will make no prediction as to the probable outcome of the disease from which his patient is suffering. Mrs. Harrison, he says, is in an extremely critical condition and further than that he will say nothing.

Owing to the weak condition of the patient a journey from the Harrison cottage to any place on the nearest railroad would be extremely difficult. The roads are extremely hilly and the water route is objectionable for other reasons.

There is hardly a possibility that Mrs. Harrison will be removed from Loon Lake at present unless she becomes stronger and better in every way.

The doctors say, if improvement should set in it will be very slow, and it seems safe to say that Mrs. Harrison will not be ready for removal from here for a long time.

Numerous letters and telegrams of sympathy with the President have been received.

MURDER WILL OUT.

A Prominent Michigan Man Confesses a Crime of Long Ago.

HARRISONVILLE, Mich., Sep. 16.—Alfred Henshaw, a wealthy and prominent citizen, has confessed to a murder committed by him ten years ago at Strathroy, Ont.

Two detectives, who had been searching for him for a number of months, went to his residence Wednesday night, and, when accused of the murder by them, he broke down, and acknowledged he was the man they wanted.

It appears that ten years ago Henshaw was a dealer in lumber at Strathroy, when he became financially involved. Richard Drake, his partner, chided him for his conduct, and they had a quarrel one night in their office.

Henshaw stabbed Drake to death, locked the body in a large safe, and fled.

Ten days later the body was discovered, but no clue could be obtained as to Henshaw's whereabouts.

About six months ago a son of the murdered man offered two local detectives $1,000 reward for Henshaw's capture. The detectives traced the murderer to New York and thence to this place.

THE WRECK AT PRINCETON.

Worse Than First Reported—The Four Injured May Die.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Sep. 16.—The wreck which occured about 7:30 Wednesday night on the Pennsylvania railroad near Princeton Junction was more severe than was first supposed.

Thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed or damaged and four men so badly injured that it thought they will die.

Two freight trains running at a high rate of speed, collided, demolishing both engines and many cars and piling the tracks high with wreckage.

The cause of the accident is supposed to have been a result of carelessness on the part of some one in charge of the running of the trains.

Reunion Army of the Cumberland.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sep. 16.—With Gen. W. S. Rosecrans, as president, the Society of the Army of the Cumberland met on the field of Chickamauga, where 29 years ago, under the same leader, they fought in one of the bloodiest battles of modern times. At night a public meeting was held at the First M. E. Church in this city, Mayor Andrews, a Confederate veteran, delivering the address of welcome, which was followed by the annual oration before the society by Gen. H. V. Boynton, who was at the head of a movement to make a national park of the famous battle-ground.

Charge of Young Dorjee.

READING, Pa., Sep. 16.—On account of the public prejudice against Pietro Buccieri, the Italian murderer of a Sister of Charity in St. Joseph's Hospital, this city, his counsel moved for the trial of the case at some other court, which was refused, and the work of securing a jury was suspended with.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Visitors Commencing to Gather in Washington.

CANDIDATES FOR COMMANDERSHIP.

New York Has It at Present, and It Is Urged that the Honor Should Go to the West—The Capital Assuming Holiday Attire.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 16.—The advance guard of the Republic's Grand Army is slower in coming to the reoccupation of the National capital than it was in pushing to the defense of the country. Eighty thousand veterans are expected to march next Tuesday on asphalt, where seven and twenty years ago they marched in the mud on the return from Appomattox. Only a few hundred are now in the city, nor is any large number expected until to-morrow. A large proportion of the advance guard are working to secure Indianapolis for the 27th annual encampment, to be held next year.

They are already distributing badges which bear the likeness of the Indiana Soldiers' Monument stamped in gilt on blue silk.

The candidates for National Commandership have already been put in the field by their friends.

They are Comrades A. G. Wetmore, of Milwaukee Post, department commander of Wisconsin; S. H. Warfield of San Francisco Post, department commander of California, and Charles P. Lincoln of Washington Post, department commander of the Potomac. New York having the national commandership at present, it is argued by Westerners that the office next year should go West.

But Past Commander Lincoln's friends urge that New York obtained the prize not as an Eastern department, in rotation, but because last year it had at last settled on a candidate, something it has been trying to do for 10 years.

Geography, therefore, they claim, had nothing to do with last year's choice and should not prevent the office from remaining in the East for another year.

When the District of Columbia Commissioners were considering the question of a cholera quarantine, in view of New York's news, they asked Dr. Hamilton E. Leach, medical director of the Citizen's Hospital, the big emergency institution specially created for cases which may arise during next Tuesday's big parade, to formulate a set of rules as to the examination of G. A. R. trains. Dr. Leach recommended an examination of all trains, but no detention, save when cases of a decidedly suspicious character were discovered.

This met the views of the District Health Officer and it is not probable that the encampment will suffer from the blight of detentive quarantine.

The mere premonitions of next week's excitement has waked Washington from its summer sleep. Decorations are being put up, and Pennsylvania avenue begins to assume already its inauguration day aspect of a vast amphitheatre, straightened out into two lines of sea and an elongated arena. A feature not seen on inauguration days is in the institution of prettily decorated little information booths along the avenue wherein any confused veteran can have the old army question of "where's my regiment" answered with more dispatch and certainty than, for instance, during the Army of the Potomac's retrograde movements in the summer of 1862. Old battle songs show up in the windows of the music stores, and Washington, even in its large, unreconstructed portions, is making ready with a good face the "Welcome to the G. A. R." so unselfishly displayed over the doors of all Pennsylvania avenue saloons.

FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Valuable Collection from the West Indies to be Arranged for Exhibition.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sep. 16. — Fred. A. Ober, after a 20 months' trip in the West Indies in the interest of the World's Fair Commission, has returned to Beverly with a valuable collection which he will arrange for the exhibit at Chicago. Through his efforts Jamaica has appropriated $50,000 to be devoted to an exhibit of tropical plants.

At San Domingo he secured several relics of great value. He located the city of Isabella, the first founded by Columbus in the new world, discovered the first bell brought to America, also several old swords, and brought home a number of spurs found in the ruins of this city, which was destroyed in 1595.

Mr. Ober also brought home 800 views of historical places and things on the islands.

RESCUED FROM A RAFT.

Three Sailors Sole Survivors of the Hope—Four Days Without Food.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sep. 16.—Three members of the crew of the British bark Hope, wrecked in a gale on Aug. 23, have been brought to this port, having been rescued from a raft off the Grand Banks, after floating four days. Their captain, David Jenkins, the mate and four of the crew were drowned.

The vessel was turned completely over in the gale, and the crew made a raft of the lumber with which the vessel was laden. One by one they were washed off until only the boatswain, William Rees, and Seamen Arthur F. Jolliffe and John Nicholas remained. They floated four days without food or drink, and their sufferings were intense.

Complete Vermont Returns.

RUTLAND, Vt., Sep. 16.—Returns of the recent election have now been received from the entire State. Fuller (Rep.) for Governor has 39,190. Smalley (Dem.) 19,526. Allen (Pro.) 1,650. Fuller's plurality 19,664; majority 18,014. Compared with 1888 this is a Republican loss of 9,261, a Democratic loss of one and a Prohibition gain of 278.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

QUARANTINE PRISONERS FREE.

Their Release From Fire Island This Morning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—More than 400 of the Normannia's passengers left Fire Island by the Cepheus this morning. They did not start till 11.

The delay caused a false report that the Cepheus was ashore.

The passengers, among whom is Senator MacPherson, who did not go on the Cepheus, were taken to Babylon by the steamboat Ripple, reaching there at 10:30. No opposition to their landing was made, the local authorities, it was announced, having decided not to attempt to prevent the Normannia's passengers from leaving Fire Island. The last despatch received from Fire Island was to the effect that the passengers would take the 11 o'clock train from Babylon. This would bring them to Long Island City about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

A FEMALE SLUGGER FROM PLAINFIELD.

Dunellen Society Scandalized by the Pugilistic Display of a Dusky Amazon.

Mrs. A. H. Henry, a Dunellen lady of color, celebrated her fifty-seventh birthday last Saturday night. A number of Plainfield friends were invited and made the evening a lively one for Mrs. Henry. Refreshments were served at a later hour, and the guests dispersed, but not before a lively time had occurred. It seems that during the evening refreshments of a spirituous character were introduced and freely partaken of by the guests. The Dunellen Call reports that one of the dusky maidens from Plainfield, who had indulged more freely than the others, succeeded in making for herself a name which would be envied by James Corbett. She overpowered a half dozen of her kind, and so intimidated the male sex that they did not dare to interfere, but after a little persuasion quietude reigned again.

TAKE PRIDE IN THEIR RECORD.

The dwelling was occupied by Mr. Newman and family.

MAY DISRUPT THE CLUB

Manager Reed's Continued Playing Into the Hands of Somerville, Has Made the People and the Crescent League Tired.

As the matter is in manager Reed's hands, and he is, and has always been, more enthusiastic in justifying manager Mack's methods and excusing Somerville's bad manners and rowdy ways, than in sticking up for Plainfield's due and the Crescent League's self respect, a portion of the ball team will go to Somerville to-morrow to be bunosed and abused again.

Of course, center fielder Leidy will not go, and probably some of the rest of the nine will also stay away. Short-stop Bonner was told this morning that an effort will be made to spike him and thus get him out of the game; and as Gore failed in smashing Hofford's face with his knees last Saturday, some other of Mack's hirelings will probably be delegated to push the little catcher on his back and then jump on his stomach.

In case manager Reed refuses to act according to the desire of the Crescent League as expressed by the signed demand of a large number of its members, and by a majority vote of those present at a meeting called for the purpose, baseball is dead forever in Plainfield, and even the disruption of the Crescent League may result.

The people of Plainfield are tired of being year after year maltreated by their inferiors, and the Crescent League members are tired of being made monkeys of by those elected to serve them. As to the claim that "honor" calls the Plainfield team to Somerville—that's false. Plainfield was robbed last year of two games by Somerville, one of which was a game postponed by rain and which manager Mack refused to play unless he was given $50. He never did play it, and the fact is that after giving Somerville credit for last Saturday's game, there is still another owing the Crescents and not one owing the West Ends.

MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING.

Young Tom Rafferty Disappears—Was He Kidnapped by Two Strange Men?

Tom, the second and 16-year-old son of John Rafferty of 29 Park avenue, has been missing from Plainfield since 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At that time he was seen by two lads, Michael Higgins and a youth named Fleming. The boys were playing ball on Richmond street near the railroad, and saw young Rafferty go by on a coal train, apparently in the custody of two men who looked like tramps. The police in all neighboring towns and cities have been notified, and Mr. Rafferty himself has been prosecuting a personal search in Elizabeth, and Somerville, and other places, but no trace of the boy's whereabouts can be found. Tom was a student at St. Mary's, and left the school at 3 p. m.

THE PRESIDENT ACCEPTED IT.

Credit and Honor to Dr. Charles Bullman, for His Valuable Contribution to Official Literature.

Charles Bullman, the well-known mining engineer of this city, has just published, through the Scientific Publishing company of New York, a complete translation of the mining laws of the Republic of Columbia. This work, which is the outcome of a number of years spent in superintending mining operations in South America, is very valuable, inasmuch as the laws have not only never been translated into English, but are not otherwise obtainable in book form even in Spanish. The translation has been made from various official editions of the laws and from the official Government paper. Mr. Bullman has had the benefit of the opinions of prominent lawyers in Columbia in regard to various doubtful interpretations, and has included in the volume an interesting history of the laws of the republic and a list of the necessary forms and proceedings to be observed by the miner in making the various applications to the legal authorities. The book is thorough and complete in every respect, and reflects great credit on Mr. Bullman. By special permission the book has been dedicated to His Excellency Rafael Nunez, President of the Republic.

Good Work by the Local Army.

At the Salvation Army hall last night a large audience greeted colonel and Mrs. Evan, the chief of staff, also major and Mrs. Evan, and others. The meeting was not only one of feeling, but of power, and hundreds rose to their feet to consecrate themselves to the service of God; also one man came right out and confessed conversion. There was a large and enthusiastic street parade before the indoor meeting. The army is making great progress in Plainfield.

The Latest is the Greatest.

There are numbers of big bands throughout the country, military, semi-military and otherwise, of all degrees and all stages of development. Why then should Sousa, for so many years the director of the U. S. Marine band at Washington, wish to organize another? The answer is plain and reasonable: There is hardly an existing organization that comes up to the full measure of a truly great military or marine band. The country really demands at least one supreme organization that is equal to any event and that is free to respond instantly upon demand, unhampered by any regimental or governmental control. This great need existed and Mr. Blakely met it. And furthermore, for the same reason that Mr. Abbey exerts his tremendous energy in providing a greater grand opera organization than any that already exists. Mr. Blakely exerts his equal energy in providing a marine band greater by all odds than any that at present exists. The country is full of opera companies, but there is only one Abbey company ever. So there is but one supreme military band and that is Sousa's New Marine Band, which with Marcella Lindh, soprano, and Signor Galassi, baritone, will appear at Music Hall, Sept. 26.

A Valuable Remedy.

I have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family for the past five years and can truthfully say they are a valuable remedy and effect great cures. I would not be without them. I have in several instances given some to friends suffering with weak and lame backs, and they have invariably afforded certain and speedy relief. They cannot be too highly recommended.

"YOU MUST NOT DECLINE!"

Senator McPherson Congratulates Judge Werts, but the Latter Will Not Say What He Will Do About the Nomination.

Judge Werts still refuses to make any statement or give the slightest indication of what he proposes to do with the Democratic nomination for Governor of the State of New Jersey. He took his seat on the bench yesterday morning as smiling and serene as if nothing had happened. A number of lawyers and people who had business in the court congratulated the judge on his nomination. He accepted the congratulations with a smile, but was as reticent as an oyster as to his intentions. When asked if he would accept the nomination he said:

"I am undecided as yet. I don't know what I am going to do. I have not made up my mind yet. That is all I have to say."

The judge made the same answer to the same question last night. It is the general impression that he will yield to the demand of his party, although it will be a great sacrifice. Judge Werts is not overburdened with wealth. Although he has been in politics for a great many years he never made any money out of it. On the contrary, it is said that politics has kept him poor. As Justice of the Supreme Court his income is $10,000 a year, and the position is assured for seven years. The salary of Governor is $10,000 a year and the term three years. These considerations, however, will not have any influence in determining Judge Werts's action. He declared twice over his own signature that he did not want the nomination and would not accept it, but against that is his recorded utterance that it is the first duty of a Democrat to serve his party when called upon, no matter at what sacrifice. He will not say when he will give his decision in the matter.

Among the telegrams he has received is the following:

FIRE ISLAND, Sept. 15, 1892.

Judge George T. Werts:

Congratulations. I expect to be released from quarantine and be in New York Friday night. In any event you must not decline the nomination. J. R. MCPHERSON.

GREAT REVIEW AT WASHINGTON.

Half Rates by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Washington September 19 to 24. The occasion will undoubtedly attract the largest number of veterans ever assembled on a similar occasion, and the review will be the most imposing demonstration ever witnessed in this country since the historic review of the army in 1865. It will be the event of a lifetime, as never again will there be so large a gathering of old soldiers in any city of the land.

In order that every one may witness the grand spectacle the Pennsylvania Railroad company will sell excursion tickets to Washington from all principal ticket stations on its system, September 13 to 20, vaild for return until October 10, at a single fare for the round trip. Ample facilities will be afforded for the prompt movement of all visitors.

The penalty for trapping or snaring any game bird at any time or place, either on one's own property or that of another, is $15 for each and every offence.

W. L. FORCE, SECRETARY.

Now She Insults the Spectators.

(Somerville Messenger.)

A few weeks ago we were charitable enough to say that the Plainfielders deserved a better team. We now apologize for that statement: they do n't deserve anything. There were a few respectably-acting persons among the Plainfield portion of the audience, at Saturday's game, but they were in such a large minority that their presence could only be distinguishable by a glance at their features overspread with a look of supreme disgust. The mob hooted and howled, guyed the umpires and the West End players, and conducted themselves, generally, like a band of Apache Indians.

Can't Appreciate Honorable Pride.

(West End Organ.)

The only consolation that Plainfield had after the game was in the fact that their defeated nine was the same that the West Ends have been defeating all summer. We fail to comprehend how such a condition of things should be able to afford so much contentment, but it apparently did.

HYMENEAL.

Smalley—Runyon.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Runyon, 4 Lafayette street, last evening, when their daughter, Miss Jennie D., was married to the Rev. Marcus W. Smalley.

The officiating clergymon was the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, the popular ex-pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The bride was attended by two very pretty little maids of honor, the Misses Smalley.

The groom is a successful pastor at Houston, Texas, where he has charge of a large and flourishing congregation, and is held in the highest esteem.

The guests at the wedding numbered about sixty, and were a most congenial gathering. The happy couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful testimonials of esteem, including silverware and gold. An especialy handsome gift from J. H. McVey of this city was greatly appreciated.

The bride and groom will be followed to their new home by the best wishes of a host of friends.

GOVERNOR ABBETT PROPHESIES.

Hudson County Will Give Werts 8,000 Majority.

It is estimated that fully fifteen thousand people entered the gates of the Somerset Agricultural Association, yesterday and all other available space was taken up by vehicles, from the much used, farmer's wagon to the handsome Kensington driven by R. V. Lindabury's coachman and occupied by Mrs. Palmer Skillman and her daughter, Mrs. Clarke. Dr. A. R. T. Purdy exhibited his dray to the admiring gaze of a countless multitude and senator Keys with barouche and span of blacks, whose clanking silver chains sparkled at every motion, drove governor Abbett, state treasurer Gray, Ollie Kelley and Col. Kuser, up and down the track. The display of the senator's stable of blooded horses, was greeted with great applause. The governor told a PRESS reporter in the judge's stand, that Werts would have 8,000 majority in Hudson county alone; that the party would unite solidly for him and all would be well.

HONORS COME FAST AND THICK.

Two Interesting Events Recorded in the Annals of the Haffner Family.

(From The Dunellen Weekly Call.)

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Haffner were presented with a bright baby girl one morning last week.

At the last meeting of the Middlesex Bowling club, on Mr. Schepflin's green, Frank P. Haffner won the medal for the championship of the club. Only nine members out of twenty-five were in time to compete in the contest. They were as follows: Messrs. C. Schepflin, F. P. Haffner, J. B. Betts, Dr. Wagoner, Dr. W. E. Linstedt, F. A. Richter, John J. Willis, Sheriff Frick, and H. Brewster Willis, who held the medal last year. Mr. Haffner won by the score of 25 to 16. The medal is a very handsome one, and the winner is proud of it.

A Popular Holiday for the Little Ones.

"Forepaugh" day is come to be regarded all over the United States and Canada as "Children's" day. This is the highest compliment that could be paid the great Adam Forepaugh shows. To afford so much and such innocent pleasure to little children is better than being a king. The children delight in doing honor to Forepaugh, and in that respect we are all more or less children. The great shows will be here on Friday of next week. Who is there who will not want to renew his childhood days by seeing these, the greatest of circus shows? Not many, it is fancied, and the writer is most certainly not one of them. There seemed to be nothing left to be desired when the great shows were here last, but this year they will bring with them as an integral part of the shows the sublime spectacle, The Fall of Nineveh. This will present a series of the most gorgeous spectacular displays ever seen in modern or ancient times. With this tremendous addition to the already largest and best of shows they will be something to mark an epoch in the history of tented shows, and the children will in later years be proud to have it to say that they were among the first beholders of the brilliant glories of the Adam Forepaugh shows as exhibited in the year A. D., 1892.

One Road Where All Men Are Brethren.

(From The Railroad Employe.)

On no other road in the country can be found a more whole-souled, generous and affable class of employes than on the Central of New Jersey, and we will guarantee to any stranger going in their midst a most hearty reception, providing that said stranger is "square" and meets them on a footing of equality. The Central management are to be congratulated in possessing the services of a body of men who, in knowing their own rights, also know and respect those of the corporation. The success of a corporation depends largely upon its treatment of its employes, and the company that handles its men as serfs must, sooner or later, cease to pay dividends and pass into a receiver's hands. The sooner that railroad managers recognize this fact the better for both the stockholder and the workman.

—Where can one find really choice groceries, fruits and vegetables and fine butter? is the housewife's standing conundrum. The answer is P. M. Demarest's.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

A PASTOR'S TRIBUTE.

The Rev. L. E. Livermore of New Market Writes Feelingly on the Life and Death of A. S. Titsworth.

(From The Sabbath Recorder.)

Abel Sheppard Titsworth, eldest son of Isaac D. and Hannah A. Sheppard Titsworth, was born in Shiloh, N. J., Jan. 24, 1840. At the age of fifteen years he was baptized by the Rev. H. H. Baker and united with the Seventh-day Baptist church of New Market, N. J. Being of a studious turn of mind he made good use of the opportunities afforded both in the public and private schools of New Market, and at Alfred University. On the first of August, 1862, he cheerfully gave himself to his country's service, enlisting in the 11th New Jersey Volunteers, in which Regiment he served faithfully as a noncommissioned officer until the close of the war, being mustered out June 20, 1865. Much of the time he was in the service he was hospital steward, and at the close of the war he continued his medical studies, graduating from the Medical College at Geneva, N. Y., in 1866, and from Bellevue, New York city, in 1867. September 19, 1867, he was married to Miss Lucy R. Morgan, of New Market, and soon after settled in Albion, Wis., and entered upon the practice of medicine in connection with Dr. Head. After three years practice in Albion and Edgerton, Wis., he removed to Shiloh, N. J., where he continued his medical practice, becoming very popular as a physician, until compelled by ill health to abandon his profession. Returning to New Market, he established a drug store, and after a time, finding his health materially improved, he was induced to resume his medical practice. But during all these years of toil he suffered constantly from organic disease of the heart, and on several occasions he was carried so near death's door as to cause the most serious apprehension on the part of his friends.

But, as in the case of King Hezekiah, his life was lengthened out, as many believe, in answer to prayer. In 1885, he was again compelled to abandon his chosen profession and this time with a full purpose never again to resume it.

He pursued other lines of business as his health would allow, until greatly depressed and overcome by the excessive heat the latter part of July, his heart difficulty returned with a stubbornness that refused to yield to the usual treatment, and on the 10th of August he passed from his suffering to his exceeding great reward.

Doctor Titsworth was a man of rare qualifications of mind and heart; kind, sympathetic, social, conscientious. His uniformly genial and generous nature won for him many friends and admirers. He never sought popularity, but on the contrary was ever ready to espouse the truth, and to engage in any reform that promised to elevate and bless his fellow men, without fear of personal loss or disfavor. He occupied positions of trust and responsibility in his town and county. In 1886 he was chosen and set apart to the office of deacon in the Seventh-day Baptist church of New Market, in which capacity he served with great faithfulness and satisfaction. He was a wise counselor and a loyal defender of his church and its holy cause. He will be especially missed in times of sickness and sorrow. His happy words of comfort, derived from an abiding faith in Jesus, were always like a healing balm. Many have asked the question, "Upon whom will his mantle fall?" But while we may not answer that question, we are sure that his life and wholesome influence rests upon our church and community like a heavenly benediction. His family, consisting of his wife and four children, are in deep sorrow, but they are sustained by an unfaltering faith in the Saviour and the hope of a glad reunion by and by. His funeral services were attended by a large concourse of people on the 13th of August, who accompanied his remains to the beautiful resting place in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

WHAT THE EDITOR GETS.

Here's the Quaint Wisdom of a Sage That Merits Local Application.

(From the Middleton (Pa.,) Advocate.)

When a child is born into the world the physician is presented and gets about $80 for officiating at the important event. The editor heralds the advent of the stranger and gets a cursing for making a mistake as to the sex and date of arrival.

After a while the child becomes a man, the minister is called to perform the marriage ceremony and walks off with a $10 bill for his trouble. The editor is again called upon to chronicle this event by drawing on his imagination to make the bride and groom the best and most respectable people in the county. His only pay is to be asked for a few extra copies of his paper to send to some absent friends.

In time the once baby, once happy groom, but now a man well advanced in years, is brought down by death. Again the physician is called in and makes his bill, the undertaker is present and officiates at the funeral, and in time wants $100 for performing the last sad rites, while the editor is expected to complete the drama by holding up the deceased as a model gentleman, and one who at present is flying up the golden stairs. The probabilities are at the same time that the baby, the groom and the dead man have been so infernally stingy that he had stinted his wife and children and had never contributed one cent to the support of his local paper.

What does the editor get? He gets left.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. GEORGE W. CURTIS.

A Representative of the Highest American Citizenship.

His Life One of Remarkable Usefulness and Purity—The Friend of Emerson, Hawthorne and Other Celebrated Men.

The anxiety felt by the friends of George William Curtis during the serious illness from which he seems now in a fair way to recover was shared by every American capable of understanding the loss which would be caused by his death. As a journalist, as a graceful, finished writer and as a political reformer he occupies first rank.

He was born in Providence February 24, 1824. On his maternal side he was descended from James Burrill, a former chief justice of Rhode Island and United States senator of wide renown. Before he was in his teens he was sent to a boarding school near Boston. Many of his schoolboy experiences are referred to in a novel that he published later in life. The career marked out for him by his parents was a mercantile one, and in 1839, in pursuance of their plans, he became a clerk in a New York firm of German importers. The drudgery of office work was little to his taste, and he only endured it for a year. With his brother he went to Brook Farm, Mass., and thence in 1844 to Concord, where he spent his time in alternately studying and farming. There he met Emerson, Hawthorne and Henry Thoreau, and the friendship formed with that famous trio lasted throughout their lives. Two years later Mr. Curtis started on a journey, during which he derived impressions that doubtless had much to do with his future actions—indeed, his literary career may be said to have then begun. He traveled through Italy, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Holland, not after the hurried, irrational method of modern "globe trotters," but in a steady, observant and receptive manner that enabled him to accumulate a vast store of knowledge, upon which he subsequently drew for some of his most popular literary work. The grandeur of Swiss scenery, the art and refinement of Italy, the thought and antiquity of Germany and Holland were all carefully studied by him. Then he extended his tour to the Dark Continent, whose magnificent gloom had been then but little dissipated by the devastation of the picturesque in the interest of modern progress. The Nile flowed then as it flowed through the Egypt of the Pharaohs. The obelisks had not been transplanted by nineteenth-century philistines and the sphinx's immobility had not been endangered by the iconoclastic hits of an American baseball team.

From Egypt Mr. Curtis journeyed across the desert to Jerusalem, and it was not until the spring of 1850 that he reached England and rested there awhile before returning home. The value of such a tour to a man possessed of his talents of observation may well be understood. During his absence from the United States he had written letters to the Courier and Inquirer, of which Henry J. Raymond was then editor, and to the Tribune (whose policy was at that time controlled by Charles A. Dana), and shortly after his return he published reminiscences of his Egyptian wanderings under the title of "Nile Notes." He formally embraced journalism as a profession by accepting an offer to join the Tribune staff as musical critic and editorial writer, and later on wrote a series of letters on a traveling tour that included the Catskills, Saratoga, Newport and other favorite American resorts, which were published collectively in a book entitled: "Lotus Eating." In 1853 Mr. Curtis also published "The Howadji in Syria." In the following year he took editorial charge of Putnam's Monthly.

In spite of his great ability the magazine failed and a new phase of his character was demonstrated in his refusal to avail himself of the bankruptcy laws. He immediately set to work to pay the creditors of the defunct publication and eventually did so, although he had certainly shared the responsibility of its management with others, and many men would in his place have disclaimed any responsibility whatever.

It was in 1856 that he first took an active interest in politics. He stumped the country for Fremont and displayed intense enthusiasm in the anti-slavery movement of that time. He became chairman of the republican county committee on Staten Island, where he has made his home, and in 1860 earned fame by an eloquent expression of his ideas in the republican national convention at Chicago. It was in December, 1863, that Mr. Curtis became political editor of Harper's Weekly.

An Ancient Crown.

The crown of St. Stephen, king of Hungary, 980-1015, is still preserved with the ancient regalia in the fortress palace of Buda-Pesth. The crown, or rather its original part, was sent to St. Stephen by Pope Sylvester II. in the year 1,000, the time of the establishment of Christianity in Hungary, and is called the "Holy and Apostolical Crown."

THE DANCING JACKS.

An Experiment Which Is Simple and Exceedingly Funny.

From time to time we have given papers on frictional electricity, and noted a few experiments that can be conducted without the aid of expensive apparatus. We also had an article on the electrical machine and how to make it, and for the benefit of those who care to amuse themselves with an even simpler apparatus than the electrophorus, we beg to introduce those amusing performers, the dancing jacks.

What the jacks are like can be seen from the row of five figures at the top of our sketch. They are merely pieces of colored paper, cut with the scissors to the shape and size shown, the lighter the paper the better being their performances.

To conduct their entertainment all that is needed is a piece of glass half a yard long and nine inches wide, which piece of glass can be placed between two thick books, so as to be an inch and a half from the table.

Lay the small paper figures all of a row on the table beneath the glass, and vigorously rub the upper surface of the plate with a silk handkerchief. Soon you will find the jacks lift their heads toward the glass, and suddenly they will bound up against it, and begin dancing up and down as if bewitched, attracted and repelled by the electricity your rubbing has developed.

Nothing can be simpler than the means and funnier than the end of this experiment, as the tiny pieces of paper seem to go mad with delight if the rubbing has been properly done. All that is needful for success is that the glass should be quite dry, and the handkerchief dry, and of good, soft silk, though a cambric handkerchief will do fairly well with a little more rubbing.

With a proper arrangement of light, the shadows of the dancing jacks can be thrown on a screen, and then their erratic leaps and bounds and petulant twists and pirouettes, being on an enlarged scale, are even more striking than when viewed from above through the glass plate.—Golden Days.

AN EDUCATED BASS.

He Obeys the Summons of His Master with Alacrity.

A remarkable fish story comes from Yonkers. It is to the effect that in a pool inclosed in one of the greenhouses belonging to the Greystone estate of the late Samuel J. Tilden there is living an educated black bass. The fish has lived in this pond ever since it was caught on the hook by the Greystone head-gardener two years ago. In this time the bass has learned to obey the summons of its master, who has but to whistle to bring it from its hiding-place into full view. At another sign, a snap of the fingers, it will turn about and swim back to its resting-place. The New York Tribune is responsible for the statement that if a worm or cricket is held above the surface of the water, even to the height of a foot, the agile bass will leap for it and speedily gulp it down. Mr. Forson, the owner, says the fish seems fond of him, and willing to sport with him as long as he stays by the pool. It has several tricks that it performs at the will of the gardener. The only companion the bass has in the pool is a sunfish. Several German carp were there when the savage black fellow was introduced into their society two years ago, but the introduction was advantageous only to the latter. The carp were soon eaten up. The one sunfish either defended itself with vigor against the bass, or entered into a truce, for the two live together in harmony now.

Of course, in reading about this wonderful creature you must remember that after all it is only a fish-story, but it is all quite credible. If you were asked to believe that the bass wiggled his tail so as to splash water on the flowers every morning, or flopped about on the lawns pulling up weeds with its teeth, you might think the story slightly overdrawn.

Strange Effect of Diving.

An Australian pearl diver, in recounting his experiences, says that one of the strange effects of diving is the invariable bad temper felt while working at the bottom of the sea; and, as this usually passes away as soon as the surface is reached, it may be supposed to be due to the pressure of air inside the dress, affecting the lungs and through them the brain. A diver often becomes so angry at some imaginary wrong-doing on the part of those in the boat above that he gives the signal to be pulled up, "with the intention of knocking the heads off the entire crew," only to forget what he came up for when the surface is reached.

A Cure for Plant Poisoning.

Some careful experiments have been made by eminent pathologists on poison by thesumac, the result indicating an almost perfect identity in the result with the disease known as erysipelas, and it is suggested, therefore, that the same remedy may be used for Rhus poison as for the trouble in erysipelas. A lather of common potash soap, made strong, and applied with a shaving brush on the affected parts, is a well-known and effectual remedy. Those liable to be poisoned by this plant will do well to remember this.

RUNNING FOR LIFE.

Narrow Escape of a Party of Tourists from an Avalanche.

Mr. F. F. Tuckett, with two English friends and two guides, was climbing one of the loftier peaks of the Alps. Ulrich, one of the guides, was leading, when suddenly a cracking noise was heard somewhere above them. Instantly all eyes—except Ulrich's, who was a little hard of hearing—were turned upward to the overhanging ice cliff. The next moment a huge mass of ice broke away, mingled apparently with a still greater mass of snow from the slopes above. What followed is thus described by Mr. Tuckett:

Instinctively I bolted for the rocks of the Rothstock, if haply it might not be too late, yelling rather than shouting to the others: "Run for your lives!"

Ulrich was the last to take the alarm, though the nearest to the danger, and was thus eight or ten paces behind the rest of us; but by this time we were all straining desperately through the deep, soft snow for dear life, yet with faces turned upward to watch the swift oncoming of the foe.

Nearer and nearer it came, its front like a mighty wave that is about to break, yet still "on the curl hangs pausing." Now it has traversed the whole width of the glacier above us, taking a somewhat diagonal direction. And now run, oh, run! if ever you did, for here it comes straight at us, still outflanking us, swift, deadly and implacable!

The next moment we saw no more. A wild confusion of whirling snow and fragments of ice—a frozen cloud—swept over us, entirely concealing us from one another; and still we were untouched—at least I knew that I was—and still we ran.

Another half-second and the mist had passed, and there lay the body of the monster, whose head was still careering away at lightning speed far below us, motionless, rigid and harmless.

It will naturally be supposed that the race was one which did not admit of accurate timing by the performers; but I think the whole thing, from first to last, did not occupy more than five or six seconds.

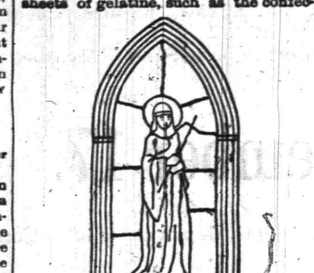
Lives in a Glass House.

The king of Siam, according to the London News, has chosen a unique and effective method of keeping cool. He has recently had built for himself, by a Chinese architect, a pavilion of glass. Walls, floors and ceiling are formed of slabs of different thicknesses of glass, joined by impermeable cement. By one door only can the king enter, and this closes hermetically when he comes in, and ventilator valves in tall pipes in the roof open, as does also a sluice beside a large reservoir in which the glass house stands. The transparent edifice then becomes submerged, and the king finds himself in a cool and perfectly dry habitation, where he passes the time in a manner pleasing to himself.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS.

Bright Children Can Make Them with Cardboard and Gelatine.

It is not generally known that stained glass windows, lamp screens and window transparencies may be made with cardboard and gelatine. The work is not at all difficult. Anyone with some knowledge of drawing and a little patience can produce most beautiful results. One needs a few sheets of gelatine, such as the confectioners use, a sheet of bristol-board, and a bottle of liquid glue. With these materials a whole brood of children can be kept amused and quiet while the work is going on.



The first step is to copy the outlines of a window upon the card-board with a saint or some figure sketched in the center of the window. Draw with a pencil something simple, and with not too many lines. Now lay the design on the card-board, and with a sharp penknife cut away the board on each side of the pencil lines, so as to leave the figure in outline. The outlines answer the purpose of "leads," to which the gelatine is afterwards glued. The leads are needed for the support of the figure or to separate one color from another.

The next step is to glue the card-board to a piece of thin deal or piece of wood, cut out the size of a window-frame. This done in order to keep the card-board from warping. Now cut the gelatine into the sizes and shapes to fill the open spaces. Having spread the glue very thinly on the back of the leads, lay on the pieces of gelatine. Be careful not to get any glue on the gelatine, or it will curl up.

The glue dries in a few seconds, and sets firmly, while a silk handkerchief is pressed lightly against the gelatine. The window may be glazed with various colors. Other details, such as the features, folds of drapery, and ornamentation, may be supplied with water-colors, but only transparent colors should be used, such as siennas, lakes and the madders. As the gelatine is soluble in water, a water-color must be applied only once, and very lightly at that.

One way to obtain depth of tone and color is to have two and even three thicknesses of gelatine, while water-colors are employed to shade it up. For backgrounds, the gelatine sheets may be diapered as above.—Harper's Young People.

Hon. Benjamin Harrison, President, Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C.

"DEAR SIR: As Mayor of the city of New York, I deem it my duty to call your attention to the present condition of sanitary affairs in this city. While there is no cause for alarm in the present condition and while everything is being done by the authorities to prevent the spread of the cholera, every reasonable precaution should be taken to prevent its further introduction into this community. I therefore request that you, as President of the United States, exercise all the authority you possess to prevent further immigration to this country until all fear of the introduction of cholera shall have disappeared. I am, with great respect, very truly yours,

"HUGH J. GRANT, Mayor.'

After his daily tour of all ships in the lower bay, Dr. Walser reports the result of his inspection as follows:

BOHEMIA.

Left Dr. Nash on board to superintend fumigation and disinfection. This vessel, as well as the Scandia, had previously been disinfected with creoline and carbolic acid, both evidently worthless for the purpose.

HELIGOLAND.

Supplied with chloride and ordered disinfection of forecastle and washing of clothing.

MORAVIA.

All well, except one case of measles.

SCANDIA.

All well; disinfection and washing continued.

NORMANNIA.

Cabin passengers' baggage disinfected and removed.

WYOMING.

All well.

RUGIA.

Only one consumptive patient on board: too weak to be removed.

The cabin passengers of the Rugia on board the New Hampshire are extremely well satisfied. The vessel is well supplied with everything that is needed.

The arrival of the Bohemia yesterday morning concluded the list of the expected "suspects" of the Hamburg-American Company. She carried 658 steerage, 10 cabin and 77 crew—a total of 740 souls. The record of the voyage for sickness was not serious, as compared with the ships of the line previously quarantined, though this vessel, it was feared, would be the banner ship, in point of mortality, from the scourge, having sailed from the plague city Sep. 3.

The Bohemia has been for many years in the service, and since the appearance of the fast express steamers she has been devoted almost entirely to the immigrant business.

Dr. Byron after a visit to the Bohemia, reported that there were eleven deaths at sea on the steamer and that four cases have been removed to Swinburne Island.

The Suevia arrived from Hamburg during the night. The ship is in first-class condition. She carries 82 cabin passengers and a crew of 91. No disease appeared during the voyage, and there are no indications of any.

The patients at the islands are doing well with one exception, a case from the Bohemia, which will probably result fatally.

Capt. Savig, of the Norwegian steamship Kitty, which arrived during the night from Barscon, reported the death of his steward. He at first refused to state the nature of the disease, and the Kitty was held for a time. After an investigation it was found that the man had died of fever, and had no symtoms of cholera. The vessel was then released and proceeded to her dock.

Several suspected cases of cholera have been reported on Staten Island during the past two or three days, and, although upon investigation, they have been reported to be other diseases than Asiatic cholera, there has been quite a scare in the respective neighborhoods of the suspected cases.

There has not been a single case of genuine cholera discovered on Staten Island, at Fort Hamilton, or along the Jersey coast, and the health officers say that there is no danger of the infection getting ashore through the sanitary lines that are now established.

Lottie Collins, the English singer, who was among the passengers of the Normannia, released yesterday, is quite ill.

Quarantine in Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Sep. 17.—In view of the reports of cholera in New York, it has been ordered that all vessels arriving in Jamaica from any port of the United States be subject to quarantine for period in the discretion of the authorities.

No More Immigrants at Present.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 17.—Secretary Foster has received the agreement signed by the steamship companies in which they say they will not ship any more immigrants at present to the United States.

Not Quarantined by Montreal.

MONTREAL, Sep. 17.—There is no truth whatever in the report that New York is being quarantined by Montreal.

UNEASINESS IN WASHINGTON.

Fears That the Big Encampment May Bring Cholera to the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 17.—The appearance of cholera in New York occasions great uneasiness among the citizens of Washington in view of the fact that 250,000 strangers coming from all parts of the country will be crowded together here next week. Every arrangement has been made for the comfort of the guests, but the sanitary conditions will not be perfect, and would be favorable to the rapid spread of the disease should it appear here during the encampment.

The camp is on low ground with only temporary sewerage, and the school houses which will be occupied are not provided with the conveniences of dwellings. There will be no freight brought to the city during the encampment on account of the immense travel on the railroads and most of the food supply will have to be kept for a week. The authorities speak lightly of the danger, and they will do well to take greater precautions, is the general opinion, than they have yet taken.

The Federal authorities will do all they can to help preserve the healthful surroundings of the veterans during their visit. Secretary Foster said that he does not think there is any danger to the encampment from the cholera. He said that he did not regard the situation in New York as very serious, believing that the disease would not be allowed to spread. He did not think there was reason to apprehend its appearance here, nor that it would in any way interfere with the encampment.

THE PRESIDENT'S POWERS.

His Right to Restrict Immigration in an Emergency Defined.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 17.—The following is the opinion rendered by the Department of Justice to the President, on his powers under the law to restrict immigration:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, WASHINGTON, —THE PRESIDENT—Sir: By your telegram you ask for an opinion as to the extent of the powers conferred upon the Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital Service and the Secretary of the Treasury, with your approval, to make quarantine regulations with reference to immigration from infected ports.

In answer I have to say that every Government is under obligation to take all necessary measures to preserve the life and property of its citizens, not only from foreign invasion but to adopt such sanitary measures as are calculated to protect the people from those pestilences which have been found nearly if not quite as destructive as war. This is but another application of the maxim that self-preservation is the first law of nature, and it may be added, of nations.

The right of the State to enact sanitary measures to protect its citizens is conceded. The right of the United States to do the same must be admitted.

GOV. FLOWER THREATENED.

A Mysterious Box Sent to Him at the Widsor Hotel, New York.

NEW YORK, Sep. 17.—A mysterious box, which is believed to contain an infernal machine, was received by Gov. Flower at his cholera headquarters in the Windsor Hotel a day or two ago. The nature of the contents were fortunately discovered before any harm was done.

The box was followed up by a letter the contents of which indicated that it was inspired by the same disordered brain which planned the mysterious machine.

The manly stand taken by the Governor in resisting the mob at Fire Island and in placing the unhappy passengers of the Normannia in the shelter provided for them by the State seems to be the only excuse for the outrage.

It was just after the Governor sent his personal check to bind the purchase of the Surf Hotel that the infernal machine fiend formulated his scheme. It would be unjust to accuse the representative of any particular set or class of men, but the inference is that the scheme of murder originated in the mind of some man in earnest sympathy with rioters at Fire Island.

REVEALED BY DEATH.

A Cholera Suspect a Baron—He Was a Lieutenant of Uhlahs.

NEW YORK, Sep. 17.—The Bowery lodger who died on Tuesday at Bellevue Hospital, under circumstances that suggested Asiatic cholera, was the Baron Von Wittken of Poerania. His identity has been revealed by Alexis Schoenemark, who called on Gen. Clark at Sanitary headquarters to ascertain if the report of his friend's death from cholera had been contradicted, as it had been established that he had poisoned himself with arsenic.

Schoenemark said Von Wittken was 28 years old. His family were all military people and he obtained a lieutenancy in the Uhlan Lancers in which regiment his father was a major. When he died the Baron inherited $50,000. He squandered it within a year and came to America six months ago. He tried in vain to get employment and became despondent. The last his friend saw of him was on Monday, when he gave him fifty cents.

German Beet Sugar Quarantined.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 17.—Two million dollars worth of beet sugar is in quarantine at the Delaware Breakwater, the Board of Health not yet having decided to pass it up. The vessels will probably be detained a week.

Duquesne Rioters Indicted.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 17.—The grand jury has handed down true bills against 29 participants in the Duquesne riot. They are charged with unlawful assemblage in connection with the trouble at Duquesne on August 4. The informations were all made by F. T. Lovejoy, secretary of the Carnegie Steel Company, before Alderman McMasters.

COMMISSIONER PECK'S ARREST.

He is Charged With Burning Returns on Which His Report Was Based.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sep. 17.—Just what will be the outcome of the difficulties in which Labor Commissioner Peck is involved, it is hard to say.

At the hearing before Justice Gutman, at which warrants were issued for Commissioner Peck and his stenographer, Elbert Rogers, it came out, so it is said, that the janitor of the apartment house in Albany, where Commissioner Peck lives, had spent several hours last Sunday night burning in a furnace quantities of papers given to him by the Commissioner to be destroyed. For this service the janitor received $3.

District-Attorney Eaton and ex-Senator Chase, who have charged of the prosecution against Mr. Peck, claim to have secured some charred fragments of these papers which show clearly, they allege, that they were portions of the blank returns filled in by the manufacturers who furnished Commissioner Peck data for his report. How the matter leaked out no one pretends to say, although a servant in the apartment house is charged with having told about the destruction of the documents.

The offense with which the Commissioner stands charged is a misdemeanor, punishable by five years' imprisonment, or by a fine of $1,000, or both.

IT WAS A FAKED STORY.

The Alleged Suicide of a New York Woman in Monte Carlo a Canard.

LONDON, Sep. 17.—On Sept. 13 the "Neue Freie Presse" of Vienna published a story to the effect that Miss Jane Armstrong of New York had killed herself with a revolver after losing in ten days $250,000 at the Monte Carlo Casino. Subsequently the paper published elaborate details of the affair, which were telegraphed in every direction.

The Monte Carlo correspondent of the "Telegraph," of this city, was instructed to look into the matter. He did so with the result that to-day he telegraphs that the story is a canard. Nobody by the name of Jane Armstrong has visited Monte Carlo this season.

It has often been asserted that the authorities at Monte Carlo seek in every way to hide all evidences of suicide in the principality, and it may be true that they do so, but the "Telegraph's" correspondent, who searched in every direction to prove or disprove the Armstrong story, found beyond a doubt that no woman has committed suicide at Monte Carlo recently.

A BULLET IN HIS TEMPLE.

Another Mystery Added to the List of South Jersey Murders.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sep. 17.—The inquest on the body of the man who was found dead in the woods about a mile below this place, held by Coroner Fair, failed to reach anything that would lead to the man's identity or throw light on his death.

County physician James made an examination and found that death was caused by a bullet shot through the left temple, which went through the head and came out on the right side. Two bullet holes were also found in the right breast.

An inspection of the man's clothing failed to find anything that would establish his identity. All that was found was the name written on his shirt in indelible ink, "C. Richardson." No money or valuables, except eight pennies, were found. The theory that he had been robbed and murdered has gained ground.

The inquest was adjourned until Monday; and rigid investigation will be made.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Destructive Hurricane in Formosa—Hawaiian Ministry Resigns.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 17.—Advices from Honolulu by the steamer China state that the Legislature passed a vote of no confidence in the Ministry, who thereupon resigned. The Queen had not named a new Cabinet up to the time the steamship sailed.

The China also brings news that a severe typhoon passed over the Island of Formosa recently, causing great destruction of property. In one village 200 houses were destroyed, and many lives were lost.

Northern China has been visited by further serious floods, resulting in considerable loss of life and property. In some instances the people did not have time to leave their homes, and in consequence were swept away with the wreckage. In three days the river Yantse rose from 50 to 93 feet.

THE SHOE ON ITALY'S FOOT.

Murdered Sailor Riley's Relatives Want Damages.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sep. 17.—The relatives of Frank Riley, the sailor on the United States steamship Newark, who was killed in a lodging house at Genoa, Italy, a few days ago, have retained Weiss & Gilbert of this city, to secure reparation from the Italian Government if possible.

Messrs. Weiss & Gilbert have written to Secretary of State Foster, stating the facts published, and asking whether they are sufficient to base an inquiry upon; also whether, if ascertained to be true, action looking to indemnity for the outrage could be instituted. Riley's mother and brother live in this city.

A Forty Niner Killed.

BOSTON, Sep. 17.—John Cochran, a 49-miner, of Reading, who went to California during the gold craze, was crushed to death while sinking rocks on a vacant lot of land opposite his house. His wife found him under a large bowlder with his head and one arm only visible.

DASHED ON THE ROCKS

Fate of the Ship North American Off Japan.

THE VESSEL BOUND FOR NEW YORK.

Struck by a Typhoon After She Had Been Out Two Days—The Cook Washed Overboard—Narrow Escape of the Crew—Rescued by Japanese.

NEW YORK, Sep. 19.—Among the passengers who have arrived at San Francisco on the steamship China are Capt. B. C. Creelman, First Mate Armstrong and nine sailors of the American ship North American, which was wrecked on the coast of Japan on July 28.

The ship was bound from Kobe for New York with a cargo of camphor oil and other stuff, when she was caught in a typhoon and dashed to pieces. The crew barely escaped with their lives, the cook being washed overboard and drowned.

Mate Armstrong tells a graphic story of the wreck and subsequent rescue. He says that the vessel left Kobe on July 22 and had fine weather and sea until the following day, when a typhoon burst upon them with such suddenness that the men had no time to even take in sail. The ship was beaten about, and was soon rendered unmanageable.

The force of the wind tore the sails to shreds and tore the clothes off the men. The waves dashed over the vessel and it seemed that every moment would be the last. The men were scurried across the deck by the force of the hurricane, the captain ordering that the men lash themselves to the rigging.

A monster wave soused into the galley, knocking the cook off his legs and carrying him out into the sea. He disappeared almost instantly. Suddenly the ship was lifted high into the air and came down with a crash. She had struck a rock. Again and again she struck, bow on, the shocks almost breaking her in two.

The foremast was taken clean out of her at the first crash, and the mainmast was snapped. The rigging came down with a run, almost burying the men in the debris. Nearly everyone on board was caught or hurt.

The ship was some distance from the shore, which was a rock-bound coast, but a number of Japanese saw the ship's peril and scrambled down the rocks to the shore, ready to render any assistance possible. Capt. Creelman ordered a rope to be made fast to the platform near the wheel. This was thrown over a heavy log of wood, which floated into shore, where the natives seized the line and made it fast. A stout hawser was then attached and drawn in, and by this means the crew got safely ashore.

COMMANDER WHITE'S MISSION.

He Will Demand the Release of the Refugees at Puerto Cabello.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 17.—The news which the Navy Department gives out so briefly, stating that the Concord, the first of Admiral Walker's squadron to arrive at La Guayra, had been ordered to proceed to Puerto Cabello, 80 or 100 miles up the coast, now that the Kearsarge had arrived to relieve guard at La Guayra, is understood to mean more than the simple announcement would imply.

Navy officials now intimate that the political refugees who were forcibly taken from on board the American "Red D" steamer Caracas are believed to be imprisoned by Gen. Urdeneta, the Venezuelan official who ordered their arrest, at Puerto Cabello, and Commander White's mission with the Concord will be to demand their immediate release and restoration to the protection of the United States flag.

This is in line with the policy which the present administration adopted in the Barrundia affair, only it goes one step further than that incident.

MRS. HARRISON'S CONDITION.

Physicians Will Not Make Predictions as to Her Chances for Recovery.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sep. 17.—"General condition may be said to be improved," said Dr. Doughty, just before leaving for New York, after an examination of Mrs. Harrison.

"Her condition is slightly improved, but is still critical," wired Private Secretary Halford to those who sent anxious inquiries during the morning concerning the mistress of the White House.

From these statements it will be seen that Mrs. Harrison has improved in some slight degree, but she is still in a most critical condition. She is by no means on the road to recovery, but danger of death is not so imminent as it was a few days ago.

The physicians, though, make no predictions as to her chances for recovery.

The President and the members of his party look more cheerful than they have for many days. Faint hope was born after the operation yesterday, and it suffuses the drooping spirits of the afflicted family.

Columbus Day in the Schools.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sep. 17. — Superintendent of Public Instruction D. J. Waller, jr., has issued a circular to school directors, superintendents and teachers of public schools throughout the State requesting a general observance of Columbus Day, Oct. 21, in which he says a prominent feature should be the planting of Columbus trees.

More Western Reserve Bodies.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Sep. 17.—The bodies of Captain Albert Meyers of the Western Reserve, the little son of Capt. Minch, and of four unknown persons were found on the beach twelve miles west of Life-Saving Station No. 12 during the morning. They were in a bad condition and were buried by the crew.

The President Won't Be Present.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 17.—Owing to the critical condition of Mrs. Harrison, the President will not be here to review the parade during the G. A. R. Encampment, and the committee therefore addressed a letter to Vice-President Morton asking him to act in his stead.

Harry Kernell is a Mental Wreck.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 17.—Harry Kernell, the Irish comedian, has returned to his home here from New York. He is all broken up mentally, and his friends are endeavoring to get him into a private insane asylum.

Cleveland's Baking Powder

"Absolutely the Best."

It is made of pure cream of tartar and soda, no ammonia, no alum. A like quantity goes farther and does better work. It is therefore cheaper.

Cleveland's is the baking powder used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of cookery. It never varies, and always gives perfect satisfaction. Try a can.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Come early for seats at Music Hall, to-night.

—"Somerset county be damned!"—"Hon." John Kean, jr.

—It's surprising what you can get for 19 cents at Peck's.

—The Exempt Firemen's association meets this evening.

—A fine billiard parlor, all newly furnished with the most modern appurtenances, will be opened in the City Hotel to-day.

—John Kean, jr., found it an easy matter to damn a county full of voters. That county full of voters will now take delight in damning him.

—Are Somerset county Republicans going to support for office the man who in former days of selfishness and greed said "Somerset be damned"?

—Send your messages by the Postal Telegraph if you want them to be transmitted promptly and accurately. The office is very convenient, 9 North avenue.

—The Sunday-school and the Young Men's Bible class, of the First Baptist church, will meet to-morrow at 2:30 p. m. instead of in the morning as heretofore.

—Doane & Edsall to-day advertise their justly celebrated $2 button boots for women's wear. They claim that most dealers throughout the country get $3 for the same shoes.

—Evangelists and mission workers from the Christie Street mission, including Col. John E. Bryant and John Jaeger, will conduct the services in Hope chapel to-morrow evening at 8.

—"All I'm looking after is my own district!"—said John Kean, jr., when Somerset county wanted a postmaster. Now he dares ask those honest, insulted voters for their ballots!

—A horse driven by Wm. Woodruff fell through a county bridge near Scotch Plains last night. Luckily no serious injury resulted, or a suit at law might be begun. The bridge will be repaired.

—Even were the lions left out, you'll agree that the new play to be given at Music Hall to-night, after a week's rehearsal here, is one of the strongest and most intensely interesting you ever saw.

—When North Plainfield sought a just favor of John Kean, jr., he virtually said "You be damned!" Now that he seeks favor of North Plainfield, in asking borough Republicans for their votes, what are "the damned" ones going to do about it?

—John Cahill was arrested this morning on complaint of Kate Sheridan, who wants him to acknowledge the paternity of her child. Judge Codington bound him over in $100 bail, for a hearing next Saturday at 10 a. m.

—Owing to the illegible writing of the Reform club representative who prepared the notice, THE PRESS yesterday announced that a memorial service on the death of Joseph English would be held Tuesday. The date of the meeting is Sunday (to-morrow), and the hour is 4 p. m.

—White & VanArsdale are offering special inducements throughout every department, previous to the extensive alterations they are making. Buyers will do well to bear this in mind. The millinery department, under the direction of Miss Kittie Daly, is said to be the finest in the city.

—Mr. Moffett, in his big advertisement in THE PRESS, is giving everybody a chance to own real estate in Plainfield and secure possession without noticing the outlay. The lots he offers are valuable, and he will have no trouble in finding abundant purchasers. Be in the swim and buy now.

—One of the health authorities of New York has suggested to ex-mayor Rockfellow of Plainfield's health board, that the Water Supply company of this city should be compelled to boil the water it furnishes its patrons. President Bergen will therefore at once order a fire built under the big stand-pipe.

—THE PRESS would respectfully suggest that the City Hotel band concerts and the First Church of Christ song services be not held on the same evening in the future. The clash of harmonies last night and on the previous Friday band concert evening, when both band and chorus seemed striving to out-noise one another, was distressingly inharmonious.

ALIVE IN THE LIONS' DEN.

A PLAINFIELD NEWSPAPER MAN'S THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

One of THE PRESS Staff Pays a Visit to the Ferocious Beasts Who Will Play About in Their Cage on Music Hall Stage To-Night—Col. Boone Relates His Own Narrow Escapes from Death.

A party of newspaper men and others were on the stage of Music Hall, this morning, watching Col. Boone feed the lions that he is to use in the public production of "Under The Lion's Paw" to-night. As each piece of raw meat weighing about ten pounds was tossed over the top of their cage and fell on the floor, these great beasts presented a most ferocious aspect. Lashing their sides with their powerful tails, and with mouths wide open, with roar upon roar, they fought one another for possession of the tid-bits until each had a piece to gnaw on Then there was comparative quietness until one would get a little too near the other, when there would be roaring and snarling that would curdle one's blood. Col. Boone, whip in hand, watched that each one got his share, regardless of the vicious looks and ugly growls he was greeted with by his ferocious pets.

Among the journalists was Griswold Harte, of this city, who, after the feeding, expressed a desire to go in the "Lions' Den". To the request the colonel smiled and said:

"My dear sir, the man does not live, aside from me their master, who can go into that cage and stand one chance in ten of leaving it alive."

"But"—said Mr. Harte—"let me go in with you."

"I would not even take chances on that"—replied the colonel, looking at Mr. Harte, and the said: "I 'll tell you what I will do. I will let two of my lions, Romeo and Eliza, into the small cage, and you can go in there with me—if you have the nerve."

Mr. Harte smiled as he said, "I 've got the nerve—you give me the chance." Col. Boone then called the two lions mentioned, out into the small den, and, entering, he sat down with them and his trainer let Mr. Harte in. Eliza paid hardly any attention to the visitor, but Romeo looked at him suspiciously and growled, but was quickly brought to his senses by a dash of the whip.

"When I went in"—said Mr. Harte, relating his experience—"I did not feel the least bit nervous. I suppose that I was so intensely interested in what I was doing that the thought of fear never entered my head. I must confess, however, that I did not like Romeo's snarling reception of my presence in the cage; but I managed somehow to pat his head.

"No; I do n't know exactly how I felt. It was a very novel and interesting experience. Do I think it was foolhardy? No: I do n't look at it in that way. In my mind there was no danger unless I got 'rattled', and did something absurd. As long as I promptly and quickly obeyed Col. Boone's instructions and did not make a false step, I knew I was all right.

"I was in the cage about seven minutes, I think. After I was safely out of the cage and the iron bars between me and that snarling beast, Romeo, I felt as if I wanted to sit down and rest. The reaction was very much more uncomfortable than were my feelings while in the cage."

"Would you care to try it again?"

"As I feel now, no. I think one experience of that kind is enough."

Mr. Harte is probably the only Plainfield man who can say that he was ever inside of a cage, unarmed, with two lions, either of which with one stroke of his terrible paws could have killed him instantly. Col. Boone says that he has never allowed but one man to enter the cage before, and no one but himself has entered a cage containing Sultan, Parnell and Commodore. These three lions he does not trust himself, and will never leave the cage with his back to them. Never, during his performance, does he take his eyes off them; and, always on the alert, always expecting, he holds himself in readiness prepared for any treacherous move. From the shoulder to the elbow of Col. Boone's left arm is nothing but bone, the flesh having been ripped off in a struggle with Commodore.

Twice in the past ten years has the Colonel nearly lost his life in his attempts to master these savage beasts.

PLAINFIELD'S WONDERFUL CLIMATE.

New Jersey's Crescent City Produces Fine Tropical Fruit.

Mr. Simpson recently bought through broker B. C. Mulford the Mrs. Spooner place at 62 Grove street. On the grounds Mr. Simpson found growing a tree with a peculiar fruit, which on investigation he found to be the pa-paw, a native of tropical climes. This is a fine fruit, of exquisitely sweet shrub-like odor, and of the banana tribe. It is a fine table fruit, either in a raw state or pickled.

The existence of the pa-paw thriving on Plainfield soil is another proof of our wonderful climate.

A sample of the fruit is on exhibition at Mr. Mulford's office.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Way erly, N. Y.

ALREADY RESORTING TO FALSEHOOD.

Candidate Kean's Organ Seeking to Secure Honors for Johnny that He Doesn't Deserve, in Bolstering up His Weak Campaign.

The Courier is seeking to build up for candidate Kean a reputation for deeds of charity that he doesn't deserve. The organ says that Mr. Kean "was a passenger on the train which met with an accident on Tuesday afternoon near New Brunswick and which resulted in the killing of track-walker John Roeder and the injury of brakeman Leaming, of Philadelphia, who died yesterday. Immediately after the accident"—concludes the Courier—"Mr. Kean took up a subscription among the passengers for the benefit of Roeder's family, and secured $248."

This is all false. Mr. Kean had nothing whatever to do with the idea of giving a thank-offering purse to Roeder's bereaved family. The good heart of counselor Keasby of Newark prompted the generous subscription which the passengers of the wrecked cars gave, and counselor Keasby's own hands gathered together the funds, which flowed freely in response to Mr. Keasby's own eloquent words. Candidate Kean did n't by word or act contribute to the success of the subscription. If he was on the train at all, he was comfortably seated in a parlor car in the unwrecked section of the train, and was n't jarred and did n't leave his chair.

The Courier story is very pretty—for campaign purposes—but it has the demerit of being a fake of the regular Courier stamp.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Plainfield's Health Authorities Can Be Trusted to Conduct Sanitary Affairs, Without Front Street Interference.

The Courier is still trying to run sanitary matters in this town. Now it is fearfully excited because, according to its claim, if cholera should break out in Plainfield, the cases could not be handled. It seeks to work up a scare by the argument that because a few isolated cases of disease have occurred in New York, and because commuters travel daily between Plainfield and the metropolis, therefore the much-dreaded disease may be brought to this city. THE PRESS is confident that Plainfield's health authorities are fully competent to handle all cases of disease and contagion that may arise; and in spite of the Courier's excitement and terror the public may feel assured that in any possible emergency the physicians can be trusted to look after the public's sanitary interests in every particular. Besides, why should the Courier concern itself? There is an old proverb to the effect that it's an ill-wind that blows nobody no good.

The last tennis tea of the season at the Hillside Tennis club is being held this afternoon. There is a large attendance, and the event is a merry and successful one. The guests are received by Miss Walz, who has to assist her Mrs. John Bushnell, Mrs. Louis G. Timpson, the Misses Bushnell, Miss Huntington and Miss Massett.

The Rev. Dr. Henry T. Miller, pastor-elect of the First Presbyterian church, had reached Philadelphia on his way from Chicago to take charge of his new pastorate, when he was suddenly summoned back again on important business. Therefore he will not be able to preach here to-morrow, but in his stead the Rev. Dr. John Gillespie, secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, will occupy the pulpit.

Full of trouble—the ordinary pill. Trouble when you take it, and trouble when you've got it down. Plenty of unpleasantness, but mighty little good.

With Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, there's no trouble. They're made to prevent it. They're the original little Liver Pills, tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, the smallest, easiest and best to take. They cleanse and regulate the whole system, in a natural and easy way—mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the value received. Can you ask more?

A PITFALL THAT NEEDS GUARDING.

A Horse and Buggy and Two Young People Tumbled Headlong Into It, and Might Have Lost Their Lives.

That dark and dangerous hole on Somerset street just this side of Coddington's dam was responsible for what might have been a very serious accident last Tuesday night.

That evening Harry Cushman and a young lady were out driving. It was raining, and the night was very dark. There was no warning signal along the road, nor any railing to prevent driving off the edge of the steep embankment.

Consequently, the horse, instead of turning the curve properly, went straight ahead and plunged headlong down into the gully. The buggy and its occupants followed. The vehicle was wrecked, and it is a wonder the horse and people were not badly injured; but fortunately no serious hurts were received. The young people were stunned for awhile, and were assisted by the neighbors in getting back to Plainfield.

A TALE OF THE ORIENT.

Remarkable Story of the Far East, With a Startling Local Application.

An Eastern city, so I'm told,
Once grew so very slow,
That even its inhabitants
Were forced to rise and show
Their lack of love for sluggishness,
And just to voice their woe chose to be their magistrate, an with push and go.

his hands in horror,
madness all around,
The clan medieval ways
That his forbearings found;
He told the people they were fools
To always walk so far,
When all they needed in the world
Was just a trolley-car.

The people (emphasize the word)
Were thrilled with great delight,
But certain wise old fogy sheiks
Were taken so with fright
That many learned doctors were Called in for consultation,
And it took them seven days, I 'm told,
To work resuscitation!

Then one old, all-important sheik
Arose and swore 'twas true—
Swore by his wond'rous growth of beard,
And by the winds that blew—
That, though he drove his camel stud,
The other folks should walk,
And the things he said of trolley-cars
Were strong as German pork.

"'Twere shame"—he said—"to mitigate
My sweet felicity;
To rob this bright Arcadia
Of its simplicity;
To harrow up the wilderness
Of this archaic spot!
I've got a team of camels! Hang
The people who have not!"

And he writ a screed that called upon
The head men of the place
To shun the siren voice of him
Who plotted their disgrace;
And plutocrats all signed the screed
With unanimity,
Inflated by the greatness of
Their magnanimity.

And here is where the story stops—
The rest is on the wire;
But you can bet the puffing-up
Of that pneumatic tire
Forebodes a "puncture" just as sure,
As you know who you are,
And with the drop of selfishness
Will come the trolley-car.

Now all this oriental yarn
Is just a little bluff—
You 'll fit it to the Borough's woes
If you are up to snuff!

"SOMERSET COUNTY BE D——D!"

Does Candidate Kean Recollect Uttering This Little Boomerang?

Some time ago, when the question "Who shall be postmaster?" was being agitated in Plainfield, good people of both borough and city were actively pushing the claims of the late Isaac Brokaw for the position. Representatives of the Republican party in North Plainfield went to Gen. Sewell and presented Mr. Brokaw's name. General Sewell referred them to Congressman John Kean, jr., as the one who had the Plainfield post-office patronage at his disposal. To Mr. Kean they went.

"Mr. Kean,"—they said—"North Plainfield is a by no means insignificant part of the territory covered by the Plainfield post-office's collection and distribution of mail, and we good borough Republicans feel that North Plainfield deserves to have the postmaster once in awhile. Somerset county certainly has rights in the matter."

"Somerset county be damned!"—retorted he who is now the Republican candidate for governor.—"All I'm looking after is my own district!"

Therefore Mr. Kean secured the office of post-master for his clever and able henchman, and Somerset county's claims were ruthlessly ignored.

"Somerset county be damned!"

Honest Republican voters of Somerset will remember that against you, Mr. Kean!

The Most Gorgeous Spectacle Ever Presented in America.

"Sinbad" the splendid and successful extravaganza that has all summer filled the Garden theater, Madison Square, New York, celebrated its five hundreth performance last Monday night. The event was marked by the distribution among the ladies in attendance of souvenir portraits of Louise Montague attached to a bouquet of American beauty roses. "Sinbad" is in every sense worthy of its long life of public favor, for the stage of no country and no time has ever offered so varied a treat in one evening's performance. The cast is led by Louise Montague, the American beauty and John D. Gilbert the extremely funny comedian, Spencer Gracey, Hattie Delaro Barnes, Jessie Villers and two hundred others, most of whom are pretty girls, and remarkably pretty girls at that. There is farce comedy, comic opera and burlesque all at once in an unbroken current of merriment, and catchy music, while the spectacles and transformation scenes are the most gorgeous ever presented in America.

Promise of an Electric Road.

Property owners between Raritan and New Brunswick are being asked to give the right of way for an electric railroad to be run between those two places, via Somerville, Finderne and Bound Brook. The local parties interested are Sylvanus Ayres, jr., E. Chamberlin, J. I. Livingston and L. M. Codington. There is plenty of capital back of the project, and there seems now to be no doubt that the road will be built, as very few persons who own property along the route have refused to give their consent.

Indeed, it is difficult to see why any should oppose the improvement as it will be the means of building up that section very rapidly. The power house will be situated at Bound Brook.

CLOSE OF THE SOMERVILLE FAIR.

A Horse Jockey Causes Excitement by Assaulting a Constable.

The twenty-third annual exhibition of the Somerset County Agricultural society closed at Somerville yesterday, most successfully. The weather was clear, and the trotting of high order. The trouble over the valuable trotting horse "Conway", between N. H. Heft and Andrew Radee of Newark, and Heft's driver, Wm. Grant, culminated last night when Radee struck Dennis Wyckoff, a constable of Franklin township, in the face because he refused to allow "Conway's" trainer to take the horse out of the stable after the race to cool him off. Wyckoff was a special fair officer, but had no authority to hold the horse except by replevin. "Minnie K", owned by D. S. Quinton of Trenton, had a shoulder thrown out by coming in contact with the rear wheel of another sulky. Two months will fix her up all right.

MRS. TOMLINSON CONTINUES PRESIDENT.

Plainfield Takes Prominent Part in the Union County Temperance Convention.

A very profitable and enjoyable day was spent by the members of the Union county Woman's Christian Temperance union at their annual convention in Rahway Thursday.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson of Plainfield was unanimously re-elected president, Mrs. Abel of Elizabeth corresponding secretary, Mrs. Irving of Cranford recording secretary, and Miss G. T. Underhill of Rahway treasurer.

Nine unions were represented, by 55 delegates; and there were 8 visitors from Middlesex county. The reports of superintendents showed much good work accomplished during the past year, in which Plainfield had a large share.

Miss Elizabeth Yates of Maine gave an eloquent address before a large audience (among whom were five clergymen), in the evening, on the subject of Woman's Sphere.

Plainfield Will Witness Its Initial Performance To-Night.

A number of people saw a sight on the Music Hall stage yesterday, that they will never forget—the feeding of five enormous Nubian lions that had been without food for two days. And they are lions too, great big fellows, with shaggy heads and massive jaws that have enormous strength. They are the lions that are introduced to-night in the menagerie scene in "Under the Lion's Paw" by Col. E. D. Boone. They are great pets of the Colonel's, who entered their cage and patted them as if they were kittens.

This play, which will receive its first production here to-night, has been in rehearsal since September 1, and the members of the company all predict that it will be a great success. After leaving here the company will play for two weeks in the largest of the one-night stands and then open in Philadelphia. During the season the production will be seen in all the large cities in the country.

Opening the Democratic Campaign.

The recently organized Cleaveland and Stevenson campaign club of this city will open its rooms at 59 Broadway, Crescent rink, Monday night, with a meeting to ratify the Democratic nominations. Everybody interested in hearing the issues of the campaign intelligently discussed is invited to be present. The meeting, which will be called to order at 8, will be addressed by several speakers. The rooms will be furnished with campaign literature and will be thrown open during the campaign on nights to be hereafter designated by the executive committee.

Elopement at Stirling.

The village of Stirling is excited because Dick Sherman a barber has run away with the wife of a factory-hand named Stout.

Young Rafferty Was n't Kidnaped.

Tom Rafferty has returned home to his anxious parents. He was n't kidnaped, but was having a good time at the Somerville fair.

Old Saws.

In this day of fertility and invention "Old Saws" are not over popular, yet many people sigh to see with the sight they once saw with, a brand of "old saw" that can be restored to you by a competent optician. Go to Collier's and have this truth demonstrated to you.

—There'll be a great play at Music Hall to-night.

A Valuable Remedy.

Hon. Edmund L. Pitts, the late president of the New York State Senate, writes: "STATE OF N. Y., SENATE CHAMBER, ALBANY, March 11, 1886. I have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family for the past five years and can truthfully say they are a valuable remedy and effect great cures. I would not be without them. I have in several instances given some to friends suffering with weak and lame backs, and they have invariably afforded certain and speedy relief. They cannot be too highly recommended.

An Important Change.

In the October number of Peterson's Magazine appears the following notice to its subscribers.

"This magazine is about to pass into the control of stockholders who propose to convert it into a periodical devoted solely to literature and art. Peterson's long-continued success, its general merit, and the great improvement in its literary departments during the past few years have decided the future publishers to call their periodical The New Peterson, confident that the name will raise up for it in advance a wide host of friends and supporters. The new magazine will commence with the January number, although the December number will be issued in the new form. A full announcement of its design and a description of its leading features will be given in the November issue."

All will wish The New Peterson ever possible success, and it is certain that it will speedily become one of the most popular literary periodicals of the day.

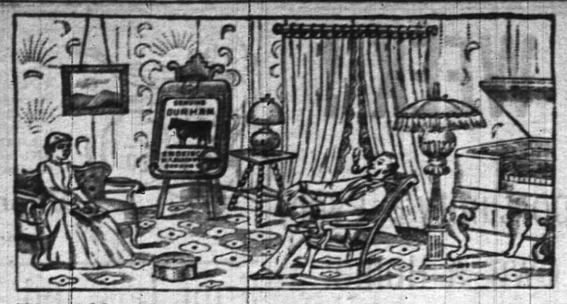
Witness my hand this 11th day of July, A. D., 1892. W. W. NASH,
Special Policeman and Collector of Delinquent Taxes.



Ladies Do you want to keep your husband home at night, and keep him agreeable and pleasant? He must smoke, and yet, you don't like the smell of his tobacco. You can drive him away to his club—out of just such things come misery, unhappiness and divorce. The trouble is that he uses poor tobacco. Coax him to get BLACKWELL'S BULL DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO; its delicate aroma will not be offensive to you, and it will not fill all the curtains, hangings and clothing with that stale disagreeable odor that now troubles you. Keep your husband home, and avoid all risks by having him smoke BULL DURHAM TOBACCO. Sold everywhere.

BLACKWELL'S DURHAM TOBACCO CO., Durham, N. C.

"We always fry ours in Cottolene."

Our Meat, Fish, Oysters, Saratoga Chips, Eggs, Doughnuts, Vegetables, etc.

Like most other people, our folks formerly used lard for all such purposes. When it disagreed with any of the family (which it often did,) we said it was "too rich." We finally tried and not one of us has had an attack of "biliness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

COTTOLENE

THE BIG ENCAMPMENT

Formal Opening of the G. A. R. Reunion at the National Capital.

CITY FAST FILLING WITH VISITORS

Cholera Scare Having Its Effect on the Attendance—The Decorations Most Elaborate—President Harrison Cannot Be Present—The Great Parade To-morrow—Programme of Events.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 19.—Every train that enters the city is simply packed with veterans and visitors who have come to be present at the 26th annual Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. The city presents a more attractive appearance than ever before in its history.

The first thing to attract the attention of the incoming Grand Army visitors is the waving Stars and Stripes. No matter which way they move the glorious emblem of the United States and bunting of all colors meet their eyes.

The decorations all over the city are elaborate and artistic, business houses and private dwellings being well ornamented. The government buildings, however, show the most prominent specimens of the decorator's art. The State, War and Navy building is elaborately decorated with the national flag arranged in many artistic ways.

The Executive Mansion is handsomely decorated. From the roof of the portecochere hang festoons of bunting, while from the shield in the centre, red, white and blue streamers are drawn to the base of the supporting pillars, on each of which is a shield bearing an emblem of one of the army corps.

The numerous columns of the Treasury look very bright, each being wrapped with a large United States flag. Each apex of the cornices bears a military device outlined in electric lights, and at either entrance stands a column draped in the national colors. The Department of Justice is prettily decorated, numerous flags being festooned on its front.

Another very handsome bit of decoration is seen in the Pension Hall, where the Grand Army encampment is to be entertained Thursday night. This building, while from the exterior one of the ugliest ever designed by architects, is very handsome within and susceptible of very effective decorations. The building incloses an immense court, roofed over with skylights and side lights, with a fountain in the centre and rows of immense columns on the four sides of a square supporting the balconies above. These columns rise to the roof, where they are joined by small arches. These columns below the first balcony are each decorated with a shield surrounded by flags, and a similar decoration is placed about each column from balcony to balcony. The shields on the first floor bear the names of prominent officers of the war, and above the first balcony the names of famous battles. Across the front of the balconies, connecting the central figures of the decorations, are festoons of red, white and blue.

No decorations extend across Pennsylvania avenue, the purpose being to leave that broad street clear from all obstructions to the view. But at the crossings of each side street where it enters Pennsylvania avenue there are hung elaborate decorations of flags and shields.

The public buildings are draped from column to column and across the windows with immense American flags, and some bit of red, white and blue is displayed from every available spot along the great public thoroughfare. Wires have been strung on both sides of Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to Washington Circle, past the White House, and at short intervals electric lights will illuminate the surroundings.

The grand stands for the President and the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army are of artistic design and are very elaborately and beautifully decorated.

The stand for the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army is in front of the War Department, and is larger and more massive in appearance than that provided for the President. In a modified way it represents a fortress, with embattlements. The structure is in a solid color, having the appearance of heavy grey stone, and the decoration of flags is hung about it in such a manner as to distinguish the decorations from the structure, making the effect more artistic and impressive. There will also be shields, pennants and emblems.

Indications are apparent to-day that the number of visitors to the Encampment will not be quite so large as was anticipated, but there will be enough here to easily make good the claim of the committees that it will be the largest reunion of old soldiers and their friends held in this country since the war. The falling off in the attendance is ascribed to the fear of danger from running the gauntlet of cholera in New York, as it is most noticeable from the North and East.

This morning occurred the parade preceding the dedication of Grand Army Place. It was reviewed by the Vice President and other officials.

The programme for the remainder of the day is:

12:30 p. m.—Dedication of Grand Army Place (White lot), with addresses by Vice President Morton and Grand Commander in Chief Palmer.

2 p. m.—Meeting of Department Commanders; meeting of Board of Directors National Women's Relief Corps.

5 p. m.—Drill by National Fencibles, prize winners at the Omaha encampment.

7 p. m.—Meeting of Council of Administration.

8 p. m.—Camp fire of Sheridan posts, G. A. R.; reunion of the Twelfth, Fourteenth and Twenty-second Corps and quartermasters.

8:30 to 11:30 p. m.—Reception to W. C. R., ladies of the G. A. R., and other organizations of patriotic women, by the ladies of the Department of the Potomac, headed by Mrs. John A. Logan. For this affair the rotunda of the Capitol has been gorgeously decorated.

The work of the encampment—that is, the business which brings them together each year—will be done on Wednesday and Thursday, but the great day, the great celebration of the occasion, will be to-morrow and to-morrow night. From 10 o'clock in the morning until the sunlight fades a line of veterans will march down Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol past the White House in grand review. They will march in double file, and represent as nearly as well fed and well dressed peaceful veterans can the scene enacted at the grand review at the close of the war. With flags and patriotic emblems on every hand, with hundreds of bands and drum corps and trumpeters playing martial airs, the veterans, bearing flags, some of which were riddled and torn in battle, will follow the line of march of the grand review. As they pass the southeast corner of the Treasury they will be greeted by the voices of a thousand children singing patriotic airs.

To-morrow night will be the grand fireworks display. This will occur in the Monument Grounds near the Washington Monument. In addition to the usual display of bombs and rockets there will be representation of shells bursting as in battle, a salvo of bombs like artillery and three very elaborate set pieces. In one of the set pieces will appear the national Capitol in a glow of light, beneath which will be inscribed in letters of fire "Washington Welcomes the Nation's Heroes." Another will represent portraits of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, with the eagle holding branches of laurel over their heads. The third piece will represent a sailor and a soldier shaking hands over a stand of colors draped over cannon, with G. A. R. emblazoned over their heads, and a monitor and fort belching volumes of fire and smoke in the background. At the same time rockets and Roman candles and red lights will be burnt in all parts of the city.

On Wednesday will be the meeting of the encampment at Albaugh's Opera House, the convention of the Woman's Relief Corps, parade of the Union Veteran Legion and a large number of corps meetings during the day. On Thursday there will be any number of camp fires, conventions and receptions. But the features of the day will be the reception of the encampment in the Pension Office Building in the evening. On Friday there will be excursions to Mount Vernon and elsewhere, camp fires, reunions and receptions.

THE CRISIS PASSED.

Probable that Mrs. Harrison Can Soon Be Removed From Loon Lake.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sep. 19.—The critical period in Mrs. Harrison's illness has passed and there are no signs of a renewal of the dangerous complications that brought her so near to death's door a few days ago. She has not improved so much, however, that all danger is past, for there is yet the main disease to combat.

Dr. Gardner told a reporter this morning that the crisis was over, and that the patient could now be treated without the great danger threatened by the accumulation of the watery substance in the cavity of the pleura. "This danger," said Dr. Gardner, "has passed and there are no signs of a renewal of the substance, thus removing the necessity for another operation."

The three operations which the physicians made to draw off the fatal fluid were successful, but, in each case, the patient suffered somewhat from shock, and the physicians are apprehensive of a reappearance of the fluid.

Now, that the crisis is over, the advisability of removing Mrs. Harrison from here is being considered. She is exceedingly anxious to be taken to Washington, and it is believed by Dr. Gardner that with a partial renewal of strength his patient may be safely removed from Loon Lake within a week or two.

TO A CALIFORNIA JUDGE.

Whitelaw Reid's Niece Soon to Be Married at Ophir Farm.

CEDARVILLE, O., Sep. 19.—Friends of Whitelaw Reid here are just in receipt of the following invitation:

"Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid request the pleasure of your company at the marriage of their niece, Miss Ella Spencer Reid, to Judge Ralph Chandler Harrison, on Thursday, Sep. 27, at 12:30 o clock, at Ophir Farm, Rye, N. Y."

Miss Reid has lately returned from a protracted visit to the Pacific coast, where she met Judge Harrison. Her engagement was kept a secret until the occasion of Mr. Reid's recent visit to his mother at Cedarville. Miss Reid has been a member of her uncle's household for several years, being his favorite niece. He has been extremely devoted to her, partly due to the fact that she is a cripple.

Judge Harrison is a native of California, where he occupies a high standard in the opinions of his acquaintances. He is a middle aged man and his fiance is 25 years of age.

Colored Preacher Working Wonders.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 19.—Rev. John Warman, a colored minister, is creating a sensation here by many alleged cures of infirm and sick people. Crowds with every kind of physical ailment gather in his church. He lays his hands on the afflicted and then offers up a prayer. It is said that two men who were cripples for twenty years threw away their crutches and walked away. Paralyzed women have been restored to health and other wonderful cures have been effected by the minister.

Death of a Keeley Patient.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sep. 19.—John M. Burtis, 32 years old, a graduate of the White Plains Keeley Institute is dead, in the Middletown Insane Asylum, where he was committed on Sunday last as insane. Burtis was well known at White Plains, and moved in high social circles. He formerly resided at Scarsdale, where he married a daughter of Mr. Geo. Willets, a wealthy farmer. He was associated as a partner with his cousin in a large coal and feed business at Larchmont-on-the-Sound.

WARNER WAS JEALOUS

He Could Not See Lizzie Peak Attend the Opera With Another Man.

THE MURDERER TAKES IT COOLLY.

Excitement at Mount Holly Still Great Over the Tragedy Enacted Early Yesterday Morning—The Victim a Sister of Barclay Peak, the Slayer of His Cousin.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Sep. 19.—The murder of Miss Lizzie Peak, an exceptionally handsome young woman of 19 years, has created great excitement here. The crime was committed by her lover, Wesley Warner, of Burlington, who had become jealous of the attentions bestowed upon her by other men, and more particularly those of Harry Matlock.

The young lover frequently quarreled with the girl for receiving and encouraging other men in their advances after their mutual confessions of affection, but the girl disregarded his advice and admonitions, bestowing her smiles and favors with an utter disregard to the pangs they occasioned in the young lover's breast.

Young Warner long contended against the jealously such conduct was coquettishly calculated to call forth, but when he heard that Lizzie intended visiting the opera with Matlock, he determined to lie in wait and convince himself of her perfidy.

He stationed himself behind a tree shortly before the audience was expected to be dismissed, and when he saw Lizzie, together with her sisters, Amanda and Kate, and two young men, emerge from the opera house with Harry Matlock, his extreme jealousy robbed him of all reason.

Springing forth from his hiding place behind the tree, he drew a keen-edged knife and, exclaiming, "Lizzie, you can't go with any other man; if you won't have me you can't have anyone," stabbed the girl in the neck.

His first blow proved fatal, the girl falling dead at his feet, her jugular vein severed. Warner looked down at the result of his crime with calmness and made no attempt to resist arrest.

Lizzie was a younger sister of Barclay Peak, who, a few weeks ago, shot and killed his pretty cousin, Katie Anderson, and who is now serving twenty years in State's prison for the crime.

Indignation is running high against the murderer.

SULLIVAN'S FUTURE PLANS.

His Enthusiastic Reception Takes a Load Off His Mind.

NEW YORK, Sep. 19.—John L. Sullivan will continue to be an actor, and will soon go on the road in his new play. His warm reception at Madison Square Garden Saturday night did much to revive his drooping spirits, and he is not so much forgotten as had he imagined.

When John L., fat and flabby, showed up on the stage he was dressed as in the old days, in the old garden. He stood with folded arms for half a minute before the great assemblage would let him say: "I thank you for your kind reception, not as a winner, but on my defeat. I have nothing to say but that I would cast the best of honor on the present champion. If he will continue in the right path, he will hold the championship as I have. I have no excuses for my defeat. In my opinion a defeated man who makes excuses makes a big mistake in his life."

The speech was repeatedly interrupted with applause, and when the ex-champion sat down in his corner a whirlwind of applause touched the ceiling, and John L. was happy.

Then came the champion, James J. Corbett. There were wild cheers for him, but Sullivan had the house.

Corbett made a brief speech saying: "It affords me great pleasure to hear at John L. Sullivan's benefit. I know he deserves all that can be given to him as a champion. He has been kind in saying that he hopes I will hold the championship as long as he held it. (Here the applause became so loud and long that Corbett had to cease speaking.) When he resumed he added: "I will try to hold it, anyhow."

Corbett's speech made more friends for him than he had ever known in New York.

THE BRODERICK SHOOTING.

Soldiers of the 22nd Regiment to Be Arrested and Tried at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 19.—Since the Coroner's Jury rendered a verdict of unjustifiable shooting in the case of Michael Broaderick, who was killed by soldiers of the 22nd New York Regiment, correspondence has been passing between District-Attorney Quinby and the Adjutant-General's Department at Albany, and in a few days the report on the affair made by Major Bartlett will be in the District-Attorney's hands.

Mr. Quinby and the Chief of Police have, however, decided to precipitate matters and with that end in view Supt. Morgenstern has gone to New York and will probably return with one or more prisoners. He has warrants for the arrest of the guilty parties and a stock of subpœnas for witnesses.

The names of those who fired the shots are known.

Drowned in Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, Sep. 19.—By the capsizing of a rowboat in the lake, near the foot of 16th street, in the afternoon, three people were drowned. It is believed that one of them was Joseph Zeller, a carpenter, whose home was at Matteson, Ill. The other two were women. None of the bodies have been recovered and the identity of the women has not been learned.

COMMISSIONER PECK'S CASE.

He Has Not Resigned—To Issue an Analysis of the Disputed Table.

ALBANY, Sep. 19.—Gov. Flower's assertion that he has had the resignation of Labor Commissioner Peck in his hands ever since last winter is not looked upon as having any weight here by Mr. Peck's friends and the attaches of the bureau. It is claimed that the resignation was sent in when Gov. Flower took office, the same as every other appointed official sends in his resignation.

As Gov. Flower did not send in a new name to the Senate, it was, of course, supposed that he had destroyed Mr. Peck's resignation. In any event, Mr. Peck's friends want it understood that no happening of the past two months has in any way forced a resignation, and Mr. Peck himself is firm in his announcement that he has not resigned the office.

When Gov. Flower was asked last night whether he would take any action in case Mr. Peck was indicted, he said: "The indictment would prove its own action and Mr. Peck would not be Labor Commissioner under the existing laws. Further I have nothing to say."

The continuation of the hearing of Mr. Peck and his stenographer, Mr. Rogers, will be held Sep. 29. Meanwhile they are under $1,000 bail.

Commissioner Peck's friends make the point that all the documents he is accused of burning never would make a quarter of the bulk of paper that the janitor is said to have dropped into the furnace. Commissioner Peck contents himself with laughing at his assailants and predicting their early discomfiture.

He says he will issue within a very few days a close analysis of the disputed table of wages, showing the various trades and manufacturers benefited by the tariff.

MORE TROOPS WITHDRAWN.

The Sixteenth Regiment Alone Remains at Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, Sep. 19.—The Sixteenth Regiment broke camp here at 10 o'clock this morning and left for their homes. All the military guards stationed in the town and at the stations have been withdrawn. Such guards' duty hereafter, barring unforeseen contingencies, will ordinarily be left to the coal and iron police and the deputies and civil authorities generally.

The Sixteenth Regiment, consisting of eight companies of thirty-five men each, will remain here in camp for the present. Of these two companies will continue on the other side of the river, leaving about two hundred soldiers near the works on the Homestead side. In speaking of the situation Gen. Wiley said to-day: "The Sixteenth will be kept here as long as it is thought necessary."

FAVA AND PORTER.

Contradiction of Reports Concerning the Ambassadors.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 19.—Regarding a rumor telegraphed from Rome, that Baron Fava, Italian Minister to the United States, had again been recalled from Washington, Secretary of State Foster said last night he had heard nothing of it nor of any such action on the part of the Italian government. It is likely the rumor was started because of the departure from Rome of United States Minister Porter.

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding Mr. Porter's status. He is reported in New York as saying that he had resigned, the resignation taking effect last Thursday. Just before starting for Loon Lake Secretary Foster said the State Department had no information that the Minister intended to resign.

Hugh Ross's Forfeited Bail.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 19.—Charles S. Schmitt of Homestead is the bondsman for Hugh Ross, who must pay $300 for the Homestead striker's failure to appear in court Saturday to make answer to the information for the surety of the peace made against him by Adam Ackerman. It was the second time the case had been on the list.

NO SIGNS OF CHOLERA

New York Officially Declared to Be Free from the Dread Disease.

NO DEATHS REPORTED FOR SIX DAYS

Not Even a Suspected Case, Now that the Nature of the Conerty Girl's Ailment is Known—A Death From the Plague in New Jersey—No Trouble Expected from Fire Islanders—The American Consul and Customs Inspector at Colon Rebuked—No Quarantine at Charleston.

NEW YORK, Sep. 19.—The city is free from cholera. No deaths resulting from that disease have occurred since September 13, and there are no suspected cases in the metropolis at the present time.

"With no deaths for six days and no suspected cases reported," said Secretary Emmons Clark of the Health Board this morning, "we feel justified in stating that cholera has been stamped out of the city."

The official report in the case of Peter Callahan disposes of the last deaths supposed to have resulted from cholera. Callahan was attended by Dr. John R. Gillespie of No. 319 East 55th street, who gave the cause of the man's death as "diarrhœa and exhaustion." The Board of Health having officially sustained this report, no room for doubt is left in this case.

Several branches of business are suffering more or less on account of the disease. Fruit and vegetable merchants are not doing more than one third of the business usual at this season of the year. The retail dry goods stores and other branches of shopping are missing many of their out-of town customers.

The rumor that the Health Board doctors had made a great mistake in diagnosing the case of Mary Conerty, the Reception Hospital patient, and that the young woman was enciente and that Asiatic cholera had nothing to do with her case, created considerable amusement among the medical profession.

The 25 new doctors added to Dr. Morris's observation squad, bringing the number up to 75, are now at work.

With the making of each infected house a special police patrol beat is the precinct in which it is located, a number of policemen are relieved of this duty, and the ordinary work of tenement inspection and cleaning which they direct can go on.

The Board of Health has instructed the sanitary superintendent to rigidly enforce the section of the Sanitary Code which provides that no bundles or baskets of soiled linen shall be carried on street cars.

The report of vital statistics for the past week shows that there had been 758 deaths, a death rate of 21.48 per 1,000. Of the deaths four were from cholera and ninety-eight from diarrhœal diseases. The number of deaths during the previous week was 731, a death rate of 20.73 per 1,000.

The concensus of opinion from the Health authorities yesterday was that the health of the city was first class. While the danger of cholera is not yet over, they expect no epidemic. They do expect sporadic cases, but these can be readily attended to.

Even the cholera cannot materially lessen the number of people who flock to these shores. During the past week there were landed in this port 4,953 cabin and 3,621 steerage passengers. Usually the number of steerage passengers is four times in excess of the cabin passengers.

Three weeks ago the Moravia, the first cholera ship, arrived in port, and although six other steamers have brought the dread disease as far as the lower bay, and nearly one hundred vessels have come in with passengers who have passed through countries in which the plague has gained a foothold, at no time since the first arrival has the outlook been so bright as at present.

The experience of the past fortnight will undoubtedly go far to allay the general alarm that is felt at the approach of Asiatic cholera, and to show that science has at last triumphed over what has been the terror of nations for years.

As all ships containing steerage from Hamburg are in port, and all steamship lines have agreed to bring no more steerage until the cholera ceases to be epidemic in Europe, Dr. Jenkins declares that the worst is not only over, but that he does not look for any more cholera ships.

Only one new case has been reported during the past twelve hours. This was on the Bohemia.

The passengers now being detained at the different quarantine camps are becoming restless to get away. They greatly annoy, and in many instances abuse, the Health Officers during their visits, pleading or demanding to know how much longer they are to be detained.

—Managers Reed and Keller could not resist taking the Crescent ball team to Somerville Saturday to "get hunk" with the West Ends. Now that that desire has been satisfied, they should follow THE PRESS'S advice and drop Mr. Mack and his players.

—Contrary to false reports, Mrs. Jenkins announces to-day that she has not sold out her business of moving buildings. She still continues to fill all contracts, having full facilities for moving any structure any distance. Her son, Harry, is associated with her in the work.

—Ex-councilman Andrew Love, of 44 Duer street, lost a valuable sorrel horse this morning. Yesterday afternoon the animal got out of the stall and helped itself to an open bag of oats. Mr. Love and a veterinary surgeon worked all night trying to save the life of the animal.

—At the convocation of clergymen of the Diocese of New Jersey, to be held in the Church of the Holy Cross to-morrow at 11 a. m., the Bishop of the Diocese will be present, and the Rev. E. P. Miller of Perth Amboy will preach. The afternoon lesson will begin at 3, and the service in the evening at 7:30.

—Edsall announces to-day that he will make and line carpets free of charge, and he has a splendid assortment of beautiful styles to select from. He also advertises a special list of seasonable articles at "cut" prices which he says he will guarantee to be far better bargains than are usually advertised as such.

—The common council will meet in special meeting to-morrow evening to examine the Assessor's tax duplicate for the current year. Also to consider and act upon the matter of the sale of Engine house No. 2 and the purchase of a suitable lot for an engine house or other building for the fire department.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Lillian Yorks, of Stanton, is visiting Miss Lizzie Hoffman of West Front street.

Mrs. J. T. Case lies seriously ill with spinal complaint and nervous prostration, at her residence, 11 Vine street.

The Hon. James E. Martine addressed a very enthusiastic Democratic mass meeting at Frankfort, Somerset county, Saturday evening.

Capt. Doane, of LaGrande avenue, and Dr. D. C. Adams, of Grove street, left this morning for a hunting trip in the Adirondack mountains, New York State.

F. X. Schoonmaker, of Putnam avenue, addressed Republican mass meetings at Jamestown, Alfred Centre, Bath and Owego, in the State of New York, last week, after the close of the campaign in Maine. He will make six speeches this week in Connecticut, beginning this evening at Ansonia.

Edgar F. Randolph, father-in-law of J. W. VanSickel, whose death was announced in these columns Saturday, was an earnest member of the Trinity Reformed church, and as a valiant Christian was fully prepared for the great change. He was anxious to be released from suffering and join his beloved wife, who went before him about a year ago. Funeral services will be held from the Trinity Reformed church to-morrow afternoon at 2:30.

SOMERVILLE SHUT OUT.

NINE RUNS FOR PLAINFIELD AND TWO FOR NEW YORK.

The Crescent Team Knocks Sharrott Out of the Box and Thrashes the West Ends Unmercifully in One Inning, the Longest on Record.

There were two equine events last Saturday in Somerville. In the morning the fair people finished the races of the day before, and in the afternoon, at West End Park, captain Hofford pitted his stable of colts against the spavined nags of West End fame before about 400 people, with a result that no one expected. At the same time manager Mack gave a stereoscopic exhibit of the hard luck that sometimes besets the West Enders.

The same teams that met the Saturday before, met again, with Somerville supposed to be stronger as Sharrott, the "Wonder", was down on the slate to pitch and Fields to catch him. Why that statement in itself was sufficient to take the heart out of almost any semi-professional player arrayed against him. Sharrott's ability was also very much overestimated by manager Mack, as putting him in the box won the game for the Crescents without half trying. Eight runs in one inning on two bases on balls, five safe hits, and a couple of errors by the old leaguers is demoralizing enough, and gives a lead which is, as Geo. Gore says, "difficult to reduce".

The first two innings were enough for Sharrott, and surely enough for Mr. Mack, as with the beginning of the third Anderson was put in to pitch, Sharrott placed at short and Murray retired to quarantine. But the harm was done! The game was lost and all "Pete" could do was to smile quietly, keep the base hits down, and sandwich in a strike-out now and then.

The Somerville people are up in arms over the way the game was played. They say with Kennedy and Anderson as the battery the game would have been won and the pennant brought to Somerville, and they are greatly exercised over putting Fields (who was in no condition to play as shown by the score) and Sharrott in the points. Some people even say that the game was sold out in order to play off the tie and make big money. Anyone who saw the game, and understands it, can dispute this as the Crescents won by hard smashing of the ball, lively base running, and great team play. It may have been hard luck with the West Ends, but it seemed more like hard muffing and hard hitting by the other fellows, that threw Somerville into the dust of the West End Park. The latter labored hard, perspired profusely, grunted and groaned for eight long innings, yet it availed nothing. Two runs in the first inning, and after that eight big round goose eggs.

After the Plainfield kids got really into the game, West End base hits were scarcer than peaches in January. As for "Chic" Hofford and his nimble band of ball-tossers, it was a picnic, leaving out the cold chicken, pound cake, pink lemonade, a few shade trees, nine or ten gallused girls, and some red ants to run up their trousers' legs. The little fellow never enjoyed a day more in his life, and he beamed upon the scattering few from Plainfield with a refulgence of countenance which led many to mistake it for a mixture of sunburn and sarsaparilla. There was reason for "Chic" to be in a good humor, after all the talk of the week that the Crescents were outclassed by men like Gore, Sharrott and Fields; and "Chic" won some money, too!

If there is a man on the Crescent team who is not the "lion of the hour" after the game they put up Saturday, there's no such thing as gratitude in Plainfield, that's all! The West Ends, (champions by name only), on the other hand, went all to pieces after making two runs to the good. Their fielding at times was brilliant and then fell wide apart. Their batting was light and untimely. Their battery work in the first part of the game was poor and they did no base running to speak of. They need a "brace" badly and quickly.

A smooth-faced, lanky-built fellow with a swing like the driving-rod of a blue line flier, occupied the whitewashed square for the Crescents. His name is Sneden and his arm is a terror. Mr. Sneden made the "reorganized" West Ends wonder whether they were still able to see the ball as it came across the plate or not. He did n't do anything but chew tolu, lead with his right, flash his cherry-colored countenance toward the batter and chuckle at the sad distress of the hired gang. "Pete" Anderson pitched a good game too, after the manager put him in, and it was not his fault that the West Ends did n't win. The Crescents could do nothing with his speedy ball. A little bit of batting through the game and a little more "hustle" infused into some of his backers, would have helped him win a victory. It was wise Anderson was put in Sharrott's place, or with the same ratio the score would have stood 64 to 2 at the end of the ninth.

The base runners of the West End crowd did not run bases except when they should not have run them. Take, for instance, in the fourth inning, with the Crescents six runs ahead, Cadmus reached first on balls with no one out. He started to steal after Anderson and Carby had been retired and with Sharrott at the bat. Of course he was thrown out by a mile. Kennedy did the same thing in the eighth, at which the old leaguer in right swore vigorously.

Fields was advertised to catch and he did so for six innings, during which time he showed up lame in both arms and back, to say nothing of his forgetfulness and apparent short-sightedness of the optic nerve. Twice he threw the ball thirty feet to the side of the base he was aiming at, and once, when Sneden came home and did not touch the plate, Fields did not think it worth while to put the ball on him. Sneden walked back and stepped on the rubber with "Jocko" three feet from him. The run scored. It was the ninth and last in the game.

After that Fields was sent to the dressing quarters to put on his every day garments, and Kennedy was enticed into the game. How "Doc" grinned. He, the old "back number", called upon at last to fill the great and only Fields's place. As "Doc" buckled on the "protector" a look of calm contentment spread over his face, which grew until it reached way round to the back of his neck. As he walked towards the backstop a round of applause greeted him, and "Doc's" head swelled two inches in a moment. He now wears the cap with the rip in the rear. It's larger than the other ten and fits him better.

What queered the whole business for the West Enders was that the Crescent men after the first inning used the West End water keg. Manager Mack put the usual amount of elixer into the home pail, but did not suppose this would brace up the other fellows, but it did! Next week each gang must take their own medicine.

"Talkative Count Leidy" won the game for the Crescents, and afterwards George was the happiest man in two hemispheres. Leidy can make more noise trying to coach a runner around the bases than a New Jersey farmer uses in ploughing a stumpy meadow. Yet scientists who have made a study of "Count's" coaching during the past two seasons all unite in declaring that he confines all his noise to nineteen words, and never breaks through the limit. The words are: "Good—eye—get—up—way—up—whoa—never—mind—that—it—only—takes—one—to—hit—it—Oh—ha!" Yet by keeping these nineteen words in constant circulation he manages to carry the impressions to ignorant outsiders that there is a conflict going on inside the grounds between a body of Pinkertons and an amalgamated association of some kind. All this fine work Leidy got in during the agonizing period when the eight runs came in.

Now a few brief sentences as to how the Crescents won. The West Ends got the first out from the watermelon in their half of the first. After Carby fouled out Sharrott hit safely and stole second. Harkins sacrificed and Sharrott raced on to third. He came home a moment later when Gore smashed the ball into right for a bag. Gore stole second and crossed the rubber on Bonners's "shirk" of Fields's hot grounder. That is all of the West Ends' scoring.

Brady was the first man to face Sharrott the mighty in the second. He was presented with a four-ball pize. Then Murray started the ball rolling by making a bad throw of Bonner's easy grounder. After this Sharrott's ball came up to the Crescents as big as a balloon. They hit it where and when they liked. Jones hit for two bases, scoring Brady and Bonner. Sneden reached first on Farrell's muff. Jones tried to get home, but was caught at the plate. Hofford's force hit scored Sneden by an inch. "Gentle Willie" added to the general break-up by hitting safely, bringing in Hofford. Turner struck out. "Gentle Willie" stole both second and third, and came in when Fields threw badly. Daley got to first on balls. "Count" Leidy got right into the game and hit safely. Daley scored on Murray's error. Leidy kept going all the time, and stopped on second. Brady came up for the second time and hit for a bag, scoring Leidy. Bonner hit for two bags, and the natty little second baseman of the Crescents came in with his second run in the same inning. Jones went out, Cadmus to Harkins. The smoke cleared away, and the figure eight went up on the board down by third. What few of the Plainfielders there were present made things howl, but it was rather faint and weak. At this point manager Mack discovered his mistake, and put the human cyclone in the box. One more run was scored by Plainfield, in the fifth, after Farrell had missed the chance of retiring the side. From this time on, Somerville tried hard to reduce the lead, but the boys did n't get much chance to cavort around the bases. Ryman got to first in the second on Turner's error. He started for second, but Cadmus propped up one to Brady, and doubled him. So it went. Somerville had twelve men left on bases during the next seven innings, but never a one reached the Mecca of their hopes. After the Crescents made the eight runs they played ball as they never have played before, nothing was impossible for them. Leidy in center field had six put outs; three of them would have been safe hits with anyone else in center. "Chic" Hofford kept Sneden in a steady mood, and made the lanky twirler do himself proud. In the West Ends' final, things looked bad for a few moments. Ryman, the first man up, flew out to Leidy. Cadmus was given four bad balls, and the rumblings of an approaching storm of cheers began. Anderson went out to Hofford. With two men out, the cheering broke out when Carby also walked to first, advancing Cadmus to second. Sneden was plainly on his tiptoes, notwithstanding Hofford's efforts to keep him cool. Sharrott, who followed Carbonell, was a good waiter, and "Chic" knew it. He told Sneden to put it over, but as there was no red light on the plate Sneden could not do it, and Sharrott also went down to the first corner, filling the bases without the ball being hit. Harkins was next, and all depended on him. The West End crowd awoke from their lethargy, and howled dismally at Sneden, and at Harkins, telling the latter to hit it hard. "Now, John, put it out of the lot! You can do it now just as well as last year!" Harkins was not prepared for the first ball Sneden shot over the plate, and Sullivan bawled "one strike". The next one Harkins struck at viciously, but missed. It was now do or die. Sneden had John in a hole, and he knew it. He put the ball just where he could have killed it had he struck at it. In that one brief instant Harkins lost his head. Sullivan said "striker out", "Chic" tossed the ball into the air in great joy, and the agony was over. Then the bats were put away, and Plainfield was informed by wire that the Crescents had struck pay dirt. The score:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Brady made a clean two-base hit in the ninth inning but was caught at third while attempting too much.

McDonald, of Troy, was put in "Gentle Willie's" place and played his little game to the tune of two put-outs.

Carbonell was struck out and he never lifted his little bat from his little shoulder. "Lucky Carb" is getting to be a misnomer.

Sharrott at short made some pretty stops and throws and in one instance almost redeemed himself with the crowd by nabbing at full speed Fields's poor throw to second.

The only real kick in the game was when Sneden was accused of running out of the base line. Some of the batters grunted considerably over the deal they got on balls and strikes, but the Somerville fellows would kick if they did n't have legs.

Less than 100 people from this city went to Somerville Saturday to see the game there. No one expected the Crescents could win against the National league players, and they followed the advice of THE PRESS and remained at home. In consequence there were many in the city who regretted that they did not see Sharrott thrashed.

Things are now decidedly interesting. This week will tell who are the pennant winners unless Mack backs out as usual, or Plainfield refuses to play the National leaguers. But Saturday proved who are entitled to the pennant. Crescents play ball next Saturday as you did last and Charlie Lyman will give each of you a clear title to a corner lot on Netherwood Heights!

"Gentle Willie" went out of the game at the end of the second inning on account of straining—as he said—a tendon in his leg. The game was delayed fifteen minutes to see if he could not get into condition; but Willie was satisfied to leave, he had made a good record and had done his share towards winning and he did not want to strain his back over Anderson's puzzling inshoots.

PLAINFIELD TOURISTS IN JAPAN.

How the Murrays Enjoyed Their Visit to the Great Sacred Mountain.

The following letter, with enclosure, was received by THE PRESS Saturday afternoon, a few hours before the return home of its author and his party. Though delayed, it is none the less interesting:

KYOTO, Japan, Aug. 23, 1892.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—You may be interested in the enclosed clipping from the Kobe Herald of Aug. 13, 1892, inasmuch as a Plainfielder was one of the party who made the ascent described therein. A few notes will make the account more intelligible to those who do not know Fuji. This is the great sacred mountain of Japan, and is visited yearly by thousands of pilgrims, who hope in this way to prolong their lives. The mountain is an extinct volcano and is 12,365 feet high, a perfect cove of ashes. The distance we traveled was about 180 miles, of which 142 were by rail, 20 on horseback and 18 on foot, the last being to the summit and back.

I might add that one yen is about 70 cents of our money, and that our horses cost us one yen for the twenty miles, including a man to lead the way. We also had coolies to carry our clothing and provisions from Gotemba to the summit and back, thirty-eight miles, occupying nineteen hours, for 50 sen (or 38 cents) each.

Yours sincerely,
WM. D. MURRAY.

(From the Kobe Herald, Aug. 13.)

A TRIP UP FUJI.

BY AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.

This is no account of a record-breaking rush to the top, and back, but just the tale of an easy ascent from Gotemba, the account of a trip any man in moderate health, and not in special training, can do. A party of five of us left Shimbashi station, Tokyo, by the 9:50 p. m. train, and were scheduled to arrive at Gotemba at 1:24 a. m. After vain attempts to sleep in the train on the writer's part, we were duly landed on a misty morning at Gotemba, where the police examine your passports pretty closely. Leaving the station and going to the hotel very near, we had breakfast, and by the time that was finished, and the horses had come, it was a quarter to three. You get pretty fair saddles and horses for the first part of the journey; the charge is, to Tarabo, the station just above Umagaeshi, 50 sen, or if they wait to bring you back, one yen. The ride to Tarabo, from the Gotemba station, is through a vast plain, with a slight rise towards Fuji, and it takes, in the early morning, about two hours. Here we alighted from our horses, and having purchased sticks for 6½ sen each, we commenced our climb. We had made up our minds not to stop between stations, but to take a short rest at each one. We found this an excellent plan, as it makes a goal to aim at, and keeps one from stopping each time when overtaken with a strong wish to sit down. Another good thing is not to drink a drop of anything until the top is reached, barring the once when a stop is made for food at the fourth station. I say the fourth station with all due deference to Murray's Guide, because I think not much ought to be eaten at a higher altitude than it. Once the top is reached then those who wish to eat and drink may do so to their heart's desire, but I strongly advise nothing between the fourth station and the top. We reached the so called top at 1 p. m., and drank freely of the Golden Well. The day was a beautiful one, quite nice and warm on the top. On previous ascents I have simply rushed down again from the top to a lower height in order to get warm, but on this occasion with no more clothing on than when at the bottom two hours were spent on the top with enjoyment. We climbed the highest point, about quarter of a mile to the left of the hut, and said to be six hundred feet higher. Here we had a splendid view; right away to the north could be seen the sea, said to be near Niigata, and seventy ri in distance; under our feet was the mighty Tenrugawa, dwarfed into the semblance of a mountain brook; a little further off, but yet marvellously near, was Okitsu, and further to the right was the plain of Nagoya. In the distance could be seen many mighty peaks, and a river said to be in Shinshu. Truly to realize the height of Fuji one must stand on its highest point and see how it minimizes distances. And what a sight is the crater itself, a vast hole large enough to be the grave of a generation of people of this land. Looking from the base of the mountain who can imagine that sores and ulcers existing upon the fair Fuji's brow, are hid by the distance, what vast chasms, and precipices there are; my! but it is a gruesome sight. We did not go down into the crater as from what our guide said it would have taken about an hour or so, and as we wished to get back to Tokyo that night we did not like to risk it. There was a good deal of snow in the crater, and whole fields of it on the sides of the mountain between the eighth and top stations. Leaving the top at 2:45 p. m. we were down at Tarabo by 5:30, and that without hurrying, and in Gotemba by seven. We caught the 8:25 p. m. train, and were in Tokyo by mid night.

It would be a very easy thing to go up to the top of Fuji and back from Tokyo in the 24 hours.

One can well admire your late townsman's feat, who went from Gotemba to the top and back in something like 9½ hours.

A good meal for the fourth station is oyril, tinned meat and bread, finished off with tinned pears, and the coffee and milk put up by Gail Borden.

I had a pair of boots specially built for the trip, and liked them very much, because every pound extra carried to the top means something like five foot tons. The boots were simply thin soles attached to strong unlined canvas, which fitted the foot like a Japanese tabi, and effectually kept the ashes out, whilst allowing the ankle to be perfectly free. They were laced up from the toes like a running shoe, and though I have tried waraji and all other kind of foot gear, I think I have had nothing better.

UNDER THE LION'S PAW.

Successful First-Night Production of the New Play, at Music Hall.

George Peck's new melodramatic spectacle "Under The Lion's Paw" was given its first production on any stage at Music Hall last Saturday night. The play achieved an instant and emphatic success, and, aside from a few minor details, moved as smoothly as if the company had been playing it for weeks. The plot is a powerful one, well developed, and presents many new things in stage-craft. The climaxes at the end of each act are particularly strong. Even without the added features, "Under The Lion's Paw" would be a success. The company is one of the most evenly balanced ever seen here, and all have opportunities that they quickly took advantage of. The dressing of the piece was very rich.

In point of scenic effects the production was a revelation. The curtain rose on the first act showing a moonlight view of the beach at Long Branch looking from the West End Hotel up to the Iron Pier. While the orchestra is playing for the ball in the hotel, the roar of the surf can be heard, and the moon can be seen slowly rising apparently from the water, making a beautiful picture. The setting showing the interior of the circus winter quarters is also a beautiful as well as novel one, but the greatest praise must be bestowed on the setting for the third act of the play. The first scene showed the exterior of the circus grounds, and when that was drawn up it disclosed the most magnificent stage setting ever seen in this city. No "tent" drama, not excepting the New York productions, has shown any such setting. There stood, covering the stage from wall to wall, a monster genuine tent, and in the centre of the stage was the massive circular steel cage used for the performance of the lions. All around the sides of the tent stood bright red circus animal wagons, and through an opening in the back could be seen the interior of the big tent with the ring set ready for the circus performance.

Col. Daniel Boone looked a picture as he stepped into the cage among his savage pets. Standing six feet two inches in height, clad in the dress of a Roman gladiator, he looked every inch the hero he is. It was a strange sight to see those great shaggy brutes obey his slightest word. They would play see-saw, jump rope, fire pistols, and ride bicycles, and then when he sat down among them the lioness came and laid her head on his knee while he gave the others small pieces of meat. Their behavior was far different from what it was when they were fed in the morning. The power this man has over these ferocious beasts is remarkable.

After two weeks of one-night stands, the production will be seen in Philadelphia, and following that in all the large cities. Negotiations are now in progress for a run in New York. "Under the Lion's Paw" is a success and a big one.

PENNANT BASE-BALL.

Mack Trying to Back Out—There Should Be Three or None.

Whether or not Plainfield and Somerville will play any more games this season remains a problem. Last Saturday after the game managers Mack and Reed agreed on a series of three games for the pennant championship. They were to be played Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Now Mack is trying to back out, and says he will play only one game, and that next Saturday. To this the Crescents very properly agree. There should be three games, for the best two out of three, or none at all. The truth is, Mack is afraid of his pitchers in a series of three games. He thinks he is sure of the first game, but is shaky about the others.

John Kean's Duck Ponds.

(Westfield Standard.)

The duck ponds which the Union Water company has left in Westfield's streets are but the beginning of the afflictions to which our people will be subjected by the presence of the monopolists who pay nothing in return, but expect to reap rich dividends through selling water to our citizens. Millionaire John Kean, jr., is at the head of the water corporation.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

THE CENSOR ON DECK AGAIN.

He Calls Attention to Misplaced Charity, and Tells a Little Story With a Temperance Moral.

Did you ever observe the charitably inclined passengers placing their newspapers with a smile of benediction in the spacious receptacles labeled "For the Sick in Hospitals", down at the Jersey City station? And did you ever wait long enough to see the ferrymen and station hands and train employes casually reach into that box and, removing such papers as they prefer, wander away in blissful disregard of charity and the invalids? The neat manner in which the thing is done cannot fail to amuse you if your paper is not in the box.

* * * * * *

A young man who lives up near me strolled over to smoke a pipe the other evening and tell me a little story. He said he would n't have it made public for three worlds like this one of ours and so I will refrain from calling him by name. Let it be enough that he lives peaceably with his parents, keeps his end up in the right set and brushes his hair in the most fetching style I have ever encountered.

It seems that he was knocking about New York one night not long ago when he ran across a well-known local clubman and paterfamilias who had been "detained in the city by press of business", as he had said in the telegram to his wife. He was pretty well shot, the old gentleman, if I may be allowed the colloquialism, and the young man tried to avoid him, but it was no go. The old man was in a congenial frame of mind and meant that the young one should enjoy the evening with him. Resistance being out of the question, and evasion impossible my friend undertook to make the best of it.

Arm in arm they sailed down Fifth avenue to Madison square, the father of his family walking steady enough, to be sure, but his eyes and tongue wandering hopelessly. The gaudy stained-glass portals of the Hoffman cafe blazed upon his dizzy sight and he invited his companion to "come in and have one". The young man had seen the old fellow at the Country club and knew that "one" implied at least five, and that five more meant a jag such as would never have been permitted to emanate from the club-house at home, and he drew hasty comparisons with what he had seen and heard on Seventh street and essayed to prevent a visit to the Hoffman. But it was useless and in they went, and sat down in the famous gilded cafe.

Whether it was the influence of the liquids the waiter brought, or the seductions of the cheering expositions of pictorial art with which Ed. Stokes has seen fit to embellish his barroom that chiefly enlivened the old man is a matter of question, but he nevertheless fell into an extremely talkative mood and entertained my young friend somewhat as follows:

"Have shome more? No? Oh, come on, come on—fill 'er up, fill 'er up. That right! I like to shee er young man 'njoyin' himsel', I do. But whas I wash goin' shay wash zis, wash zis—" Here he paused to pour out several more fingers and then, leaning impressively over the table, continued, huskily:

"Young man, I wash goin' shay 'at I like you—I like your shtyle—you 're shtartin' out right, you are. Now, I'm pretty well fixed out there at Plainfiel'—wife and couple daughters—you know m' daughters, doncher? Yesh, course you do—well, I wan' chew to come roun' to see 'em—oldes' one jus' abou' chure size, eh? Nice, sens'ble girl, and I like you, I do; you 're all right—she's stuck on you, too, d'you know that?"

The young man was paralyzed. He implied his ignorance of the young lady's feelings by a nod and held his peace, for the men at the adjoining tables were becoming immensely interested and he was uncomfortable.

"Well, itsh sho", went on his entertainer, "itsh sho. You come roun' and shee 'er, and it'll be all right. I'm wizh you, y'know, I'm wizh you ev'ry time. How would you like to combine wizh m' fam'ly, anyhow, eh?"

The young man rose to go, but the old fellow headed him off and, leading him up to the bar, introduced him to the bartenders and to the assembled crowd.

'Gen'lemen", said he, "lemme intr'duce to you m' fucher shon-'n-law! What'll y' all take?"

But here the young man at last drew the line and, assisted by a few of the bystanders, succeeded in getting the old gentleman out on Broadway, and into a cab for Liberty street. The rest of the narrative is not a subject for local historians.

The young man says he would not go near that house now for ten thousand dollars cash down, but I would not like to offer it to him. If any respected father were to give me such a straight tip as he had I'm afraid my rusty old heart would break a rib with its violent beating. Perhaps the young man is right, though, and maybe he wants to be as sure of the steadiness of a father-in-law as of the constancy of a girl, and I do n't much blame him for feeling doubtful in this case.

But I am truly sorry for the girl.

THE CENSOR.

Beware of cheap imitations, at "cut prices," offered by unauthorized dealers as Doctor Pierce's genuine medicines.

To prevent fraud and imposition, the genuine guaranteed medicines are sold only through regularly authorized agents, and at the following long-established prices:

Golden Medical Discovery (for Liver, Blood and Lung Diseases), ... $1.00
Favorite Prescription (for woman's weaknesses and ailments), ... $1.00
Pleasant Pellets (for the liver), ... 25c.

But at these prices, which must be paid for the genuine, Dr. Pierce's medicines are not only the best, but they're the cheapest, for they're guaranteed in every case to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded.

The manufacturers take all the risk by selling them on trial! It's an insult to your intelligence for any dealer to attempt to substitute other medicines for these, by recommending them to be "just as good," only that he may make a larger profit.

MEMORIAL TO JOE ENGLISH.

His Death an Irreparable Loss to Plainfield's Reform Club.

The Plainfield Reform club at its memorial service held at Reform Hall yesterday, in grateful recollection of his work as one of its chief organizers, and most steadfast friends, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That an allwise and overruling Providence having removed from our midst our esteemed friend and co-worker in this great cause of moral reform—Jos. English.

Resolved, That in the death of Jos. English this club and the community at large sustains an irreparable loss and the temperance cause one of its ablest and most sincere advocates.

Resolved, That Jos. English, an Irish lad of humble parentage, was one of the few endowed by God with the gifts to reach the hearts of men. His tact, his kindly disposition, his large heart, overflowing with wit and humor, characteristic of his race, developed in him the wholesouled philanthropist and Christian gentleman; and thousands of men, women and children will live in grateful remembrance of his noble work, which creates happy homes, where desolation had been wrought through intemperance.

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved family of the deceased our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of great affliction; also be it

MRS. PINKHAM'S PROVERBIAL PHILOSOPHY

A woman best understands a woman's ills.

At the age of fifty, Mrs. Pinkham publicly commenced her great work of helping such women as could not help themselves. Having devoted her life to the study of female complaints she discovered that a large proportion of the diseases of women have a common origin and may have a common cure. That cure she created, and named Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how honest was her purpose and trustworthy her judgment is plainly indicated by thousands of such thankful letters as this:

DEAR MADAM.— . . . Would that I could induce all suffering women to give your Compound a fair trial. I must say to you that it is an invaluable medicine. It has been very beneficial to myself and daughter.—MRS. S. BLAIR, Roanoke City, Va.

Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozen. An illustrated book, entitled "Guide to Health and Etiquette," by Lydia E. Pinkham, is of great value to ladies. We will present a copy to anyone addressing us with two 2-cent stamps. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., Lynn, Mass.

DEMOCRACY FORCING THE FIGHT BOTH EAST AND WEST.

Cleveland and Stevenson Clearly Have the Best of It—Republicans Afraid of Losing Their Western Strongholds—The South Still Solid—News of the Campaign.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—These are busy days at the Democratic national headquarters, 139 Fifth avenue. Chairman Harrity and the other officials of the organization are at their desks early and late, and the members of the campaign committee manage to devote more than one-half of their time to the work in hand. The organization is now complete. All the preliminaries have been attended to and the machine is in perfect running order, ready to perform the serious work of the campaign smoothly and effectively. An enormous mail from all parts of the country comes in every day, and scores of visitors from many states are daily seen in the rooms of the committee in consultation with the managers. The reports which reach the committee as to the outlook in the doubtful states are of the most encouraging nature.

Every one familiar with the history of national campaigns and the work of the headquarters in this city has remarked the air of confidence which pervades at 139 Fifth avenue. The men there who know most about what is going on are pretty sure that Cleveland will be elected. They believe he will carry New York by a large majority, and that he will be elected with or without New York. Every one has noticed, too, the vast difference between this and former campaigns. Heretofore the battle has been largely confined to three or four states. As a rule New York, Indiana and Connecticut have been the scene of the great struggle. This year there are but two or three sure Republican states and a score of doubtful ones. Even at the Republican headquarters, about a mile farther up Fifth avenue, they do not claim to have a sure thing in more than half a dozen of the northern states—a surprising change from four years ago, when Harrison had to carry only New York and the safe Republican states to give him the victory. Now the Republicans think they are sure of Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Oregon and Washington, and the Democrats are disposed to concede them this much. But that is all. About all the remaining electoral votes in the north more or less doubts exist, except as to New Jersey, which is conceded to Cleveland and Stevenson.

Instead of assured assets in the shape of nearly one-half the electoral college from reliably Republican northern and northwestern states, the Harrison managers find that they must fight in a score of commonwealths for that which they have had heretofore for the asking. New York, Indiana and Connecticut are always somewhat doubtful, but the Democrats already perceive that this year the odds are with them, and that they are pretty sure of all three. In addition to their struggle for these three doubtful states the Republicans are discouraged to discover that they must work hard if they hope to retain New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska, with Colorado, Nevada and California also showing signs of drifting away from their Republican moorings. It is easy to see that in a situation of this sort the Republicans have a dozen points of danger to the Democrats' one, and that the odds therefore are all in favor of Cleveland and Stevenson.

The managers of the Republican campaign, realizing the great danger there is of their suffering extensive losses in the west and northwest, have made almost frantic efforts to convince the country that they are sure of making gains in the south. They have talked of carrying North Carolina, Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee and other states for Harrison. During the last week or ten days a large number of prominent citizens of the south have been in New York, and when asked as to the outlook in their section they have invariably replied that every southern state is safe for the Democratic ticket. In those states where the third party movement is giving trouble the chief contention is as to local offices and members of congress.

In no state is the electoral ticket nominated by the Democrats in danger of defeat. If anything were needed to bring out the reserve strength of the Democratic party in the south and to insure large majorities for Cleveland and Stevenson it is at hand in the shape of the force bill, with which the Republican party menaces the south. The people of that section fear that if the Republicans gain possession of all branches of the government they will redeem the promises made in their state and national platforms and enact some such law as that which was proposed in the last congress and defeated only by a narrow margin and by most skillful parliamentary tactics.

All the prominent southern Democrats who have been recently in New York give it as their conviction that the force bill issue will make absolutely certain every southern electoral vote. Among the Democrats who have expressed this opinion are Senators Ransom of North Carolina, Hunton of Virginia, Gray of Delaware and Gibson of Louisiana. Senator Gray said there was a strong reserve force in every state which the Democracy could command whenever any great danger threatened or vital principle was involved, and that such a danger was now presented and such a principle was involved in the issue whether the people of the south were to be permitted to carry on their government and control their elections or whether these functions were to be delegated to centralized executive power at Washington.

Senator Gibson said that whenever the people of his part of the south are appealed to in defense of good government they respond with a hearty voice, and that there was no danger whatever of Republican or third party success in Louisiana. Senator Faulkner reported that the force bill issue was nerving the Democracy of West Virginia to a supreme effort, and though one of President Harrison's cabinet ministers is notoriously endeavoring to carry that state for his chief by methods characteristic of his political career and of the party which he serves, West Virginia will assuredly roll up a larger majority than four or eight years ago for Cleveland.

Senator Hunton remarked that if the Republicans were seriously proposing to recoup themselves for expected western losses by southern gains they were simply deluding themselves and their followers. This is the general opinion in New York among men of both parties. It is here understood that the talk of carrying southern states indulged by Republican managers is mere bravado, designed to cover their efforts to save the day in the west, where their dominance has forever come to an end.

Chairman Harrity and his efficient corps of assistants appear to be going ahead with their campaign on the theory that Cleveland can be elected without New York, and that he can also be elected with New York and without any gains in the west. The meaning of this is that they are simply making a fight all along the line, chasing no rainbows and indulging in no loose talk as to what they are going to do, but improving every opportunity to win an electoral vote no matter where it is found. It would surprise no one who is carefully watching things here if there should be a landslide for Cleveland and Stevenson. But the Democratic managers are not counting on anything of the sort. They are perfecting organization, giving assistance and distributing documents in all parts of the country. They are preparing to contest every inch of the ground, and certainly are not making the mistake of indulging in overconfidence, no matter what may be the opinion of impartial observers as to the probable outcome of the campaign.

Establishment of campaign headquarters at Chicago for auxiliary work in the west does not mean by any means that the west is depended upon to elect Cleveland. While there are splendid chances of carrying Wisconsin, Illinois, a large part of Michigan and other western states, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire are not being neglected. The news from the west is of a most encouraging nature. In Wisconsin the Republicans concede that the Democrats have a good chance to win. In Illinois it seems to be pretty sure that the Democratic state ticket will be elected, and if it goes through by a good majority it will carry the national ticket through also. In Iowa and Minnesota the Democrats are so aggressive that the enemy is already much worried, and in Nebraska and Kansas there is a general expectation that the electoral votes will go to the candidates of the third party, thus inflicting upon the Republicans a fatal loss in a section of the country which has heretofore been one of their strongholds.

In New York state the outlook is full of promise. The state campaign committee, with Lieutenant Governor Sheehan at its head, has its headquarters open and is hard at work organizing the state. Its officers bear none but good news from their territory—the counties above Harlem river. Prominent Democrats of all affiliations are forgetting past differences and pulling together for the national ticket. Those who are best informed as to the situation throughout the state say there will be no dissensions anywhere and that an enormous Democratic vote will be polled. In New York city the regular Democratic organization—Tammany Hall—is already at work. It is enthusiastic and aggressive. It has started its campaign earlier than usual, and will work with its accustomed vigor for one of the greatest Democratic majorities ever rolled up in the metropolis.

From present indications the Cleveland vote in New York and Brooklyn is likely to be something tremendous. Thousands of business men, who care less about party than they do for good government, are for Cleveland. Hundreds of instances are known in which men who voted for Harrison in 1888 are now declaring their intention to vote for Cleveland. City Comptroller Myers, himself a German-American and a business man, in close touch all the time with the people of those two classes, said in an interview a few days ago that the business men were for Cleveland much stronger than they had ever been before, and that as to the German-Americans, they were to a man for the Democratic ticket. Mr. Myers, whose judgment every one respects, thinks Cleveland will carry New York by 30,000 majority.

Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, was a recent caller at the Democratic headquarters. He said the Democracy of his state were never more confident. "I have yet to hear of a man in Indiana who ever voted the Democratic ticket who will fail to vote for Cleveland next November," said the senator. "On the other hand, almost every hour we hear of Republicans who for one reason or another refuse to vote for Harrison." Senator Voorhees had spent a week or so in New York, and as to what he had seen and heard here he had this to say:

"When I came east I confess that I was troubled by fears about New York, but having passed several days in the state and noted the temper of the Democracy, I go home feeling well assured that the thirty-six electoral votes of New York will be cast for Cleveland and Stevenson.

"I was amazed the other night when I addressed a meeting at New Rochelle to see 3,000 voters before me. I had expected to see as many hundreds. They had a parade, fireworks, everything that betokens enthusiasm and earnestness. It was a meeting which would have done credit to a closing rally of the presidential campaign. From what I have seen and heard I have become convinced that New York will go Democratic by a large majority."

Congressman Covert, who has been out making speeches, was also surprised at the enthusiasm everywhere manifested for the Democratic ticket. Though the campaign has as yet hardly started up, he found the people pouring out by thousands—the best evidence in the world of Democratic harmony and enthusiasm.

In addition to the state committee, so ably directed by Lieutenant Governor Sheehan, two other organizations are preparing to render efficient aid in the state campaign. One of these is the German-American Cleveland union, which has opened headquarters and has hard at work a staff of clerks distributing literature. A few days ago the union published an address to German-American voters ringing with praise of the Democratic presidential candidate and indicating in a striking degree the enthusiasm of the Germans for the ex-president.

Remarkable activity is shown thus early in the fight by the Democratic campaign clubs. Notwithstanding the fact that there were more than 600 of these clubs in New York state in 1888 their number is being rapidly increased, and those in existence report large accessions to their membership. These clubs have their own campaign committee, which will direct them how to work in the manner best calculated to render efficient aid to the regular state committee. John Boyd Thatcher, president of the State League of clubs, says of the work of the league:

"Clubs are forming in every district, and a larger proportion of young men are joining this year than ever before. This is especially true of young students, who are most active in appreciating and advocating the tariff reform principles of the party. Constant applications are made for speakers and instructors on the question of the tariff. A workingmen's club consisting of several hundred members from Albany has made application for membership, and promises to do great work among the representatives of labor throughout the state.

"The purposes of the state league are twofold: 1. Following out the ideas of Thomas Jefferson in the formation of Democratic societies throughout the country, which should be so many schools of instruction in Democratic principles, and in holding the party close to the fundamental ideas of government taught by the fathers. 2. The organization is to supplement and assist the work of the state committee in canvassing the districts represented by them, and in a house to house canvass, reporting the names of those who propose to act with the party in the coming presidential election. This work does not necessarily duplicate the work of the state committee, but as it will cover much if not all of the same territory, it will serve to confirm the reports received at the state headquarters from day to day. It will be the special work of the committee to organize meetings and campaign clubs, and generally arouse enthusiasm, energy and activity throughout the state."

State Treasurer Danforth, who was a Hill delegate to the Chicago convention, has been elected president of one of these clubs. "I am willing to accept as correct what Platt, Fassett and other Republicans said at Minneapolis," remarked Mr. Danforth at the Hoffman House one day last week. "They said Harrison couldn't carry New York, and I agree with them. We shall carry the state for Cleveland and Stevenson."

A Hard Nut for McKinley to Crack.

Mike Doran, a car driver in Washington, who had been a diligent reader of McKinley's speeches and had been led astray by his heresies, has received new light on the tariff question. Mike's mother in old Ireland sent him twelve pairs of woolen socks, which were received at the custom house by Mike's cousin and brought to him with a receipt for three dollars. Thereupon Mike addressed the following letter to McKinley:

DEAR SIR—I read your speeches in the house of representatives during the Fifty-first congress when the tariff bill was under discussion, in which you asserted and made me believe that the foreigners paid our taxes. I also read your speech as presiding officer of the Republican national convention at Minneapolis, in which you asserted again that the foreigner paid our taxes. My mother sent me a dozen pairs of socks from Ireland a few days ago, each pair being worth about twenty cents. My cousin, who brought them to me, had to pay twenty-five cents a pair tariff duties on the socks at the New York custom house. Will you please be kind enough to tell me to what foreign government I shall apply to have that three dollars refunded to me? If the foreigner pays the tax, as you say he does, I am entitled to get my money back, but I do not know just exactly to what foreign government to apply, and I hope you will be kind enough to inform me by return mail. Yours truly,

MICHAEL DORAN.

ANOTHER McKINLEY MIRACLE.

How the McKinley Law Employed 2,000 Laborers Without Raising the Duty.

The following letter was sent to the New York Press by a manufacturer who came over to this country from London some years ago to reap a portion of the tariff spoils:

SIR—By the inclosed pamphlet you may learn something of the effect of the McKinley tariff law on the down quilt business. Three years ago down quilts were a luxury. Ninety-eight per cent. were manufactured in England for us. There are now in America six factories, creating employment for 2,000 people. The average price of a down quilt of the cheapest kind was twelve dollars. It is now six dollars. The average price of one of the finer grade was thirty dollars, and is now seventeen dollars. We take orders now for 1,000 quilts from concerns who two years ago gave orders for twenty. It should be added that the designs and colorings are more suitable for this country than the English ones. A. J. MCINTOSH.

Commenting upon this letter The Press said editorially:

"The McKinley tariff made the profitable manufacture of down quilts possible in the United States. Previous to its enactment down quilts were a luxury used only by people who had plenty of money. Ninety-eight per cent. of these goods were imported from England. Only one small factory for their manufacture existed in the United States. Today there are six American down quilt factories doing a prosperous business."

To get at the truth in this case a reporter took a copy of The Press to Mr. E. H. Merrill, who has charge of the down quilt business for the great wholesale house of Arnold, Constable & Co., New York. Although Mr. Merrill is a good Republican his indignation rose as he read McIntosh's letter, and when he had finished it he exclaimed with energy:

"It's a monstrous lie! The whole thing is rot! Well, I'm a good Republican, but I must say that our fellows can beat the Democrats lying this year." Mr. Merrill went on to say that McIntosh had called on Arnold, Constable & Co. to offer them some of his down quilts; "but," said Mr. Merrill, "we could not handle his stuff."

But if The Press had taken the trouble to examine the "Comparison of the Customs Law of 1883 with the New Law of 1890," "prepared under the direction of the committee of finance, United States senate," it would never have been led into indorsing McIntosh's silly lie.

That "comparison" gives manufacturers of down at 50 per cent. in both laws! Thus the McKinley law employs 2,000 laborers without the slightest change of duty!

Alas for the Republican editor who assumes that all blessings flow from the McKinley law, and who is too lazy to open his books!

THE BIG PARADE TO-DAY

Seventy Thousand Veterans in Line at Washington.

THE CONTEST FOR COMMANDER

Charles P. Lincoln of the Department of the Potomac in the Lead—Indianapolis Will Probably Secure the Next Encampment—To-day's Events.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 20.—Nothing finer than the grand parade of veterans has ever been seen in this city. It is now in progress and it is estimated that there are between 65,000 and 70,000 men in line. They are marching in double columns of twelve as arranged by Gen. Palmer, and it will take seven hours for the procession to pass a given point.

Gen. Palmer had to overrule the local committee in making this arrangement for marching and his action was unanimously approved by the Department Commanders.

Two carriages have been furnished each department for the crippled members who cannot march, so that they are not shut out of the parade.

Last night occurred the reception in the rotunda of the Capital authorized by Congress in honor of the visiting strangers.

The ladies' citizens committee, headed by Mrs. Gen. Logan, were the hostesses of the occasion. The other ladies assisting in the reception were: Mrs. John W. Foster, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Elkins, Mrs. Rusk and others.

A pleasant incident took place in the parlors of the Ebbitt House last evening, in the presentation of the beautiful Grand Army badge to Commander-in-Chief Palmer, by his aides, and one to his wife. The presentation speech was made by Chief Aide Hull Grant, who lauded and commended Gen. Palmer as a man and commander. The General made a fitting response for himself and Mrs. Palmer.

All day long yesterday the streets were alive with marching men, G. A. R. posts and their friends, on their way from railroad stations to quarters.

Despite all the exertions that the railroad companies made to handle the crowds promptly, the visitors were from two to twelve hours late in reaching the city, but as rapidly as possible the trains are rolling in to the city and unloading their human freight.

The passengers accepted the situation with the best possible grace, and what ever the measure of their discontent it was all dissipated upon arriving at the Capital, as they looked upon the generous and artistic manifestations of welcome, and found themselves surrounded with reminiscences of the war and in the society of those whose friendship was knit in the blood and smoke of battle.

Among the notable arrivals is that of the famous Sixth Massachusetts, the first to respond to President Lincoln's call for troops. Enroute to Washington, they were fired upon in Baltimore, April 19, and spilled the first blood after the assault upon Fort Sumpter. Several hundred men are present with the command, and as they marched up the avenue with their tattered flags at the head of the column, they were greeted with cheer upon cheer all along the route until their quarters were reached.

Distinguished visitors are abundant—ex-President Hayes, Maj.-Generals Howard, Miles and Brooks, and General B. F. Butler are prominent among them.

A pilgrimage to old Camp Stoneman, near Giesboro Point, nearly opposite Alexandria, will be made by the survivors of the First New York Volunteers (Ellsworth Zouaves), First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth United States Cavalry, who were encamped there during the stirring days in the Sixties.

The palm for decorations must be awarded to the Government Printing Office. The display of bunting which has broken out about that dingy structure, which shelters 2,600 employees of Uncle Sam, is something marvelous.

The first formal ceremony of the day was "Handshaking" among the crew on board the "Kearsarge" on Grand Army place.

Among the survivors of the crew of the Kearsarge present are Phillip Weeks, who was a maintop man, who during the historic fight, served on the 11-inch pivot gun; Charles Bowen, a foretop man; Frank Cook, captain of the afterguard and James McGee, surgeon.

J. C. Baker, a skilled workman at the Navy Yard, who superintended the construction of the ship as she stands, was also one of the crew.

The active struggle for the post of Commander-in-Chief of the National G. A. R. has begun. There are four candidates—H. H. Warfield of California; Charles P. Lincoln of the Department of the Potomac; A. G. Wissert of the Department of Wisconsin, and S. H. Hearst of the Department of Ohio. All but the first named are hampered more or less by local complications, chiefly the lack of united support from their respective departments.

Col. Warfield is looked upon as an available compromise candidate. In the event of a deadlock between Col. Lincoln and Capt. Weissert, Gen. Hearst and Col. Warfield will begin to hustle. Gen. Hearst being an Ohio man is further handicapped by the Indianapolis boom for the location of the next encampment. These are the two capital prizes of the event, and they are not apt to be given to adjoining states.

Col. Lincoln has made a thorough canvass for the office. He has been fortunate in getting a number of active men enlisted in his behalf. There appeared to be some danger at one time that the Western departments would unite and try to place the office in that section of the country. The West is not united, however, for some of the Washington man's best workers are from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and other departments even further off.

The committee of the Commercial Club, Indianapolis, which is charged with the duty of laboring to secure the next National Encampment at that city, reached here twelve hours late. They were preceded by Gov. Chase and Col. I. N. Walker, both ex-Department Commanders. Their labors, it is believed, will not be very onerous, in view of the assurances already given to the representatives of Indianapolis previously on the field.

Promises of support were given yesterday which practically settled the fact that the National Encampment will go to Indianapolis in 1893.

BERKMANN STILL DEFIANT.

Although Sentenced for 22 Years, He Maintains an Air of Bravado.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 20.—Anarchist Alexander Berkmann, who tried to kill Chairman Frick of the Carnegie Company last July, has been railroaded to prison in short order, having been sentenced to 22 years in the penitentiary for the crime. He is still defiant.

Berkmann, when brought into court maintained the same indifferent demeanor that has characterized his conduct since his arrest.

He had no attorney and did not cross-examine witnesses.

He had no witnesses for his defense.

The prosecution was conducted by District-Attorney Burleigh, who in his opening speech presented the seven indictments, charging Berkmann with offenses ranging from felonious assault and battery down to carrying concealed weapons.

H. C. Frick, Chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company, and the victim of Berkmann's assault, was the first witness. He described the assault in detail.

Berkmann was then asked if he had any questions to ask and said: "No," then said in broken English: "You think that I wanted to shoot Mr. Leishman, too?"

Mr. Frick said he did not know about that and left the stand.

Mr. Leishman, Vice-Chairman of the Carnegie Steel Company, who was in Mr. Frick's private office at the time, did not see Berkmann, or know of his presence until he heard the revolver shot. He grappled with Berkmann. Berkmann tried to shoot him, but the weapon missed fire. Mr. Frick came to Mr. Leishman's assistance, and together they grappled with Berkmann, who then drew the knife and stabbed Mr. Frick several times.

Berkmann said: "That statement is untrue," and asked Mr. Leishman, "Are you positive I tried to shoot you?"

"I am positive my statements are correct," was Mr. Leishman's answer.

Here the prosecution rested, and Berkmann asked for an interpreter, which was granted. He then said:

"I am not guilty; I have a defense," and then began to read irrelevant matter from the large roll of paper, which the Court checked, but finally permitted him to proceed with.

The statement was an Anarchistic and inflammatory address, written in German.

Berkmann continued his harangue from 11:45 until 1:05 o'clock when the Court shut him off.

The District-Attorney did not make an address, saying that argument was unnecessary.

Judge McClung made a brief charge and the jury returned a verdict as stated above.

Did Not Serve the Subpœnas.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 20.—Superintendent Morgenstern has returned to Buffalo without having served subpœnas on the soldiers who shot Michael Broderick. He registered at the Sinclair House in New York, and a few hours afterwards, and before he could look for the people of the Twenty-second Regiment, suffered an attack of rheumatism. He was obliged to return to Buffalo, and is confined to his house. It will be several days before he can get out.

The Steamship Carroll All Right.

BOSTON, Sep. 20.—The steamship Carroll, with 100 passengers and 40 sailors, which is three days overdue here from Halifax, and concerning which much anxiety has been felt both here and in Nova Scotia, has arrived at Booth Bay, Me., with her crank pin broken, but otherwise all right.

Indians Again Dancing.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sep. 20.—Parties who arrived yesterday from Pine Ridge Agency say that the Indians are dancing. The Brules especially are surly and defiant. Their chief, Old Moccasin Top, who has always given the agents trouble, is the leading spirit among the disconcerted Indians.

Cowboys Rob a Bank.

DEXTER, Kan., Sep. 20.—Yesterday afternoon two masked men entered the Watkins Bank at this place and covering the cashier with their pistols ordered him to give up the cash. He turned over in the neighborhood of $3,000 to them and they mounted their horses and fled. They backed out of the bank, and as they reached the street they fired a shot in the air and road away. The men are supposed to be cowboys.

The Conductor Instantly Killed.

DAYTON, O., Sep. 20.—As a Big Four switch engine was backing eight box cars from the East End yards to Harmansville about midnight, they ran into a cow. Three cars were derailed and thrown in a heap into the ditch. Conductor Michael McGlynn was instantly killed. His head was mashed into a jelly. Brakeman Charles Davis was badly injured but will recover.

Judge Werts Will Accept.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 20.—Judge George T. Werts has decided to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor. He was urged to do this by ex-Gov. Bedle, Senator McPherson and the candidates who opposed him in the convention. He has not publicly announced his decision and probably will not do so until he has communicated with the Notification Committee.

A PRINCE ON THE SHOOT

The Kaiser's Adjutant-General Violently Insane.

FIRED AT EVERYONE IN SIGHT.

He Drove All the Guests From the Hotel at Lodz—Wounded Two Servants—Only Overpowered When Firemen Played the Hose on Him.

LODZ, Russia, Sep. 20.—Prince Anton Radziwill, adjutant general of the Emperor's military household, head of one of the oldest families in Germany, became violently insane on Sunday morning and hunted with firearms everybody who approached him.

Early last week the Prince and General von Werder were invited to the Czar's hunting party at Spala. They arrived at the Grand Hotel, Lodz, on Saturday. Early Sunday morning the house was roused by shots and shouting.

Running from their rooms the guests saw the Prince with a fowling piece in his hand and two revolvers in his belt, firing at everybody in his sight. Two servants lay wounded at the head of the grand stairway. The Prince had shot one in the neck and the other in the breast.

After all the guests had fled from the hotel the chief of police called out the fire brigade and four jets of water were played upon the Prince. A company of soldiers who had been summoned entered the room just after the Prince had been floored by the water, overpowered him after a desperate struggle and bound him with chains. The Prince was sent to a private asylum.

The cause of his sudden madness is a mystery. He is 60 years old, and throughout his long court life has been universally esteemed for his kindness of heart and nobility of character. He married a grand niece of Tallyrand. The wounded servants are likely to recover.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

Convention of Societies at Scranton—Many Notables Present.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sep. 20.—The convention of Democratic societies of Pennsylvania opens to-day, and the election of officers will be the first business. There is no evidence of opposition to the election of President Beach, Secretary Worman and Treasurer Kisner. Three thousand delegates are expected to be in attendance.

There will also be solid bodies of organized clubs in attendance from Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The local arrangements for the gathering are complete and Pennsylvania Democrats will be royally welcomed to Scranton.

The proceedings will be held in the Academy of Music, where will also follow a mass meeting in the evening at which Attorney-General Hensel, James M. Brek and Bourke Cockran will make addresses.

Gov. Pattison is also expected to be present and ex-President Cleveland has been invited but he cannot attend.

MURDERER MORGAN CAPTURED.

Detective Hartzvelt Runs Him Down, Gaining $50,000 in Rewards.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 20.—On the night of June 21, 1889, George Morgan, then a resident of Dafumak Springs, Fla., murdered his wife and sister and fled. The crime was most unprovoked and cold blooded, the sister being shot and the wife terribly cut and stabbed with a butcher knife.

The wife's family is rich and influential, and immediately offered heavy rewards for Morgan's capture. The city and county officials added to the amounts until a fortune was piled up for the man who made the capture.

Hundreds of officers all over the country took up the search, but, as time went by and no clues were obtained, they all dropped it except Detective L. D. Hartzvelt, of St. Augustine, Fla. He had money, and going on Morgan's trail at once has persevered until he has captured his man, who was working on a farm near this place.

He is in jail here, and requisition papers have been sent for.

Hartzfelt is extremely joyful, as the prize he has secured is said to aggregate $50,000.

Another Jersey Mystery.

NEW YORK, Sep. 0. —The body of a woman about 25 years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height, and weighing 120 pounds, was found during the morning in a pond on the estate of John Pettitt, at Silver Springs, Montrose, New Jersey. The body, which was neatly attired in a close fitting black dress trimmed with black lace, had evidently been in the water about two weeks. The identity of the body cannot yet be determined. The police think it is a case of murder.

Searles Sued for Services.

BOSTON, Sep. 20.—Mason Maxon has sued Edward F. Searles, of Methuen, the heir of Mrs. Mark Hopkins-Searles, for $2,657 for looking after witnesses in the will case, particularly George Williams. It is said that Maxhon kept Williams, alias Wilson, alias Dearborn, away from Massachusetts during the hearing over the probate of the will.

Father Humphrey Released from Jail.

DUBLIN, Sep. 20.—Father Humphreys, the well known Nationalist priest, has just been released from jail, to which he had been committed on the charge of contempt of court, and his examination on the original accusation of riotous conduct has been set down for hearing at Tipperary on Wednesday.

NEW YORK'S SCARE OVER.

Not a Case in the City—Situation at Quarantine and Camp Low.

NEW YORK, Sep. 20.—New York's ill-born and ill-supported cholera scare has gasped its last gasp and passed away among the things to be forgotten. As there never was any good reason for its existence, it was at its strongest a very feeble creature, and its short life came easily to an end with the announcement that six days had passed since the publication of the first alleged case of cholera in New York and not another case had developed in all the city.

The quarantine steamer William B. Fletcher, with 356 immigrants, arrived at Camp Low, on Sandy Hook, at 7:30, accompanied by Second Officer Porgelius, of the steamship Rugia, on which they came across the ocean.

Thirteen of the Scandia's passengers also arrived.

It was a pitiful sight to see the two families that had left two of their dear ones behind dead. Each male member of the two families wore a small piece of black crape on his hat.

General Hamilton has done everything in his power to make them comfortable, and they seem to appreciate his actions.

The Hoffman Island authorities sent the poor immigrants here without a mouthful of food and it was impossible to feed them immediately, which caused a great deal of excitement among them, some crying out lustily for food while others appealed to all with whom they came in contact to give them something to eat and drink.

Quite a scene occurred between General Hamilton and Second Officer Porgelius of the Rugia.

Porgelius went among the immigrants using foul and boisterous language to them, and when General Hamilton called him to account for it, he began in the same way on the General. The General grabbed him by the throat and used very forcible language to him, which caused him to subside.

The immigrants are loud in their denunciations of the steamer people in regard to the treatment they received.

Hoffman's Island is now deserted so far as immigrants are concerned. Gen. Hamilton says that by nightfall everything will be in good shape at Camp Low.

At Quarantine this morning there is no change for the worse, and Dr. Jenkins and his assistants are consequently happy. The yellow flag was run up from the Scandia and Bohemia shortly before noon. A case of sickness was reported from each vessel, and the patients were at once removed to Swinburne Island. Dr. Jenkins, when seen this morning, said that he was not disposed to pay any attention to reports of bad treatment received by women at Hoffman Island until they were made personally to him. He doubted the truth of the reports, and said he had not heard of them before. He will, he said, inquire into the subject as soon as possible.

Dr. Byron's daily report to Dr. Jenkins is as follows:

"Dr. Abbott is just back from the ships. He brings two bodies from the Scandia—Regina Geisloff, aged 66, who died of heart failure, and Christine Oelson, aged 8, whose death resulted from miasmus, and one new patient, Scholem Chezan, aged 16 years, from the Bohemia. With this exception, all of our patients are out of danger, and the island will soon be free from cholera patients.

MRS. HARRISON'S REMOVAL.

Start to Be Made This Afternoon—Difficulties of the Trip.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sep. 20.—The Presidential party, including Mrs. Harrison, will leave this afternoon and expect to reach Washington to-morrow morning. The details of the trip to Washington are purposely withheld in order that it may be made as quietly and comfortably as the occasion demands.

Speaking generally, however, it may be stated that the trip will be made from Loon Lake to Plattsburg over the Chateaugay road, from Plattsburg to Troy over the Delaware and Hudson road, from Troy to New York over the New York Central road, and from New York to Washington over the Pennsylvania Central road.

It is expected that each of these roads will furnish a special train and make every arrangement for the safety and comfort of the President's wife.

One of the principal difficulties of the trip will be the removal of the invalid from the cottage where she now lies to the railroad station at Loon Lake, a distance of three miles, over a rough mountain road.

The transfer will be made in a long, covered wagon, especially adapted to the road and arranged to receive the cot on which Mrs. Harrison will be carried from her cottage.

There are great misgivings as to the result of the removal, but nearly every person concerned in Mrs. Harrison's welfare considers that it is the only thing to be done under the circumstances.

Mr. George W. Boyd, of the Pennsylvania road, will have charge of the trip. He was especially requested to do so by Mrs. Harrison.

Race War in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sep. 20.—News has reached here of a fearful race war that culminated in a general fight, in which four negroes were killed and Captain James, a white man, seriously wounded at Campagnolle township, Calhoun county, two nights ago. The negroes are said to be greatly excited and under the influence of vicious white men are threatening to kill every white man, woman and child in the county.

Three Men Shot Down.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—At 4 o'clock a. m. James Duffy, watchman in the Rock Island yards, shot and killed Antone Demirsh, and fatally wounded Robert Marky and Charles Johnson. On last Thursday Duffy ordered a friend of Marky to leave the yard. Marky resented this as a personal insult, and this morning went to Duffy's shanty with friends and started a quarrel, with the result mentioned.

Want an Increase of Wages.

READING, Pa., Sep. 20.—The employes of the Reading Iron Company are signing a petition for a 10 per cent. increase of wages. The wages at present are: Head welders, $3.15; second, $1.80; head straighteners, $1.65; second, $1.40; firemen, $1.70; poke-in, $1.10; laborers, $1.

To Try a Dying Girl.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Judge Du Bose has ordered the case of Lillie Johnson to go to trial. She was with Alice Mitchell when the latter killed Freda Ward. Miss Johnson is dying of consumption, and the Attorney-General wanted the case dismissed.

THE PEST IN HAMBURG

Rapid Abatement in All But Three Suburbs.

16,470 CASES REPORTED UP TO DATE

Nearly One-Half of These Have Proved Fatal—Summary Measures in the Infected Districts—Six Thousand Clerks Dismissed—Situation at New York Grows Brighter Every Day—No Cholera at Elizabeth, N. J.

HAMBURG, Sep. 20.—The total number of cholera cases up to to-day has been 16,470, of which 8,110 have ended in death.

The reports for to-day indicate a rapid abatement of the disease in all except two or three suburbs. The number of fresh cases has been 621, or 88 fewer than yesterday; the number of deaths, 187, or 37 fewer than yesterday; the number of burials, 292, or 37 less than yesterday. In public institutions there are, this evening, 2,989 cholera patients, or 99 fewer than yesterday.

The Health Board has now inspectors enough to watch closely all the infected districts and the most painstaking disinfection is enforced in all cases. Persons refusing to observe the Health Board's directions are fined, and, if still recalcitrant, are punished by arrest and imprisonment. These summary measures have worked like magic and even in the worst districts there are now few persons who oppose the sanitary officials in the discharge of their duties.

The first substantial evidence of the approaching collapse of small business houses was given yesterday, when the newspapers announced that 6,000 clerks had been dismissed by tradesmen, who could no longer afford to keep them. More such announcements may be expected before Oct. 1. Thousands of men will be obliged to seek employment in other cities soon if they and their families are not to be condemned to pauperism during the winter.

Prof. Koch has told the people of Berlin that the epidemic cannot be communicated through the mails. Nevertheless, all matter leaving the postoffice here is carefully disinfected.

Mr. Stanhope, who was inoculated by Pasteur and came here to expose himself to cholera, has been excluded from all hospitals and cholera barracks.

The work on the artesian wells is being pushed rapidly. Several engineers have been brought from other cities to hasten the work.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 20.—The corn and potato crops of North Finland have been almost entirely destroyed by frosts. A famine is imminent.

HAVRE, Sep. 20.—There were four deaths from cholera in this city on Sunday and nine new cases of the disease.

HAD PASSED QUARANTINE.

Cholera Suddenly Breaks Out on a Vessel at Hull, England.

LONDON, Sep. 20.—The steamer Oranus, which arrived at Hull from Hamburg, was duly inspected by the health authorities of Hull and pronounced free from infection.

Thereupon the vessel was admitted last evening to its dock to unload.

The unloading was nearly completed when one of the firemen of the Oranus was taken suddenly ill, with every symptom of cholera.

He was at once taken to the fever hospital, where a careful diagnosis left no doubt that the case was one of Asiatic cholera, which had remained latent during the short voyage from Hamburg to Hull.

The unloading of the Oranus was stopped and the steamer was placed in quarantine.

The Record at Paris.

PARIS, Sep. 20.—There have been 29 fresh cases of cholera and eight deaths in the city to-day. In the suburbs 11 fresh cases and seven deaths have been reported.

Fresh Cases in Antwerp.

ANTWERP, Sep. 20.—Two fresh cases of Asiatic cholera were found in this city to-day.

SITUATION AT FIRE ISLAND.

Sheriff Darling May Demand the Evacuation of Quarantine To-day.

BABYLON, Sep. 20.—President Young of the Health Board has gone to Riverhead to consult with Sheriff Darling. It is generally believed that the sheriff will go to Fire Island to-day and make a formal demand for obedience to the orders of the Islip health authorities.

Lawyer Fishel says a suit for permanent injunction restraining the authorities from establishing a permanent quarantine on Fire Island will be tried at Riverhead before Justice Cullen in October.

Some of the Thirteenth's men complain that they are doing more than their duty to the State as they were one of the first regiments to go to Buffalo, and did duty there while other regiments in New York and Brooklyn were allowed to stay at home.

—D. H. Terry has invited a large number of sportsmen to attend a target and pigeon shooting match on his premises at Short Hills, next Monday, beginning at 1 p. m. There will be five blue-rock and five live-pigeon events.

—As it is against the city's peace ordinances to fire a cannon in the streets, the Republicans will send up to-night from the vacant lot opposite the Crescent rink, a lot of giant bombs that will explode in the air with great effect.

—The Degree Team of Miantonomo Tribe No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, will visit Raritan Wednesday, Sept. 28, and work the Adoption Degree, at the institution of the new tribe which is being organized in that city.

—There will be an entertainment in Bethel chapel, for the benefit of the chapel, Thursday, at 8 p. m. Readings will be given by Miss Ednorah Nahar of Boston, who is highly commended as an elocutionist by the press of that city.

—Along South Second street opposite the Potter Press works there is a sand-pit where men are engaged every day taking away sand. The pit is left unguarded every night, and is very dangerous for pedestrians who have to pass that way.

—The Cross-Bearer Circle, King's Daughters, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold a fair and ice-cream festival in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Crescent rink building, Tuesday afternoon and evening, Sept. 27. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church debt fund.

—A plug of tobacco, by its moisture and softness, will indicate the approach of a storm, a loose window cord will tighten up just before a rain, and a pair of gloves, ordinarily tight on the hands, will become almost baggy on the approach of stormy weather. A straw will also point the direction of the wind, and that election in Maine last week and in Vermont the week before, were political straws pointing unmistakably Cleveland-ward.

A Little One Lost and Found.

The two-year-old daughter of George Ball, of Linden avenue, coachman for C. W. McCutchen, was missing at noon today, and it was feared she had been kidnaped. This afternoon, however, she was found roaming about the streets. She had wandered from home. Her anxious parents were overjoyed at her safe return.

JUDGE WERTS WILL ACCEPT.

He Held a Four-Hour Conference With Senator McPherson and E. F. C. Young.

It is authoritatively stated that Judge George T. Werts has decided to accept the nomination for Governor tendered him by the Democratic Convention.

Senator McPherson arrived in Jersey City at 6:30 p. m. yesterday and went to room 4 in Taylor's Hotel, which had been secured for him by his private secretary. A few minutes afterward Judge Werts and Edward F. C. Young arrived at the hotel and went at once to room 4. They remained there in conference with Senator McPherson until 10 o'clock. Judge Werts and Mr. Young said there was nothing new in the political situation. Senator McPherson sent word that he was tired and declined to see reporters. Secretary McKean of the New Jersey Democratic club invited Judge Werts, as the candidate for governor, to attend the convention in Camden on the 27th inst. Judge Werts smilingly answered that he was not yet the candidate.

She has the sympathy of those far and near.

Chase in New York, and Raphael Collin, Benjamin Constant and Jean Paul Laurens in Paris.

Sarah A., relict of the late Cornelius Boice, who died at her home on East Front street, Sunday afternoon, was one of Plainfield's oldest and best-known residents. She was in fine spirits Sunday, and enjoyed a gathering of her children and grandchildren at her home. She made herself a cup of beef tea, drank it, and went upstairs to change her garments. Suddenly she became unconscious, and before a physician arrived she had breathed her last. Death was attributed to heart failure resulting from indigestion.

—The Boy's Mission band will hold its regular monthly meeting in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church this afternoon at 4, and talk of Japan and Corea.

A Valuable Remedy.

Hon. Edmund L. Pitts, the late president of the New York State Senate, writes: "STATE OF N. Y., SENATE CHAMBER, ALBANY, March 11, 1886. I have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family for the past five years and can truthfully say they are a valuable remedy and effect great cures. I would not be without them. I have in several instances given some to friends suffering with weak and lame backs, and they have invariably afforded certain and speedy relief. They cannot be too highly recommended.

A MATCHLESS BAND.

Sousa is Coming Here With His Organization of Artists, to Give Plainfield the Grandest Concert it Ever Heard.

Marcella Lindh, who possesses one of the few incomparable voices of the generation, with Sig. Galassi who has been admired and applauded by every devotee of music in this city, are to appear here next Monday evening at Music Hall, when Plainfield is to be favored by the first appearance in public of Sousa's band.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA.

Recognizing the wonders which John Philip Sousa, the late leader of the United States Marine band, accomplished with an organization of enlisted men, a number of his admiring friends in Chicago and New York, some time since determined, if possible, to secure his resignation from the Government band in order to place him at the head of a body of musicians which should do for the military music of this country what the Thomas and Boston Symphony orchestras have done for the strings. After the reluctant consent of the President and Secretary of the Navy was secured, Mr. Sousa withdrew from the United States Marine band, and he has been placed at the head of the finest body of experienced musicians and soloists which could be gathered together from Europe and America. Under the magic baton of Mr. Sousa the band has already done all and more than its organizers ever hoped. It marks a new departure among military band in this country, just as the Thomas Orchestra, when it was first organized, marked a new departure among orchestras.

The concerts of this band will prove a surprise and a delight to music lovers throughout the country. They will amount to an absolute revelation in military band music. They will show a precision in execution, a refinement in interpretation an artistic repose in serious music, and a dash, a swing, a "chic", and a "go" in popular music, which have never before been attempted in the country, because such accomplishments have never before been thought possible to military instruments. The clarinets of this band will rival the violins of the orchestra in their softness, and the brasses will express all the tenderness and sentiment of the violoncellos; and the contrasts of light and shade, the variations of feeling and tone—in fine, the whole gamut of soulful expression, as embodied in musical poetry and passion, will be produced by this marvellous band in a way to charm its hearers as they have never been charmed before.

These are not idle words. They are actual accomplishments realized from high ideals. The merits of this matchless band have already been recognized by Theodore Thomas, who, as musical director of the great Columbian Exposition, has given them the engagement at the opening of the World's Fair in Chicago. The concert to be given by this band in this city will be enjoyed beyond anticipation, and they who fail to hear it will have cause to regret a serious mistake.

Fruit Thieves in Plainfield.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Within a few weeks complaint has been made to me for protection against boys stealing grapes and other fruit. About a bushel of grapes were stolen from Mrs. Thistlewait's, 57 East Third street, and grapes and fruit from Mrs. Vail, corner of Washington and Second streets.

I wish the police of this city would attend to this matter.

LEWIS PETERSON,
Justice of the Peace,
58 East Third street.

[Fruit thieves have also been industriously robbing the gardens on West Fourth and Fifth streets near Madison avenue.

The Crescent Team Disbanded.

As was to be expected, manager Mack has refused to live up to his own original proposition and agreement, and play the best two out of three games to decide the Central N. J. base-ball championship. Consequently manager Reed has disbanded his Crescent team and the contest is closed. The Plainfield players will have a benefit game on the North Plainfield grounds Saturday, when they will play the Paterson team that defeated the St. Louis league team a few days ago by the score of 9 to 6.

It's a medicine that starts from the beginning. It rouses every organ into healthy action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and renews the whole system. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. For Tetter, Salt-rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, it's an unequaled remedy.

Don't think it's like the sarsaparillas. They claim to be good for the blood in March, April, and May. "Golden Medical Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. And it not only claims to do good—it guarantees it. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

You pay only for the good you get. Can you ask more?

BURGLARS AT BASE-BALL.

While the Pondvilles Were Playing, Some One Made Off With Their Cash.

A very pleasant and interesting game of ball was played on the Crescents' grounds, Saturday afternoon, between a nine from Potter's press works and the Pondville Juniors. The Potters' nine were the victors by the score of 19 to 17. The score in the fifth inning stood 9 to 5 in the Juniors favor; then Babcock, of the Potters was taken out of the box and Burke was put in his place. After that the Juniors could n't see the ball. The feature of the game was the batting done by the Juniors. That old reliable Kane is a coming base-ball player; although an amateur just now, he will be a good one in the future. Hickey pitched an elegant game for the Juniors; and his catcher, Foose, although suffering from illness, put up a good game behind the bat. Saturday's was the first game he has caught this season. During the game some sneak thief who had a key to the dressing-room went in and ransacked the players' pockets. A considerable amount of money and other valuables were taken. The ball players have their eye on one or two whom they suspect.

A HOTEL'S LICENSE REVOKED.

Laurent's Resort on South Avenue to be Closed.

Last evening the Township committee of Fanwood tried the matter of the complaint against August D. Laurent for keeping a disorderly house in his hotel on South avenue in that township. The evidence on the part of the complainant showed that the defendant habitually sold intoxicating liquor on Sunday. His place was the resort of chicken thieves and the most disreputable characters, quarrels and fights were of frequent occurrence, and the peace and quiet of the neighborhood was greatly disturbed.

A very feeble effort at defence was made by Laurent, the effect of which was to corroborate the testimony of complainant's witnesses by showing his entire inability to preserve order in his hotel.

Under the evidence the township committee unanimously voted him guilty of the charges preferred and revoked his hotel license. His hotel is said to have been one of the worst resorts in the State.

Counselor Jackson, of the firm of Jackson & Codington, the township attorneys, represented the complainants in the case.

Can't Win Every Time.

THE HEALTH BOARD REPORTS.

Only One Suspected Case of Cholera Under Consideration.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Board of Health issued the following bulletin at 10 this morning:

"No cases of cholera have appeared in this city since the last bulletin. A suspected case, Louis Weinhagen of 14 First street, has been removed to the hospital."

There are now two patients in the Reception Hospital, Mary Connity and the man Weinhagen, removed there last night. Mary Connity will, however, be taken from the hospital as soon as practicable.

The bacteriologists have not yet reported the result of their biological examination in the case of John Knox, the stoker, who died on the steamship State of Nevada at her pier, North River, on Twenty-first street, on Sunday, and which vessel is now quarantined at the dock. President Wilson said that he expected to receive the report in that case this morning, as well as the report on the New Brunswick case. The Weinhagen case, Mr. Wilson said, was a very suspicious one.

The Health Department has all of its arrangements for the treatment of cholera cases completed, and no possible precaution that has been suggested of any practical value, has been neglected.

Mr. Reed Publishes a Statement of the Receipts and Disbursements of the Crescent Base-Ball Team.

Below is given the figures in full of the financial account and condition of the Crescent League base-ball team of 1892. The deficiency, it will be seen, is caused by a lack of public support and not by extravagance in hiring players.

The Kind of Soup It Was.

Three different waiters at a southern hotel asked a little, prim, precise Harvard professor at dinner, in quick succession, if he would have soup. A little annoyed, he said to the last waiter who asked:

"Is it compulsory?"

"No, sah," answered our friend and brother, "no, sah, I think it am mock turtle."—Texas Siftings.

"Didn't know it was loaded."—Chicago Mail.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Sl'oh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Sl'oh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-18-y

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. SENATOR HILL SPEAKS.

Opening of the Democratic Campaign in Brooklyn Last Night.

BROOKLYN, Sep. 20.—There was a great outpouring of Democrats in this city last night. The Academy of Music could not accommodate the crowd that rushed to secure good positions from which to take in every action of Senator David B. Hill in the delivery of an address that has been awaited anxiously by all Democrats. Six thousand people were present, and on the stage was nearly every prominent Democrat in Brooklyn and New York.

When Senator Hill was introduced he was greeted with tremendous applause. The Senator's voice was low and calm as he began, but gradually he warmed up and before a minute had passed he had uttered a phrase that carried wild applause with it. This was when he said that before the Democratic National Convention at Chicago he was a Democrat and was a Democrat still. He said that he spoke as a Democrat to Democrats.

Senator Hill's description of President Harrison's message, his refutation of the statistics of Commissioner Peck's now famous report, his reminiscences of Henry Cabot Lodge and John I. Davenport anent the Federal Elections Bill, and his assurance that the Democrats of the country would never give Mr. Davenport the "more favorable" opportunity he wished to again introduce the bill, all tickled his auditors and were utterances that caused perfect storms of applause.

Congressman Breckinridge of Kentucky also spoke.

Did He Cut His Own Throat?

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sep. 20.—Martin Nobling, aged 36, of Water street, at an early hour yesterday morning walked into his wife's bedroom with his throat cut from ear to ear. Nobling had been sleeping on a lounge on the first floor, and, according to his story, he had been attacked by some unknown man. A razor covered with blood was found under the lounge. His wife claims there is insanity in the family, but the neighbors fear foul play. Nobling may die.

NO CHOLERA AT ELIZABETH.

It Was Believed That a Case of the Disease Existed in the Hospital.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sep. 20.—The case of suspected cholera in the hospital here turns out to be cholera morbus.

John Cusick, a Pole, employed in some chemical works on Staten Island, was admitted to the hospital here suffering from what physicians thought was Asiatic cholera.

The hospital authorities at once telegraphed the New York Board of Health to send a cholera expert to diagnose the case.

All the nurses and patients in the hospital who were able to move left the building in a fright.

THE TUSSOCK MOTH.

It Tells the Story of Its Own Life and Other Interesting Things.

My name is Orygia Leucostigma. Maybe you do not think that is an easy name to pronounce. Perhaps it is harder than your own. Well, then, you may call me the "Tussock Moth."

Only I am not a moth yet. I am a hairy caterpillar. I am queer looking—more so than most caterpillars, too. In the first place I have a sort of hump on my back, like a camel, only my hump is made of hair growing in four bunches. Then some of the rest of my hair falls over my forehead, as a little girl's bangs might over hers, only I never stop to curl mine. But the queerest things about me, the things that you would notice first, perhaps, are three stiff, dark brushes of hairs that stand away out from my body. There are two on my head, shooting out like horns, and then there is one standing out of my back.

I was on the side of the woodshed the other day. I had been taking a walk, and I was wondering if I had better spin a cocoon, when some one touched me and took me down from my place. The some one was a little girl.

She put me in her hand, and patted me with one finger, and said: "Poo 'ittle patter-pillar!" She was a very small girl, and I suppose that she did not know how to talk plainly, and say "caterpillar."

She carried me into the house to show me to her mother, and that lady put me into a glass tumbler and gave me a whole big apple-leaf.

That made me very happy. If there is anything that I like it is an apple-leaf.

So I gave up all idea of making a cocoon just then, and went to eating. I ate quite a hole in that leaf, and the little girl stood and watched me do it.

Her mother told her that I shall turn into a moth. But I do not believe that her mother knows that although I shall be a moth, yet perhaps I shall not have any wings. All moths do not have wings. Some of us Tussock moths do not. My mother did not. I have heard so, at least, but I never saw my ma. She died when I was in a white egg.

This was my ma's life: She was a caterpillar, then she spun a cocoon and went to sleep; then one day she woke, came out, laid a number of eggs on top of the cocoon, and then died.

If I can fly when I come out of my cocoon I shall have pretty wings, and some feelers, or "antennæ," that look like very little toothed combs standing out from my head.

It is silly to be afraid of a caterpillar, for it is only a moth or a butterfly covered up in a queer kind of dress, and I am sure that folks are not afraid of most butterflies or moths.

There is a queer caterpillar on that big thistle in the yard. But I suppose that living on thistles is nothing. Why, some butterfly-caterpillars actually live on nettles, and seem to think nothing of it. There is a butterfly called the "Nettle tortoise-shell" that puts its eggs on the under side of a nettle leaf, and the caterpillars eat nettles as if they were good. The caterpillars of the "peacock butterflies" in Europe eat nettles, too.

You need not think that the butterflies have all the pretty names, for there is a moth in Europe called the "night peacock." The caterpillar of this moth has a queer way of leaving one end of its large, pear-shaped cocoon open when making it, but nothing can come in to harm the creature, for the fibers of the cocoon are arranged so that while the moth, when it is ready, can go out easily, all other insects are kept out.—Mary E. Bamford, in Our Little Men and Women.

A Poser.

"Mamma," cried Johnnie, in a tremendous hurry, "have you seen my hat?"

"No, indeed, I haven't. Where did you throw it the last time you came in, Johnnie?"

"Well—I forget."

"If you would remember where you put it when you come in," suggested mamma, mildly, "you might be able to find it easier the next time you wanted it."

"I suppose I could," replied poor badgered Johnnie. "But, mamma," earnestly, "how can I possibly remember when I always forget?"—Harper's Young People.

LEAVING THE CAPITAL

Exodus from the G. A. R. Re-Union Begun.

VISITORS HAVE NUMBERED 300,000.

The Parade Yesterday Was the Great Feature of the Encampment—The Fireworks and Electric Illuminations Last Night Surpassed Anything of the Kind Ever Witnessed in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 21.—The great event of the 26th annual reunion of the National G. A. R. is over, and the visitors, who yesterday were numbered at 300,000, are fast leaving the city. By to-morrow the exodus will be in full blast.

The spectacular feature of to-day will be the concert by the consolidated bands in the city, under the leadership of John Philip Sousa, formerly director of the Marine Band. One thousand pieces will render a number of National airs.

There will be many reunions during the day.

Last night was even more glorious than the day. Shortly after dark, which was of a most favorable density, owing to the lowering crowds, the multitudinous thousands who lined the avenue while the parade was in progress, repaired, so far as possible, to the vicinity of the monument. Here the elaborate display of fireworks provided by the committee and Pain, the pyrotechnic king, was made. It was a magnificent show, in some respects unequalled, and was worthy of a place on the programme of the day's events.

Succeeding the fireworks display, there was an electric illumination, on a scale never before attempted in this country. It was one of the attractions of the reunion provided by the citizens' committee, and was a complete success.

Pennsylvania avenue, from the Capitol to Seventeenth street, was ablaze with colored lights. Every available dynamo in the city, public and private, was brought into requisition, and numbers were shipped here especially for the display.

The feature of the illumination was the display along both sides of the avenue of brilliant presentations of corps badges. Seventy of these had been placed on supports at convenient distances in three colors, red, white and blue, the respective colors of the first, second and third divisions. Each of these was outlined in incandescent lights of the same color as the badge.

At the head of Fifteenth street, at the entrance to Executive avenue, was a monster fac-simile of the G. A. R. badge, 18 feet in height. It was made up of incandescent lamps of the various regulation colors of the badge, and produced a grand effect. A duplicate of the piece was also shown at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street.

A fine display, and something entirely new in Washington, was shown in the White House grounds in front of the Mansion. Here innumerable lights were half hidden in the shrubbery, all of them changeable in character, disappearing and reappearing in the most bewildering manner.

The illumination of the Treasury building with colored electric lights was especially fine and notable, as also were a number of large set pieces at intervals along the avenue, the most conspicuous being a great anchor of blazing light placed at the corner of Tenth street. Powerful search lights, thrown from the tops of high buildings, produced a dazzling effect.

The display continued until midnight, and was witnessed by countless thousands, who regretfully disappeared in the darkness that succeeded the turning off of the dynamos.

Nearly half as many old soldiers were in line yesterday as passed up the avenue on the historic days of 1865.

The procession moved under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in double column rows of 12, one on either side of the car tracks, platoons being 12 paces apart, and between departments 24 paces.

This procession was, as far as possible, strictly a G. A. R. organization, the first and last divisions containing the only non-soldiers.

Heading the procession was the citizens' committee on parade. They were mounted, and with the aides appointed by the Chairman, numbered a hundred or more.

The rear of the procession was brought up by the Naval Veterans' Association.

Time's ravages in its ranks made it possible to attempt in one day what it required two long days to accomplish in 1865. To the survivors of the 100,000 men of the armies of the Potomac and the West, who on the memorable 23rd and 24th of May, 1865, passed in review before the President and his Cabinet, (including Secretary Seward, just recovering from the assassin's knife), the foreign Ministers, the military attaches of all the great powers of Europe, and their own beloved and illustrious generals, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, the contrasts and reminiscences called out were necessarily striking.

It took seven hours—from 9 to 4—each day for the armies of 1865 to pass the reviewing stand, and the estimated length of the two days' procession was 30 miles.

Washington was a very different city then. The Capitol in 1865 was walled in and surrounded by heavy timbers. Neither of the present stately marble wings now occupied by Senate and House was then completed. The cobblestone pavement of Pennsylvania avenue was worn into alternate ravines and hillocks by the passage of heavy commissariat wagons and artillery.

Many of those in the march yesterday were there in 1865, and not a few of the present spectators saw that other historic scene of twenty-seven years past.

The parade of 1865 was the first great national review the country had ever seen. At the close of the war there were two armies in and near this city.

All of the soldiers composing it dwelt at the North, and Washington was a better place than any other for their dispersion. The fortitude of the men and the struggles in which they had borne so brave a part deserved commemoration, and out of this sentiment grew the march which was repeated yesterday.

In many respects it will stand out as equally remarkable in the country's history.

A pleasant feature of the march, and one that the veterans greatly enjoyed, was the choral tribute to their presence by school children of the District. They were located at two points—300 colored girls at the corner of Third street and the avenue, and 500 white girls at the corner of Fifteenth street.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

All bands ceased playing as they passed these points, and the children sang patriotic airs and old army songs, for which they had drilled some weeks.

Constantly there was something in the line to attract attention and applause. The most striking, probably, was the surprise offered by the Iowa Department.

As they came in sight, the message borne by Macbeth's messenger to the affrighted ears of the Thane of Cawdor that "Birnam wood is come to Dunsinane," seemed to be realized. They carried in the air three thousand corn stalks, some of them nearly six inches in diameter, and each man had an ear of corn strapped to his back. As they approached they might easily have been taken for "trees walking as men."

After the parade the corn was piled on the monument grounds, there being about sixty bushels. It will be sold and the proceeds applied to the relief of Iowa's old soldiers who may be in distress.

MRS. M'ALLISTER MAY SUE.

She Seeks Freedom from the Son of Society's Famous Leader.

NEW YORK, Sep. 21.—Such of the Four Hundred as have returned to this city, or are still loitering at their Newport villas, are profoundly stirred by the report that Mrs. Hayward Hall McAllister, daughter-in-law of the diplomatic leader of society had come North with the intention of securing a divorce from her husband.

Young McAllister caused a great deal of excitement early in the year by the publication of his marriage to handsome Miss Jennie Garmany of Savannah, Ga.

Hayward's father objected to the marriage on the ground that the young man had no income with which to support a wife. The young woman's brothers, who are well known in New York city, took a hand in the affair, and in a very short time everything was arranged amicably.

Park Commissioner Albert Gallup of New York and Francis B. Peckham of Newport, are Mr. McAllister's counsel, while Lawyer Theodore Steele of New York, has been retained by his wife.

Friends of the couple are pretty well satisfied that a divorce will be applied for in a short time. If this step is taken Mrs. McAllister will in all probability take the initiative, as McAllister calls attention to the fact that the present trouble is not of his making.

At the same time he expresses the opinion that his wife has been badly advised.

Mr. Frank Garmany of New York had received no word from his sister saying that she proposed to secure a divorce, and said that he knew absolutely nothing of the latest development.

Hayward Hall McAllister was married twice to Miss Garmany. The first ceremony was performed in 1884 and the second on Aug. 22, 1887. McAllister was a young fellow when he met Miss Garmany in 1884.

A short courtship was followed by a marriage, which they decided to keep secret, as the young man was afraid he would be disinherited by his uncle, from whom he expected a fortune.

This all happened in Savannah. As Miss Garmany grew old she became very beautiful and had many suitors, but, of course, rejected them as as fast as they came, while her husband occupied the position of a man constantly hearing that his wife was engaged to be married to some other man. This led him in May last to make the marriage public.

GRANITE CUTTERS' STRIKE.

Both Sides Anxious to Settle, but Unwilling to Compromise.

BARRE, Vt., Sep. 21.—Efforts are making to bring the granite strike to an end. A committee of local dealers and the union held a protracted conference on Monday night, but no decision was reached. It is understood that both sides are willing to sign a bill dated March 1, but a difficulty arises over what disposition shall be made of men who left the union and went to work.

The dealers demand that if a settlement is made, non union men be allowed to work unmolested. The strikers insist that the firm of Barclay Brothers, who left the Association and who signed the cutters' bill and are now a union firm, shall be used well by the Association if a settlement is made. It is reported that this point prevents a decision.

A hearing on the injunction suit of the Association vs. Barclay Brothers, was held at Montpelier yesterday before Chief Justice Ross, and arguments were made, but no decision rendered. It is believed there will be no settlement of the trouble until the injunction suit is decided.

PANIC AT ASBURY PARK.

Consternation Because of the Cholera Outbreak at Sandy Hook.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sep. 21.—The appearance of the cholera among the detained immigrants at Camp Low, Sandy Hook, a few miles from this place, has caused a panic among the residents here, who threaten to leave town. The people are very bitter toward the authorities there for bringing the disease so near their homes, and make all sorts of threats against Dr. Jenkins and the Board of Health.

Fear is entertained that the immigrants will succeed in escaping from the Hook and thus spread the disease.

Since the establishment of the quarantine at Camp Low many New Yorkers refuse to patronize the Sandy Hook route and travel by the all-rail route. The New Jersey Board of Health is undecided as to its course in the matter.

Not to Enter the Wall Paper Trust.

BUFFALO, Sep. 21.—The report that the firm of M. H. Birge & Sons of this city and William Campbell of New York, the only ones not swallowed up by the National Wall Paper Company, were to be merged in the monopoly within a week or so is denied so far as the Buffalo firm is concerned.

FIRE-SWEPT ROCKAWAY

The Loss Estimated at One Million Dollars.

TWO LIVES KNOWN TO BE LOST.

Mrs. Phillips and Her Daughter Perished in the Museum—Indignation Among the Residents Over the Inadequate Supply of Water—Firemen Injured.

ROCKAWAY, N. Y., Sep. 21.—The most disastrous conflagration that has ever visited this seaside resort was finally mastered at 7 o'clock last evening, after several hours of hard fighting. For a while it seemed as though the fire was beyond all human control, and the general belief was that it would burn while there was material to feed it. The local fire department was badly hampered in its efforts by the lack of water. When the firemen attached their hose to two or three of the hydrants in the vicinity of the fire the pressure became so low that it was impossible to throw a stream further than half a dozen feet.

The residents here feel indignant over the revealed state of their water supply, and assert that Supervisor Smith, of Hempstead, who is president of the Queens County Water Works, which supply Rockaway with water, was responsible for the insufficient supply. It is asserted that when Rockaway contracted for the water supply it was stipulated that pressure enough would be furnished to throw a stream 45 feet high at all times.

The area burned over is from 20 to 50 acres, and where, formerly, there was a long line of hotels, bathing houses, carousals, etc., is now a mass of smoldering ruins. It was not until the reinforcements from Long Island City, Ozone Park, Woodhaven and Morris Park had arrived that any headway was made.

The following is a correct list of the buildings destroyed:

Kingsland's Casino, Meissner's Hotel, Collins' Hotel, David Fileo's Hotel, Murray & Data's Hotel, Sam Myer's Hotel and Iron Pier, Simpson's Hotel, Shuber's Globe Hotel, Garrison's Bakery, St. James Hotel, George Burchell's Grocery, Linwall's Hotel, Weiskoff's Hotel and Morrison's Hotel.

The only loss of life, so far as can now be ascertained, is Mrs. Phillips, the wife of the proprietor of the Seaside Museum, and her 6-year-old daughter. This was the building in which the fire originated, and so suddenly did the flames spread that before the woman could escape, all exits were cut off.

The woman appeared at the window for a minute, while the flames surrounded her on all sides. Firemen shouted for her to jump, but she refused, and fell back into the flames. Several of the firemen were injured more or less seriously. They were attended by several physicians who had come here to lend their aid.

The loss is estimated all the way from $500,000 to $1,500,000, but conservative estimates place the sum at about $1,000,000.

BATTLE WITH CATTLE THIEVES.

Several Men Killed and the Chief Lynched in North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., Sep. 21. — Word has reached here that ranchmen recently raided the stronghold of "Judge" Short's gang of horse and cattle thieves, a log cabin on the top of a hill, in the western part of the State. A sharp battle was fought, it is said, and several men killed. Short, according to the report, was captured and lynched.

Short has long been a terror to people near the Bad Lands, into which he drove stolen stock. His gang have many dark crimes credited to them.

A year ago a young ranchman who had led a party that attempted to capture the outlaws was found hanging dead to the limb of a tree on the reservation line, and the cattle thieves were credited with the crime.

O'DONNELL'S HEARING CONCLUDED.

Not Decided Whether or Not He Shall be Admitted to Bail.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 21.—The hearing in the case of Hugh O'Donnell in his application for bail on a second charge of murder has been concluded, and Judge Porter may decide to-day whether O'Donnell shall be admitted to bail or not.

The afternoon session of the court was occupied in argument of the evidence by the attorneys. The attacks upon O'Donnell by the prosecution caused the defendant to become much excited, and he frequently called Attorney Cox's attention to some point in Mr. Patterson's address which he thought was not borne out by the evidence.

Attacked the House of Parliament.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sep. 21.—A deputation of 6,000 people called upon Prime Minister Dibbs yesterday to demand the release of the labor agitators arrested on account of the labor troubles at Broken Hill Mine. Minister Dibbs refused to see them. The crowd became furious at this and rushed to the House of Parliament and tried to break open the doors, but the police kept them back.

Another Wreck on the Central.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Sep. 21.—A westward bound freight train of the Central Hudson Railroad was derailed near this city at midnight. All four tracks were blocked for several hours. All the night express trains were held at different points along the line. Thirteen cars were crushed into one heap. No one seriously injured. Carelessness is said to have caused the wreck.

ENGLAND'S DECLINING TRADE.

All Her Industries Harassed by the Tariff—Exports Becoming Less.

LONDON, Sep. 21. — That England's trade is going into a decline was clearly shown at the special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held at Newport yesterday.

President Bollin said, in his opening address, that he lamented the existing depression of trade, and especially the fact that there were no signs of improvement.

He attributed the lack of confidence partly to the suspension of the Barings, and partly also to hostile tariffs.

He pointed out that while wages in the United States had only increased one per cent. the cost of cereals and of produce, and of the necessaries of life generally had increased from eighteen to thirty-three per cent., while the indications did not show that either the high tariff or McKinley was popularly appreciated.

Making prices on foreign goods to the Chicago Exhibition should prove an object lesson to Americans as to what they were paying for the enrichment of a comparatively few men at the expense of the many. One encouraging circumstance was that British trade was apparently surmounting some of the chief obstacles placed in its way by the tariff.

The export of tin plate from Wales to America was six times greater now than in July, 1891.

Taking the years ending at August, the plate exported from Wales to America in 1892 has only been once exceeded.

The speaker quoted the arguments used in America by the advocates of free trade on the one hand and protection on the other.

He dwelt upon the recovery of export trade with America in linen and worsted machinery, and earthenware. He spoke fervently of the necessity of fostering the growth of arbitration, and trusted, he said, that it would never be the lot of Britons to see civilization disgraced by the military shielding the millionaire as they had seen in the United States.

DEMOCRATS AT SCRANTON.

An Enthusiastic Convention—Big Mass Meeting Last Night.

SCRANTON, Sep. 21.—When the convention of Democratic Societies reassembled at 3:10 yesterday afternoon, the Committee on Organization reported the officers. Chauncey F. Black, of York, was again re-elected for President.

The Committee on Resolutions reported reapproving the faith of the Democracy of Pennsylvania in the platform of the National and State conventions; endorsing the nominations of Cleveland and Stevenson, and of the State candidates; applauding the administration of ex-President Cleveland and the administrations of Gov. Pattison, and congratulating the American people on the result of the elections in the Southwest and in the New England States.

After selecting Allentown as the next place of meeting, the convention adjourned. Last night a mass meeting was held in the convention hall, at which Attorney-General Hensel, James W. Beck and other prominent men made addresses.

O'NEIL IS A BANK DIRECTOR.

He Is One of the Democratic Electoral Ticket and Probably Ineligible.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sep. 21.—George F. O'Neil, the Democratic elector from this district, is probably ineligible, according to a decision of Chairman Harrity, who cites the Federal law that no person holding an office of profit or trust under the United States government shall become an elector. Mr. O'Neil is a director of the First National Bank of this city.

Mr. Harrity urges that Democratic candidates who are national bank directors resign and give room for men who are certainly eligible.

BIG BATTLE IN DAHOMEY.

The Natives Lose 1,200 Killed and Wounded.

PARIS, Sep. 21.—Advices from Porto Novo say that the troops under Colonel Dodds, commander of the land forces of France in Dahomey, met and defeated 4,000 Dahomeyans at Dogba on September 17.

The fighting lasted four hours. The Dahomeyans lost about 1,200 killed and wounded. Col. Dodds lost 5 killed and 15 wounded. The Dahomeyans fought doggedly, and retreated from the field slowly.

ONLY FOUR SUSPECTS

Encouraging State of Affairs in Lower New York Bay.

STATE AND GOVERNMENT CLASH.

Surgeon-General Hamilton at Camp Low on Sandy Hook Refuses to Give up the Body of the Dead Italian to Dr. Jenkins, So that an Examination Can Be Made—A Chinese Cholera Suspect in the City.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Sep. 21. — The clash between the State and the Government officials over the handling of immigrants from cholera ships has reached a climax at last. Surgeon-General Hamilton has refused to turn over to Dr. Jenkins the body of Francisco Moreno, the patient who is said to have died of cholera. Dr. Jenkins desired to have an autopsy made and the cause of death determined by a bacteriological examination. The refusal to deliver the body made Dr. Jenkins indignant, and he has now decided to land no more passengers at Camp Low.

Dr. Jenkins made a statement to the representatives of the press in regard to the affair this morning. He said:

"I sent Dr. Abbott to Camp Low yesterday to obtain the body in order that an examination could be made which would remove all doubt as to the cause of death. Dr. Abbott reported to me that Dr. Hamilton refused to deliver the body, although he admits that one patient died of cholera. His refusal was conveyed in language more forcible than polite, although he was approached with politeness."

Dr. Jenkins said that he will do nothing further in regard to the removal of the body, as Sandy Hook is not, under his jurisdiction, being outside of the State. He said that Dr. Hamilton has absolute control of the people placed in his charge and can release them, landing them without waiting for Dr. Jenkins' permit.

Continuing, he said: "As the case now stands, I have turned over to the United States officials all the passengers at Camp Low, and they are responsible for whatever happens to them, or for the spreading of the disease, if they are permitted to take it ashore."

Four new suspected cases of cholera were discovered on the Bohemia in the lower bay late yesterday afternoon. Until the report was received stating that these suspects had been removed to Swinburne Island, the day was one of the quietest and most hopeful since the first appearance of cholera.

The new cases are:

Moses Newman, aged 18 years.
Ponkers Walhmann, aged 18.
Iser Sklar, 2 years.
Moses Miller, 12 years.

The cases occurred in four different families, and, as the other members of each family have been in contact with them, there will probably be other new cases from the Bohemia. All four of the cases are severe ones. They were taken to the hospital at once and their quarters on the ship were disinfected.

There are no deaths reported and the reports from the other ships and Hoffman Island are most encouraging.

The Normannia, Heligoland and Moravia, three of the infected ships, which have been held in the lower bay since their arrival, came up to the upper boarding station and anchored off Stapleton. This leaves only the Scandia and Bohemia at lower quarantine and the Wyoming in Gravesend Bay.

The Normannia, which was the first cholera ship, still has her steerage passengers aboard. They will probably be permitted to land to-day.

The charge that patients have been sent to Sandy Hook without proper detention at Hoffman Island after having been transferred from Swinburne "suspect ward," as safely past the incubation period, is indignantly denied.

Mrs. Louisa Scheidt, of New York, aged 38, is the woman who died from the effects of premature childbirth and alleged harsh treatment at Hoffman Island.

The Chinaman reported in the Health Board's last bulletin had been sick but for two days with a disease which had all the symptoms of cholera. He lived at No. 14 Mott street. Dr. Bresler of the Health Board and Officer Barnard Larkin of the Sixth precinct were there all last night as a sanitary guard. The place is run as a Chinese restaurant and lodging house. About 24 Chinamen live in the house.

Mrs. Harrison in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 21.—It was nearly 9 o'clock when the special train bearing the President and his invalid wife drew into the station. The journey from Loon Lake was made without accident. Secretary Halford says that Mrs. Harrison stood the fatigue of the journey much better than had been anticipated.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Hear the Marie Gurney English Opera company in "Pinafore", at Music Hall to-night.

—All sorts of dolls to delight the little people are now a special bargain at Rand's.

—"Will Harrison be elected?" Read his name backward and get your answer —"No, sirrah."

—Besides talented principals and a full chorus at Music Hall, to-night, there will be clever comedians and dancers.

—The fine piano used at the Republican meeting last night was gratuitously furnished by Vanderbeek & Sattels.

—The U. S. Grant club of North Plainfield will hold a special meeting in Spencer's Hall, this evening at 8, when a campaign marching club will be organized.

—That was a queer occurrence at the Republican mass-meeting last evening—the applause that followed mayor Gilbert's mention of the Hon. David B. Hill and the Hon Carl Schurz.

—A. M. Griffen is doing a great business. With him the bicycle has become a necessity, and he keeps four of the machines constantly in service among his men, besides four horses always on the go.

—The Courier says: "The Hon. John Kean, jr., when Governor of New Jersey, will have an unusual number of flat offices to distribute." The offices won't be half so "flat" as Mr. Kean will be, after election.

—The borough Republicans are doing things up in style. They are having electric wires arranged with colored lamps so that the new banner to be unfurled will be handsomely illuminated all night long with a gay border of red, white and blue lights.

—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will observe the World's W. C. T. U. programme to-morrow afternoon at 3:30. Interesting articles will be read appropriate to the occasion. The day will be observed in all parts of the World where exists a union, and there are nearly one hundred in foreign lands. Delegates to the State convention will be elected at the close of the meeting.

—A Park avenue restaurant keeper got into a row with his help yesterday and discharged them. This morning he drowned his sorrow in the flowing bowl, and at noon was wretchedly intoxicated, and stood in front of his place cursing and using all sorts of filthy language, to the disgust and horror of the women and others passing by. Some one went for a policeman, but none was found. The fellow should be suppressed.

—A good game of base-ball was played yesterday afternoon on the Fourth street grounds between the Red Stockings and the Jersey Blues. Eddie Connors played a fine game for the Red Stockings, stopping every ball thrown to him on first base. The game was very interesting, both teams playing good ball. The score at the ninth inning stood 11 to 9 in favor of the Red Stockings. The batteries were: Red Stockings, Newman and Kiely. Jersey Blues, J. Connors and VanDyke.

Mr. MacQuoid of Westfield Leaves the G. O. P.

Among recent additions to the roll of the New York Stock Exchange Cleveland and Stevenson club, is the name of C. W. MacQuoid, who four years ago was a vice-president of the Republican association of Westfield. He left the Republican party because he is a believer in tariff reform.

THE TIE TO BE BROKEN.

Plainfield and Somerville Will Play a Deciding Game Next Saturday for the Central New Jersey Championship.

It was decided yesterday at a meeting of the Central New Jersey Base-Ball league, that the Plainfield and Somerville base-ball teams should play off the tie for the pennant, in this place next Saturday.

There were present at the meeting, Messrs. Reed, Lyman and Leggett of this city, the two Macks of Somerville, Mr. Whalen of Elizabeth and Mr. Coding of Westfield. The Elizabeth and Westfield representatives declined to have any voice in the matter, and left Plainfield and Somerville to settle it among themselves.

Manager Reed was inclined—for a minute or two, at least—to carry out the desires of the majority of the Crescent league members and most of Plainfield's people.

But the Somerville man pleaded so hard for another game of his hired National leaguers against Plainfield's semi-professionals, that Mr. Reed gave way. Mack offered to play on any day, on any grounds and to give the entire gate receipts to Plainfield.

Such an offer, of course, Mr. Reed would not accept; but it was eventually agreed that a game to decide the championship should be played on the Crescents' grounds next Saturday, and that the receipts should be divided among the players of both teams. Manager Reed is satisfied that that is the best he could do. The season is too late, probably, for three games and a players' benefit besides. Only the regular prices will be charged Saturday, but the free list will be suspended and members' tickets will not be received.

TO CHANGE THE ENGINE'S QUARTERS.

Mr. Babcock Will Buy the Present No. 2 Site, and the City Will Purchase a Second Street Site.

The city common council held a short and sweet special session last night, President Ginna and councilman Johnston were absent. Councilman Marsh presided. The assessor's tax duplicate as delivered to the collector was approved. The only important business transacted related to the engine-house transfer. The council agreed to sell No. 2 engine-house property to Geo. H. Babcock for $8,000, and decided to purchase as a new engine-house site the land at 29 and 31 East Second street. J. F. MacDonald is the present owner. The land has a frontage of 74 feet, and a depth of 150. It is situated just west of Peace street. The price to be paid is $3,500. The committee on fire and buildings was authorized to attend to the details of the sale and purchase.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The reception after the marriage of Miss Howard and Mr. Squires, next month, will be held, it is said, in the Casino.

Miss Grace Cooley of Rockview avenue entertained a large company of friends at a german in the Park club-house last evening.

Cards were issued to-day for the wedding of Miss Mabel Carpenter of Princeton to W. E. Hinkson of the Central pharmacy. The ceremony will take place at Princeton Oct. 5.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Rogers, of the corner of Peace and Second streets, now has a little playmate, George E., jr., whose birthday anniversary will come Sept. 20.

The reports published in other papers concerning the death of Mrs. Cortlandt DeLacy Evans, at Carlsbad, of cholera, are false. Remember if you do n't see it in THE PRESS it is n't so.

An informal reception will be given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lord, corner of Broadway and Woodland avenue, Saturday evening, from 8 to 12. The music will be by Carpenter.

The wedding of Miss Grace Howard and G. Harry Squires will take place at Grace church, Wednesday evening, Oct. 5, at 7. Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Howard, the bride's parents, will give a reception at the Casino immediately after the ceremony, followed by dancing at 10.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Edgar F. Randolph took place at Trinity church yesterday. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck preach a sermon dwelling on the quiet, unassuming nature of the departed, his good, honest, Christian life, his devotion to his employers. Mr. Randolph worked for Cook Bros. 24 years, and was ever faithful to their interests. Some time ago he was injured by a falling timber, and it is thought that the paralysis of which he died may perhaps have resulted from that injury. The floral tributes at the funeral were very handsome. The black casket was strewn with cut flowers, and there were a pillow with the word "Father", another piece with the word "Grandpa", and a sheaf of wheat.

He Thinks Anything's Good Enough For Poor Folks.

There is a borough ordinance requiring every property-owner to put a sidewalk in front of his house. W. W. Howland, of Rockview avenue, who sent a petition to the borough council against a street railroad on Somerset street, saying that he did not believe in street railroads, factories and all so-called improvements, has nothing but a gravel walk for the people to use who go afoot by his elegant mansion, yet from his gate to the piazza he has laid a fine asphaltum walk which he uses daily to reach his carriage.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

JOHN KEAN SHOWS HIMSELF.

Plainfield Republicans Turn Out to Greet Their Candidate.

THOSE Plainfield Republicans who complained ten days ago that the "bannar raising" was devoid of enthusiasm had no such cause for railing against last night's Republican demonstration. The Crescent rink has been leased by the local Republican managers for campaign purposes, and from now until December, this hall will be a sort of headquarters for the party's Plainfield clubs.

Last night's affair gave evidence of careful preparation and management. There was music in abundance, both vocal and instrumental, red-fire galore, bombs bursting in air, considerable oratory for protection, etc., and last, but by no means the least of all the attractions, the presence of the Hon. John Kean, jr., the Gubernatorial nominee of the Republican party in New Jersey.

The Hon. John Ulrich came up from his summer home at Avon Monday in order to open the meeting last night. He nominated his honor Mayor Gilbert as chairman of the gathering of perhaps 400 Republicans, and declared him unanimously elected by the voice of those present. The choice was a fitting one.

The appearance of the Hon. John Kean upon the platform was the signal for applause as hearty as it was prolonged. He took a seat where he could see and be seen to the greatest advantage.

Mayor Gilbert delivered a short speech which displayed his thorough familiarity with the banking business. He showed that the increase of money deposited in the United States banks was several times that of the banks of the United Kingdom, during the last ten years. His argument was that the condition of the workingmen here was thus proved to be better. His supposition that all this money in America belonged to the "poor workingman" will be disputed by many.

Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Republican Philadelphia Press, and ex-minister to Russia, was named as the principal speaker of the evening. As an orator Mr. Smith aroused intense enthusiasm at times among the audience. His complimentary remarks about Plainfield's beauty as a city swelled the pride of his hearers at the start, and his subsequent bursts of political eloquence were therefore well received. His speech lasted considerably over an hour, and the pine benches became too hard for many to continue sitting upon long before he finished.

Mr. Kean's remarks were as usual, "fitting and few".

The singing of the glee club under the directorship of Mr. MacClymont was excellent. The singers already give evidence of improvement in voice culture. The band was in general harmonious.

The vice-presidents of the meeting were: William V. Stout, Dr. J. B. Probasco, William Rockwell, Dr. O. L. Jenkins, William Northrup, John Brooks, J. K. Myers, Isaac Giles, C. M. Ulrich, F. W. Reinhart, B. B. Gray, Charles Potter, jr., A. C. Stebbins, Pliny Fiske, William Thompson, E. R. Pope, L. W. Serrell, F. S. Runyon, E. B. Clark, Benj. F. Millington, John Thompson, Hon. Charles Place, B. A. Hegeman, jr., George Dupee, Charles W. McCutchen, L. H. Bigelow, jr.

The secretaries E. E. Anthony, V. W. Nash, Roger F. Murray, Alexander Titsworth, H. N. Spencer.

Plainfield Cold-Water Men Wide-Awake.

A meeting of the Prohibition League of Plainfield was held at 6 Park avenue last evening and was largely attended. Thirty-one new names were added to the roll. A committee with power to procure a campaign headquarters was appointed, and a considerable sum of money was subscribed to meet expenses. There will probably be a banner raised, and the headquarters will be stocked with campaign and prohibition literature.

Judging from the appearance of things, there will be quite an increase of the Prohibition vote this fall.

Several active Prohibitionists have recently taken up their abode in Plainfield; among them is T. W. Burger, formerly of Cranford.

Councilman Bird Wakes Up the Town.

A small fire occurred in Plainfield at 5 this morning, when a shed at the rear of 6 Elm place was destroyed. People who saw the flames awoke councilman Bird to get a fire-box key, and that gentleman promptly sent in the alarm from box 15. The section of the department assigned to that district turned out, and did excellent work. The new fire hydrants were found to operate splendidly, and the streams of water thrown would have flooded out a wholesale conflagration. The loss was slight, and the cause of the fire is unknown. The fire-gong's resonant notes aroused everybody for five miles around, and everyone had a chance to sniff the cool and bracing frosty morn-air, and to see a glorious sunrise. The shed was used as a carpenter shop. The fire developed the necessity of a signal-box nearer to that neighborhood than No. 15. The corner of Front and Peace streets would be a good location.

An Extraordinary Combination Coming.

The present being the initial tour by Sousa's New Marine band it can hardly fail to rivet the attention of the entire musical element everywhere, for the reason that the public will naturally be curious over Sousa's ability to create a greater than his old Washington band. Sousa has already said that the new band is the greatest body of high-class artists he has ever seen in one organization in either the new or old world, and in saying it he gave his unbiased judgment as a musician. Add to this body, directed by Sousa himself, two other distinguished artists, Marcella Lindh, operatic soprano, and Antonio Galassi, baritone, of Patti opera fame, and the combination does appear to be an extraordinary one. This incomparable organization will appear in a grand military concert at Music Hall, Monday, Sept. 26.

WE 'RE AGIN THE TROLLEY!

No wonder there 's sech lots o' gab
About the Borough Trolley,
Fer we, what's liven in the Park,
Do n't think it will be jolly

To hev it buzzin' past our doors
A sendin' out blue blazes,
A thunderin', roarin' till our heads
Is all in dizzy mazes.

Now hevin' bought some property,
An' livin' on it quiet,
We really s'pose we hev a right
Ter stop the wire goin' by it.

It is so awful dangerous—
So apt ter kill us quickly;—
An' how we 'd like to see some folks
A sizzlen on it slickly!

Some on us hev no kerriges
Ter ride in ter the station;
We walks ter keep dyspepsy off
An' nervous prosteration.

An' when we looks up ter the sky
Ter calkelate the weather,
We hates ter feel we're in a cage
Of wires strung together.

The Boss begins ter feel the air
A gitten blue around him,
But he'd continer right ahead
If them agin it drowned him.

He says he is a dimmicrat
A workin fer the masses,
An' folks what don't agree with him
Is purty silly asses!

The masses in this land so free—
I s'pose we all are notin'—
Is them as comes across the sea
To help us with our votin'!

Though lackin' learnin' out o' books
They knows we all is equal;
An' puttin' this aninst ter that,
'Taint hard to guess the sequel.

AN IMPORTANT INVENTION.

A New Process for Making Canvas Impervious to Water.

The invention most valuable to circus managers ever developed is a process of actually water-proofing the canvas which is used in the mammoth tents which cover circuses. The invention is pronounced an entire success after a year's trial, which included several weeks on the Pacific coast during the rainy season. The invention is controlled and used exclusively by the Adam Forepaugh shows and the Barnum and Bailey shows. The process of water-proofing is an expensive one, but it pays for itself many times over as soon as the public discovers that it really is efficacious in preventing water from passing through the canvas, and they find an added pleasure in attending a circus performance in the rain, with the absolute certainty of being as dry and as comfortable as if they were seated beneath a more substantial roof. This water-proof canvas also makes it possible to display all the gorgeous costumes of the richest silks, satins, velvets and metallic armor which are worn in the sublime Biblical spectacle, The Fall of Nineveh, which is given as an addition to all the great array of superexcellent features of the programme of the great shows as seen upon its last visit here. The shows will be here on Friday next. If, perchance, the weather should be wet it need make no difference so far as seeing the great shows goes, because the performance will be given complete and entire, and can be witnessed without dodging raindrops or holding umbrellas, as many readers have doubtless been compelled to do before when caught in the rain at the circus. The invention is estimated as worth many thousands of dollars in a season to the Adam Forepaugh shows.

Read This, Mr. Farmer.

Farmers are altogether too extravagant. This is why they get in debt, why they are mortgaged. Again, they do not work like business men, they ought to attend to their business strictly.—New York Tribune.

Go to, lest a fool killer should come your way Whitelaw.

Too extravagant, and yet you have a house on your farm in Westchester county that cost $150,000, and the furniture as much more.

Too extravagant, and yet your house in New York is a palace and it costs you $50,000 a year to maintain it.

Ought to attend to their business and work harder.

You Piute! you who married the profits of other men's labor you want the farmers to work harder and attend to their business do you?

Say, in all kindness, they propose to look after their business, and in doing so will not vote for you to be a silent partner in the White House.

What a pair, Whitelaw the trotter and little Benny for a running mate. He who said that a laboring man had no need for more than one dollar per day.

Nice men these to tell you to tend to your business better and that a dollar a day is enough. You will hear something "drap" about the 8th of November. Keep your ears to the ground.—Hunterdon Democrat-Advertiser.

9:26-30:'92.

These magic figures mean pleasure and profit to you. Don't puzzle over them too long; their meaning is simple enough when you remember they represent the dates of the greatest of eastern fairs.

The great Inter-State fair, at Trenton, N. J., promises to be better this year than ever before. For four years the management has made this boast, and every succeeding exhibition has fulfilled its promise.

Liberal expenditures in every department is the secret of its success. That's part of the secret. A judicious and liberal use of printers' ink is the real talisman. Anyone who has followed the short but successful history of this association, cannot fail to find the keynote to its prosperity—an apparently reckless but really intelligent system of advertising.

The Bicycle Carnival.

The Plainfield Bicycle club is planning for a great day Oct. 15, when their big wheelmen's carnival will be held. At 1 p. m. there will be a grand parade of all the wheelmen of the town, headed by the Plainfield Bicycle club and a band, to the driving park, where races will be held for $1,000 worth of prizes. All of the crack riders will participate, including possibly the famous Zimmerman. There will be races of intense interest, open to Plainfielders only. In the evening there will be a "smoker", with cigars and coffee in abundance, at the club-house. Altogether it will be a great day.

A NEW COAL DEAL PROPOSED.

It Is Said That the Central May Lease the Reading, Lehigh Valley and Port Reading.

The railroad people are said to have a new project in contemplation, and although it is impossible at present to obtain accurate information concerning it, it is said that under the new scheme the Reading company will be enabled to carry out the combination without infringing any of the State laws. The suit against the Port Reading to annul its charter has resulted in abandonment of the old scheme.

The new scheme will embrace the same roads, the difference being merely in the arrangement. In the new deal, the Central Railroad of New Jersey will lease the Philadelphia and Reading, the Lehigh Valley and the Port Reading Railroad, and although the entire system will be run by the Central, it will be under the control of the people who were at the head of the coal combine.

There are several reasons for the change. In the first place, there is no law prohibiting a domestic railroad corporation from leasing another railroad. The law of 1885 prohibits foreign companies coming into the State and obtaining control of domestic railroad corporations by lease or otherwise. Chancellor McGill's decision declaring the lease void was mainly based on the law.

Another reason for the proposed arrangement is, that the Vail estate of Morristown, which has twice brought suit to annul leases made by the Central to other companies, can have no objection to the Central railroad leasing other companies.

Another rumor is that the roads will be run separately, and a combination made among the coal companies, which will give the Reading control of the anthracite coal lands. While accurate information is not at hand, it seems certain that a new deal is in contemplation.

Rosh Hashonah's Gaieties.

With the setting of to-day's sun all good Hebrews will speed the old year and welcome the new. There will be joyous greetings—the usual formula is, "May you be inscribed for a happy new year"—good wishes and happy family reunions. Rosh Hashonah, as the Jewish New Year is called, is celebrated by its observers as the anniversary of the creation, so that this evening will begin with them the civil year 5,653. Only Hebrews of extremely orthodox faith, however, compute any but ecclesiastical events by that date.

Rosh Hashonah is the first of the ten Penitential Days, on which, according to Jewish belief, all human beings stand in judgment before their Maker for their actions during the past year, and have their fate for the ensuing decided. It extends from sunset to sunset. Rosh Hashonah, which means the beginning of the year, is also called Yom Hazikoron, the day of memorial; Yom Hadin, the day of judgment, and Yom Truoh, the day of blowing of trumpets.

Fall Overcoats.

The elegant fall overcoats, which Geo. Watson & Co., of Newark, are offering to that portion of the public who always go well dressed and are in pursuit of tasty goods and such as are gotten up in the very latest and nobbiest styles, are all the rage. Just think of it? One of these fall overcoats cut from Venetians, Cheviots, Clays and Cord Worsteds in great variety of new shades, can be bought from this old and reliable firm for prices truly startling. The coats cut from their elegant Black Cord Worsteds which they sell for $10 cannot be told from custom made and are marvels for beauty and as dressy as can be. There is no left over business about it either, even though some of their fall overcoats are sold as low as $6, but it is the know how, which pervades the establishment, which makes it possible. Geo. Watson & Co., the Broad and Market Street Clothiers.—The Newark Item.

The First Dance of the Season.

The first subscription German of the season was held at the Park club, last evening. It was led by Clarence L. Murphy, and was unqualifiedly successful.

The matronesses were: Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, jr., Mrs. Virginia B. Hart and Mrs. T. L. Murphy.

Among those who danced were: The Misses Murphy, Huntington, Dumont, Harte, Waring, Cooley, Hart, Massett, VanBoskerck, Walz, Underwood and Yates; and Messrs. Cox, Wadsworth, Leonard, Waring, Erickson, VanBuren, Munn, Murphy, Cooley, Yates, Opdycke, Raymond, Moore and Murray.

The dance began at 9 with music by Rogers and Conde. The favors were beautiful. Stevenson was the caterer.

Columbus Day in the Schools.

The vice-principals met Supt. Maxson this week to consider the question of Columbus-Day celebration. It seemed to be the general opinion that it is not wise to take up too much of the pupils' time at the very opening of the year, to prepare an elaborate celebration. It was therefore decided that each principal should assemble his school in the chapel on the morning of Oct. 21, and have exercises in honor of the day, much as on authors' birthdays, using the official programme as a foundation, but dropping some features and adding others as seemed advisable for each school.

Senator McPherson may congratulate himself on his having set a good example to all law-abiding citizens where another official, State Railroad Commissioner Alfred C. Chapin, committed a very gross breach of regulations. Mr. McPherson stayed by the ship. Mr. Chapin, arriving on the Fuerst Bismarck, stole ashore from her, with all his baggage, before the customs officers boarded her. The ship is liable to a fine of $1,000 for letting Mr. Chapin go; but of course the Railroad Commissioner does not mind a little thing like that.

RAISING THE QUARANTINE.

No More Danger From the Old Cholera Cases in New York—Favorable Reports From the Health Board.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The bulletin posted at 10 this morning by the Board of Health read as follows:

"No cases of cholera have appeared in this city since the last bulletin."

It was announced that the quarantine on the following houses would be raised to-morrow:

No. 1,625 Madison avenue, where the Hoppe case was discovered; 1,764 Second avenue, where the Beck woman and her husband lived; 428 East Eighty-fifth street, where the man Beck and child were taken for isolation; 221 East Thirty-first street, where the woman Annie Conity, now in the Reception Hospital, was a servant; 879 Tenth avenue, where the case of the McAvoy was found, and 768 Eleventh avenue, where the Weigmans lived.

Dr. Roberts said the house in Forty-seventh street where Minnie Levinger lived would be kept quarantined several days more, on account of the large number of children there.

Two suspected cases were reported this morning, but neither one is thought to be cholera.

All are well on the City of Paris, the Spaarndan, and Westernland, which arrived to-day.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY COLLISION.

Nine Persons Killed on the Fort Wayne Road—Wreck of the Chicago Express by Running Into a Freight Train—Five Passenger Cars Burned.

WOOSTER, O., September 21.—The Chicago express crashed into a freight train on the Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne Roap at Shreve, O., this morning. Nine persons were killed outright, three seriously injured, and others slightly hurt.

The express train is known as No. 8, and the freight was the first section of No. 75. The express was approaching at full speed when the freight, which had been lying on a siding, suddenly pulled on to the main track in front of it. Before either train could stop, they were in collision. It is thought that the engineer of the freight train did not understand his orders.

Both locomotives were ditched and completely smashed. Six cars of the express, including the postal car, two express cars, the baggage-car, smoking-car, and one coach, together with five of the freight cars, were also wrecked.

ONE MAN KILLED AND THREE FATALLY INJURED.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—The second section of the Philadelphia express, eastward bound, and the second section of the Pacific express, westward bound, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, ran into each other at Rheem's Station, fifteen miles west of here, at 3 this morning. One engineer was killed, the other fatally injured, and the firemen of both trains were fatally injured. None of the passengers were hurt. One of the engineers disregarded orders and ran past the switch. The tracks are badly blocked.

WRECKED BY TRAIN ROBBERS.

Five Persons Killed on the Santa Fe Road and a Number Fatally Hurt.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 21.—The regular east-bound night express on the Santa Fe road was wrecked by train robbers three miles west of Osage City at 3 this morning. Five persons were killed and a number fatally injured.

Bound to Create a Scare.

Some of the residents of Pearl street still insist that the recent death of a child there was due to scarlet fever and not to a less contagious disorder. They hold that the board of health has sought to smooth the case over, and has falsely reported the cause of death. They are so bitter about the matter—these good kind neighbors—that out of spite they refused even to lend necessary garments to the poor, bereaved and needy mother to wear to the funeral. THE PRESS is disposed to accept the judgment of the board of health in the premises, that body having made a thorough investigation. The people should be grateful to escape pestilence, and not develop anger because the health authorities have used care and discretion.

The Road Will Be Built Where the People Want It.

The wealthy people of the borough who ride in chaises are circulating a petition against the introduction of street cars into North Plainfield. They need have no fear that any of their rights will be trespassed on. The railroad is proposed only for streets where a majority of the property-owners want and demand it. The law directs just how the building of a road shall proceed, and the North Plainfield railway will be established just as law and justice require. The streets of the Tuxedo Park kickers will not be disturbed.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. WHAT TO EAT is a difficult problem with many people because but few articles of food agree with them. The doctor says and the result is unpalatable food. The reason the physician objects to grease is because lard is the article most used, and every physician knows that hog lard in any shape is unhealthy and indigestible.

Every one interested in pure and healthful food hails with joy the new product which is composed of pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet—nothing else—not even salt. It is better than either lard or butter for all cooking purposes, and one pound of Cottolene will do as much as two pounds of lard or butter, and it costs less than either.

Every housekeeper that tries Cottolene will find in it just what she wants.

Beware of imitations—get the geniune of your grocer.

WANTS $10,000 DAMAGES

First Suit Against Hamburg-American Packet Company.

MANY MORE LIKELY TO FOLLOW.

Another Case of Cholera in New York City—Startling Situation at Camp Low on Sandy Hook—No New Cases Reported Down the Bay—Great Suffering Among the Poor in Hamburg.

NEW YORK, Sep. 22. — Cortlandt S. Van Rensselaer of this city, who was a passenger on the steamship Normannia during her recent trip from Hamburg to this port, and who, with the rest of the Normannia's cabin passengers, was detained at Quarantine, and subsequently transferred to Fire Island, has begun a suit for damages against the Hamburg-American Packet Company for $10,000 damages.

Papers have been filed with Judge Addison Brown of the United States District Court for libel on the Normannia. In his complaint Mr. Van Rensselaer avers that he is a citizen of New York city, and with his wife was in Europe during the summer. On August 23 he went to the London office of the Hamburg American Company to purchase first-class tickets for his wife and himself, but having heard that cholera was then raging in Hamburg, he made inquiries as to whether any steerage passengers were to be carried by the Normannia or not.

Mr. Van Rensselaer says he was assured by the London agents that no steerage passengers would be carried, and relying on these assurances, was booked a passenger from Southampton to New York. He adds that on being taken on a tug to the ship from Southampton he learned for the first time that steerage passengers were carried.

The company, he therefore alleges, is guilty of direct falsehood, fraud and misrepresentation, through which he has been injured by fear of infection, and suffering endured by being detained eleven days at quarantine. The libel will be heard in a few days.

Many more suits of a similar character will be instituted if this one is successful.

ANOTHER CASE IN NEW YORK.

Suspect Weinhagen Has Cholera—Situation at Quarantine.

NEW YORK, Sep. 22.—It is announced that as a result of the examination of Louis Weinhagen, who was removed from No. 14 First street a few days ago, the cased proved to be one of Asiatic cholera. He is still at the reception hospital, to which place he was removed when his case was discovered.

Simon Knox, of the steamship State of Nevada, who died on board the ship on Sept. 18, also had Asiatic cholera. The Nevada has been ordered to lower quarantine.

Additions to the detained fleet at Upper Quarantine are keeping pace with the releases, and this morning finds the group about as large as yesterday morning, when the boarding officer began his work.

The passengers of the Moravia, the first arrival of the plague-stricken Hamburg fleet, which anchored at Upper Quarantine yesterday after twenty-one days in the cholera roadstead in the lower bay, have been sent to Ellis Island, where they will probably be released.

The collector's office is rigid in its demand, that no sugar which is brought in woven gunny sacks shall be broken from the vessel's hold unless under rules laid down by the Quarantine Department.

Dr. Jenkins' circular providing that sugar must be emptied from the sack onto lighters, and that empty bags must then be returned on the ships and boiled in water or soaked in tanks of bichloride solution, necessarily involves a vast amount of expense for handling. After being emptied on the lighters the sugar must be returned to the cleansed sacks, or new ones, before it can be landed on the wharf. Already in ships here from infected ports there are 200,000 sacks of sugar.

SUPPLIES SHUT OFF.

The Quarantined People at Camp Low May Soon Be Starving.

CAMP LOW, SANDY HOOK, Sep. 22.—With pestilence and starvation in view the outlook for the inhabitants of the Quarantine station is anything but pleasant. The managers of the southern branch of the New Jersey Central Railroad have notified Gen. Hamilton that from this date no supplies for either this or the marine camp will be carried by their trains, and a telegram has been received from Secretary Howe, of the State Board of Health of New Jersey, saying that the authorities of the State can render no help because of the terror of persons in towns near Camp Low.

This action puts the camp in a bad plight, for there is barely enough coal and ice on hand to last 24 hours, but the officials here do not believe that the public will sanction the cutting off of necessaries.

CAMP LOW, SANDY HOOK, Sep. 22.—The medical report this morning is very encouraging. There are no new cases of cholera, and all those ill are rapidly recovering, including Mrs. Domiz, who was taken from the Normannia several days ago, suffering from cholera.

Brazil Declares New York "Infected."

NEW YORK, Sep. 22.—A notice is posted at the Maritime Exchange to the effect that Brazil has declared a quarantine against all Atlantic ports of the United States, describing New York as "infected," and all other Atlantic ports as "suspected." Shippers said that this would mean a practical embargo. The Brazilian Minister cabled his government that no case of cholera had appeared in New York since the 13th inst., and asked that the order be modified.

Carr Had the Genuine Article.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sep. 22.—Last evening Dr. H. R. Baldwin, president of the Board of Health, received the bacteriological report of Dr. Edson of New York on the case of James Carr, who died here a few days ago. The report says: "James Carr died of genuine Asiatic cholera."

Indictments Against Defaulter Dann.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 22.—A batch of 22 secret indictments has been handed to Judge Hatch by the grand jury. They are said to be against Edward S. Dann, who wrecked the National Savings Bank, and William S. McCready and Charles C. Armstrong, his assistants. The majority of the indictments are against Dann.

GREAT DISTRESS IN HAMBURG.

Starvation Now Confronting Many of the Residents.

HAMBURG, Sep. 22. —The reports from the stricken suburbs encourage the people to believe that a steady and rapid abatement of the plague has begun. The fresh cases reported to-day number almost 100 less than yesterday.

The temporary field hospitals have been closed. The physicians and nurses are now able to attend to their duties while observing regular hours. The congestion of the mortuaries has ceased, and many drivers of dead wagons have been paid off and dismissed.

The distress of the unemployed, however, has become almost as grave a question as has been the cholera. The relief committee is spending thousands of marks daily, yet cannot feed 50 per cent. of the people applying for food.

The eating sheds are besieged by hungry crowds all day, and, if hundreds of families are not to be abandoned to starvation, new facilities for serving free meals must be found.

The work must be continued for many weeks after the disappearance of the epidemic, for thousands who have heretofore saved from the autumn wages for their winter support are penniless and destitute already.

PARIS, Sep. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Kernaghan and their four children have died here of cholera within the last 48 hours. They were the first English people in the city to succumb to the disease.

FIENDISH TRAIN ROBBERS.

Their Work near Topeka Results in Five Dead and Twenty Injured.

TOPEKA, Kas., Sep. 22.—One of the most destructive train wrecks ever known in the history of the Atchison road took place two and one-half miles west of Topeka yesterday morning.

It was the work of train wreckers whose object was robbery.

The train was the Missouri River night express from Denver and San Francisco.

At least five lives were lost and more than a score of passengers were seriously injured.

In the express car there was about $1,000,000 which was being shipped by the Mexican Central Railroad Company through to its general offices in Boston.

The object of the wreckers was not accomplished, owing to the manner in which the express car was buried by the coaches that were piled upon it in general confusion.

So high was the wreckage heaped that it was literally impossible to find the engine, let alone the treasure box.

The wreckers had removed the bolt from the east end of a rail, swinging it outward toward the embankment, thus switching the train off the roadbed.

CAUSED BY NATURAL GAS.

A Disastrous Fire at Friendship, N. Y.—Five Buildings Burned.

BELMONT, N. Y., Sep. 22. — Natural gas caused a disastrous fire at Friendship, five miles west of here, yesterday. The fire started in Scott's drug store from a gas lamp which was not turned down, and when other lights and fires in town were put out the pressure of gas made a heavy flame which set fire to the wood work.

Aid was asked for from neighboring towns, and the Wellsville steamer arrived in time to save the First National Bank. Scarcity of water added to the other difficulties in fighting the flames, and the fire raged for several hours.

Five buildings were destroyed. The losses aggregate $80,000, about half insured.

DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

The Railroad Wreck Near Lancaster, Pa.—Three Are Fatally Hurt.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sep. 22.—The collision yesterday between two passenger trains near Rheems Station, fifteen miles west of here on the Pennsylvania road, was more serious than at first supposed and seems to have been caused by flagrant carelessness and a violation of orders.

The colliding trains were the second section of the Philadelphia express eastward bound and the second section of the Pacific express westward bound.

Both trains were wrecked.

One engineer was killed outright and the other and the firemen of both trains fatally injured.

The passengers were badly shaken up, and some of them, it is said, seriously injured.

The tracks were badly blocked for some time, causing serious delay to traffic.

HOMESTEAD MEN INDICTED.

Three Charges of Murder and Two of Aggravated Riot.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 22.—The grand jury has returned true bills in all the cases against the Homestead men growing out of the riot there on July 6 last. There are six indictments handed down, three of which are for murder, two for aggravated riot and one for conspiracy.

There are in all the cases an aggregate of 167 defendants, although many of them are defendants in two or more of the cases. In all of the cases passed upon Hugh O'Donnell, Hugh Ross and Burgess McLuckie of Homestead are named as defendants.

Several of the indicted men are officials of the Amalgamated Association.

Shortening the Dedicatory Exercises.

CHICAGO, Sep. 22.—The Council of Administration of the World's Fair is still hard at work on the problem of shortening the programme of the dedicatory exercises, and it has practically decided to omit the dedicatory ode which consists of 20,000 words. The question of the orations has been definitely settled. Chauncey M. Depew and W. C. P. Breckenridge are to be the orators. Their orations will be delivered on the same day and will be co-equal in dignity.

Steamer South Portland Leaves New York For the South.

A SWIFT VESSEL TO GO IN PURSUIT

The Venezuelan Officials in New York Charter a Ship for the Purpose of Preventing the South Portland from Landing the Munitions in Their Country.

NEW YORK, Sep. 22.—The steamer South Portland, loaded with arms and ammunition and ostensibly bound for Port of Spain, Trinidad, was granted clearance papers yesterday. The vessel has lain off Bedloe's Island for a week past, pending an examination of Francisco Gonzales, owner of her cargo, who was arrested at the instance of the Venezuelan Consul at this port on a charge of violating the neutrality laws between this country and Venezuela. Gonzales was discharged for lack of evidence and the Treasury Department yesterday ordered the vessel's release.

But the end is not yet. There is every reason to believe that before the South Portland is many miles outside of Sandy Hook a steamer chartered by the Venezuelan authorities will have started to overhaul her. The South Portland sailed early this morning.

General Parasa, the Venezuelan Minister, was very much chagrined when he heard of the release of the South Portland yesterday. He complained that he had not received justice at the hands of this government in the case. He would not deny the rumor that a vessel was to be sent after the South Portland. The rumor is also substantiated in other quarters, and indications point to the steamer Catherine Whiting, now lying at the foot of Twenty-fifth street, Brooklyn, as the craft to be sent out. The Catherine Whiting was formerly one of the Windsor line boats, and plied between Philadelphia and Boston. She is in charge of Capt. E. L. Eldridge, and is all ready for service, except for provisions and water. She is nearly 500 tons burden and is claimed to make 15 knots. The South Portland will only make 8 knots.

Capt. Eldridge was seen yesterday by a reporter. On the cabin table before him lay a chart showing the Venezuelan coast. He declared that he knew all about the South Portland's plans.

Captain Eldridge would not deny that the Whiting was being held in readiness for sea.

Capt. Arthur Smith of the South Portland was seen by the reporter yesterday after he had received his ship's clearance papers. He was accompanied by Louis C. Raegener of 280 Broadway, Senor Gonzales' lawyer. The gentlemen would not tell where Gonzales was. He is supposed to have secreted himself on the South Portland, and they disclaimed any knowledge of his whereabouts.

The South Portland's cargo is described as "stores and merchandise." The vessel clears for Trinidad for orders, and may go anywhere to discharge that her owners may see fit.

"We have a cargo of arms on board," said Mr. Smtth, "but they are not contraband. They are intended for Mr. Gonzales, who is a dealer at Port of Spain."

Mr. Smith denied hotly that the South Portland was trying to slip out of the harbor Tuesday night without her clearance papers when boarded by a revenue cutter.

Goddard Beaten by a Colored Man.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 22.—Joe Goddard, the Australian champion pugilist, met his Waterloo last night at the Ariel Athletic Club, in the presence of 2,000 persons, at the hands of Joe Butler, of Philadelphia, colored. The negro did not weigh over 165 pounds, while Goddard was at least 30 pounds heavier. Butler had things his own way in the first two rounds, knocking Goddard down cleanly by right-hand swings on the jaw in each round. In the third, when Goddard was groggy, the mill was stopped, after having lasted but half a minute.

Several Hurt in a Collision.

CLEVELAND, O., Sep. 22.—A Cedar Avenue Electric motor car collided with a Pennsylvania freight train at the Cedar Avenue crossing shortly before 8 o'clock and a number of people were injured, two of them, it is thought, fatally. The motor-man says the accident was due to the fact that he was unable to shut off his electric current.

Esquimaux Start for the Fair.

CHICAGO, Sep. 22.—Sixty Esquimaux, accompanied by several hundred dogs and a number of reindeer, have sailed from Labrador. They will live all winter in the Esquimaux village, comprising three acres in Jackson Park, Chicago. During the World's Fair they will give exhibitions with their peculiar canoes and firearms.

Another Ineligible Elector.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sep. 22.—Dr. David Kennedy, who is the elector on the Democratic ticket for the 18th district, is affected by the provision of the United States statutes to which Chairman Harrity of the Democratic National Committee in a circular calls attention that bank directors are not eligible on the National ticket.

Hawaii's New Cabinet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 22.—The steamer Australia has arrived from Honolulu with the news that the Queen has appointed the following new Cabinet: Edward MacFarlane, Premier and Minister of Finance; Samuel Parker, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Charles T. Gulick, Minister of the Interior; Paul Neuman, Attorney-General.

ELEVEN WERE KILLED.

The Wreck at Shreve, O.—Neglect of Orders the Cause.

SHREVE, O., Sep. 22.—The disastrous wreck on the Pittsburg & Chicago Railroad near here early yesterday morning between the New York limited and a freight train was due to neglect or misunderstanding of orders by the crew of the freight train, which had been sidetracked at Wooster to allow the limited to pass.

For some as yet unknown reason the order was disregarded and the freight pulled out and was under full headway.

The flash of the headlights was the first warning received by the engineers, who simultaneously reversed their engines. It was too late, however, and the huge engines plunged into each other at almost full speed.

Following is a list of the killed and injured.

KILLED.

CHARLES SMITH, fireman.
W. E. HAMMOND, fireman.
G. B. MANN, postal clerk.
H. S. ALLEN, postal clerk.
D. E. REESE, postal clerk.
J. T. PATTERSON, postal clerk.
A. E. GLENN, brakeman.
Two ladies, Espyville Pa.
One lady and one child, Alliance, O.

INJURED.

A. Bradley, engineman.
Frank Burt, engineman.
Joseph Ade, postal clerk.
G. Starker, Pittsburg.
D. B. Rhodes, Mahoningtown.
W. H. Brown, Huntington, Ind.
M. Armstrong, Noblesville, Ind.
J. Ernest, Millville, Ind.
—— Lucox, Massillon, O.

The crash was terrible as the trains came together. The engines reared high from the track while their momentum drove them fairly through each other and then with the hissing steam and scalding water pouring from every seam and rivet they fell into the ditch alongside the track.

The freight cars telescoped one another until little but a jumble of wood and iron remained.

The panic-stricken passengers, bruised and stunned, were thrown from their berths and seats.

The passenger engineer, fireman, two postal clerks and two passengers from the express and the fireman and front brakeman on the freight train were instantly killed.

The engineer of the freight train jumped from his engine and escaped instant death, but was seriously injured.

The postal car caught fire and the flames spread rapidly to the two express cars, baggage car, smoker and first coach.

The night was pitchy dark but the horrible spectacle was illumined from the rapidly burning cars.

The accident occurred about two miles from the village of Shreve, but the country folk, trainmen and passengers at once set about the work of rescuing those imprisoned in the wrecked coaches.

A messenger was dispatched to Shreve for assistance and from that point word was sent to the railway officials.

As soon as the remains of the dead were carried out and the injured and imprisoned passengers were in places of safety, attention was given to preventing the flames from spreading to the remaining coaches and sleeping cars.

By this time a wrecking train had arrived and everything possible for the comfort of the victims of the accident was promptly done by the company's officials.

The track was cleared and traffic was resumed within three hours.

The passengers were transferred to other coaches and started for Pittsburg, where they arrived about noon.

HAS PECK BEEN INDICTED?

It Will Not Be Known Until He is Brought Into Court.

ALBANY, Sep. 22.—The handing in of a sealed return by the grand jury in Commissioner Peck's case has caused a great stir among the officials here. The document is thought by many to be an indictment of the Commissioner.

Mr. Peck is not to be found, and is supposed to be absent from the city with the advice of his counsel. The return will not be opened until he is brought into court under arrest by the officers of the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Edward J. Meegan, who is counsel for Mr. Peck, says that he expected an indictment.

Mr. Peck was expected in the city yesterday, and had telegraphed his office that he would be here, but at the last moment was warned not to come until measures could be taken to meet the indictment. Mr. Meegan alleges that the idea is to get Mr. Peck in jail so that the Governor will have a chance to remove him before the coming election.

Commissioner Peck is charged with having destroyed public documents, consisting of the written statements of merchants and others which formed the evidence on which the Commissioner's report was based.

A CORPORATION'S NIGGARDNESS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's Inaction in the Case of Widow Rollins.

MONMOUTH JUNCTION, N. J., Sep. 22.—There is great indignation here that the money, said to be $250, collected for the widow and children of John Rollins, who was killed on the Pennsylvania Railroad a few days ago while in the discharge of his duties, and through no fault or carelessness of his own, has not yet been turned over.

The poor woman and her four little children will certainly go to the poor house unless something is done for them by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

It is believed that if some one would take up her case and push her claim against the company something might be done.

Opening of Princeton University.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sep. 22.—The first term, 146th session of the college here was formally opened yesterday afternoon by President Francis Landey Patton, who presided at the regular opening exercises in Marquand Chapel. In his address President Patton stated that the entering class this year is larger than ever before in the history of the college—numbering 346. This will make the entire number of students here about 1,300.

Werts Will Say on Monday.

TRENTON, Sep. 22.—Judge Werts, when interviewed to-day, declined to say whether he would accept or decline the nomination for Governor, saying that he would not make known his decision until notified by the Committee on next Monday evening.

FAST NEARING AN END

Reunions Mark the Closing of the Big Encampment.

THE CONTEST FOR COMMANDER.

Strange to Say, But Little Interest Taken in it by the Veterans — Indianapolis Chosen as the Place for the Next Meeting—Business Session Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The great reunion of the Grand Army is rapidly drawing to a close, and but little remains to do except selecting officers for next year.

For the commandership Col. C. F. Lincoln of Washington is making a strong fight. Thes trength of the West is divided between Captain Weissert of Milwaukee, Colonel Sexton of Chicago and Colonel Warfield of San Francisco. Gen. Hurst of Ohio is spoken of as a strong compromise candidate.

The management of the organization, however, and its place of meeting are things that the mass of veterans do not care a white army bean for.

For every comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic yesterday was, save for the day of his return to his home after the war and perhaps his wedding day, if he has had one, the most joyful day in the 27 years since the great muster out. It was so because it was the greatest reunion day that the Grand Army has ever known. As Gen. Palmer said in his speech at the dedication of Grand Army Place, the veterans have in the encampment the first real opportunity for reunion that they have ever had.

So all day long, the Second, the Third, the Sixth, the Seventh, the Eighth, the Fourteenth and Eighteenth corps—under the leadership of Miles and Sickles and Wright and Franklin, and Howard and Stanley and Rosecrans, and last, but not least, Col. Dick Hinton, the only surviving member of the Cabinet which John Brown had appointed preparatory to his expected conquest of the slave States—fought over again every battle of the war from Manassas on the East to Pear Ridge on the West.

On the deck of the Kearsarge the reunion went so far as to join Gunner Arthur Quinby of Salem, Mass, who fired not only the first three shots at the Alabama but the last, with Seaman Arthur Sinclair of Baltimore, who was one of the crew set afloat in the channel waters by the last shot.

The business feature of the day was the official meeting of the national encampment which took place at Albaugh's Opera House.

Commander-in-Chief Palmer was escorted to the place of meeting in the drizzling rain by the Union Veteran corps, and the "old guard" of Washington.

The Committee on Halls, at the suggestion of Gen. Palmer, had provided for him, as presiding officer, a desk in the shape of an immense drum, the head of which was a perfect sounding board, and which, when struck by the gavel, would drown out any other noise.

At 10:30 Adjutant-General Phisterer called the encampment to order, when there were less than 500 delegates in the house, and presented Mr. B. I. Warner of the Citizens' Executive Committee, who introduced Hon. J. W. Douglass, President of the District Board of Commissioners, who welcomed the encampment to Washington.

Gen. Palmer, rising to respond, gave a lesson in military punctuality. He said: "One year ago this encampment was called to meet at 10 o'clock. It is now 10:30, and I do not propose to have those comrades in the hall disturbed by late arrivals. Close the doors until after the response to Commissioner Douglass's welcome has been made, and I will not talk until every comrade has taken his seat." When this was done Gen. Palmer delivered his address.

He said in part:

"It is peculiarly appropriate that the survivors of the Union armies should gather again in the capital of the nation, which, through four long years of bloody strife, they defended at the peril of their lives, and bring to our minds vividly the name of that great man who, under the providence of God, successfully guided the affairs of the nation through the crisis of its fate.

"Almost within sound of my voice there reposes in that beautiful spot on Arlington Heights, where the green sod lies gently upon the breasts of the silent sleepers, 16,000 patriotic dead; it recalls to our minds the enormous price paid by the American people for the preservation of the nation. Four thousand graves are marked with the saddest of all inscriptions—unknown. We meet to-day with the consolation that the nation was saved and preserved by the valor of these men, and we feel exalted by their achievements and regenerated by their life's blood."

A statement was made by Commander Palmer, in regard to the differences existing in the departments of Louisiana and Mississippi between the white and colored posts, and his action in the matter, which was taken, he said, without either feeling, fear or prejudice. The department has been reorganized, and was represented to-day in the National Encampment by a full delegation.

In speaking of pensions, he declared that the Disability bill of June 27, 1890, was so munificent in its scope that no additional legislation was sought by the last encampment.

The Pension Committee has endeavored to have corrected certain inequalities in the ratings, which were not commensurate with existing disabilities from which many comrades are suffering.

Commander Palmer stated that during his official term he had visited twenty-five departments, attended numerous reunions and public gatherings, requiring months of time and labor, and had traveled nearly 40,000 miles in attending to the duties of his office. Everywhere he had found the greatest interest and enthusiasm for the order.

It was urged that the committee to protect the rights of war veterans to Government employment in preference to others be continued, and that the G. A. R. cordially support the project to have the national school demonstration under the direct patronage of the order at the World's Fair.

Gov. Chase of Indiana, ex-Department Commander, asked the encampment then to determine the location of the encampment of 1893, as he was compelled to leave the city. He presented the name of Indianapolis.

On motion of a delegate from Ohio, the encampment by acclamation accepted the invitation from Indianapolis without waiting to hear further in regard to it or for any other city to be named. The date of the meeting will be fixed by the Council of Administration after conference with the citizens.

NEW BRUNSWICK'S CASE WAS CHOLERA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The result of the bacteriological examination in the case of John Carr, owner and captain of the canal-boat Harry Cahill, who died at his home at New Brunswick, N. J., was reported to the health board to-day by Prof. Biggs. The report sets forth that germs of Asiatic cholera were found. Carr's boat has been lying in the North River, foot of West Thirtieth street, since last week under quarantine. The quarantine will be raised in her to-day, as she has been thoroughly disinfected.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo DeCamp, of Chester, Morris county, have returned home after a two days' visit with ex-postmaster Vail and wife, of Evona.

The Westervelt avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lambert was the scene of much gaiety yesterday afternoon from 4 to 8, when a children's party was given to the little ones living in the neighborhood.

The Hillside Tennis club will hold a ladies' tournament on Saturday, Oct. 1. Singles only will be played, and all entries should be handed to Howard W. Beebe on or before Thursday of next week. The entrance fee will be one dollar.

A Woman's Plaint.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—That's a funny place of Mr. Babbitt's on Front street. As I emerged from the serene halo and pious atmosphere of the Methodist prayer-meeting, and sailed my quiet dignity into the noisy, blustering, roistering cyclone spurting its sprays of tobacco amid the roar of opinions on prize fights and base-ball, on my way home, it was a challenge to my better opinions of the public peace and quiet safety of a lone woman on the municipal highway at night. I would suggest to the colored habitues of this place that they curtail the excess of their nature a few points within the radius of decency.

A WOMAN.

James Martine Speaks in Orange.

A grand Democratic demonstration and banner-raising was held last evening by the Democratic club of the Second district of the Third ward, Orange, amid a display of fireworks with music by Mark Smith's band. A large platform on Main street, midway between Lincoln avenue and High street, was filled with citizens and speeches were made by James E. Martine, of this city; Horace J. Arne, Mayor L. T. Fed, John T. Dunn, of Elizabeth; E. C. Zimmerman, of Trenton, and Alexander Maybum. The Cleveland Engineer Corps, H. H. Hart Zouaves and seven or eight clubs made a parade.

Soloists of Sousa's New Marine Band.

It has been claimed that Sousa's New Marine Band, organized this year, and which gives its opening concert next Monday evening in this city, contains a larger number of first-class artists than any other military band in existence. Investigation supports the claim. The leading soloists of the band are Arthur Smith, late soloist on cornet of the Coldstream Guards, and of Covent Garden concerts, London, especially engaged; C. L. Staats, formerly clarinet soloist at the Jardin D'Acclimitation, Paris, and premier clarinet soloist at the Grand Opera House, London; Joseph Norrito, late first clarinet at the Columbia, Boston; Ferdinand Jabon, bassoon, formerly soloist of the Grand Opera House, Brussels; John S. Cox, flute soloist, Thomas F. Shannon, contra bass saxophone, and Charles Petit, cornet soloist, formerly of Gilmore's; Leo Pechman, oboe, formerly of Richard Wagner's theater at Beyruth; Henry Koch, French horn, premier soloist; Pasquale Marchesi, late clarinet soloist of Municipal Band, Milan; Frank Seltzer, solo cornet and first trumpet, Philadelphia: Robert Messinger, oboe, first soloist, late of Heinrich Opera, New York; Robert Hoppe, horn soloist, Philadelphia; John Savinier, late first trumpet of Belgian Guides, Belgium; Guiseppe Bernalfo, horn, formerly of Grand Opera, Valpairaiso, Chili; A. W. Pryor, solo trombone, St. Joseph; Matthias Cesky, late solo bombardon, Fahrbach's Band, Vienna; Frank Holton, late solo trombone of Second Regiment Band, Chicago; Samuel Schalch, late saxophone soloist of Hassler's Band, Philadelphia; Christian Hildebrandt, late solo bassoon of Heinrich Grand Opera, etc., etc. These are among the leading soloists, though these are not all of Sousa's New Marine Band, and they include the greatest living soloists on their respective instruments, as in the case of Mr. Staats, a famous teacher of Boston, who has heretofore refused to travel at all with a band, but goes with Sousa out of respect. The band includes 50 men.

—Sarah Keach, who has repeatedly been before the city court for drunkenness, has been violating the law again, and judge Codington sent her to jail for 50 days.

—White & VanArsdale announce the opening of their millinery department, under the management of Miss Kittie Daly, for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Always Giving Satisfaction.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS have always given satisfaction. In fifty years there has been no complaint of them. That is about their life in the United States and millions of persons have used them. There is no doubt that they have established themselves by merit alone. They cure rheumatism, dyspepsia, piles, liver complaint, billiousness, and any disease arising from an impure state of the blood. One or two at night on an empty stomach, for a week or two, will keep you in good form and tone up the system. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

Sold in every drug or medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

MACK WILL FIND A WAY.

The Crescent League at Last Decide to Do Just What He First Dictated.

Again the local base-ball situation changes. The Crescent players have rebelled against Saturday's game with Somerville being a benefit. They say they are not going to play a benefit for Gore, Sharrott and the other Somerville importations. Manager Reed argued teat to pay Somerville the regular guarantee was just as much a benefit as to divide the gate receipts—it all came out of the receipts anyway; but the Crescent players were inexorable, and finally their demand was acceded to. Saturday's game will therefore be on the usual lines, Plainfield paying Somerville a guarantee, and the Crescents' benefit game will take place next week, with some other team. As the matter now stands, the decisive championship game will be played exactly as Mack of Somerville first dictated. Mack is bound to have his way in the end.

FRISBIE THREATENS TO SHOOT.

He Declares Himself Prepared to Avenge Attacks from Those Seeking His Life.

The colored people had a big time in the city court this morning, when Geo. W. Herling and William Peterson were tried for using vile and indecent language. Much testimony was given, and every colored man present insisted on arguing the case. After patiently listening to it all, judge Codington fined Herling $5 and Peterson $3. During the trial of the case several dusky gentlemen got into a wrangle with ex-dogcatcher Frisbie, who thereupon got mad and tore open his shirt and showed a great livid scar on his chest. He said that the doctors had told him that a blow on that old wound meant death to him, and that the other colored men in town knew it and were always seeking to strike him there so as to get him out of the way. He said he'd shoot any man who struck him there. All this was of course irrelevant to the case in hand, but it caused something of a sensation in court.

JUDGE WERTS WILL ACCEPT.

He Will Receive the Notification Committee at His Home on Monday.

Judge Werts said yesterday that on Monday next he will announce his decision as to his acceptance or declination of the Democratic nomination for Governor of New Jersey. He sent word to Senator Barrett of Essex county, chairman of the notification committee, that he would receive the committee at 2 Monday afternoon at his home in Crescent avenue, Jersey City.

What the decision will be the Judge declined to say, but a gentleman in the front rank of the Democratic State leaders, and who possesses Judge Werts's confidence, assured a reporter that he will accept the nomination. The nominee has had conferences with the leaders of both wings of the party, and both sides have urged him so strongly to stand that he has decided to set aside his personal preference in the matter and yield to the demands of his party.

A Tramp Burglar at Netherwood.

Police captain George W. Grant is of the opinion that the fellow who paid a burglarious visit to Constantine P. Ralli's home at Netherwood Tuesday night was a tramp. The only tool the burglar used was an old rusty file with which he pried open a window-sash. The nocturnal visitor in his search for cash got only $2. Mr. Ralli shot after him, having been awakened by the fellow's noise. The burglar returned the fire and escaped.

Labor to Espouse Its Cause.

A great mass-meeting of workingmen will be held at Reform Hall next week Wednesday, at 8 p. m. Among the speakers will be Daniel de Leon of New York, the Socialistic Labor candidate for Governor; Joseph B. Keim, and Thomas Dolay. All trades will be represented at the meeting, women as well as men. The hall will be open at 7:30. A committee of local workingmen have charge of the affair.

One Height to Float the Pennant From.

"It is rumored"—says the Elizabeth Journal, speaking of Tuesday night's base-ball meeting—"that one of the managers offered the suggestion that no more games be played and that the pennant be flung to the breeze from the heights of the Green Brook water station, but no verification of this report is obtainable."

A New Building Association.

The Columbia Mutual Building Loan association of the State of New Jersey, lately organized under the laws of this State, is about to open an office in this city. Among the trustees of the association is ex-councilman Seymour G. Smith, of Central avenue. The association will have its general offices at Westfield, and the local office will be at 3 West Front street, in charge of lawyer Charles L. Moffett.

A public meeting will be called in the near future, of which due notice will be given through THE PRESS, when the plan and operation of the association will be thoroughly explained.

THE EMPEROR'S HAREM.

139 Unfortunates Held Captive in the Palace at Pekin.

The "Palace of Earth's Repose" is where the Empress of China holds her court and rules over the imperial harem, whose only glimpse of the outside world is what they can see in the imperial flower-garden. The present young emperor, in addition to his seven lawful concubines, has already no less than one hundred and thirty others in his harem.—H. O'Shea's article, in the Illustrated American. Such is the life of the most highly favored of Chinese women—prisoners within the palace walls they eke out an existence in real slavery. American women know no slavery but that which depends on themselves. Sometimes they are overworked, "run-down," weak and ailing—then is the time to turn to the right medicine. The one who takes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription emancipates herself from her weakness and becomes a stronger and a happier woman—more than that—a healthy one. For all the weaknesses and silments peculiar to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a positive remedy. And because it's a certain remedy, it's made a guaranteed one. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, you get your money back. Can you ask more?

DR. LEWIS GETS HIS GUN.

What He Knows About Shooting Prairie-Chickens, Told from Experience.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Plainfield Seventh-day Baptist church, writes an interesting letter to the Sabbath Recorder of his experiences in Nebraska this fall. He says:

"'Chicken shooting?' What a question! Of course I went, and went. Had a farewell shoot yesterday. A glorious afternoon; sky and atmosphere like those of which the poets sing in Italy. Pleasant company, delightful drives among the bluffs and canyons. A lithe, keen-scented, quick-eyed, light-footed dog, named 'Queen', and rightly named, has ridden quietly for miles, sitting on the seat beside you, if you will, and as companionable as though she were human. 'This looks like good ground.' A slight signal from her master, and 'Queen' is ranging over the bluff. We follow. Climbing a little spur, we see below us what might be a dog carved from ebony, as motionless as a statue, tail extended, ears alert, eyes intent, one foot raised, her body apparently breathless. Come us closer, there are three of us. Cock your gun and hold your heart-beats in; stop breathing so intensely; see her step, she touches the ground as lightly as a ghost; up gets a bird, in three seconds it is down; 'Queen' sits down the instant the bird gets up, as much as to say, 'Gentlemen, I have done my part, do yours.' We got twelve out of thirteen in that covy. 'Wicked?' Yes: if you do it for sport only; but a broiled prairie chicken after six or ten hours' tramp in this glorious atmosphere is tonic for a dyspeptic stomach, and phosphates for wasted nerves. 'Weary?' Yes. Lie down on the sunny side of this bluff on the dry soil and long prairie grass and take a sun-bath. But don't ride home ten miles after nightfall without an overcoat or you will carry a 'cold' out of Nebraska that will be as persistent in its demands as a 'poor relative' is in his unbidden visits. We came in at sunset with fifteen beauties', and wild grapes enough to 'jelly' an ordinary family for a year."

TO HAVE THEIR HEADS EXAMINED.

Colored Society People Will Have a Phrenologist Disclose to the Public Their Dispositions and Marital Predilections.

A unique entertainment of music and art will be given at Reform Hall next week Thursday, at 8 p. m. The little fifteen-year-old queen of song, Constantia Brown, and her accomplished sister Pauline, pianist, will appear. Among the selections they will render are the following: Overture to the Opera of Tancredi, Mocking Bird, In Old Madrid, Overture, Queen of the Night, Cash, Chant de Berger, Waiting, Sweet Bird, Improvisation, Holy Mother, Job Lot, Irene, Good-Night. Dr. Brown will introduce his wonderful manikin, which, as announced by the committee, is "in itself a marvel of skill in conception, displaying great genius in mechanism, illustrating in a single complicated form the mysteries of man and woman; to conclude with the public examination of the heads of some leading citizens, in which he will, even blindfolded, describe their disposition, talent, character and pursuit for which they are best fitted, and whom they should or should not marry."

The visiting artists will be supported by some of the best home talent. The affair is under the auspices of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and the management of the following committee of reception and arrangements: Mrs. R. Wyckoff, Mrs. K. Mayhew, Mrs. M. Doyle, Mrs. S. Borney, Mrs. M. Atkin, A. Wilson, Mrs. M. Cline, Mrs. A. Morris, Mrs. C. Johnson, Mrs. E. Wilson, D. Jones, S. Wyckoff, Mrs. A. Peters, Mrs. A. White, Mrs. L. Eglin, Mrs. T. Hill, Miss B. Terrell, Mrs. S. Reed, Mrs. E. Robinson, Mrs. W. Cheek, A. Atkins, Mrs. K. Kingslow, Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. W. Cline, Wm. Cheek, Miss M. Iverson, Mrs. B. Jones, S. Conway, Mrs. E. Walker, J. Reed, R. A. Hill, Mr. Wendelton, W. Phillips, Mrs. S. Green, A. W. Brown, Peter Anderson, and the Rev. F. G. Warnick, pastor.

Pleasure and Instruction from Martine's Speech.

The "farmer orator" (James E. Martine of Plainfield) delivered an address before the Cleveland and Stevenson club of Hillsborough township, Saturday evening. The Somerville Messenger says of his speech: "Mr. Martine was listened to with unwearied interest, and his apt illustrations of the perfidy of the Republican party, and the evils of the Administration were received with applause. At the close he recited, in a masterful manner, the late John Greenleaf Whittier's beautiful poem of 'The Poor Voter on Election Day'. He received the thanks and cheers of his audience. Cheers were also given for Judge Werts, and a resolution offered by Senator Keys, indorsing his nomination, was adopted. After cheers for Cleveland and Stevenson the meeting adjourned, with a realizing sense of the pleasure and instruction Mr. Martine had conferred."

Fish and Oysters the Safest Food to Eat.

Some of the absurd phases of the cholera scare are passing away under a glimmer of reason. The fear of eating oysters and fish was one of these. It was absurd, but it temporarily affected the traffic. Yesterday the Fulton Market dealers celebrated the passing away of the senseless spasm and exhibited their own faith by partaking of a fine fish dinner. The prejudice against sound ripe fruit was equally groundless. Nature has protected this delicious and wholesome food by its skin or rind. And yet many persons stopped eating melons, peaches, pears and grapes because some dirty immigrants down the harbor had cholera! Common sense is often an excellent substitute for science.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. "FEW GENTLEMEN IN THE CRESCENT LEAGUE."

Here's the Reward "the Gomorrah of the East" Gets for Playing Again Against Pirates.

(Somerville Messenger.)

If the pennant was to be awarded to the greatest kicking team, the Crescents would win in a walk. The kick inaugurated at Plainfield a week ago continued right up to the beginning of the game at the West End grounds on Saturday, and we believe there are persons in Plainfield who would rather have lost the game than not have had an opportunity to air their imaginary grievances and find fault with something.

It was only by the hardest kind of work and at the risk of being mobbed that Charlie Reed and the few other gentlemen members of the Crescent League succeeded in getting the team to come here at all. The hoodlum mob wanted to euchre the West End management out of the few glittering shekels that would unavoidably fall into the club's depleted treasury, in case the game was played; they started petitions asking that the team be kept at home; they called a meeting and asserted their inalienable rights as American citizens to pass resolutions—they resolved to stay at home; the Daily Press devoted nearly a whole issue to calling Somerville in general, and Louis Mack in particular, bad names; it even dusted off its Bible and hunted up quotations therefrom to show that Providence would smile approval if the team were kept at home. Nevertheless, the team came, and this same hoodlum gang are kicking themselves all over the "Gomorrah of the East" because they didn't come along. The West Ends raked in the shekels but the Crescents raked in the game, and a few mistakes and experiments like those indulged in on Saturday may give them the championship. They are "Kickers from Kicktown", but their players know a thing or two about the game and it is not exactly safe to give them too much of a show if we want to own the pennant in this town.

Too little cannot be said about the game. Sharrott is reputed to be a wonderful pitcher, and maybe he is, but it took just two innings to discover the fact that his shoots and curves had no terrors for the Crescents.

Charged with Illegal Liquor-Selling.

William Lee, at one time popular third-baseman for the Crescents, was before judge Codington this morning to answer to two charges of selling liquor without a license. The complainant in each case is police captain Grant, who claims to have convicting evidence against the accused. Lee pleaded not guilty, and furnished $400 bonds for trial next week Thursday.

THAT FUNNY JERSEY RAILROAD.

It's Very Useful to the Farmers, But They Have Lots of Sport Over It.

The many Plainfielders who have had the novel experience of a ride over the "Rock-a-bye-baby railroad" of Hunterdon county will appreciate the following humorous description of a recent trip over the line:

Right here in the little State of New Jersey we have a railroad which, when discovered, will be a marvel to the mechanical engineers of the day, exemplifying as it does many novelties in construction and management, and showing an ingenuity in overcoming topographical obstructions which cannot but fail to be of lasting benefit as an example for all future generations.

The Rockaway Valley Railroad, as now constructed, extends from White House to the outskirts of Morristown, a total distance of nearly 21 miles. It was thought unnecessary to rock-ballast the road as it is but single track; in fact they have demonstrated that all that is necessary for the construction of a trunk line is to lay ties on nature's bountiful sod and spike rails thereon. Of course such methods render the track liable to sag in places, but it is only a few minutes' labor for the passengers to get out and hold the train up until it gets over these bad places; and as there are never less than three passengers besides the brakeman and conductor, they find this a matter of small import. All grading has been dispensed with and a simple method of crossing the turnpikes has been devised; the rails simply run up and over the road, then down on the other side; by this method the train is obliged to slow up so much that if a farmer's wagon should be in the way the locomotive would be but slightly injured. It has been deemed unnecessary to erect stations, as standing evidence of corporate greed and power, and the passengers pay their fare on the cars, and all freight is left along the road at the nearest point to the residence of the consignee; this method of delivering freight avoids useless handling, and has been found of great convenience in dry weather; in wet weather no one wants to haul freight anyway, so that there is no call for freight trains at such times.

The equipment of the road now is a trifle short of future needs, but will soon be enlarged. It consists of one locomotive, one passenger coach and two freight cars; the total population of the towns on the line is 1,200, (when none of them is away), and as soon as twenty coaches can be hired it is proposed to give them all a free excursion along the entire line of the road. The train service at present consists of one express train and one freight train each way daily, Sundays excepted. A freight caboose is attached, however, to the freight train for the convenience of passengers, for which no extra charge is made. The express makes the run of twenty miles in an hour and a half, and the freight takes only an hour and a quarter for the same distance. The fastest run is between Pottersville and White House, a distance of eight miles, which is made in forty-three minutes, without danger to life.

The management is advertising special arrangements and accommodations for picnic parties of ten or more, and expects to do a big summer business next season, if the snow in drifting does not slide the track too far around.

The writer made a round trip over the road on horseback lately, and easily kept ahead of the train. He hitched his broncho to the brake of the rear car between two stations, but not being used to the inequalities of the road, the undulatory motion made him seasick and he got on his horse again; for his assistance in removing barrels and boxes from between the rails he received the thanks of the engineer, who said he had thus been able to make the fastest run ever made over the road, and an invitation was extended to ride back on the locomotive and help fire, as the fireman was away that day, and the engineer was doing double duty. Press of other business, combined with a tired feeling, prevented the acceptance of the kind invitation.

THE GIRL IS DEMENTED.

Anna Schalksauer's Queer Actions in Duchess County, N. Y., Explained.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sep. 22.—Anna Schalksauer, the 17-year-old girl who has been acting so strangely in Duchess county since September 13, turns out to be a demented girl of good family, whose guardian is a Mr. Daycot of the firm of Daycot & Rector, of Jersey City. Mr. Daycot's home is at Orange, N. J. He was unaware of the girl's whereabouts until he saw the despatch yesterday morning.

The girl went from the home of Mrs. Jackson, near Clinton Corners, to the house of the Rev. William A. Evans, pastor of the Episcopal Church of Pleasant Valley, and insisted upon remaining. The clergyman took charge of her and took her to Jersey City last night. She had made application for admission to Vassar College as a student.

Her actions leave no doubt that she is mentally deranged. She is highly educated, and it is believed that she wandered away from a boarding school in New Jersey.

LABOR NOT DECEIVED

PECK'S FIGURES REJECTED BY WORKINGMEN.

Republican Expectations Doomed to Disappointment—Workingmen Know That McKinley Has Not Helped Them—What They Say About Peck's Figures.

Evidence is multiplying that Commissioner Peck's report is failing of effect in precisely the quarter where the Republicans had hoped that it would strengthen their cause most. Republican editors hailed the publication of Peck's figures with headlines suitable for announcing the arrival of the millennium and framed to catch the eye of the workingmen, but the workingmen are far too well informed as to their own condition to be imposed upon by figures given under pledge of secrecy by protected manufacturers. Workingmen do not need to wade through pages of statistics to find out whether their wages have been increased.

We are beginning to hear from workingmen in many trades, and they utterly reject Peck's figures and particularly his conclusions in favor of the McKinley tariff. Thus Matthew Barr, a tin and sheet iron worker of New York, says: "What strikes me as very peculiar is the figures on the building trades. They seem so incongruous that I must pause before I go any further. There is scarcely a strike in this line but has bettered its condition since 1889. And yet with all this the returns show a decrease in wages of $96,829.

"This industry is ouside the reach of the tariff, and whatever figures may be put down there is only one thing that has gained it any advantages, and that is its organizations. Every concession has been fought inch by inch. Where the tariff does affect any branch of the trade, such as mine, we have certainly suffered. No tin and sheet iron worker in the city, to my knowledge, and I know them nearly all, has yet used a sheet of native tin. Before the McKinley bill was passed we had considerable work on tin roofs. In many cases gravel roofs had an equal competition with us, but since the higher duty on tin was imposed in every case where a gravel roof can be utilized it takes the place of tin, and there is less work for us. We have been injured by the tariff and our wages may have decreased, but the other trades are not so affected, and I believe they have been individual gainers."

George Warner, of the Housesmiths' union and the Central Labor union, says: "You can make figures prove anything you like; I am looking for the men of some trade who will show me that their wages have been raised by the tariff. If any trade has increased its pay you can rely upon its being on account of organization. Look at our trade! We work on the buildings and are not affected by the tariff, but the men who manufacture the iron and steel are highly protected. During the past four years the men who have been protected have been reduced in wages and we have been obtaining an increase. Mr. Peck's returns scarcely seem consistent. He gives decreases in wages and production in building brick, tile and sewer pipe, but in cement, lime and plaster there is a vast increase. As the business of one is totally dependent on the other, and one could not be brisk without the other, his figures certainly need some explanation."

James P. Archibald, a prominent leader in the Central Labor union, says: "His statistics of the trade I am most interested in—the paper hanging trade—have been to me ludicrous. There is not a thinking man in the labor circles in this city today, particularly in the building construction line, who cannot refute, so far as his own particular trade is concerned, the statements of Mr. Peck. I know of my own knowledge that in the most skilled branch of the trade of manufacture of wall paper, which is block cutting, and which is very highly protected, the men who formerly earned twenty-one to twenty-four dollars per week are now, and since 1889 have been, working at considerably less than twenty dollars. The McKinley bill has had a deleterious rather than a beneficial effect on the wages in this branch of the trade."

The Young Men's Movement.

The campaign of 1884, which resulted in the election of Grover Cleveland to the presidency, was remarkable among other things for its movement of young men in support of the Democratic candidate.

The present campaign bids fair to surpass that of 1884 in the respect noted. Never before in the history of political organizations in this country has there been so earnest and widespread a sentiment of party enthusiasm generated among the young Democracy, many of whom will exercise the suffrage for the first time. Nor is it merely a party ebullition. The party of Cleveland is the party of reform, and in it the sanguine spirits of the young men of the country are strongly attracted. The organization of young men's Democratic clubs goes on at a marvelous rate. Young men are coming to the front in a greater degree than ever before as local leaders, orators and campaigners.

It is surely a healthy and hopeful sign of the times, and it induces the belief that the political salvation of this country will be wrought out by its young men.

New Points for McKinley's Speech.

The Iron Age contains two announcements which Major McKinley will not be apt to include in the next delivery of his campaign speech. One of these is a statement from Pittsburg that the "roughers" (a class of workmen in the iron mills) have decided to accept the reduction of 10 per cent. in their wages against which they have long contended. The other is that the plant of the Owensboro (Ky.) Wheel company has been offered for sale by the American Wheel trust. Thus does Republican tariff promote the interests of workingmen.

ALDRICH AND PECK.

The Latter's Figures at Variance with Those of the Aldrich Committee.

The New York Tribune says, in speaking of Peck's figures: "It happens that they agree so well with all that is known of the general condition of manufacturing, especially in states where foreign competition was most severely felt two years ago, that the public inclines strongly to accept the official statements."

"They agree so well with all that is known!" But were you not only a short time ago trying to compel everybody to abide by the results of the Aldrich committee's report? That report tells a tale far different from Peck's so called statistics. The best that Senator Aldrich could claim was that there had been an increase of 75-100 of 1 per cent. in wages in the industries investigated by the committee, but Senator Carlisle showed that the only increase in wages was in fifteen nonprotected industries, while in fifteen highly protected industries there was an actual reduction of 89-100 of 1 per cent. in wages. This result was shown from the figures presented to the senate by the Aldrich committee itself, which were collected in seventy different cities, covered 876 separate quotations and were taken from the books of the manufacturers themselves and other employers of labor.

Yet The Tribune is now anxious to throw this report aside and substitute for it the figures of Mr. Peck, which were collected by letter and have no guaranty of their accuracy or honesty.

Nor do Peck's figures agree with all that is known" by the workingmen themselves. The vast number of cases of wage reduction during the past two years greatly overbalance the few cases where wages were raised. The organ of the American Protective Tariff league could discover after a diligent search but twenty-eight cases of increased wages, and nearly all of these have subsequently turned out to be bogus. On the other hand, more than 500 cases of wage reductions, strikes or lockouts have been reported since the McKinley law went into operation.

The Coal Duty.

The duty on bituminous coal is seventy-five cents per ton, and its imposition is worse than folly. The Republican collector of the port of Boston says the amount received does not pay for the expense of collection. The hardship brought by our placing soft coal on the taxed list is that Canada is led to retaliation and has, in consequence, for years charged sixty cents a ton for all Pennsylvania coal going into the Dominion. Every ton of coal to the manufacturers in Canada increases in price by sixty cents the instant it crosses the Niagara river or any other portion of the border. According to McKinley's theory, the Pennsylvanians would pay the Canadian duties, but the consumers in that country find differently, for their cost price for coal is increased per ton by sixty cents.

The Canadian government stands ready to strike off this sixty cents duty on soft coal coming from the United States if we will remove our duty of seventy-five cents a ton on Nova Scotia coal coming into New England. Such eminent high protectionist Republicans as the Hon. Galusha A. Grow have repeatedly asked the congress to place bituminous coal on the free list, where anthracite coal has always been.—Buffalo Times.

Depew's Postvacation Contract.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew has done Hamburg, dined with the Prince of Wales and other notabilities and kept himself as conspicuously in evidence on the European continent as he usually does in this admiring nation. He is now home again, returning to the hardest work of his life—the second campaign of Benjamin Harrison.

Not much public sympathy will go out to Mr. Depew, as it cannot be forgotten that he is mainly responsible for the successful issue of Benjamin Harrison's renomination enterprise. If Depew's influence could have been eliminated from the Minneapolis convention, it is probable that the Republican party would not now be handicapped in one of the most important electoral contests in our history with a candidate who has disappointed the nation at large and sowed irremovable dissension in his own political following.

For the present low estate of the Republican hope its joyous Mr. Depew is primarily accountable, and the great public, for once out of sympathy with the facile and facetious gentleman, will merely wish that he worry through with it as best he may.

And Now a Raisin Trust.

The usual effects of government protection of an industry are observable in the case of the California raisin trade. A very liberal protective duty encouraged the growers to develop the industry to enormous dimensions, and now that the evil of overproduction is being felt the growers have set about forming a combine to raise prices. The schedule agreed upon includes these rates: Clusters, $2 per box; 3-crown London layers, $1.65, and 2-crown, $1.45. Several packers who refuse to join the combine are threatened with a boycott.—New York Merchants' Review.

THE REUNION AT AN END

Closing Scenes of the G. A. R. Encampment.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION LAST NIGHT.

Addresses by Vice-President Morton and General Palmer—Capt. Weissert's Election for Commander—The Other Officers—Veterans Fast Deserting the Capital for Their Homes.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 23.—The 16th annual reunion is but a memory now, and the veterans are leaving the city in large numbers. By to-morrow it will be hard to tell that are encampment was held here.

The big social event of the week was the reception given to the delegates to the encampment last night at the Pension Office. The spacious interior was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Portraits of all the distinguished generals of the war peered from out the folds and met the visitor's eye wherever he turned. The Marine Band furnished the music, which consisted principally of patriotic airs.

Vice-President Morton, ex-President Hayes, Postmaster-General Wanamaker and others made brief speeches, and a vast amount of enthusiasm prevailed when the national colors were carried by a one-armed veteran through the hall. A bountiful supper was served at midnight, when the dancing began. There were 3,000 people present, but such are the proportions of the building that twice that number could easily have been accommodated.

New York's headquarters was the liveliest place in Washington last night. The great majority of the veterans from the Empire State attended the reception at the Pension Office last night, but afterward returned to headquarters at Willard's and took possession of the lobby.

The encampment got to work early yesterday, and took hold of the work in hand with earnestness.

The resolution which the Ohio delegation were instructed by their Department to present and urge, to abolish the practice of making the commander-in-chief, senior and junior vice commanders of the National Encampment and ex-department commanders, life members of the National Encampment was offered by Delegate Searles.

The proposition was supported by a half dozen delegates, but met defeat by an overwhelming majority.

The election of commander-in-chief then came up. Gen. A. G. Weissert, ex-Department Commander of Wisconsin, was put in nomination by his State and the nomination was seconded by a number of other States.

Gen. S. A. Hearst of Ohio and Col. C. D. Lincoln of the Department of the Potomac withdrew and General Weissert's election was made practically by acclamation.

The election of a senior vice-commander brought into prominent view the factional fight that has raged within the ranks of the department of the Potomac for the past year. The controversy waxed warm, and finally Past Commander Wagner of Pennsylvania moved that R. H. Warfield of San Francisco be elected senior vice commander. Past Commander Wagner's motion was adopted, and Warfield declared elected senior vice-commander.

For the office of junior vice-commander Peter B. Ayars of Wilmington, Del., past deputy commander; J. C. Bigger of Dallas, assistant adjt.-general, department of Texas; Comrade Minton of Kentucky, and Comrade Kennedy of California were placed in nomination. Two ballots were necessary to reach a determination, and on the second Ayars received 349 out of the 649 votes cast, and was elected.

For surgeon general Dr. W. C. Weyl of Danbury, Conn., and W. H. Johnson of Minden, Neb., were the candiates. The ballot resulted—Weyl 423, Johnson 165.

For the place of chaplain-in-chief there were four candidates, namely: J. H. Fraser of Tennessee, D. R. Lowell of Kansas, E. H. Haggerty of Missouri and W. Gottheil of District of Columbia. Dr. Lowell was the favored candidate and was elected.

Over 100 cases of "lost veterans" were being hunted up by friends yesterday. The different hospitals were besieged during the entire day, and the physicians in charge estimate that fully 100 veterans were being looked for by friends last night.

Twenty ex-army chaplains have organized the National Association of ex-Army and Navy Chaplains. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: Rev. T. H. Haggerty, president; George W. Hovey, secretary, and J. H. Bradford, treasurer. The vice-presidents are: Revs. W. H. Carver, D. C. Everhart, R. C. McPherson, Mason Gallagher and H. L. Upson.

The reunions during the morning were well attended and the enthusiasm ran high, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather.

The National ex-Prisoners' Association met in the Thomas tent. Captain Jack Adams of Boston, Major White of the 69th Pennsylvania Volunteers and a large number of comrades spoke and told war stories.

Grant Tent was occupied by the reunionists of the Fifth Army Corps. Dr. York, post Chaplain of the Tenth New York; opened the proceedings with prayer. Major C. E. Mink, Battery H, New York. General Butterfield, Major Thomas Moris, 15th Michigan; Captain Bicher, Michigan sharpshooters; Col. H. H. McCean, 6th Pennsylvania reserves, and others made addresses.

The reunion of the Cavalry of the Western Armies was held in Sherman Tent and was very successful.

The reunion of the Cavalry of the Army of the Potomac at Meade Tent was a great success and was largely attended. General E. W. Whitaker, of Connecticut Cavalry, presided, assisted by Captain C. H. Parsons.

To Gen. Palmer's invitation, the President, through his Private Secretary, sent his regrets, stating that he was unable to accept the invitation to attend the Encampment session.

Hoar Not a Candidate.

BOSTON, Sep. 23.—Hon. Sherman Hoar has written a letter positively refusing to allow his name to go before the Democratic State Convention as a candidate for Lieut.-Governor. He says his duty to his family compels a complete withdrawal from politics, and he asks his friends, if they love him, to send him clients and not candidacies.

CHOLERA SCARE AT BALTIMORE.

Several of a Vessel's Crew Thought to Be Ill from the Plague.

BALTIMORE, Sep. 23.—The bark Newlight, Capt. Thompson, ten days from Savannah, is lying off quarantine with the yellow flag flying from her fore-truck. When the vessel was boarded by the quarantine physician it was found that one death had occurred and three men were then critically ill in the forecastle. Doctor Neiskill immediately ordered the vessel into quarantine. Capt. Thompson was taken ill shortly after the bark was anchored and was confined to bed. Dr. Neiskill learned that on the first day out from Savannah the first mate, James Crammer, died from what appeared to be an attack of dysentery. He was buried the next day at sea. Then several of the crew became incapacitated for duty, so crippling the vessel that she could not be pumped out. From the ordinary leakage she filled to about eight feet and now lies with a list to port, caused by the water she holds.

Dr. Neiskill is not prepared to give an opinion as to the type of sickness on board the Newlight. He began a thorough cleaning of the vessel; it will receive a bath of bichloride of mercury and then be fumigated.

The reticence of the quarantine officials regarding the case has given rise to another cholera scare in Baltimore.

AUSTIN, TEX., Sep. 23.—Fear of cholera in Texas is growing daily and her officials are exercising every known precaution to keep out the scourge. The fact that San Antonio has several cases of cholera excited the whole State. Health Officer Swearin fears that the disease may gain a foot-hold among the famine sufferers of the Rio Grande.

NEW YORK FREE FROM CHOLERA.

No New Cases or Suspects—Situation at Quarantine.

NEW YORK, Sep. 23.—The Health officials are jubilant over the cholera situation. Not even a new suspect is on record in the Health Office.

The old ones are doing well. Louis Weinhagen is convalescent. Henry Engel, who was taken from Mrs. Gunther's boarding house on First street, together with Patrick Stewart, a suspect from 15 Morris street is at the Willard Parker Hospital. Either may not have the cholera.

No new cases or deaths are reported from Quarantine.

The Guion liner State of Nevada, which was ordered back to Quarantine by Dr. Jenkins, came down from her pier and anchored abreast the upper station early this morning.

The State of Nevada was released from quarantine on the morning of the 17th, and went to her dock. After arriving there, her fireman, John Knox, was taken ill with cholera, and died the following day.

The cabin passengers of the Scandia and Bohemia now on the New Hampshire will not be transferred to Fire Island but will be made comfortable on the frigate during their period of detention. According to the outlook now there is no chance of new inhabitants for Fire Island after the Wyoming people leave.

Anxious to Get Rid of Doctors.

BERLIN, Sep. 23.—A volunteer doctor has died from cholera while attending people in this city. Another, feeling ill, asked to be relieved, and was dismissed without thanks and only three shillings per day as an honorarium. As the terms offered had been considerably higher, even the attendants receiving fifteen shillings a day, his colleagues remonstrated, but the only reply was a peremptory order to quit the hospital. It is said that the Hamburg authorities are anxious to get rid of a number of doctors for whom they have no use, now that the disease is abating.

TO REORGANIZE IRON HALL.

Believed that the Defunct Order Will Be Reconstructed.

BALTIMORE, Sep. 23.—The convention which has been called for the purpose of re-organizing the Order of the Iron Hall by F. D. Somerby, Supreme Justice, A. H. Hosmer, Supreme Vice-Justice, and other leading officials of the old organization, assembled at the hall of the Royal Arcanum at 10 o'clock. Delegates representing every section of the country are present, to the number of about 150.

Prominent members of the organization here express the belief that the convention will be a success and that a plan of reorganization will be devised which will commend itself to the great majority of the 70,000 members and be accepted by them. But before a decision is reached many interesting and warm discussions are expected to transpire.

Charles J. Weiner, one of the local receivers of the Iron Hall, has gone to Indianapolis to confer with General Receiver Faley with a view of arranging to keep the entire fund of the local orders in the State.

No Action Taken by the Committee.

NEW YORK, Sep. 23.—The Congressional Committee appointed to investigate the operations of United States Marshals and Supervisors of Elections held a short session yesterday and adjourned subject to the call of the chair. The entire committee was present, including Fitch of New York, Geissenheimer of New Jersey, DePauw of Connecticut, Harmer of Pennsylvania and Ray of New York. It was stated that no action had been taken.

The President Will Attend.

NEW YORK, Sep. 23.—President Harrison has accepted the invitation of the Columbus Celebration Committee to be present at the celebration on October 12. The lines of march of the morning and evening parades have been decided upon, and it is reported that all the railroads, except the Long Island Railroad, which has not been heard from, will issue reduced rate tickets for the occasion.

HOMESTEAD STRIKERS ALARMED.

They Are Trying to Prove Alibis—Warrants for Lovejoy and Others.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sep. 23.—The action of the Grand Jury in returning true bills in 169 Homestead cases has caused a great sensation here. It was never thought that all of the charges would be sustained by the Grand Jury, and now that all have been there is much speculation as to the possibility of conviction.

Up to this time the Homesteaders paid little attention to the suits, and gave little thought to their defense, but, the Grand Jury having brought before them the gravity of their position, there is a lively hustle to prove alibis and establish other grounds of defense.

The Advisory Board has not been dissolved in consequence of the conspiracy suits, and several new members have been added.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 23.—Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Steel Company was arrested yesterday afternoon by Constable Walls on a warrant issued by Alderman King, charging Mr. Lovejoy with aggravated riot, assault and battery.

Mr. Lovejoy entered bail at the Alderman's office in the sum of $3,000 for court. Thomas Mellon, the banker, went on his bond.

The charges against Lovejoy were made by Burgess McLuckie of Homestead. Informations on the same charges were also made against Messrs. Frick, Leishman, Curry, Potter and Childs.

INDICTED FOR PUNISHING IAMS.

True Bills Returned Against Cois. Streator and Hawkins.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 23.—The Grand Jury has found true bills against Lieut.-Col. J. B. R. Streator, Col. A. L. Hawkins, and Assistant-Surgeon W. S. Grim of the 10th Regiment, charged with aggravated assault and battery in connection with the case of William L. Iams, a private in Company K.

There is a true bill found against Col. Hawkins on a charge of assault and battery. Iams is the man who, while on duty at Camp Sam Black, Homestead, expressed approval on hearing of the attempt on H. C. Frick's life by Berkmann, and called for cheers "for the man who shot Frick." For this he was hung up by the thumbs and afterwards drummed out of camp.

The right of the National Guard officials to inflict such punishment will now be tested. Iams has also entered heavy damage suits against Cois. Streator and Hawkins.

NEW YORK'S REAPPORTIONMENT.

Its Constitutionality Upheld by the General Term.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sep. 23.—The General Term has handed down a decision in the Oneida case, denying the motion for a mandamus and injunction in the appeal of Carter vs. Frank Rice as Secretary of State.

The decision affirms the constitutionality of the reapportionment.

The motion of Carter was for a mandamus and injunction compelling the Secretary of State to issue election notices under the old Senate and Assembly apportion.

The opinion is by Presiding Justice Mayham. Associate Justices Herrick and Putnam do not express an opinion as to the constitutionality of the apportionment, but Justice Herrick concurs with presiding Justice Mayham in denying the writ in order to obtain a submission to, and a decision by the Court of Appeals on all of the points in the controversy.

Justice Mayhams opinion is withheld for revision, and correction.

ALBANY, Sep. 23. — Much interest is evinced here over the decision in favor of the reapportionment of the Senate and Assembly districts by the last Legislature. This decision handed down by the Saratoga Special Term consisting of Judges Mayham, Herrick and Putnam, is in direct contradiction to that given by the Buffalo General Term, and so two cases of opposite opinion will go up to the Court of Appeals.

FINNISH JUSTICE.

A Murderess' Appeal Results in Added Severity to Her Sentence.

HELSINGFORS, Sep. 23.—The Court of Appeals of Finland has not only refused to commute, but has increased the severity of the sentence in the case of Mrs. Anna Sainio, who was sentenced to death for the murder of her husband, Prof. Sainio, of the Finland State College.

Mrs. Sainio was much younger than her husband.

According to her confession, she became involved in debt and concluded to take her husband's life, in order to obtain the amount, about $2,500, for which he was insured.

He was sick, and, instead of giving him his regular medicine, she gave him a capsule containing strychnine.

She was sentenced to be hanged, and her body burned.

Clemency was asked on the ground that she has a babe still at the breast.

A petition had been extensively signed asking the Czar, who is Grand Duke of Finland, to commute the sentence.

The sentence of the Court of Appeals of Finland is that, having first had an opportunity to listen to the ministrations of a clergyman, and being prepared to die, she shall have her right hand cut off, and then be beheaded.

Tortured by Two Masked Men.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sep. 23. — Lory Reynolds, an old hermit who was believed to keep a large sum of money in his house, was attacked by two masked men last night, who demanded that he give up his treasure. He protested that he had none, and the men cut him in numerous places on the body, and burned his feet by holding a lighted lamp to them. The hermit refused to divulge the place in which his money was hidden, and the robbers left with only three dollars, which were found on his person.

THE TRICOLOR HONORED

Celebration of the Birthday of the French Republic.

IMPOSING CEREMONIES AT PARIS.

A Great Demonstration at the Pantheon—The Day Was Also the Centennial of the First Triumph of the Republican Arms—Observance in New York.

PARIS, Sep. 23.—One hundred years ago yesterday was the "first of the year 1 of the Republic," following the Revolution. Yesterday was also the centennial of the cannonade of Valmy, the first triumph of the Republican arms.

The streets were thronged with people from an early hour, all showing in their appearance, their evident joy and the decorations they wore, the spirit of pride and patriotism that seemed universal.

Royalists were absent, but not conspicuously, as they have dwindled down to such a small coterie that their absence was almost unnoticed.

Both the national and the municipal governments joined in making the celebration a success, and the extreme Socialist went hand in hand with the Moderate Republican in doing honor to the day which, while it saw the proclamation of the republic also saw the early beginnings of the reign of terror.

Around the Pantheon a dense crowd gathered. Here was stationed a large body of troops, and no one was admitted to the building without a permit. President Carnot and the members of the Ministry arrived at the Pantheon at 10 o'clock, and their appearance was the signal for the playing of the "Marseillaise" by the military bands. The President and his party were received with enthusiastic acclamations.

Deputations from all the civic, military, industrial and commercial bodies of the State were present. M. Loubet, the Prime Minister, delivered the oration. He described the birth of the Republic, which, he said, had alone endowed France with the necessary strength to triumph over her enemies.

M. Floquet followed M. Loubet. He said that the rejoicing should be styled the Festival of National Independence. The present Republic, thanks to a union of parties, had rebuilt the national strength, and is now in a position to inspire respect in all minds and sympathy in many.

In the afternoon two cavalcades similar in number and costuming started from the Palais de l'Industrie in the Champs Elysees. One cavalcade crossed the Seine and passed through the Faubourg St. Germain and Latin Quarter, while the other traversed the Place de la Concorde and reached the Grand Boulevard through the Rue Royale. At the head of each procession marched a platoon of cavalrymen attired in the uniform of the eighteenth century, the musicians playing airs of the epoch, selected by M. Demade, Librarian of the Opera House.

Celebration in New York.

NEW YORK, Sep. 23—The centennial of the declaration of the French Republic was fittingly celebrated by French residents in this city yesterday. The United French societies held a fete at Suizer's Harlem River Park. The Societe Francaise de l'Amitie held a picnic at Lion Park. The French Consul-General, M. d'Lbzac, presented the organization with a handsomely embroidered banner, the gift of a number of the ladies of the French colony in this city.

LABOR RIOTS AT ST. THOMAS.

Troops Repulsed by the Mob—The City in a State of Anarchy.

PANAMA, Sep. 23.—Fierce labor riots are reported from St. Thomas in the West Indies. Repeated attempts of the civil authorities to put down the rioters failed. The troops were called out, and they met the mob near the English Bank. After a sharp fight, in which eleven soldiers were severely injured with stones and several negroes were shot, the troops were driven back. When the order for retreat was given the mob attacked so hotly that the soldiers broke ranks and fled.

The worst element has now almost complete possession of the city. Scores of houses have been entered and plundered by burglars. Women fear to walk the streets, as four have been snatched away in broad daylight and have been maltreated.

Most of the men from the docks have joined the rioters, and ships lie idle in the harbor because not enough laborers can can be got to load them. Many of the wealthiest families have taken refuge on the ships for fear that they might become victims of fire and outrage in the city. Reinforcements have been summoned from St. Croix.

At the St. Croix coaling stations only Mexican silver is available, in consequence of the trouble at the seat of government. The silver is at 30 per cent. discount.

ABBOTT'S RESIGNATION.

Sir John Thompson Now Premier of Canada in All But Name.

QUEBEC, Sep. 23.—Sir John Abbott is now only nominally Prime Minister of Canada. His resignation, though not yet in the hands of Lord Stanley, has been tendered to and accepted by his colleagues, and Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, reigns as Premier in everything but name.

A Ministerial member of Parliament just returned from Ottawa states positively that Thompson is now recognized as Premier by all the Ministers, and transacts all business except official communications with the Governor-General, to which Abbott still lends his name, and will so continue to do until Lord Stanley is in receipt of his official resignation, and swears in Sir John Thompson as his successor, which he must do on being advised to that effect.

Sir John Abbott's withdrawal is due to ill health and failing mental powers.

The Meteor Won't Enter.

BERLIN, Sep. 23.—According to Mr. Poultney Bigelow the German Emperor's yacht, Meteor, will not be entered in the race for the American Cup. Mr. Bigelow states that the Emperor assured him he had no idea of entering the Meteor for the race in question.

It gives a realistic picture of police life, and is a melodrama of intense human interest, and it is said to be one of the best productions ever brought to the Pacific Coast in the way of scenic embellishment, it is bordering on extravagance, requiring two scenery cars to transport it.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Boys Enjoyed a Good Game.

A game of base-ball was played yesterday afternoon between the Actives and the Stars. The game was very interesting, the score being a tie in the sixth inning by the figures 3 to 3. After that the Actives played extra-good ball, and defeated the Stars by the score of 6 to 3. The feature of the game was the way Higgins played behind the bat for the Actives. Wilson of the Stars made a fine three-base hit in the third inning. J. Goff made a fine running catch in the ninth inning that stopped three men from scoring.

TRAMPLED IN A PANIC.

Four Women Killed and a Number of Persons Injured in a Tenement-House Room of Worship.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Four women were trampled to death and many persons injured this morning in a Hebrew synagogue at 27 Ludlow street as a result of a panic created by a cry of fire during services. A flimsy curtain took fire from a candle burning near by. Some one screamed and raised the warning alarm. In an instant there was a rush for the doors by nearly 100 persons. The stairways were narrow. Many fell. Others tumbled over the prostrate forms, and when the building was cleared four women lay dead on the stairs, and nine more or less badly injured. These were sent to the Gouverneur Hospital.

BOROUGH DEMOCRATIC ASSOCIATION

A Spirited Meeting Held Last Night—"And Those Who Came to Scoff Remained to Pray."

The Democratic association of North Plainfield held their regular weekly meeting last night at their rooms on Somerset street. The meeting was the largest the association has had during the campaign and over 50 names were added to the roll of membership. The banner committee reported that they were ready to purchase the banner and it could be delivered within a few days. The rest of the evening was devoted to the interests of the association.

John Bodine, first vice-president, offered his resignation, stating that he understood that the continued incumbency of some of the officers stood in the way of perfect harmony, and that perhaps he was one of them. The prompt and unanimous action of the association in refusing to accept his resignation clearly showed that this was not so. There had been some misunderstanding with regard to the management of the association but last night's meeting brushed the clouds away. A motion to disband was amended to read that the association give the officers a vote of confidence, which amendment was carried with scarcely a dissenting voice.

The Democrats present were then invited to sign the roll. There was a scramble to the secretary's desk and the organization was strengthened by the largest number of names that it has received at any previous meeting.

The banner committee will purchase a handsome banner in a few days. They are empowered to fling it to the breeze and to arrange for a mass-meeting on that occasion. Eminent speakers will be present. The members of the committee are W. L. Saunders, B. Luerssen and Levi Kline.

FOREPAUGH'S SHOWS ARE HERE.

A Fine Parade in Spite of the Wet, and a Grand Matinee Performance.

The Forepaugh shows arrived in this city about eight o'clock this morning. The parade was make about 11. In spite of the storm it presented a creditable appearance. Of course the display of rich costumes gave way to rubber coats. The horses looked remarkably fine and were as big a display as has ever been seen in this city. The canvas covers an immense territory and as it is water-proof persons can enjoy the entertainment without fear of getting wet.

THE PERFORMANCE.

There was an immense crowd at the afternoon performance on the old ball grounds, and the programme presented was magnificent. No better circus was ever seen in this city, and for a single pair of eyes to follow it in detail is altogether impossible. There are, in fact, three circuses going on at one and the same time, each as interesting as the other, and all embracing features never before seen in the sawdust ring. The horsemanship is superb and the riders go through the most daring performances with apparent ease. The tumbling is a great feature. The Japanese performers are as much at home in the air as birds. The Valdis sisters, old favorites, are with the show. So are the famous Ducrows. The hippodrome is exciting to the last degree, and the Arabs, in particular, ride like very demons.

The "Fall of Nineveh" is a spectacle magnificent and sublime, bewildering even in the splendors that it unfolds to the view. No description could do it justice, and the same statement applies with equal truth to the circus in its entirety.

STILL WITHOUT A PASTOR.

A Great Disappointment for the Presbyterians of Plainfield.

The session of the First Presbyterian church received word yesterday from the Rev. Henry T. Miller of Chicago, their newly-elected pastor, that Mrs. Miller's illness has taken a more serious form, and her physicians have ordered her immediate removal to California. This being the case, Mr. Miller withdraws his acceptance of the call of the church and requests that his furniture, which had been forwarded to this city, be returned to Chicago.

Mr. Miller was on his way to Plainfield last week, but was called back to Chicago by telegraph.

WERTS WILL TAKE IT.

An Utterance of the Judge Which Can Have Only One Meaning.

All doubts were dispelled yesterday by Judge Werts as to his intention in regard to his nomination as Governor. When court at Jersey City adjourned for lunch at one o'clock, John McMasters, who was private secretary to Judge Werts when he was President of the Senate, followed the Judge into chambers. An earnest conversation followed. Soon afterward county clerk McLaughlin entered chambers and he remained in consultation with the Judge for ten or fifteen minutes. After Mr. McMasters and the county clerk retired from the private room. Judge Werts re-entered the court room. He looked more stern than usual and when a number of reporters approached him he did not appear to be over-pleased, although he greeted them as cordially as usual.

HE SAID IT.

The Judge was shown a New York paper, in which appeared an interview with him on the question of his acceptance of the nomination for Governor. The interview referred to what the Judge will say next Monday to the committee on notification.

"Will your answer be in the negative or affirmative?" he was asked.

"I hardly think that the committee would come all the way to Jersey City to receive a declination," said the Judge.

"Is that interview correct," a reporter asked Judge Werts after he read it.

"It is substantially correct," he replied.

"Then that is equivalent to saying that you intend to accept the nomination, Judge?"

The candidate smiled, and after a moment's hesitation said:—"You may make your own inferences."

HE WILL TAKE IT.

In the opinion of everyone this was as near saying "I will accept" as the Judge could well say before receiving the notification committee. It is accepted as a direct announcement that the Judge will remain in the field.

BONNER LEADS IN BATTING.

A Record of the Hitting Averages of the Crescent Team in the League Games.

The following table of base-hitting and run-getting in the league games, will be of interest to the Crescent team's admirers. It should be recorded that Bonner not only has the average on hits made, but a large proportion of those hits were either two- or three-baggers. "Gentle" comes second, but Leidy or Turner may pass him to-morrow:

He Wants Those "Agin the Trolley" to Come Out in Their Own Name.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of the 21st there was a doggerel article both above and below the name of "Washington G. Park". After reading the article I concluded that its appearance in your columns could only be due to some mistake, for I do not think THE PRESS, that has always been an advocate of fair play, would otherwise print an article so cowardly, underhand and untruthful and written in such a manner that the gentleman referred to as "The Boss" could not reply to without making himself appear ridiculous, or on the same principle that the courtier would not fight a duel with the jester being told, "It was no honor to kill a fool".

The fool referred to above (George Bohanan) was a gentleman, yet we can doubt whether the writer of "We're Agin the Trolley" has any right to be so distinguished, for gentlemen never retire behind an alias to publish a thing they would have reason to be ashamed of having accredited to them, and seldom make the mistake of thinking themselves witty when only ridiculous.

If "W. G. P." is opposed to either the trolley or "The Boss", let him for a time forget that "he is what he is" and at least try to write "agin" them as a man would.

Every one suffers from Catarrh in the Head. Those who don't have it suffer from those who do. It's a disease you can't keep to yourself.

Here are some of the symptoms: Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these likely to be present at once. The cure for it—for Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from it—a perfect and permanent cure, is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. A record of twenty-five years has proved that to its proprietors—and they're willing to prove it to you.

They do it in this way: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, they'll pay you $500 in cash. Can you have better proof of the healing power of a medicine?

A FAMILY WRANGLE.

Who Shall Support Aged Parents, Is the Question at Issue.

A. Vanderbeek, overseer-of-the-poor, some time ago had before him the case of some married children refusing to support their aged and infirm parents. He decided on making a son-in-law instead of the natural children bear the chief expense and burden of supporting the old people. That son-in-law, James Stahers, takes exception to the decision in the following letter:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Please let me give you a few lines about a certain young married man living in the southwestern section of this city. His name is William J. Eakins. This is a case of cruelty and ill-treatment towards his father and mother, and he is supposed to be a good man. He has turned both father and mother out on the streets to die with hunger and cold or whatever might become of them and it seems that I have to support them when their own son won't give but $2 a month and his sister the same, and he has a sister married that owns her own home that refuses to give to help her father and mother. The overseer-of-the-poor has sent them letters several times, and they seem to pay no attention whatever to the notices. The treatment that these two old people have received from their son is beyond explanation and when he was brought to the test he has denied it all and has made liars out of myself and wife. Yet he is making 18 cents an hour at Potter's Press works, and through meanness he has slandered and blackmailed me to hide his own mean actions towards his parents.

And now I would like to know whose place it is to support his parents. Is it my place to support his father and mother when their own won't take care of them? Or is it the city's place to support them?

I have plenty of proof about this case, regarding the treatment the parents have received from their children. It is a shame, and I don't see why the city does n't look at this case and make the children support their parents when the parents get too old to work. The overseer-of-the-poor says he has no time to be running after the parties concerned. I would like to know if it isn't his place to look after this case. What does the city want with an overseer-of-the-poor if he does n't look after the people's interests? I thought that he was put in office for that purpose? This is not all of this story. JAMES STAHERS.

Mr. Martinez's Not Only an Obstacle but He's a Stone Wall.

The following from the Elizabeth Journal, is about as near as a Republican paper ever gets to facts in Democratic politics:

It must be admitted that the way toward the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district is gradually clearing before the Hon. John T. Dunn. Nobody seems to be striving to deprive him of the honor excepting Farmer Martine, of Plainfield, and that worthy gentleman can hardly be called an obstacle in Mr. Dunn's way.

Forepaugh's Brute in a Smash-up.

One car containing several cages in one of the trains of Forepaugh's circus, which is showing in Plainfield to-day, jumped the track near Sinking Spring, on the Reading road, yesterday. The cages contained a bear and several antelopes and rolled down an embankment. No serious damage was done.

IT WILL FIRST APPEAR HERE.

The Finest Orchestras and Conservatories of Europe and America Have Been Drawn Upon to Form the Grandest Band in the World.

Mr. Blakely, having been interviewed by a PRESS reporter yesterday regarding the objects of Sousa's New Marine band, replied as follows:

"My experience in connection with the management of Gilmore's and the United States Marine bands, and of the tours of the Thomas orchestra and the Strauss orchestra of Vienna, has taught me that while the American public are being rapidly educated to love the higher forms of music, they have a peculiar fascination for the military band. There is something about the martial fire and sonorous breadth of this music, combined with its melodious softness in subdued strains, which creates a lively enthusiasm in the breast of the average American concert goer. To meet this popular demand, a syndicate of music-loving gentlemen of Chicago and New York some time since determined to organize a band, which, while retaining all the essential features of the military band, should attain, by its superior material and refined effects, more nearly than has heretofore been attempted, the perfect, musicianly interpretation and genuinely poetical feeling of the best string orchestras. To make a perfect success of this undertaking it was first necessary to secure a leader of unquestioned musical ability and education, and of undoubted executive force and genius. Next, to provide him with the very best musicians which this country and Europe could afford. The first want was speedily met. In his wonderful development of the U. S. Marine band from ordinary army musicians to a finely trained band, John Philip Sousa has displayed extraordinary qualities of leadership, and he was at once hit upon as of all persons, the man for this position. But he was connected with the army as the leader of the U. S. Marine band. However, the friendship of the President and the Secretary of the Navy for Mr. Sousa personally caused them to sanction his desire to enter the larger and higher field thus opened to him, and his resignation was after a considerable effort secured. The musicians have been obtained without regard to expense, from the first orchestras of this country and Europe, and they comprise an organization of artists and gentlemen at once so skillful and so intelligent, so spirited and so responsive, as to enable Mr. Sousa to immediately realize both his own ideal and that of the syndicate behind him. No sooner was the organization together, than he developed effects which surprised and delighted the musicians themselves, and all who were engaged directly or indirectly in the enterprise. And he will introduce to the public a band whose concert work will prove a new departure in military music, and constitute an absolute revelation to the American people, of the possibilities of this popular branch of musical art. The band will create a furore wherever it appears. And in the esprit du corps of its membership, the refinement, as well as the fire of its effects, its feeling and expression, its warmth and color, it will testify that its leader is a tone painter of remarkable genius, whose materials are such as to enable him to produce musical pictures heretofore unattempted, and, in fact, unsuspected in military music. These are strong words, but they are thoroughly deserved. The American public will discover in Sousa's New Marine band, an organization that will give them all that has heretofore delighted them in military music, and it will add to this such variety and color, such feeling in interpretation, such purity and beauty and charm, as they have never listened to before.

"To secure the first artists and musicians for this grand organization, the finest orchestras and conservatories of Europe and America have been drawn upon. The first cornet soloist, Arthur Smith, was formerly the soloist of the Cold Stream Guards, London. Staats, the first clarinet, is a graduate of the Paris conservatoire. Cox, the flute soloist, ranks among the first in the country. Messinger, the first oboe, has no superior anywhere. The quartette of French horns, and that of the trombones, are of the highest grade. The first trumpet is from the Belgium Guides. The first drummer is from Saro's Prussian Guards. And, in fact, every member of the band is an artist upon his instrument. The clarinets figure in this band like the strings in an orchestra, and are handled with all their delicacy, refinement and grace. The work of the band has already demonstated its great superiority. The whole enterprise may therefore be ranked as a new departure which will give the people of this country an organization which shall be the highest possible exponent of the music which they love. And they will go away from its concerts wondering how such varied, striking and beautiful effects can possibly be produced by a military band."

This grand organization will make its first public appearance at Music Hall, next Monday evening.

Much Important Action at a W. C. T. U. Meeting.

A World's Woman's Christian Temperance union meeting was held at the W. C. T. U. rooms yesterday.

After devotional services led by the president, Mrs. Tomlinson, a letter from Miss Willard, the World's president, was read by Mrs. Fernald; a beautiful solo, "Some Glad Day", was most impressively sung by Mrs. William L. Patton; a selection was read by Miss Mair; delegates to the State convention were elected, and it was voted to hold the memorial services in honor of the late Mrs. H. M. Eaton, a lamented associate and co-worker, on Sunday, Oct. 2.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. TO STIR UP THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Plans and Retrospect of the Monday Afternoon Sisters and Their Cousins and Aunts.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall of Scotch Plains, a prominent member of the Monday Afternoon club of Plainfield, writes interestingly to a woman's journal, on the subject of women's clubs, as follows:

"The Orange club has increased its membership to 200, the Monday Afternoon club, of Plainfield, has changed its limit from seventy-five to one hundred; both clubs still have waiting lists containing many names. New clubs are forming in various cities and towns, old ones are reforming, adopting constitutions and sometimes new names. The club woman is looked upon with respect. I had almost said with respectful awe. Admiration leads to imitation, and wherever a live, influential association of women exists and flourishes, others of a similar nature will be sure to spring up in the same city, or in a neighboring city or town.

"The Monday Afternoon club, of Plainfield, has striven to promote freedom of discussion among its members, but we are still a young club—a four-year-old—and we still have a tendency, which some of you may have observed in your own clubs—a tendency to relapse into papers. We find that if members are allowed a choice between the written and the spoken word, the latter is apt to get the worst of it. Next year we hope to overcome this difficulty by appointing two ready speakers to lead the discussion which, in theory at least, follows every paper. These two speakers will, it is hoped, stir up the others.

"The Elmora club has made an earnest and successful effort to promote extemporaneous speaking during the past year. This was done by holding debates on subjects of general interest—two leaders being appointed, who were allowed to choose a topic for discussion, to prepare themselves beforehand and to use notes if they chose. Each member of the club was expected to speak on either side of the question if called upon to do so. These debates proved very interesting, and were conducted with much ability and adroitness.

"Thus we see in New Jersey clubs, as elsewhere, a growing tendency to discuss the live topics of the day. I doubt whether Mrs. Amelia Dickinson Pope, president of the Elmora club, would have dared do the brave thing she did last week had she not gained courage from speaking in her club. This brave lady went before the Union county court and denounced the rumsellers in her vicinity in such a spirited speech that their licenses were withheld, for the time, at least. She stated that her action was taken in spite of threats made against her if she dared attack the saloons. My sisters, may we all have courage to speak out against wickedness in high or in low places, when it becomes our duty to defend our homes—to defend the homes of the nation!"

BEWARE THIS TRICKSTER.

An Insurance Sharper from Newark Tricks Several Dunellen People.

One day last week a man of good appearance, and a good talker, called on several Dunellen people who hold life insurance policies with the Prudential Life Insurance company and represented himself as an officer of that company. He asked to see their policy and after getting it, said he had been sent by his company to explain to the policy holders, that by paying a little extra, they could secure a five year paid-up policy. He managed to secure several policies before his trick was discovered and get out of town. Instead of the holders receiving a paid-up policy they will receive one of an increased amount of insurance at an increased weekly expense to themselves. At Joseph Laing's he did not meet with as much success, but before he left said he must have the policy to make certain changes which were to be made in all old policies. After receiving it, he then requested the the payment of twenty cents to make the change, which he also received. This was for no other purpose than to pay for additional insurance. Some of those who did not get caught in the trap and still retain their old policies unchanged, feel much pleased over it and have the laugh on the others.—Dunellen Call.

Another Republican Paper Against Mr. Martine's Nomination.

Farmer James is still a candidate for the congressional nomination, according to the New York World. Well, he will be until after the convention meets. Then his fragile little boomlet will die of inanition and some man with the wherewithal will walk off with the prize. James always runs well for office until the nomination is made; then the men whom he helped elect to coveted office throw their influence for the other fellow. He is always a sure worker whether rewarded or not. It's rough on Jim but he always takes the medicine like a man.

The above is from the Courier which, like the Elizabeth Journal and all other Republican papers in the district, is praying for the nomination of the Hon. John T. Dunn and quaking in its shoes at the possibility of Honest James Martine getting it.

Half-Dressed Wheelmen for Harrison.

The News says: "The Wheelmen's Division of the Republican club at the meeting to-night will discuss the new campaign suits and means of paying for them. The suits recommended will consist of a white helmet with torch on top, white canvas Norfolk jacket trimmed with blue pleats and white leggings."

Norfolk jackets trimmed with white leggings will certainly be a refreshing diversion, but how about the area intervening between the jackets and the shoes?

COWARDLY NEIGHBORS.

They Poison a Lot of Poultry, and the Local Paper Waxes Exceeding Wroth.

[Dunellen Weekly Call.]

About twenty of David Lowrie's chickens were poisoned one day last week by a mixture of strychnine and dough placed in little heaps in a field adjoining his farm, a few feet from the line fence. The chickens ate the food and shortly after dropped dead. Mr. Lowrie says he is positive that the poison was placed near his fence by Mrs. Reicht, a neighbor, who has not been on very pleasant terms with his family and was seen near where the poison was found a few hours before his chickens died. If this family of Reichts are guilty of this dastardly act they should be drummed out of a community of decent people. If white-caps are organized in this community they should call upon these cowardly, low-life wretches and either make them promise to behave themselves in future or drive them from this community. Mr. Lowrie also should sift this matter out and make the perpetrator suffer the consequences, which no doubt he will.

An Evening Replete With Pleasing Anniversary Exercises.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the New Market Baptist church, held its third anniversary exercises last evening in the church. Representatives from Dunellen and Plainfield were present and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

This society was organized Sept. 8, 1889, and has constantly grown in grace as well as numbers. The secretary's report showed that the most important work done during the past year to be the formation of a junior Christian Endeavor which is in a flourishing condition spiritually and financially.

One of the most interesting numbers on the programme was the address by Miss Brookfield, of Belvidere, state secretary of the Y. P. S. C. E. This gifted speaker held the attention of the audience for a half-hour and all were sorry she stopped so soon. Her subject was, "Individual Responsibility." Her talk was full of many clear, bright thoughts, and helpful suggestions.

The Rev. M. H. Pogson, of New Brunswick, was down on the programme for an address but failed to come, and the Rev. Mr. Martine of Dunellen took his place. The latter gave a very interesting talk on the life of Daniel, setting forth qualities of the man that should be emulated. The Rev. J. A. Cubberly, pastor of the church, also made a few appropriate remarks.

During the evening a selection was rendered by a quartette composed of Miss Gaskill, Miss Campbell, John Brokaw and Mahlon Dayton, accompanied by Miss I. Day on the organ. Several hymns were sung from No. 6, together with scripture reading by Dr. W. J. Nelson, the president, and prayer by the pastor. Miss Emma Nelson was the organist for the evening. A social time was afterwards held. The officers of the society are:

President—Dr. W. J. Nelson.
Vice-president—Mrs. J. A. Cubberly.
Recording Secretary—Miss Kate Coriell.
Corresponding Secretary—H. C. Gaskill.
Treasurer—Mrs. H. C. Gaskill.

Star Route Service at Local Offices.

The Dunellen Call says: "The mail service between here and New Market is certainly conducted in a very unsatisfactory manner. Our first issues sent to subscribers did not reach them until Friday evening and sometimes Saturday morning and we were therefore compelled to deliver by carrier or mail them at the New Market office at an extra expense of one cent each. Last week we sent a number of sample copies in two packages, one via Easton and the other via New York, hoping to discover the quickest route and were surprised to learn that both packages reached their destination on Monday morning, being over three days in transit. If this is a specimen of the promptness in delivering New Market mail, then there must be something wrong with the system of this route, as Uncle Sam is usually very prompt with his messages."

Opening of the Y. M. C. A. Educational Department.

The educational department of the Young Men's Christian association, will open for the season of 1892-3 on October 4. On that evening there will be a general meeting to which all young men who desire to enter any of the classes in such subjects as mechanical drawing, short-hand, book-keeping and singing, are cordially invited to come. There will be a fine address by the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, and afterwards an opportunity will be given for enrollment in all the classes.

Let every young man who would like to improve his position in life, go to the association rooms that evening. He will be cordially welcomed, and the advantages of each class will be explained to him.

Discovery Day at Dunellen.

The Dunellen public schools, together with over one hundred thousand other schools, are busy with preparations for the proper observance of Columbus Day, October 21. The exercises will consist of addresses, music and readings, all tending to keep green the memory and broaden the fame of Columbus who suffered almost every indignity and wrong to open up this Western World to the Oriental Nations. The local celebration will take place Friday forenoon at the Whittier school and an effort will be made to accommodate all.

THE HOME MARKET.

HOW MUCH WHEAT OUR PROTECTED CLASSES EAT.

Miserable Failure of Protection to Build Up a Home Market—Our Protected Classes Consume Only One-fortieth of Our Wheat.

One of the much vaunted objects of protection is to provide a home market for our farm products. Let us impose a high duty on all foreign goods, say the protectionists, and men will engage in manufactures here, will give employment to a large number of laborers, and thus a great home market will be built up and our farmers will sell all their produce at home. On this basis they seek support for the protective system among the farmers, claiming that the advantage of this home market more than repays the farmers for any increased cost of manufactured goods.

This attempt at building up a home market has now been going on for many years, and it is time for the farmers to demand of the protectionists what progress they have made in their vast undertaking. Fortunately that progress can be measured pretty accurately.

The proportion of our population engaged in protected industries can be stated at about 5 per cent.—a result reached by averaging the computations made by three distinguished officials of the government during President Cleveland's administration. These were Worthington C. Ford, chief of the bureau of statistics of the state department; Professor Simon Newcomb, superintendent of "The Nautical Almanac," navy department, and E. B. Elliott, the United States government actuary.

These three authorities reached slightly different results. According to Ford, the number of persons subject to foreign competition is 4.70 per cent.; according to Elliott, 4.75 per cent., and according to Newcomb, 5.20 per cent. For our purposes here let us take 5 per cent. as the average. The population of the United States during the year 1891 may be stated at 65,000,000, 5 per cent. of which would give 3,250,000 as the number of persons dependent upon protected industries.

Taking now the single article of wheat and determining the position of last year's crop consumed by the protected classes, we can arrive at a fairly correct idea of the value of the farmers' home market. The agricultural department at Washington estimates that the average per capita consumption of wheat is 4½ bushels. At this rate of consumption our protected classes took only 15,266,000 bushels of the wheat crop of 1891. But that crop amounted to 612,000,000 bushels. The entire home demand was as follows:

Nonprotected classes	292,833,000
Protected home market	15,266,000
For seed	55,000,000
Total	363,099,000

Our exports amounted to 225,000,000, leaving thus a surplus of about 24,000,000 to go over into this year's supply.

From the above figures the success of the protectionists in building up a home market is seen to be pitiably insignificant. We exported during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, fourteen times as much wheat as our protected home market consumed. In order to carry out their cherished idea of consuming all our farm products at home, our protectionists ought to have increased our protected home market to over 50,000,000 instead of the 3,250,000 which we now have.

Our farmers must see how small a factor the protected home market is in determining the price of their wheat. The 15,266,000 bushels consumed by that market was only one-fortieth of our last year's crop. If even this market were entirely wiped out—which nobody proposes—the difference in the price of wheat would hardly be noticed.

And what are the people paying for this market? It was shown by Senator Carlisle that on the single item of woolen goods we paid duties for the first nine months of the McKinley law amounting to $18,192,338. This sum was more than the value of all the wheat consumed last year by the protected classes, and even then this takes no account of the increased cost of domestic woolens by reason of the tariff.

These figures are sufficient to show what an absurdly high price our farmers are asked to pay for their home market. They show, too, what a miserable fraud upon the farmer Republican protection is.

Republican Cant About Wages.

Hon. Mark D. Wilbur, of Brooklyn, who has recently been speaking at Middletown, N. Y., tells of the following case to show the insincerity of the Republican talk about wages: "Four years ago in Middletown the saw factory was run under the control of high protectionists, who were paying their men in envelopes which contained an indirect threat that unless the men voted for protection they must seek protection in some other establishment; that if Cleveland was elected wages would be cut and many discharged. In thirty days after Harrison's election their wages were cut. The same thing happened in a hat factory in Middletown, and many of their skilled workmen were compelled to leave. That in itself has been a sufficient argument to guide them as to their future actions."

Steel Rail Bonus.

According to The Iron and Steel Bulletin, the production of Bessemer steel rails in the first half of 1892 was 530,000 tons. At the present prices this means that the profits of the ten or twelve mills producing these rails for six months were about $5,000,000, or $10,000,000 a year. If the rails had been admitted absolutely free the profit would have been $1,000,000, or at the rate of $2,000,000 a year. These figures, taken from a protective source, do not show that taxes on steel rails cannot be lightened. On the contrary, it is apparent that the manufacturers can stand a reduction for the benefit of railroads.—New York Herald.

Another Tariff Trust.

When the McKinley bill was under discussion two years ago the pottery makers wanted protection at the hands of congress, and their representative said:

"It is for you, gentlemen, to say whether this struggling industry shall be destroyed for the benefit of foreign manufacturers."

And so the McKinley bill increased the tariff protection on pottery. But now we have a new story told us by these same gentlemen. They have formed a trust composed of five companies, and they declare:

"These five companies manufacture and sell about 75 per cent. of the entire output of the famous sanitary plumbing ware made in this country. Some of them also manufacture fine toilet and table ware."

In order to induce investors to buy stock in the new trust the proprietors advertise as follows:

"The books of the companies have been examined by Messrs. Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co., chartered accountants, who find that the average net profits for the past three years (1889, 1890 and 1891) have been $314,573.34, and that for the last of these three years—viz., 1891—the net profits were $401,000. The average earnings will pay 8 per cent. on the preferred stock and over 11 per cent. on the common stock. The earnings for 1891 will pay the dividends on the preferred stock and over 16 per cent on the common stock, after providing for the expense of management."

Such profits do not greatly appeal to public sympathy. They hardly indicate a "struggling industry." But if profits in the past have been big, what will they be under the new tariff protected trust?—Omaha World-Herald.

Mr. Cleveland's Strength.

That Grover Cleveland is stronger before the people today than he was four years ago, no one at all acquainted with present political conditions will venture to dispute. Beyond question, he is now the most trusted and popular, as he is the broadest and wisest of our statesmen. There is nothing flamboyant in Mr. Cleveland's rise and eminence. It has been steady, logical, inevitable. Since his memorable administration of the highest office under the constitution, he has grown in favor with the "plain people," who appreciate above all things the simple and absolute integrity which is as conspicuous in Grover Cleveland as it was in Andrew Jackson or Abraham Lincoln.

This fact was later to be the first cause of Mr. Cleveland's extraordinary hold upon the esteem and affection of the American people; for the presidency is a final as it is a most severe and exalted determination of character. It is a notable paradox that there have been among our twenty-three presidents men who would stand higher in the regard of posterity had they never been subjected to the supreme tests of moral and intellectual stability involved in the administration of the great office.

It is the just and extraordinary claim of Mr. Cleveland's friends that by these tests he has been approved incomparably the greatest man who has filled the office since Lincoln.

No More Billion Congresses!

In his recent speech at Waverly, Ills., Senator Allison was particularly unhappy in attempting to explain away the iniquity of the billion dollar congress. Among other things the senator said:

"I know of no department of the government where any considerable saving can be made. I know of no law on our statute book now requiring appropriations that is likely to be repealed; and I know of no one in public life in any of the great parties of our country that purposes or suggests the repeal of any statute now involving any considerable expenditure of public money. So that those who come after us will not be able, under any probable condition of affairs, to reduce the aggregate of appropriations."

Heaven and the Democracy forbid! It is, to say the least, hazardous in a Republican senator to declare, in the face of the universal repudiation of the billion dollar congress, that the practice of economy shall never be revived in our national administration. The people will reject this monstrous proposition, even as it has been already rejected and refuted by the Democratic majority in the present house of representatives. And the verdict of the people will mean the triumph of the Democratic idea of honest government economically administered. Mark the prediction!

False Reports Run Down.

To break the force of facts gathered by the New York World showing 500 strikes, lockouts and reductions of wages in protected industries, The American Economist, the high tariff organ, published a list of twenty-eight protected industries in which wages were said to have been increased under the McKinley law. The list of twenty-eight alleged increases of wages has been investigated by Mr. John De Witt Warner and found to be fallacious.

Two of the establishments named in The Economist were found not to have any existence. One employed two men, and the wages of one of the two had been increased from twenty-five cents a day to fifty cents a day. The other man's wages had been stationary at $1.25. In seventeen of the twenty-eight establishments the employees denied that there had been any increase of wages since the McKinley act was passed. In several there had been reductions of wages. When there were increases, the increases were trifling and were the result of strikes and had been accompanied by reductions. Such is the finding. The "McKinley census" does not turn out welcome facts.—Baltimore Sun.

The Difference.

The Republican party managers look to a small class of tariff made multi-millionaires for corruption money to secure a fresh lease of power. The Democracy look to the great mass of the people, overtaxed and plundered by the Republican system of misprotection.

Who can doubt the issue, now that the people have been thoroughly enlightened on the merits of this great question?

PEARY MAY TRY AGAIN

Another Journey Contemplated to the Far North.

DOUBT CONCERNING VERHOEFF

No Positive Evidence That He Perished—His Strange Query to Several Comrades—Believed That He Remained Alone to Continue His Investigations.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 24.—Lieut. Peary has gone to Washington, where he will remain several days before returning to make his report to the Academy of Natural Sciences.

Just before leaving Lieut. Peary said that if he could possibly arrange matters he would make another trip to the North.

Arrangements have been made for an elaborate reception to Lieut. and Mrs. Peary, but no date has been fixed nor will be until they are consulted.

The results of the Peary Expedition have been made known partially by letters and dispatches from St. Johns, N. F. These tell that Lieut. Peary has gained for America another laurel in the field of exploration, but his scientific records and observations will have to be carefully collated and examined before their full value can be ascertained.

It was expected that Miss Verhoeff, the sister of the missing explorer, would create a scene upon the arrival of the Kite. She was introduced to Lieut. Peary. "Where is my brother?" she excitedly asked.

Lieut. Peary said that everything had been done to rescue her brother. Miss Verhoeff would undoubtedly have made things lively had not her relatives told her that she would meet the Lieutenant at the Lafayette Hotel and talk the matter over.

"Verhoeff left camp:" Lieut. Peary said, "to go ten miles. He took with him, a revolver, 50 rounds of ammunition, a compass, an axe, a heavy suit of clothes and provisions for five days. After being away for one day he returned and left word that if he was not back in four days we were not to look for him. He did not come back, and our search failed to find anything of him except what would lead us to think that he had fallen into an ice chasm on the glacier. A significant fact is that he asked four of the party if they thought I would allow him to remain behind alone. They said 'No.'"

"Thank God!" exclaimed Verhoeff's uncle. "He's alive; I'm sure of it."

ELOPEMENT IN HIGH LIFE.

Lieut. Erlanger and the Countess Musicu Marry Secretly, and Then Flee.

VIENNA, Sep. 24.—Lieut. Erlanger, son of Baron Victor Erlanger, and the Countess Musicu, step-daughter of M. Gerassi, formerly Roumanian Ambassador in this city, have eloped from this city.

Lieut. Erlanger met the Countess in Geneva, where his father does a large banking business. She is a beautiful woman, and young Erlanger at once devoted himself to her so noticeably that her stepfather wrote to him that his attentions were not agreeable. Erlanger was persistent, however, proposed marriage, and was accepted.

When M. Gerassi learned this he hastily left the city with wife and stepdaughter to travel in Italy. Young Erlanger did not follow them, but was kept advised of their movements by the Countess. Not until M. Gerassi brought his family to this city recently did Erlanger show any disposition to claim his bride.

He came to this city and called at the Hotel Imperial, where the Gerassis were stopping. By letter he and the Countess agreed to elope last evening.

She, a friend and a maid servant, started ostensibly for the opera. The maid servant was dropped; Erlanger was met, and the marriage was performed with the friend as a witness. The young couple then left the city.

The Countess has 10,000,000 francs in her own name. Lieut. Erlanger is also rich, and will be a millionaire after the death of his father.

A Pennsylvania Centenarian Gone.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sep. 24.—The death is announced of Mrs. Elizabeth Stanton, at her home in Patton township, Center county. She was 117 years old. Her maiden was Elizabeth Jamison, and she was born in the spring of 1775 in Lancaster county. Her age is beyond question, being proven by the family bible, several hundred years old. She was the mother of five children, three of whom are yet living. Her son Richard is a wealthy citizen of California.

Courtesy to Minister Egan.

PANAMA, Sep. 24.—United States Minister Egan, accompanied by United States Consul-General Adamson, paid a visit of courtesy to Gov. Ayeardi. As a special favor to Mr. Egan, as representative of the United States government, the Governor has reduced the quarantine period of the steamship Newport, now at Colon. She will be admitted to-day, and will sail for New York on Tuesday with Mr. Egan on board.

Weaver Disgusted With Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sep. 24.—Five thousand people assembled at the State Capitol to hear General Weaver. After waiting half an hour, it was ascertained that he would not come, as he had declared there was no freedom of speech in Georgia, and had thrown up his engagements. Gov. Northern then addressed the audience, vouching for them that they would give a fair hearing.

Savings Bank Suspends.

RICHMOND, Me., Sep. 24.—The Richmond Savings Bank has suspended because of large withdrawals of deposits caused by the bank's passing its July dividend on account of a depreciation in the value of its assets. The bank officials say the depositors will lose little, and that, with patience on their part, the bank will come out of its present difficulty solvent.

The Newark Will Escort the Queen.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 24.—Rear Admiral Benham has been ordered to proceed with his flagship Newark, now at Genoa, to Cadiz to escort the Queen Regent of Spain to Huelva on Oct. 8, where the next day a statue to Columbus will be unveiled. The Bennington, which is now at Cadiz, will accompany the Newark and the fleet of Spanish vessels and participate in the ceremonies.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MIGHT HAVE BEEN AVERTED.

Conscientious Scruples and the Panic in the New York Synagogue.

NEW YORK, Sep. 24.—It is said that the panic at Ludlow street yesterday, which resulted in the death of four persons, and the injuring of many others, several of whom will die, might have been averted by little effort. Some of the less orthodox worshippers say that the fire could have been extinguished in a moment if the older members of the congregation had not had conscientious scruples about putting out a fire on a holiday. To do so they considered a desecration of the day.

The complete list of the injured is as follows:

Isaac Walozius, superintendent of the synagogue; internally injured.

Albert Wolf, aged 24, suffering from nervous shock and slight injuries.

Rachael Backowitz, widow, aged 60, fractured skull; fatally hurt.

Tillie Stillfiker, aged 17, badly bruised.

Herman Cohen, 15 years of age, ribs crushed, internally hurt.

Mrs. Rebecca Friedland, aged 49, fractured skull; fatal.

Miss Ida Cohen, aged 21, skull fractured.

Julius Alman, aged 9, badly bruised, leg broken; will die.

Rachael Borusk, aged 27, fractured skull; injury fatal.

Mrs. Annie Cohen, widow, aged 58, fractured skull; fatally hurt.

Simon Greenberg, aged 25, fractured skull; fatally hurt.

Mrs. Louise Cohen, mother of Ida Cohen; internally injured.

The dead are Mrs. Joseph Beck, 44; Naomi Rosenthal, 30; Jacob Boynm, 50, and an unknown woman, aged about 30.

WASHINGTON'S BIG CROWD.

Figures Regarding the Number Who Attended the Encampment.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 24.—The Grand Army Encampment brought to this city more people than have ever before been assembled here. The crowds at Cleveland's or Harrison's inauguration were not nearly so large, nor did the throng at the triennial conclave of Knights Templar compare with it.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad alone brought 150,000 people to the city, and there were brought to the Pennsylvania Railroad station 135,000, of whom 25,000 to 30,000 came by the way of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Richmond & Danville railroads. A few thousand others came by boats and wagons. The number of accidents reported has been surprisingly small.

The city cared for this immense crowd easily and well. Fifty thousand veterans were furnished free quarters by the citizens, and all other persons who came were able to find comfortable lodging and abundant food at low rates. A temporary hospital was provided for visitors, and each day many emergency cases were attended to. Serious cases, however, were very few.

THEY HAVE NO YACHT.

Venezuelan Officials May Not Pursue the South Portland.

NEW YORK, Sep. 24.—The report that the Venezuelan Consul has sent a 1,000-ton eighteen-knot yacht to head off and seize the South Portland, which, it is alleged, is carrying guns and ammunition to the Venezuelan insurrectionists, is denied. It is said that neither the Nourmahal nor the Atalanta can make 18 knots an hour, and there is not a yacht of that size on this coast is capable of making it. The general opinion among shipping men now seems to be that the South Portland will go on her way unmolested.

It is said that negotiations are pending for the chartering of the Albert Dumois and the Golden Fleece. The Golden Fleece, it is said can be hired for $100 a day through the Hughes Yacht Agency. The other vessels which are lying at the battery are quite fast, and have been engaged in the fruit trade.

TWO MURDERS IN WILKESBARRE.

A Prominent German Stabbed—Another Man Killed for Revenge.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sep. 24.—Nicholas Heisl, a prominent German of Hazleton, was stabbed 11 times by three drunken men last night, and died almost instantly. The murderers, whose names could not be ascertained, were arrested.

Michael Wrich of Sticklin, Pa., who was murdered here yesterday and his body placed on the the railroad track, some months ago stole $500 from a fellow boarder and fled to Jersey City. He was arrested and brought back, but only $100 of the stolen money was recovered. He was released on bail.

It is now believed that the friends of the man who lost the money lay in wait for Wrich and murdered him.

To Sue the Hamburg Company.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sep. 24.—Judge Alfred B. Beers, John M. Hawley and David F. Read, of this city, will shortly institute civil suits for damages against the Hamburg-American Packet line, due to their detention and the exposure and privation to which they were subjected on the memorable trip of the Normannia. The Bridgeport gentlemen base their claim upon the fact that they were informed when they secured passage that no steerage passengers would be admitted to the Normannia on that trip. They will claim $10,000 each.

The Arms Spirited Away.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sep. 24.—Detectives who have been trying to locate the arms taken from the Pinkertons on the day of the riot, July 6, traced the weapons to a coal mine near Minhall station, above here. The detectives made a raid on the mine but the expected arms were not to be found. They learned that the arms were removed a day or two ago. They claim to know the parties implicated in their removal and a sensation is promised soon.

NEW PARTY IN ENGLAND.

Sir John Gorst's Movement Threatens the Gladstone Government.

LONDON, Sep. 24.—A new danger threatens Mr. Gladstone's government in the movement headed by Sir John Eldon Gorst, recently Lord Salisbury's Financial Secretary to the Treasury, to form a party to advocate dealing with social legislation or, in other words, with the labor questions, in preference to Irish home rule, which the Premier insists on putting to the front to the virtual exclusion, for a long time, of definite action on matters of far more importance to Great Britain and of far more interest to the people.

More than 50 of the advanced Conservatives and Unionists have already promised adherence to such a party and its programme, and the importance of Gorst's leadership in such a crusade cannot be overestimated. He is one of the most clever men on the Conservative side of the House of Commons, and is so genuinely devoted to the cause of the workingmen that he constantly courted the resentment of his chief while in office by urging upon the Salisbury Cabinet the claims of labor, which he frequently did at times most inopportune to the plans of the Administration.

Although, of course, party intrigues rather than sincerity in the cause of the poor is charged as the basis of the movement, and may have some to do with it in the adhesion of some Unionists to Sir John's scheme, nevertheless it may serve to attract a good many malcontents from the Liberal majority.

SETTLEMENT AT LAST.

Rejoicing at the Ending of the Granite Cutters' Strike at Barre, Vt.

BARRE, Vt., Sep. 24.—The last act in the trouble of the granite industry occurred here when the representatives of the Union and the Association signed the bill of prices and agreement, thus ending a long and bitter contest of five months' duration. The dealers held a long session to discuss the wisdom of beginning work before a settlement was made elsewhere, but finally decided to do so, and the bill was signed.

It is understood that the Association agrees to have Barclay Brothers' injunction removed, and all sheds will resume work as union yards Monday. Union cutters are happy over the outcome of the struggle and look upon the settlement as a partial victory.

Men will be set to work rapidly, leading dealers notifying the trade to send orders so that stock can be quarried before winter. Barclay Brothers and McDonald & Son of Quincy have purchased the Dirigo Granite Company's valuable dark quarry. Real estate owners and the general public are pleased at the settlement of the longest and most costly labor trouble ever known here.

THE MAHARAJAH AT THE FAIR.

His Display of Diamonds Will Surprise Everybody in Chicago in '93.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—Arnot Reid, managing editor of the "Straits Times," Singapore, is in this city on his way to Chicago as special commissioner to the World's Fair for the Straits Settlements and Malaysia. He says the Sultan of Johore will erect a typical Malay house at the World's Fair, in which 25 Malays, men and women, will be sent to reside. They will be engaged in the manufacture of gold and silver ornaments, and in the various callings of their race.

The Sultan, better known as Maharajah of Johore, will attend the opening of the exhibition in person. His display of diamonds will be unrivaled. Merchants of the Straits Settlements and native States will exhibit a quantity of tin, gamboga, pepper, dye stuffs, India rubber, rattan and other Straits produce.

EXPELLED FROM MEXICO.

An American Merchant Who Criticised President Diaz's Administration.

MONTEREY, Mex., Sep. 24.—There is considerable feeling expressed among the Americans here over the action of the General Government in expelling from the Republic C. C. Hogue, an American merchant of this city.

Mr. Hogue has seen fit to criticise President Diaz's administration, and the authorities regard his action as coming within the meaning of the law relating to pernicious foreigners, and he was expelled on that ground.

Mr. Hogue came here from the United States several years ago, and has many friends in this part of the Republic.

Big Forest Fires in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Sep. 24.—Great forest fires are devastating the country in Western Colorado in the vicinity of Newcastle, and already thousands of acres have been burned over. The latest estimate places the loss at $200,000 and the fires are still raging. The fires are said to have been started by incendiaries, and the timber is very dry and no means are at hand for checking the flames.

Gov. Russell Not to Speak in the West.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Sep. 24.—Gov. Russell is much annoyed at the untrue reports that he is to do some campaign speaking while in the West next month. To a reporter he said that he was going to Chicago to represent the State at the dedication of the Columbian Exposition buildings. He may make one speech at Chicago in connection with the dedication.

English View of the French Tariff.

LONDON, Sep. 24.—In commenting upon the effects of the French tariff, the "Daily News" says that the price of every article of common consumption in France, save fruit, has been increased since the tariff went into operation.

Hamburg's Plan to Prevent Another Cholera Epidemic.

ABATEMENT STEADILY CONTINUES.

Believed That in Two Weeks the Plague Will be Virtually Extinct—Colombia and the Quarantine Against American Ports—Situation in New York Bay.

HAMBURG, Sep. 24. — The weather remains cool and damp. There is no dust, and the air is kept clear by strong winds. Should such favorable conditions continue for two weeks more, physicians say, the end of the period would find the plague virtually extinct for the fall and winter months.

The number of fresh cases to-day has been 339, or 50 fewer than yesterday; the number of deaths 144, or 15 fewer than yesterday. The interments have numbered 241, or 50 less than yesterday. The hospitals contain 2,593 patients, or 184 less than yesterday. The majority of the patients in the hospitals are now convalescent.

By next Monday, when the sudden diminution of fresh cases will begin to be apparent, the number of patients probably will have sunk to 1,200 or 1,500, as hundreds will be discharged as cured within the next two days.

The Board of Health has been authorized to destroy many houses in the suburbs which have suffered most from the plague. The houses named for destruction are tenements which have no adequate means of ventilation and have no sanitary conveniences. All of them have been occupied by laborers' families, whose members have died off like sheep during the plague.

Seven houses in Barmbeck and three in Horn have lost two-thirds of their occupants through cholera in the last three weeks, and they are so thoroughly saturated with the disease that no disinfection, the Health Board say, could render them safe.

After the disappearance of the disease many other tenement houses will be examined with a view to tearing them down. These measures are deemed necessary to insure the city immunity from a return of the epidemic next year.

The precautions taken by the authorities are so obtrusive to sight and smell as to throw a stranger into a hypochondriacal state. Violations of the sanitary regulations are punished by a fine if the offender is poor, and by imprisonment if rich.

The cholera will prove a boon to Hamburg and other large cities if it leads to the better housing of the poor. Although they cannot be compared with Hamburg, the older parts of Berlin are deplorably overcrowded. One case in point is a single building which is occupied by 250 tenants, mostly families.

Thirty-six smaller dwellings open off onto one passage. The windows in these wretched structures are often stuffed with rags and papers instead of being supplied with glass. The average size of the room is 16 feet by 10. Some families, in which there are five children, have only one bed. The condition of these dwellings baffles description. They are full of dirt and vermin, and veritable hot beds of disease.

In the country districts the state of affairs is often worse. Cases are on record of four families, consisting of 23 persons, occupying a single small room, divided off into sections for the use of the different families by chalk lines. All married servants on an estate are housed in one room.

The figures in Antwerp up to date are 189 cases and 63 deaths.

COLOMBIA AND QUARANTINE.

Why the Concord Was Ordered to Aspinwall—Trouble Feared.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 24.—The Navy Department, in explaining the order to Admiral Walker to send the gunboat Concord to Aspinwall from La Guayra, Venezuela, states that they do not fear any trouble there, but that she will be on hand should anything occur. Consul Simms has notified the Department that there is a good deal of complaint on account of the quarantine orders against the United States.

The inhabitants of the republic of Colombia think the regulations too strict and claim that trade is paralyzed, and that if it continues there will be trouble. The Navy Department, however, does not fear any such outbreak, but, as Commodore Ramsey said to-day:

"We have not had a vessel there for some time and think it may be good to send one, so the Concord was ordered to the Isthmus. The Navy Department has three war vessels near by if any trouble should occur, for the Chicago and Kearsage are at Venezuelan ports, distant about a day's sail."

Minister Pacheco, at Guatemala, cables the State Department that that country has established a strict quarantine against all American ports.

Fire Island Almost Deserted.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Sep. 24.—Fire Island closely resembles the proverbial banquet hall deserted. Chambermaids, soldiers and policemen hold full sway here at present. Manager Wall has no intimation as to when he may expect any other guests. Dr. Vought accompanied the Wyoming's passengers, who have gone to the city in the Cepheus. Dr. Seward, who is now in charge here, is entirely satisfied with the sanitary condition of the island.

No More Exiles Sent to Siberia.

ODESSA, Sep. 25.—Orders have been given to cease sending exiles to Siberia for the present, as cholera is prevalent along the route. Many exiles have been stricken this summer, and the exile parties are believed to have been an important factor in the spread of the disease. Since last April 6,765 exiles have been sent to Siberia from southern Russia.

Situation at Lower Quarantine.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 24. —Dr. Walser's report from Lower Quarantine is that there are no new cholera cases and no deaths on the island, or detained vessels. The Bugia's officers have been released from quarantine and taken to their vessel in the upper bay.

The Plague at Cracow.

VIENNA, Sep. 24. — Seventeen fresh cases of Asiatic cholera and two deaths are reported from Cracow to-day. The disease is said to have spread in the garrison, but all details are withheld.

OTTAWA, Sep. 24.—The imperial authorities confirm the Canadian Government in declining copyright to citizens of the United States, as the Canadian statute confers that right only upon a country having a copyright treaty with Great Britain.

—The Courier is getting more and more mixed every day. Now it talks about "pastor Goodrich of the Crescent Avenue Congregational church", in two different parts of its last night's issue. The church people need not fear; their buildings have not been transposed. It's only some of the Courier's characteristic and inexcusable carelessness.

—A meeting of the Union County Christian Endeavor union will be held Thursday evening of next week at the First Presbyterian church, Rahway. The programme of the evening will consist of an address by the Rev. R. Marshall Harrison, D. D., of Brooklyn, on "Some Essentials to Success in Christian Endeavor", and a paper on "The Advantage of Junior Work" will be read by Miss "L. J. Herron of Cranford.

JERSEY CENTRAL TRAINS DELAYED.

Bad Tangle of Coal Trains at the Church Street Crossing.

All travel over the Jersey Central railroad was blockaded last evening by a wreck of coal cars in Plainfield. The engineer of a fast-moving train stopped too short, with the result that seven cars were piled up in a heap across three tracks at the flag-house near the Church street crossing. The fourth track and siding were occupied by Forepaugh's long circus trains, else passenger trains could have gone around the wreck. As it was, however, they had to await its clearing away, and for two hours trains were stalled all along the road. Between Plainfield and Westfield there were at times sixteen waiting trains crowded with hungry commuters whose dinners got cold long before they reached home.

The wreck of the seven cars was cleared away as rapidly as possible, and the damaged tracks were straightened out. By 8 o'clock the trains were running again. No one was hurt, except a brakeman who was slightly bruised in jumping; but there was abundant growling among those who were late in getting home to dinner and the circus.

To add to the confusion on the road, two passenger cars on a Newark-Roselle train were derailed between Elmora and Roselle, blocking two tracks there.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

He expressed great surprise at the great changes made in Plainfield since he left it some twenty-five years ago, since which the writer had not seen him. Mr. Cushing is a prosperous machinist of Jersey City.

Seely Edsall Will Again Conduct.

The meetings at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Sunday afternoons at 4:15 are attracting general attention. Last Sunday the same deep interest was manifested and a large number of young men were present. Seely Edsall will again conduct the meeting.

Better Go Again This Year.

Four years of continued success. Not a sudden jump into popularity, to be followed by a decline in public favor; but a steady, continual growth. This is the history of the Great Inter-State Fair, which holds its next exhibition at Trenton, Sept. 26-30.

A continued success is due to an intelligent use of brains and money to make each year's exhibition better than the last. The plant has been improved in every respect. New buildings have been erected and the minutest detail for public comfort carefully looked after.

This year everything points towards a magnificent meeting. Entries are larger and better than formerly; exhibits of a higher class; amusements more varied and complete than ever.

Better go to the Trenton Fair again this year.

Last Saturday's Lesson.

The West Ends thought they saw success in Sharrott; the Crescents saw in him an opportunity for saving the pennant. It was a triumph of good vision over bad, a triumph which may be perpetrated to all who call at Collier's and learn how the eye may be strengthened and its full usefulness preserved.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. THERE WAS BUT ONE SOUSA!

So He Was Secured to Lead the Grandest Band in the World.

The formation of Sousa's New Marine band was an exigency. It is the result of imperative demand. There are bands and bands, but in spite of this an exigency existed in this country just the same, as was made apparent by the spring tour by the National band. The public of this entire country clamored for the concerts by that organization, yet the number of cities visited was exceedingly limited. That band belongs to the government and is confined to the seat of government. It gets away only by grace and then for a few days at most.

The same management that carried it through the country determined to provide an independent organization equal to it if such a thing were possible. But where was there another Sousa to direct or organize? There is but one Sousa! By much diplomacy John Philip Sousa, the incomparable, was finally secured as a party to the new great marine band. From that hour the whole World was closely searched for the components of the newest and greatest of all. Sousa's New Marine Band complete is the result. Now for the climactic achievements which are to be made public and which are to establish the first belief that free to act as his judgment dictated, unincumbered by government or other restraint, Sousa could and would succeed in giving to America the greatest marine and military band the World has ever known. From the surprising aggregation of soloists and famed artists which Sousa has at length secured, it seems more than likely that the magnificent object aimed at in this new departure is to be completely realized. The new band numbers 50 persons, artists of the highest class, including Marcella Lindh, soprano, and Sig Antonio Galassi, the famous baritone.

PLAINFELD STILL LEADS.

The Crescents Have Outplayed the West Ends, in Spite of their Hired Help.

In spite of the fact that Somerville had the assistance of ex-Leaguers from New York, St. Louis and Westfield, at the bat, at fielding and at running bases, the pirates' town has barely equaled the Crescents in the number of runs made this season, has not made as many hits as Plainfield, and has been guilty of many more errors. The record:

	PLAINFIELDS.			WEST ENDS.
	R.	H.	E.	R.	H.	E.
June 18	1	7	2	4	7	7
June 25	9	12	7	10	15	7
July 30	1	5	1	2	5	1
Aug. 6	5	8	0	1	5	3
Sept. 10	1	5	3	7	4	2
Sept. 17	9	9	3	2	5	4
Total	26	46	16	26	41	24

From this showing it will be seen that the West Ends have never won on their merits, but only through sheer luck.

Mr. Martine Cheered First at Hillsborough.

The address delivered by the Hon. J. E. Martine, of Plainfield, before the Cleveland and Stevenson association of Hillsborough, on Saturday, the 17th inst., at Frankfort, was one that awakened renewed interest in the minds of his hearers. His subject was the trite one of the tariff, but, enlighted as it was by appropriate illustrations and the novel and original manner in which inferences were drawn, the audience failed to notice the passage of time and listened with unwearied interest to the end. The impassioned recital of Whittier's poem, "The Poor Voter on Election Day," must have reached the heart of every man, whose realizing sense of the impoverishment of the many by the vast accumulations of wealth in the hands of the few, have taught him that "as the rich get richer, the poor get poorer!" When he had finished his address he was heartily thanked by his audience, and cheers were given for Mr. Martine, then for Judge Werts, and for Cleveland and Stevenson.—Somerset Democrat.

Mr. Vanderbeek Outlines His Duty.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Mr. Vanderbeek, overseer of the poor, desires to say to James Stahera, through your valuable paper that he does not find any ordinance of the city or its charter in which it becomes his duty to settle all the family quarrels, for if dutiful and loving children want to fight and call each other and their parents vile and naughty names, the proper authority I understand to settle such difficulties is the police department. A. VANDERBEEK.

"In Haste", But Has n't Got There Yet.

The cuelty of Uncle Sam in disregarding the wishes of his people is again illustrated in the case of a letter held at the Plainfield post-office "for better directions", though the writer has urged the postman to hurry. What more lucid address could be wanted than this:

Mrs. Jane Jones,
No. 476

O Pisite the whisky mill.

in Haste.

Surely the postal service can easily find that whisky mill opposite which lives the good widow Jones.

KOCH'S DISCOVERY.

A remedy discovered that is of far greater efficacy than the noted lymph.

The tubercle bacilli were discovered by Prof. Koch, to be constantly present in all cases of consumption. Where the blood is impoverished or impure, there results that constitutional condition known as scrofula, which is characterized by the liability of certain tissues to become the seat of chronic inflammations and enlargements.

These troubles may start as catarrh in the nasal passages, throat or lungs, and as the membranes become weakened, the tubercle bacilli enter, and multiply, and we have, as a result, that dread disease—Consumption.

Find a perfect remedy for scrofula, in all its forms—something that purifies the blood, as well as claims to. That, if it's taken in time, will cure Consumption. It has been found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As a strength-restorer, blood-cleanser, and flesh-builder, nothing like it is known to medical science. For Scrofula, Bronchial, Throat, and Lung affections, Weak Lungs, severe Coughs, and kindred ailments, it's the only remedy so sure that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is refunded.

Mendacity in Harlem.

Gus de Smith is well known as one of the most adroit liars in Harlem. At a social gathering at the Yerger mansion Hostetter McGinnis said to Gus:

"That's not true."

"What's not true?"

"What you said just now."

"But I didn't say anything."

"That's all the same. What you were going to say is not true."—Texas Siftings.

Did Her Best.

"Say, Boggs, I hear you asked that suspender girl of your party to marry you. Did you, really?"

"Yaas, Dobbs, it's true."

"And she refused you?"

"Yaas, but we are very good friends. She promised—"

"To be a sister to you?"

"No, a—a bwother."—Detroit Free Press.

Inseparable.

Mrs. Bangupp—Marie, I wish you would take my diamond ring to the jeweler's and have it cleaned.

Marie—Yes'm.

Mrs. Bangupp—By the way, you might as well take my lorgnette, too, and have it polished. One is of no use without the other.—Life.

A Cash Doctor.

First Little Boy—Do you go to the country every year?

Second Little Boy—If not; sometimes papa don't pay the doctor's bill, an' then the doctor gits mad an' won't swear ma out of th' city.—Good News.

DEATH OF JAMES C. DERBY.

The Veteran Publisher Passes Away at the Home of His Daughter.

James C. Derby, senior member of the publishing firm of Derby & Miller of Church street, New York, and the father of Frank M. Derby of this city, died Thursday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Howard Brown, 47 Downing street, Brooklyn. Death was due to paralysis.

Mr. Derby was 74 years old. He was born at Little Falls, Herkimer county, N. Y., July 20, 1818. With a limited education acquired at the village school he was, when a mere lad, apprenticed to Henry Ivison of Auburn, N. Y., to learn the trade of bookbinder. This occupation proving distasteful, Mr. Ivison took him from the bindery to the book store. He continued with Mr. Ivison until 1840, in the meantime becoming the managing clerk in the establishment. In that year Mr. Ivison contributed the capital necessary to start another book store in Auburn, but not a rival, and the name J. C. Derby & Co. first appeared before the book trade world, Henry Ivison, jr., being the company. For thirteen years Mr. Derby continued in Auburn as publisher and bookseller, his first publication, "Conference Hymns and Tunes, Adapted to Religious Meetings and Prayers", appearing in 1844. In 1848 Norman C. Miller, a clerk in the store, took the place of Mr. Ivison, and Derby & Miller continued the business up to 1853. In that year Mr. Derby removed to New York city and established the house of J. C. Derby. George Ripley and T. B. Aldrich were manuscript readers for Mr. Derby at this time.

In 1855 the firm became Derby & Jackson, and so continued up to 1861, when the war, and an extended trade in the South cut off by it, obliged the discontinuance of the business. The list of the firm embraced over three hundred different works, and many of them by authors brought out by the firm and since become famous. William H. Milburn, Henry Ward Beecher, Fanny Fern, Augusta Evans, T. B. Aldrich (Widow Bedott), Gail Hamilton, Marion Harland, Chevalier Wikoff, Mrs. Oakes Smith, Miriam C. Harris, author of "Rutledge"; B. P. Shillaber (Mrs. Partington), now occur to mind as being introduced to New York readers by Mr. Derby. In 1865 Mr. Derby was appointed United States general agent of the Paris exposition of 1867, and at the close of the exhibition he received from the French government, a gold medal and also one in bronze. In 1855 Mr. Derby was elected a member of the Century association, popularly known as the Century club. He was also elected a fellow of the National academy of design in 1860. He classed among his intimate friends William Cullen Bryant, Henry Ward Beecher, George W. Childs, Cornelius Vanderbilt, William H. Seward, Frederick W. Seward, Henry J. Raymond, Horace Greeley, Alexander H. Stephens and Jefferson Davis.

Mr. Derby was connected with the firm of D. Appleton & Co., for over eleven years and was instrumental in the publication of the American Cyclopedia. In 1890 Mr. Derby, with his former partner, N. C. Miller, again put out the sign Derby & Miller for the sole purpose of publishing "The Life of William H. Seward", by his son, Frederick W. Seward, and the firm was only dissolved by the death of Mr. Derby.

The story of his life and times were fully set forth in his ponderous work entitled "Fifty Years Among Authors, Books and Publishers," published by Carleton in 1884. He leaves three sons and three daughters. One of the latter is the wife of William Montgomery, formerly of Central avenue and Sixth street, and his sister is the wife of J. Clare Derby, the youngest son of the deceased.

The funeral services will be held on Sunday and the interment will be at Auburn.

The Original Scenery and a Great Cast.

An exciting and realistic melodrama is "The Police Patrol". Manager Demarest places it on his stage with the original massive and complicated scenery intact. All of the accessories have also been brought here. These latter include the police patrol wagon used in conveying the policemen to the Haymarket anarchist riots. Graphically the drama illustrates the perils that beset the police force in the Western metropolis, where the shrewdness, faithfulness, alertness and courage of the guardians of the peace are constantly tested. The drama enjoyed a great run in Chicago, where its accuracy to real life was submitted to audiences familiar to the system that several of its scenes illustrated.

"The Police Patrol" will be acted at Music Hall, next Wednesday evening, by a company of far more than average efficiency. Messrs. Charles Chapelle and Scott Marble fill the masculine roles. That capable actress, Miss Etelka Wardell, is cast for the heroine. Misses Virginia Nelson, Blanche Boyer and Grace Burton assume important characters. Appropriate specialties will be introduced by Eddie Giguere, Miss Boyer and the patrol quartette, L. N. Glover is also a member of this excellent dramatic company. He is an actor of long experience, who will be pleasantly remembered by older play-goers. Eddie Giguere is the clever little Frenchman brought to America on account of his wonderful voice. One scene of the drama is an accurate reproduction of the Chicago police patrol barn, with the wagon and horses in readiness to respond to the alarm instantly.

Of Course They Did: It Is the People's Paper.

(Somerville Unionist-Gazette.)

The number of Plainfield people at Saturday's game was not large. They followed the advice of the Plainfield Press.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

His Best Trait.

If you would please a mother, praise her child; but do it with discretion.

A visiting gentleman had submitted for some time to the attentions of the three-year-old boy of his hostess, but at last grew a little tired of having his whiskers pulled and his corns trodden upon.

"Madam," said he, "there is one thing about your charming little boy which especially pleases me."

"And what is that?" asked the smiling mother.

"That he isn't a twin."

Gastronomic Item.

"We are going to have pie for dinner," said Bobby to the minister.

"Indeed!" laughed the clergyman, amused at the little boy's artlessness; "and what kind of pie, Bobby?"

"It's a new kind. Ma was talking this morning about pa bringing you to dinner so often, and pa said he didn't care what she thought, and ma said she'd make him eat humble pie before the day was over, an' I suppose we're goin' to have it for dinner."—Texas Siftings.

A GREAT THOUGHT.

Deacon (entering the room)—Gosh! look at dat. I'll play a four in policy to-morrer, certain.—Judge.

He Suspected as Much.

At a reception given by a German prince a gentleman was introduced, who said to the potentate:

"I was not present, your highness, yesterday, when the officials had the pleasure of being introduced to your excellency."

Prince (haughtily)—To be introduced to me, sir, is an honor. It is no pleasure.

"So I perceive."

IRON HALL REDIVIVUS

Somerby's Enemies Bitterly Denounce His Election.

PLAN OF THE RECONSTRUCTION.

The Malcontents Would Rather Have the Affairs of the Institution Remain in the Hands of the Court—Officers of the Reorganized Order.

BALTIMORE, Sep. 14.—The election of Freeman B. Somerby for Supreme Justice of the Order of Iron Hall at the reorganization convention here is bitterly commented upon by his enemies. After the election Mr. Somerby made a short speech thanking the delegates for the renewed expression of their confidence in him. He then offered his resignation of the office to which he had just been elected, saying he did not wish to continue in the position and all he had desired was a vindication of his administration of the affairs of the Order. This, he said, had been given him by his re-election as Supreme Justice.

The meeting decided not to accept his resignation, and therein Mr. Somerby's enemies again found cause for the statement that the convention was packed with his friends, while the others were excluded from participation in its proceedings. The latter claim that only a fraction more than half of the old policy holders were represented at the meeting.

They admit that additional thousands want the Order reorganized, but they will have no part of Somerby and the other supreme officers and leaders. The malcontents prefer to have the affairs of the wrecked institution remain in the custody of the court instead of again placing them in the hands of the wreckers.

Mr. Somberby, however, succeeded in having his plan submitted by the reorganization committee and adopted by the convention. It is substantially a scheme to have the members of the Iron Hall to hold on to their old certificates, take out new ones in the new organization and pay assesments until the court turns over the funds to the new organization, provided it can be induced so to act.

The other officers elected are J. Albert Clark, Exeter, N. H., Past Supreme Commander; A. H. Hosmer, Supreme Accountant; Joseph Harris, Supreme Cashier; Dr. C. H. Baker of Philadelphia, Supreme Medical Director. Somerby, Hosmer and Harris are officers of the old concern.

The financial plan of the new order is to pay $1,000 in seven years for about $450; or $500 in seven years for about $225. Old members going into the new concern sign a warrant giving the Supreme Accountant the power to draw from the receiver of the old Iron Hall the amount due them, which is transferred into what is explained to be the reserve fund of the new order. Old members will receive new certificates dated at the time of their entrance into the old order.

They will have to pay a certain percentage, about $125 on $1,000. Of this amount they will pay one-sixth in cash, give a note for the remainder, which will be deducted from the amount of the certificate when paid at maturity. The one-sixth cash payment goes into the reserve fund.

The new officers will be required to give heavy bonds, and it is proposed to engage the services of an expert accountant, not a member of the Order, to examine monthly all accounts and file a report for publication. Several of the new officers of the concern, after the plan was adopted, could not definitely explain how it could be worked out.

The amounts paid to members by the receiver and turned over into the new concern will, of course, be credited to the accounts of the respective members. The assessments will be $350 each, two a month, and a third will be levied the first month on every new member to help to pay off the claims of members which will mature in a year or two. The members who have been in the old Iron Hall five or six years will be survivors in the new Iron Hall.

NEW MINE REGULATION.

Orders Issued by the Philadelphia & Reading Company.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sep. 24.—In view of the fact that accidents are liable to occur at their mines throughout the region at any hour, day or night, the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company have issued orders compelling all inside and outside foremen and machinists to take up their residence in the immediate vicinity of the colliery at which they are employed.

This step is taken so that competent men are promptly on hand in case anything serious occurs requiring immediate attention, and it will affect a large number of employes who, in preference to being deprived of the privileges of town life, have been daily traveling from 10 to 20 miles by car or carriage to their work.

Big Land Corporation Formed.

DENVER, Col., Sep. 24.—A giant corporation has just been formed in Denver with Stephen W. Dorsey at the head which is to be known as the American Land & Canal Company, with a capital stock of $3,000,000. The company is in reality a consolidation of a large number of big concerns. The proviso is made that the capital stock of the corporation may be increased to $10,000,000 if the directors choose to do so.

Lawyer Sayles Denies the Story.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sep. 24.—Lycurgus Sayles, said to be the lawyer to whom Lizzie Borden is alleged to have applied for information as to the distribution of her father's estate in the event of his death, says that there is not a word of truth in the story so far as he was concerned; that he never saw Lizzie Borden to talk with, and that he was not in Fall River during the preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Harrison About the Same.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 24.—Mrs. Harrison is about the same; indeed, there has been no change since arrival, except that her spirits are better. She sleeps but little. Her nervous prostration is quite marked to-day. The difficulty of assimilating solid food continues. She is able to take only a little liquid nourishment.

Gen. Husted Worse.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sep. 24.—General Husted's condition is slightly worse. Both temperature and pulse have fallen, and the patient is nervous and restless.

Always Giving Satisfaction.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS have always given satisfaction. In fifty years there has been no complaint of them. That is about their life in the United States and millions of persons have used them. There is no doubt that they have established themselves by merit alone. They cure rheumatism, dyspepsia, piles, liver complaint, billiousness, and any disease arising from an impure state of the blood. One or two at night on an empty stomach, for a week or two, will keep you in good form and tone up the system. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

AFRAID OF PECK'S BOOMERANG.

A Prominent Republican Journal Is Not Deceived by His Figures.

The eagerness with which the report of Commissioner Peck has been adopted as a campaign document by the Republican papers has one exception in the Philadelphia Telegraph. This Republican journal scores Peck's performance in the following words:

If Commissioner Peck's report came from a different source it would be entitled to general public respect. Unfortunately, however, it is a matter of history that this particular bureau of labor, so called, has more than once attracted attention by its sensational performances, putting forth documents that would not bear the light of honest examination. In this case Mr. Peck has given to the American people a paper the reception of which fully illustrates its character. * * * As the matter stands, this report has already become a powerful boomerang. At the first fire of criticism it goes to pieces like a house of cards. An hour's study of this paper by any citizen of ordinary mental capacity will result in its being thrown aside as absolutely worthless.

The report pretends to give the result of inquiries addressed to some 6,000 employers in the state of New York, and shows in effect an apparent net increase of production in sixty-seven grouped industries of $31,000,000 for the year 1891, the year following the passage of the McKinley law, over that of 1890, with a net increase in the amount of wages paid of $6,300,000, the average being twenty-three dollars a year or about fifty cents a week for each employee. Upon examination it is discovered that the grouping of these industries is a most remarkable performance. For instance, under the head of "Clothing" there are found 136 different trades, this including the making of all sorts of wearing apparel, inside and outside, cotton and silk, blankets, bags, shoddy, worsteds, woolens, ribbons, hats, sleigh robes, trimmings, bedquilts, buttons, table covers, feathers and even feather dusters, millinery ornaments, flower materials, Masonic and society goods, etc.

Under the head of "Metals" there are found nearly 200 different branches of industry, from the making of bells to that of wire fence. Then there is no separation whatever of protected from unprotected industries. The building trades occupy a conspicuous place, also the undertakers' business, gas lighting, electric appliances, and many other things which bear no relation whatever to the tariff. The whole thing is jumbled up with the manifest purpose of simply making a grand total in accord with a preconceived object. It cannot be told whether there has been any actual increase in the rate of wages paid or not, but in view of the well known fact that there was a general paralysis of trade in many branches during 1890, the inference fairly is that the increased earnings and the increased product are the result simply of more hours of labor, with the corresponding improvement in machinery and general methods of production constantly noted. Finally, these tables include as workers men, women and children, and do not show the average amount earned by the entire nearly 800,000 persons.

The fact is, no pretended investigation upon the subject of tariff and wages has been presented from any source for many years past of less merit in any possible way than this paper of Labor Commissioner Peck. The political party against which it is manifestly directed can riddle it until there is absolutely nothing left of it. Not only that, but the document is sure to prove a destructive boomerang in the discussion of the wisdom or unwisdom of the present tariff law, its advantages or disadvantages to the working people. For instance, the average increase of earnings for all classes in the 136 branches of trade so absurdly included under the head of "Clothing," is shown to be about thirty cents a week, or 4 per cent. over that earned in 1890; while, as is well known, some of the schedules of the tariff relating to clothing show an increase of 30 to 60 per cent. Again, what sense is there in putting out a document of this sort to try to convince the working people of New York that their wages have been raised, their financial condition bettered? That is a matter which every laborer certainly can tell for himself when he gets his weekly envelope and pays his weekly bills.

Alarmed About the Germans.

A Chicago special to the New York Staats Zeitung says: "Yesterday the Republican state central committee sent a letter to every prominent German-American Republican in the country urging him to come to Illinois and take the stump, asserting that unless that is done the Germans will desert the Republican party almost en masse. The information from the counties having large German populations is so disheartening and so many delegations are daily storming the state committee beseeching aid that the committee today decided to at once telegraph to Consul General Gunther, who is at present at his home in Wisconsin, to come at once to Illinois and to begin work among the Germans before it is too late."

Sugar Trust Profits.

Messrs. Willett & Gray reported last January that the books of the American Sugar Refineries company showed net earnings for the calendar year 1891 of not less than $5,073,002, from which amount two semiannual dividends had been paid, each of 4 per cent. on the common and 3½ per cent. on the preferred, amounting in all to $3,750,000, leaving a surplus of net earnings of $1,323,002.17 reserved for contingencies.

During 1891, it should be remembered, the Sugar trust suffered from a very active competition of the Philadelphia refineries, and the conditions were less favorable than today or than they were in 1889 and 1890. Yet the trust earned not less than $5,073,002, enabling it to pay annual dividends of 8 per cent. on common stock and 6 per cent. on preferred stock—a total capital stock of $50,000,000, which was issued on refining property, buildings, etc., of an estimated value of no more than $15,000,000.

Now a business which pays yearly a total profit of over $5,000,000 on an actual investment of only $15,000,000 may not lay itself open to the charge of practicing extortion, but it does not appear that protection is needed in its case, especially as the men employed therein are miserably paid.

If the sugar refining business is not extremely profitable why is it that so much new capital is being put into new and independent refineries? Where do the enormous earnings of the sugar monopoly come from if the margin between the prices of raw sugar and the refined product is not much larger than it should be?—New York Merchants' Review.

Mr. Cleveland on Arbitration.

The Homestead strike, with its violent and distressful consequences, the end of which may not yet be foreseen, has induced many who have given the labor problem more or less consideration to recommend the enactment of authoritative and competent arbitration.

It is well to recall that the most enlightened friend of the American workingmen, Grover Cleveland, made such a recommendation to congress in April, 1886. In this communication Mr. Cleveland suggested that "instead of arbitrators chosen in the heat of conflicting claims, and after each dispute shall arise, for the purpose of determining the same, there be created a commission of labor, consisting of three members, who shall be regular officers of the government, charged, among other duties, with the consideration and settlement when possible of all controversies between labor and capital."

If President Cleveland's wise recommendation had been acted upon it is certain that the bloody and disastrous chapter of the Homestead strike would never have been written. The laboring people of the country will look confidently to his next administration for an adequate and final settlement of this momentous question. From the party which made possible the tariff enriched Carnegie they have nothing to expect but the old bitter portion of low wages.

The hope of the laboring people of this country is in the Democratic party and its standard bearer, Grover Cleveland.

Truth from the Enemy.

The Chicago Tribune, which supports the protection candidates without supporting high tariff McKinleyism, has discontinued for the present its tariff reform arguments. Here is one of the frank admissions of this great Republican journal made before the campaign began:

A comparatively small percentage of the immigration to the United States comes from free trade England, and even that is made up largely from the classes not protected by the tariff and who cannot be regarded as seeking here the benefits of high protectionism. Skilled operatives in the iron and steel and cotton and woolen industries find little inducement to leave their employment in free trade England to seek higher wages in the United States.

On full inquiry they find the promise of high wages delusive and that the supposed advantage is fully offset by the increased cost of living. If any such disproportion between the condition of English and American operatives in protected industries as is claimed by ultra protectionists existed it could not fail to cause a flood of immigration of skilled operatives from England to the United States, whereas our immigration comes chiefly from the high protection countries of continental Europe, and is made up of people who can enjoy no protection here.

Great American Hog

Is welcome abroad once more, and abroad he may go. As long as Lard was a requisite in every kitchen, the Great American Hog was highly esteemed at home; but now that modern science has introduced the new vegetable substitute for Lard, poor Piggy's occupation's gone.

COTTOLENE

The reason for this is threefold. COTTOLENE is cleaner, healthier and much more economical. A trial has convinced thousands as to this. It will convince any "convincable" person. Will you be convinced?

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Approaching Meeting of the U. S. Supreme Court.

MRS. HARRISON ABOUT THE SAME.

There Seems to Be Little Change in Her Condition—Removal of Consul Johnson From His Post at Kiel—Judge Lamar Not Stricken With Paralysis.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—There will be a quorum of the Supreme Court present at its approaching meeting on the 10th of October, although there are now only four of the nine judges in the city—Justices Field, Lamar, Brewer and Brown. Chief Justice Fuller is expected back this week, Judge Gray also, and Justice Harlan will try to get here before the court settles down to serious business, unless he sees before him a hopeless prospect of being quarantined.

Judge Harland himself, according to letters received here, was to have arrived in Paris yesterday, and if he can see his way clear to getting across the ocean without running too much risk of detention, will try and be in Washington so as to ensure a full meeting of the court when the important case of the Chicago Lake Front comes up under special assignment for hearing Oct. 17. Two of the other judges will be disqualified from passing upon this case, which is one of immense importance, involving many millions of dollars.

The parties in interest are the city of Chicago, the State of Illinois and the Illinois Central Railroad Company, and they are contending for the title to the lake front in Chicago.

Chief Justice Fuller is excused, because of his having been of counsel in the case before his appointment to the Supreme Court. Justice Blatchford is also disqualified because he owns stock either in the Illinois Central or some other interest affected by the litigation.

This case will really be the first business of importance to come before the court.

Justice Shiras, appointed to succeed Justice Bradley, deceased, and who has not yet taken the oath of office, has intimated that he will appear and do so at the first meeting of the court.

MRS. HARRISON NO WORSE.

The Possible Complications Which Keep Her Family Anxious.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—Reports from the White House say that Mrs. Harrison passed a somewhat restless night, but is apparently no worse this morning.

Practically there has been little change in her condition since she came here, and what there is would seem to imply rather favorable symptoms than otherwise. So far as can be learned no serious change is anticipated just at present. So long as she take as much nourishment as at present she can withstand the progress of the ordinary advance of the disease. It is the complications likely to arise at any moment that now keep her family anxious.

Disquieting rumors as to Mrs. Harrison's condition get about every day and at once manifest themselves by the messages of inquiry at the White House. Yesterday to all comers the family gave encouraging statements. Dr. Gardner makes an early morning and a late evening call now. He had reassuring answers to give those who asked about his patient this morning.

Mrs. Harrison has shown a decided craving for food the last two days and has been permitted to eat just about anything she called for. She has had, also, up to last night, a great deal of sleep.

REMOVAL OF CONSUL JOHNSON.

He Was Guilty of Fraudulent Practices as Our Representative at Kiel.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—Edmund Johnson has been removed from the Consulate at Kiel, Germany, for false representation as to his military services and for fraudulent practices as Consul. The case has been under investigation by Secretary of State Foster for the past month, and definite action has at last been taken.

Mr. Johnson was first appointed to the consular service in 1872, has at various times undergone investigation, and was once removed, but soon afterwards reentered the service and has maintained his position upon the representation that he was repeatedly wounded at various battles during the civil war and was thereby greatly impaired in health.

Recent charges as to his accounts and official conduct led to an investigation of his military service, which showed that his army record was bad, that he was not in the service at the time and did not participate in the battles, as alleged, and that the claim made as to his wounds was unfounded.

He was also found to be guilty of presenting fraudulent accounts as Consul.

Justice Lamar Not Ill.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—An unfounded rumor sent from Lebanon, N. H., that Judge Lamar of the Supreme Court had been stricken with paralysis at the Highland House there, has caused a painful sensation among the judge's friends in Washington. Apparently the rumor had its rise in a dispatch sent to Mrs. Lamar at Lebanon on Wednesday last stating that the judge was ill in Washington. Judge Lamar was seen by a reporter this morning seated in his library at his residence and was found to be without symptoms of paralysis and anticipating no difficulty in taking his seat on the Supreme Bench when the court resumes its session.

Chairman Carter Hopeful.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—Thomas H. Carter, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, spent Sunday in Washington, and was in conference with a number of officials upon political matters. He returned to New York on the midnight train. Mr. Carter was not communicative upon either the object of his visit or the prospects of the campaign. He did say, however, that the Republicans would carry New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

King of London Lenders Swindled.

Caracas Deserted of Soldiers—Forcing Loans from Merchants.

PANAMA, Sep. 26.—News has been received from Caracas to the effect that Senor Diaz has resigned the governorship of federal districts and Dr. Lander has been appointed in his place.

The government is forcing from the merchants a loan of $5,000 a day.

Villegas-Pulida had not up to Sept. 13 been recognized by the foreign Ministers as legally President of the Republic.

All the troops have left the city for the front. The Commandacia Cuartel has been closed, only a guard of 40 soldiers being left there.

Renjifro Palacio, Governor of La Guayra, it is claimed, opens all the foreign mails and is exercising a virtual dictatorship in local affairs. He has grossly insulted the American Consul and threatened to revoke his exequator.

In the waste about the Custom House which was being removed there were found 4,000 letters to local merchants, which have been rifled, it is thought, by Mendoza and Renjifro.

Minister Scruggs made a vigorous protest against the seizure of the passengers on the steamer Caracas at Puerto Cabello. He demanded that they be returned to the deck of the steamer, to salute the flag and to give personal damages.

The Foreign Minister made an evasive reply, and to Mr. Scruggs' second demand made no answer. Since then he has had no relations with the government.

It is unknown in Caracas where the prisoners are. Ardaneta had consigned them in the Castillo at Puerto Cabello, which Mora afterward captured. It is thought the imprisoned men have been removed to Maracaibo.

WOMEN MAY SEE FIGHTS.

The New Orleans Olympic Considering New Plans.

NEW ORLEANS, Sep. 26.—Capt. Frank Williams, of the Olympic Club, is the authority for the statement that at the next big event before the club ladies will be admitted to a section of the arena. This move was looked for some time ago, and after the recent fights it was stated that the matter would be brought to the attention of the club members.

Capt. Williams also stated that it was the intention of the club to agitate the question of erecting a big hotel under the name of the club for the accommodation of strangers coming to the city.

The determination to build a hotel in opposition to those established is due in a measure to the refusal of the St. Charles Hotel to allow Mr. Noel, the president of the club, the temporary use of the hotel parlor for the purpose of siguing the check of $25,000, which the club gave Corbett after his victory over Sullivan.

THE PLAGUE.

Record of Its Work from Various European Cities.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 26. — Nineteen new cases of cholera and thirteen deaths were reported here yesterday. This is a decrease of fifteen cases and an increase of four deaths compared with the returns for Saturday. Thirty-six patients in the hospitals recovered and were discharged Saturday.

CRACOW, Sep. 26.—The total number of deaths from cholera in this city has been five. All the other persons attacked by the disease have recovered. It is hoped that the cholera here will soon disappear, as no new cases was reported yesterday.

LONDON, Sep. 26. — Despatches from Hamburg and Paris state that the cholera is rapidly abating. In the former city there are still many cases, but in Paris it is believed that the disease is about at an end.

RIGA, Sep. 26.—Up to yesterday there had been sixteen cases of cholera and eight deaths from the disease at Bolderau, a village a short distance from this city.

TO LEAVE THE AMALGAMATED.

Pittsburg Iron and Steel Finishers Meet to Consider the Matter.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sep. 26—The rollers, heaters, roughers, catchers, shearmen and other iron and steel finishers, who are paid by the ton, held a Sunday meeting with the object of withdrawing their membership from the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workes and taking the necessary preliminary steps toward the organization of an independent National Trades Union, to which none but workmen of their own class can be admitted. The leaders in the movement are prominent Amalgamated Association men.

Owing to frequent disagreements with the paddlers, and unfriendly feeling over wage scale settlements, the finishers have for a long time been considering the step just taken.

This proved a surprise to the officers of the Amalgamated Association.

California's Fruit Culture.

LONDON, Sep. 26.—There is a lively correspondence in the London "Times" based on an anonymous letter, denouncing as a fraud the effort to allure British capital to California by advertising the advantage to be gained by fruit farming in that State. Mr. Henry C. Campbell of California and Mr. Charles W. Greene of New York and others have defended the business of fruit farming in California with great spirit and urgent argument. They point to the continuous increase of the fruit raising area and the extensive investment of American capital as the best evidence of good faith in appealing for British capital.

Suspended After Years of Service.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sep. 26.—Ezra I. Hunter, pilot of the steamer Jacob H. Tremper, has been suspended by the Board of Steamboat Inspectors for causing the Martin and Tremper collision at Saugerties recently. Pilot Lawson was exonerated. Mr. Hunter has been a pilot for forty-seven years.

THE CELESTIALS OBJECT.

A Circular to the Public Denouncing the Geary Law.

NEW YORK, Sep. 26.—The Chinese Civil Rights League, which has offices in the Bible House in this city, has issued an address to the American public in regard to the Geary registration law, which is declared cruel and degrading to the Chinese in America.

The address states that there are more than 100,000 Chinamen now living in this country, having come here precisely as other foreigners have come, in accordance with the laws of the United States. They believed this was a land of freedom and came here and were admitted. They have made their homes here and most of them desire to live here, and the majority are sober, industrious, law-abiding peaceful men. The circular says:

"America says that no more Chinese laborers shall come here. We do not quarrel with that. You have the right to say who shall come. But we have lived with you for years and have obeyed your laws. Now you ask us to obey a new one which applies to none of the hundreds of thousands of other aliens here. We do not think this is right."

Support is asked in the effort of the League to have the Geary law repealed.

It is stated that the Chinese do not wish to defy it, neither do they wish to submit to a law that every American would call degrading if applied to him.

WILL HOLD THE BONDSMEN.

Postmaster Conklin Feels Bound to Protect Himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sep. 26.—Postmaster E. Conklin is interested in a suit in the Circuit Court before Judge Dupue against the bondsmen of Casper Soer last May.

Soer was the registry clerk in the postoffice and stole $4,400 from the department. He is now serving a term in the penitentiary for that offense. His bondsmen were Thomas Atchinson, the Central avenue pork packer, and John Tobin, an expressman. The bond was $5,000.

Judge Dupue appointed H. C. Adams as a referee to consider whether the bondsmen should be released or not. Referee Adams decided in favor of Postmaster Conklin to continue the bond. Soer's attorney took exceptions to the referee's report, and the case will be tried in the Circuit Court before a jury to-day.

Sullivan's New Comic Opera.

LONDON, Sep. 26.—Grundy and Sullivan's comic opera, "Haddon Hall," was produced Saturday evening for the first time. It is a capital piece of work and was received with enthusiastic approval. Sir Arthur Sullivan was called out and he made a short speech of acknowledgment. The Duke of Edinburgh and a crowd from the smart set of London society were present.

Had No Work, So Killed Himself.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sep. 26.—John Patty committed suicide last evening by shooting himself through the heart with a revolver. The deceased was a scythe maker, 40 years of age, and in comfortable circumstances. He had been out of work a long time and it is believed that the constant brooding over that fact caused the rash act.

THE DEATH OF WICKES.

His Friends in New York Greatly Shocked Over the Report from Detroit.

NEW YORK, Sep. 26.—Friends of Mr. Wickes in this city are greatly shocked at the manner of his death as reported in the Detroit despatches, and express doubt as to their correctness.

Mr. Ernest F. Walton, agent of the Wickes' Refrigerator Company in this city, said that he knew Mr. Wickes very intimately, and knew that so far from being a man likely to go on a drunken spree, he was unusually temperate. He said that he dined with him frequently and never saw him even taste a glass of wine with his meals.

He also said that there was nothing of the rounder or man-about-town in his make up and could in no way account for the misfortune which had befallen Mr. Wickes.

Other friends in this city spoke in the same strain and highly eulogized Mr. Wickes' modest and retiring life.

SWEATING SYSTEM IN NEWARK.

A Jersey Inspector Discovers a Sad State of Affairs.

NEWARK, Sep. 26.—A report has been made by Deputy Labor Inspector Callan, of the New Jersey State Bureau, to the Essex Trade Council respecting the condition of the factories in Newark. The report condemns the making of wearing apparel in tenement houses; tailors eating, drinking and sleeping in the same room in which they work long hours—from 5 in the morning until 11 at night.

These tailors, the report adds, were driven out of New York city, and reside in houses, the property of wealthy Gothamites. A State law to prohibit the sweating-house system is suggested.

Searching for a Child.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sep. 26.—More than 1,000 men and women are searching the woods and mountains for miles about Harleigh, a mining town near this city, for four-year-old Alice Czaja. Alice was lost last Friday afternoon. She is the daughter of John Czaja, a miner who lived in a cottage that nestled close to the base of a mountain a mile from Harleigh.

Cleveland's Letter.

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass., Sep. 26.—Mr Cleveland has been devoting considerable time during the past week to the preparation of his letter of acceptance and on being asked to-day when it might be expected replied that it was now so far completed that he could safely promise that it would be given to the public about the middle of this week.

J. W. HUSTED'S DEATH

General Sorrow Caused By the Announcement.

HE WAS CONSCIOUS TO THE END.

His Long Public Service—The Only Man Who Was Ever Elected Speaker of the New York Assembly Six Times—His Stubborn Fight for Life.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Sep. 26.—The arrangements for the funeral of General James W. Husted, who died last night, have not yet been completed. The announcement of his death has cast a gloom over the entire community, as the General was known by thousands. The poor people, to whom he was always very kind, especially deplore the sad event.

General Husted had a relapse Saturday and grew gradually worse. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon he began to sink. He passed away at 8:17 in the evening, conscious to the last. At his bedside there were Dr. Mason, Mrs. Husted, her sons, Thomas W. and J. W., jr., and two daughters, Mrs. Fred Shedd and Miss Husted.

General Husted was taken ill on his way to the Republican convention in June last. He left New York with the Republican delegates and before he arrived at Minneapolis he was taken down, and it was feared he would expire before arriving at his destination. As soon as he was stricken some of those on board of the train administered him a dose of medicine, and it was said that it was an overdose, and caused the illness from which he died. After the convention he was brought home to Peekskill in a special car and removed to his residence, where he remained in bed hovering between life and death ever since.

James W. Husted was born at Bedford, Westchester county, this State, in 1833. His parents were American born descendants of English and French immigrants. After preparation for college at the Bedford Academy, he graduated at Yale in 1854, one of his college mates being Chauncey M. Depew, in after life one of his most intimate friends. Mr. Husted studied law with Edward Wells in Peekskill, and was admitted to the New York bar in 1857. He then engaged in the practice of his profession, meanwhile taking a deep interest in State politics.

For over 30 years he was in active political life. Among the offices he held was Commissioner Deputy Superintendent of the Insurance Department, Harbor Master, Emigration Commissioner and Deputy Captain of the Port of New York. He invariably took an active interest in the National Guard of the State, and was himself a member of it, serving as Judge Advocate of the Seventh Brigade and as Major-General of the Fifth Division. He was also an influential and distinguished member of the Masonic fraternity, and once held the position of Grand Master of that body in this State. He received the thirty-third degree as a Mason.

Gen. Husted was an uncompromising Republican from 1859, and attended the National conventions of the party as a delegate in 1876, 1880, 1884, 1888 and 1892. In 1881 he was a candidate for State Treasurer, but was defeated by Robert A. Maxwell. It was, however, as a member and Speaker of the Assembly that Mr. Husted attracted most attention and acquired fame. He was a strong debater and a hard man to engage with on a question of parliamentary law. His advent to the Assembly was in 1869, representing Westchester county, and he was continuously a member until 1878. In the latter year he was elected an Assemblyman from Rockland county, and was re-elected from that county in 1879. Returning to Westchester county in 1880 he was again elected to serve his old constituency. His first defeat when running for the Assembly was met in 1882, his successful opponent being John Hoag, a Democrat. Since 1880 he was regularly re-elected from Westchester county. He was sent to the Assembly 22 times in all.

He was first chosen for Speaker in 1874, and filled that position during five subsequent sessions, viz., 1876, 1878, 1886, 1887 and 1890. As a presiding officer he was able, courageous and firm. He was the Republican leader in the Assembly during the session of 1891-92, and enjoyed the distinction of having had the longest legislative service of any member, and, indeed, the longest of any man in the history of the State—23 years. He was Speaker more times than any other man who has occupied the chair.

Personally he was genial, and made many personal friends. As a politician he was keen and uncompromising, being of that habit of mind which made him at all times a partisan. He made for himself a prominent position in State politics, being familiarly known as the "Bald-Headed Eagle" of Westchester county.

DANN WILL PLEAD GUILTY.

The Buffalo Defaulter Prepared to Acknowledge His Crime.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 26.—Edward S. Dann, the defaulting treasurer of the National Savings Bank, will be brought to trial about Wednesday, and it is generally understood that he will plead guilty to one of the fifteen indictments which have been found against him and throw himself on the mercy of the court, taking a short sentence. It is said he will do this by the advice of his pastor, Rev. Mr. Hitchcock, to whom he confided his line of defense.

If Dann stood trial and were found guilty, his sentence, on all the indictments, would aggregate many years more than he will get by pleading guilty and suing for mercy.

Gov. Russell to Mayor Grant.

NEW YORK, Sep. 26.—Gov. Russell of Massachusetts has written a letter to Mayor Grant requesting information concerning the programme of New York's Columbian festivities. Adjt.-Gen. CLEVELAND'S

One rounded teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of any other. A large saving on a year's bakings.

BAKING POWDER

A pure cream of tartar powder. Used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of Cookery.

Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome, as it contains no ammonia, no alum, no adulteration.

PATRICK SARSFIELD GILMORE.

His Band to Keep On—His Estate—Sketch of His Life.

NEW YORK, Sep. 26.—It is said that Sargent Frendenvolt, the assistant director of Gilmore's Band, will continue to act as leader, and will keep up the organization established by the late bandmaster. Mr. Gilmore, while not wealthy, leaves his family in comfortable circumstances. His estate will foot up about $40,000. The remains will arrive from St. Louis this evening.

It was known that Mr. Gilmore suffered from an affection of the heart, but the announcement of his death at St. Louis came with crushing force upon his many friends and admirers.

Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore was the most widely known bandmaster in America. He was born near Dublin, Ireland, on Dec. 28, 1829, and was, therefore, in his 63d year at the time of his death. He demonstrated great love for the music of brass instruments when but a bit of a boy, and at the age of 15 connected himself with military bands. Before he attained his majority he went to Canada with an English military band and after spending a year in the Dominion went to Salem, Mass., where he became a leader of the principal brass band in that city.

In 1861, at the outbreak of the Rebellion, Gilmore accompanied the Twenty-fourth Massachusetts regiment to the field, and in 1863 he was placed in charge of all the bands in the Department of Louisiana by General Banks.

At the close of the war Gilmore devoted himself to the work of his band with redoubled energy. It was he who first conceived the idea of giving monster concerts in the greater cities of the country, and he successfully carried his idea into execution.

He was the projector of the great "Peace Jubilees" given in Boston in 1869 and 1872, and it was under his leadership and his management that the jubilees proved such great successes. He wrote a book about the first jubilee, which was published in Boston in 1871.

In 1878 Gilmore took his band to Europe and made a successful tour of the cities of the Old World. He played before crowned heads, princes, dukes and lesser nobles, and was received with great favor.

Soon after the opening of Manhattan Beach as a summer resort the big auditorium in front of the hotel was built and Gilmore and his band were secured as a regular summer attraction there.

He has been one of the features of Manhattan Beach every season since. Only a few weeks ago his last great jubilee was given at Manhattan Beach.

It was just about that time that the report, which afterward proved unfounded, that the great bandmaster had been drowned, was circulated. Gilmore had a great ambition to be recognized as a composer, and he wrote many songs and ballads, some of which gained great popularity.

His "National Anthem" he considered his finest composition and nearly always played it when his band gave an entertainment. His last work of any note was the arranging of the music of "Marching Through Georgia" into a funeral march. He marched at the head of his band playing this work at the funeral pageant of General Sherman.

His band has been one of the attractions at the St. Louis Exposition for years, and he was playing his annual engagement there at the time of his death.

SOUVENIR HALF-DOLLARS.

The Design Finally Agreed Upon By the World's Fair People.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 26.—The design for the half million souvenir half-dollars has been agreed upon by the World's Fair people and Mint Director Leech.

The face of the coin will contain a head of Columbus and the reverse side two caravals under which are two globes. Across the globes will be the figures 1492. Under the globes will be the year in which the coin is struck, 1892 and 1893.

Director Leech, speaking of the matter, said he hoped to have 1,000,000 of these half-dollar souvenir pieces struck this year and the remaining 4,000,000 early in 1893.

ANTI-BRITISH LEAGUE.

The Society Opens Headquarters in New York City.

NEW YORK, Sep. 26.—The Anti-British League, composed of Irish-American citizens who believe in protection to American industries, has opened its headquarters at the Ashland House on Fourth avenue. The leader of the organization is Thomas St. John Gaffney, a lawyer of this city. The object of the League, as stated by Mr. Gaffney in his address, is to bring together "that large element of the Irish people here who believe that the policy of protection is the best for this country and is antagonistic to the hereditary enemy of their race."

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The regular rehearsals of the Melopoia will begin Oct. 4.

—The usual prayer meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening.

—Good judgment and steady playing characterized the Crescents' work Saturday.

—Now the Crescent team should be photographed, and the group-portrait hung in the club-house.

—There will be published in THE PRESS to-morrow, a Somerville man's account of "Why we were Beaten".

—Somerville will not play any more base-ball. Her heart is broken, and she will have no team next year.

—Plainfield workingmen will doubtless turn out in force at the labor mass-meeting at Reform Hall Wednesday evening.

—The regular meeting of the Cleveland and Stevenson campaign club will be postponed this evening on account of the Sousa concert.

—The North Plainfield Republicans will meet at Spencer's Hall this evening to elect four delegates to the congressional convention at New Brunswick Wednesday.

—The Twilight Social Club will give their fifth annual ball in the Crescent rink, Thanksgiving Eve. The music will be by Voss's First Regiment Band of Newark.

—A giant shade tree in front of Mrs. Kirk's on West Seventh street, was blown down by the high wind this noon, wrecking the fence, and filling the front yard with its branches.

—One of Edsall's feminine patrons says she has bought kid gloves for the past eighteen years, and has never found one that wears as well as the black suede she gets at Edsall's. The price is only $1.50.

—Patrick McGovern, of Fritts avenue, North Plainfield, upon complaint of his wife who charges him with assault and battery, is held under $200 bail by justice Crosley to await the action of the grand jury.

—Plainfield Building and Loan Association shareholders will meet in Liefke's building this evening at 7:30 for the payment of dues, and thereafter the board of directors will hold an adjourned meeting in the same place.

—Mister Frisbie locked a man's cow up in a barn on Sycamore street Saturday, and the man came after it. One dollar and fifty cents was demanded as pound-keeper's charges. The man refused to pay and opening the barn door he helped himself to his cow and walked away. When he opened the barn nine dogs, the result of a whole day's hunt by the dog-catcher, escaped.

—A. Y. Pearson's big realistic production, "The Police Patrol", will be presented with its wealth of scenery, trained horses, patrol wagon and the original New York cast at Music Hall, Wednesday evening. This is one of the strongest melodramas before the public. The management carries two 65-foot special baggage cars to transport the scenery and trained horses, that one time belonged to the Chicago Police department and became famous in the anarchist riots at Haymarket square, in that city, some five years ago.

Just as THE PRESS Predicted.

Yesterday's New York Tribune has the following to say of the popular erewhile Plainfield shortstop whose playing in this city early in the season was admired by every local base-ball crank: "Keeler, the third baseman of the Binghamton team, is highly spoken of. He may wear a New York uniform this week."

UP GOES THE BANNER.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM OVER THE DEMOCRATIC DEMONSTRATION.

GREAT CROWD AND MANY CHEERS.

The Banner Too Big for Plainfield's Broadest Street and Highest Buildings, Just as the Candidates Are Too Big for Any One Party But Popular With All.

The raising of the Democratic banner Saturday night was an event of enthusiasm probably greater than at any other similar celebration in the history of local politics.

A cable had been stretched across North avenue from the roof of THE PRESS building to Taylor's building, and the banner was swung on the cable so that it floated grandly across the thoroughfare, waving its handsome folds directly in front of THE PRESS and THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office.

A great crowd of people gathered to witness the unfurling of the ensign, completely thronging the thoroughfare for a considerable distance. Shortly after 8 o'clock the banner was swung along the cable, and as the faces of Cleveland and Stevenson beamed down from the portraits there was one mighty cheer from those hundreds of throats, and the band played inspiring national airs, and colored fires lighted up the scene with a vivid glare, and blazing balls flew skyward from scores of Roman candles. It was a most auspicious inauguration of the campaign. Already one could smell victory in the air. The popular enthusiasm was tremendous. Cheer after cheer was given, not only for Cleveland and for Stevenson, but also, as proposed by C. W. MacQuoid, for "our next Governor, George T. Werts", and "our next Congressman, James E. Martine". Mr. MacQuoid, as already announced in these columns, four years ago was vice-president of the Westfield Republican association but left the Republican party because he believes in tariff reform, and is now a member of the New York Stock Exchange Cleveland and Stevenson club.

In front of THE PRESS office, swinging above the heads of the enthusiastic populace, were strings of brilliantly-colored Japanese lanterns, making a very pretty illumination; and the truck which the speakers of the evening used as a platform was adorned with gay bunting. From this truck rousing speeches were made by Judge Louis F. Wadsworth, the Hon. James E. Martine, and the Hon. Joseph W. Yates. Mr. Yates's ringing remarks for Tariff Reform showed thorough acquaintance with and was an able handling of the subject. Such men as he are the kind who make Congressmen. Mr. Martine predicted for the Democratic party just such triumphant victory as had been achieved by the Crescent League that day. All of the speeches were greeted with much applause.

The only trouble about the handsome new banner is that it is so big there is n't room for it in the street, and a tuck will have to be taken in its skirts.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Lester Leggett, of Florence, Kansas, is visiting his brother, Charles, of this city.

William Carter and wife, of Horseheads, N. Y., are visiting friends and relatives in this section for the first time in many years.

Hester S. Brooks, widow of the late James Brooks, died at her home on Rockview avenue yesterday in her ninety-sixth year. She was probably the oldest resident of her sex in this locality.

The first special musical service for the coming season at the Church of the Holy Cross will be given one week from next Sunday, at the afternoon service. Master Seth Bingham, of Naugatuck, Conn., who has a marvelous contralto voice, will aid the choir at this service.

The last tea of the season was given by the Union Country Country club Saturday afternoon. It was in charge of Mrs. Rowland Cox. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Mrs. A. D. Shepard and Mrs. J. Parker Mason. The coffee table was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Kaufman and Mrs. Geo. Thomas. At the tea table Mrs. H. C. Adams and Mrs. L. G. Timpson presided. The young ladies who assisted in the dining room were the Misses Dumont, M. VanBoskerck, Massett, Corlies, Tracy, Stewart, and Talmadge. The decorations were very elaborate, and all Plainfield society was there. It was a most delightful event.

IN MEMORY OF GILMORE.

Sousa's Band will Play the Great Musical Hero's Beautiful Composition, "Death's at the Door".

J. A. Demarest, Esq.,

MY DEAR SIR:—The sudden announcement of the death of Mr. P. S. Gilmore has been received by none with deeper or more profound regret than by Mr. John Philip Sousa, his fellow bandmaster and friend, and by me, who was for years his only business manager. Neither of us can express in words the loss which the country and the cause of music have experienced by his untimely decease. But as a slight tribute to the memory of this great musical hero, the New Marine Band will to-night play as its first number the beautiful composition of Mr. Gilmore, most appropriate to the occasion, entitled "Death's at the Door", or "The Voice of the Departed Soul".

Very sincerely yours,
D. BLAKELY.

BY THE WAY.

—The Democratic banner on North avenue is so big that carriages could not drive under it as it first hung. It has been drawn in and the cable will be raised.

—The case of Tobin, Enander & Co. vs. F. H. Martin, on contract, was tried before justice Nash this afternoon. Counselor Reed appeared for the plaintiffs, who secured judgment for the full amount of the claim, $51.60.

DESERVED THE TAIL END.

SOMERVILLE WAS OUTPLAYED AT EVERY POINT BY EVERY OTHER TEAM.

Even Westfield and Elizabeth Show a Superior Record, and Plainfield Outranks Them All, as the Tell-Tail Figures Show.

When the smoke of battle has cleared away and the agony of defeat has in a measure subsided, if the West Ends will analyze the scores of the recent league games they will find some consolation in the fact that they finished second in the race instead of bringing up the rear. Outhit and outfielded by every team in the race, and, upon the merits of the game, entitled only to last place, yet that phenomenal "West-End Luck", to which they owe so much, landed them a good second to the team which far outplayed at every point every other in the league.

Let the wearers of the apple-green and white scan the tell-tale record which shows him his deserts, and then thank his familiar idol for that stupendous "blind luck" which enabled him to triumph over his more deserving opponents. It is well that this is their last year upon the diamond, for such luck could not last always, and five years of it was a wonderful run.

The following totals in the series with each club tell the tale:

	RUNS.	HITS.	ERRORS.
West Ends.....	40	50	29
Westfield.....	33	51	19
West Ends.....	38	48	19

There will be a band of music in attendance. The Tariff-Reform club will parade before the meeting.

—The Courier has a Presidential candidate all of its own. It hangs out a banner, "Our Choice, Benjamin F. Harrison". The F is probably for Fitz, but who is the man anyhow?

A woman "run-down," overworked, weak, nervous and debilitated—that's a woman that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made for. It gives her health and strength. All woman's weaknesses and all woman's ailments are cured by it. It's a legitimate medicine—not a beverage; it invigorating, restorative tonic and a soother and strengthening nervine, free from alcohol and injurious drugs. It imparts tone and vigor to the whole system.

For all functional irregularities, periodical pains, organic displacements and uterine diseases, it's a positive remedy.

And a guaranteed one. If it doesn't give satisfaction, in every case the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms.

That's because nothing else is "just as good."

Perhaps the dealer will offer something that's "better."

He means that it's better for him.

The signal tower which stands on the hill at the centre of Fanwood cut, and which had been open since about January, 1879, was closed Friday night. PLAINFIELD'S PENNANT.

THE DOUGHTY CRESCENTS ARE THE CHAMPIONS OF THE LEAGUE OF '92.

TALE OF THE BROKEN COVENANT.

In Accordance with Scriptural Prophecy, the Somervillians Go Out One Way Against the Crescents, and Flee Seven Ways Before Them, to Their Homes in New York, St. Louis and Mt. Ararat.

The Plainfield base-ball team are the champions of the Central New Jersey league; the pennant for which they have fought so valiantly is theirs; the boasting enemy and its hirelings are routed; the victory for the honest and stalwart Crescents is most complete.

Scattered through the pages of the Good Book are many warnings of the disaster that attends the breaking of a covenant. It is predicted that "it shall come to pass that they who keep not the covenant shall be heavily smitten before their enemies; they shall go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them." And it is further recorded that "because the children of Israel transgressed their covenant, therefore they could not stand before their enemies." And again remember, "when ye have transgressed your covenant, ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which the Lord hath given unto you." And Jeremiah quotes: "I will give the men that have transgressed the covenant, which have not performed the words of the covenant, into the hands of their enemies, and their dead shall be meat for the fowls of the air and for the beasts of the field." And in accordance with all these sayings in days of old, the children of Israel who kept not the faith they had spoken were carried into Assyria and into bondage.

Now in these latter days was yet another covenant established, even as in the time of ancient kings and rulers. And the people making this bond were of divers places, yea from four corners of the earth they gat them together and held a privy council among the elders. From the broad fields of the open plain came he that was yclept Deacon, and likewise he that was short and rotund of stature and big of heart and whom men knew as Tee Kay and Tom and Hazelwood. And they and their retinue pitched their tents in the council of the strange people. And he that led the host from the secluded country-place of Mt. Ararat was named for a fish of the sea which the same requires abundant salt to dispel its freshness. And from the far-off land of the unknown region beyond Finderne came another, and he was a Jew. And all these gathered at the town where the ships come in.

Now when all had been seated at the council at the city of the port, the chief rulers of the four tribes did confer together, and did make a solemn compact among themselves, saying:

"Let us prepare each for himself a chosen band of trusty yeomen, men of valor and skill; and let them be pitted one band against another, and victor against victor, till all but one faithful band are vanquished, and the victors we will crown with honor, and into their hands deliver gold and treasure, and robe them in purple and fine linen." And they agreed, saying "Let it be so." And likewise they made yet another covenant, saying: Let it be known among all men, unto all the nations of the earth, that we shall be content with our own warriors, and shall not seek for braver or more mighty men among the camps of aliens." And they agreed, saying "Let it be so." And he that proposed the covenant was the man of swarthy countenance from the wilderness beyond Finderne, and he and the other chief rulers ratified it.

And they that were from the fields of the broad plain, they said "This shall be a token and a covenant." And they set their crescent in the cloud, and it gleamed upon man's sight like the new moon of the heavens, and it was a token of their covenant. But the others set not a token in the sky; neither sealed they their covenant with their hand. Yet notwithstanding they had given their pledge, and it was known among all men.

Now the chief rulers of the four lands gat them together their most trusty warriors, and they were each a band of mighty men, men of valor and prowess. And the eye of man could not foresee who would fall in the conflict, for all were strong and valiant, and whose was to be the victory could not be prophesied. But there were some who bargained among themselves, and said "We will go thee much shekels on the young men who are the pride of our town."

Now as time passed on, and the heat of the summer sun was upon the land, the young men of the tribes cast themselves one upon the other in mighty combat. And now they lost, and now they won, and no man could foretell the issue.

And it came to pass that the men of the city where the ships come in, and the men of the tribe of Mt. Ararat, were vanquished before their stalwart foes, and fell beside the wayside.

Now was seen among all men the crafty cunning of the man of swarthy countenance. For he was jealous and fearsome of the young men of the fields of the plain, and they and his were to meet in final conflict. And they were evenly matched in battle, and in warfare they were equal.

Now was forgotten by him the covenant he had made; now broke he the covenant which he had pledged himself. For he went into strange countries and to far-off lands, and bargained among the aliens for warriors bold and mighty. And he gat himself men great in stature, men mighty of muscle. For there were Giants in those days. And his hirelings were from the seven corners of the earth, yea even some from the tribe of Manhattan which was more mighty than all other tribes.

And the names of his new warriors were divers. And among them was one called Sharrott, and one Gore, and one Jocko.

And having marshaled his troops, with the hirelings at their head, he journeyed against the young men of the fields of the plain. And the young men said among themselves: "How is this! Did not this fellow pledge his covenant? How then hath he broken it!" For they saw coming the mighty men of the race of Giants, and they were sore afraid, and their knees quaked. Howbeit they made show of resistance, but the mighty men of the race of Giants fell upon them and smote them hip and thigh, and the young men of the fields of the plain were routed before the fierceness of the foe.

Now the wise men and soothsayers of the fields of the plain arose and proclaimed the defeat of the valiant young men. And they said "Let us cease to treat with the men who have broken their covenant, and let it be known among all men how they have violated their faith."

And the people of the fields of the plain besought the chief ruler of the land not to suffer his stalwart young men to fight vain fights against the overpowering hirelings of the faithless enemy. But the chief ruler was only as a Reed shaken before the wind. When the clamor had stilled he was as a mighty poplar tree, and there was none that could make him tremble.

And the man who was like a strong Reed straightway became fierce and warlike, for his anger burned hot against the treachery of the covenant-breakers. And he gathered his young men together, and they fell upon the hirelings, even the mighty Giants, and smote them hip and thigh and tooth and nail. And the Giants fell before the onslaught.

Now was he of the swarthy countenance sore amazed, that the pigmies of the crescent-covenant-token should smite his Giants so mightily. And he said "Let us have one more battle, and let that stand as the final victory for whosoever triumphs in the fight. And in spite of argument for other plans, and in spite of protest and clamor against his violation of the covenant, yet he had his way.

—For behold the chief rulers of the other two tribes to the covenant now appeared and said "Whosoever refuses to consent to this one final battle, to his adversary shall go all the spoils."

So the young men of the field of the plain prepared themselves for warfare. And they girded on their armor, and seized their war-clubs, and awaited the enemy's coming.

And the young men who went into the fight under the crescent-symbol were the same young men of the original covenant. But the enemy retained their hirelings, even the alien Giants.

Now he of the swarthy countenance boasted aloud, saying "Gat ye not mighty men from other lands for this warfare? Then even so shall ye fall before my Giants!"

But he remembered not the tale of David and Goliath.

Now there was among the young men of the city of the fields of the plain a stripling of gentle manners but mighty arm and valiant skill. And he was put at the front of the young men, to mow down the Giant warriors with his good right arm.

But the Giants jeered at him and called him "farmer boy" and "buckwheat", and said "What manner of pudding is this that has been set before us!" And the stripling of gentle manners minded not their scoffings, but said nothing and sawed wood.

And it came to pass that the Giants fell before the "farmer boy" and the "buckwheat" as dew vanisheth before the scorching sun. And against the young men the Giants could do not at all, and they were mightily smitten, and suffered utter defeat. And they who had gone out one way against the people of the fields of the plain now fled before them seven ways, even unto the seven corners of the earth whence they had come. And the small boys jeered at the Giants, and Jocko they called Jassack, and Gore they derided Big Stuff.

And the man of the swarthy countenance, he and his hirelings, departed wailing and gnashing their teeth, into eternal torment.

And the young men who had kept their covenant were glad of heart, and the people of the city of the plain rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And they had feasting and music within their tents, but the camp of the enemy in the wilderness beyond Finderne was darkened, and he of the swarthy countenance sat in sackcloth and ashes and moaned out his lamentation and tribulation.

And the feast to which the covenant-breakers had bidden the people of the tribes of Mt. Ararat and the city of the port, was not prepared; only in the city of the plain did they kill the fatted calf, and there the sound of the harp and of the sackbut and of the dulcimer was heard in the land.

And lo the skies which had for days been wet and drear now ceased their weeping. And behold in the western sky, hanging like an omen over the tribe of the covenant-breakers, there gleamed the golden crescent of the new moon. And it was as a beacon to them who had kept their covenant and won the victory. Yea: unto them it was revealed in its full meaning, the true emblem of progress and success.

And while the crescent shone in the heavens, there came a great voice from on high, saying: "These are my faithful and beloved, in whom I am well pleased."

And likewise a voice responded:

"Yea: verily they have endured afflictions and persecutions, and the time of their triumph is at hand.

"They have fought a good fight; they have finished their course; they have kept the faith."

And even from the camp of the enemy in the darkened wilderness beyond Finderne there came the wail:

"Verily virtue hath its own reward, and the righteous are more mighty than the wicked."

Saturday's game was won entirely by the superior work of the Crescents over their formidable adversaries. The Plainfield team out-batted and out-fielded the West End aggregation, and Robert Murphy pitched the game of his life. His speed was terrific, his control phenomenal. When it was all over he was a hero among men, and was given a great ovation. The only run the West Ends got was presented through a base on balls, backed up by a two-base hit. Only two men besides the one who scored ever got as far as second for Somerville. The victory was as complete as it was wonderful. The Crescents played good and great ball all through the game. They hit judiciously, and fielded to perfection. The error of Cole's was in dropping a foul fly, and the error had no bad result, for the batsman went out right afterwards. Brady missed capturing a liner from Gore, but redeemed himself by his great catch of Ryman's seemingly sure hit in the ninth.

The score:

SHOOTS AND SKIPS.

Jail-Bird Perrine Makes a Target of Frank Linke, Because the Latter Objects to His Beating Mrs. Perrine.

Charles Perrine, just out of State prison after a ten years' sentence for robbing a coachman's trunk at H. A. Streuli's place, Hillside avenue, tried to shoot Frank Linke of North Plainfield, Saturday night, and then left town.

Perrine was taken to task by his wife for making love to a colored woman. He thereupon beat Mrs. Perrine until she fled to Mr. Linke's saloon next door at 179 Somerset street. Mr. Linke gave Perrine his opinion of such cowardly conduct and the latter then began to shoot at Mr. Linke over the fence that separated the two places, but without hitting anybody. Then he disappeared in the darkness.

The police have been hunting for him ever since without avail.

A Plainfield Carpenter's Fall.

George Wyckoff, of Plainfield, a carpenter in the employ of J. Wallace Cox on his new house on Park street, Westfield, fell from a scaffolding last week and dislocated his shoulder. He was attended by Dr. Cooper, and removed to his home in Plainfield.

Concession to Westfield Commuters.

Passengers on the Central railroad are now allowed to cross the tracks and not compelled to use the tunnel. An employe has been stationed to open the gate in the fence to allow passengers to pass through. A waiting room is being constructed at one end of the platform on the south side. This will be a great convenience in wet and stormy weather.

May As Well Leave It Down.

A few weeks ago, the Republicans strung a Harrison banner across Front street, without a cheer, or note of music, or flame of light, or noise of any sort. To-day at noon, without a sound of warning, the cable let itself loose and dumped the whole outfit in the street.

The heavy wooden tripod on the roof of Gavett's building, was thrown down and narrowly missed killing a horse driven by Mrs. F. H. Gardner.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. TALK ABOUT FOOTGEAR.

The Two Styles the Most Popular at the Present Time.

Difference Between the Common Sense and Piccadilly — The Feet of a Number of Well-Known Men and Women.

The two most popular styles of shoes found in our shoe stores to-day are known as the common sense and Piccadilly.

In them we have notable examples of the extremes that are resorted to simply because "it is fashionable." The fundamental principles upon which both these styles of shoes were first constructed were good, but the shoemaker seems to have hit upon the same idea as did the old bachelor when he concluded that if one egg in his pot of coffee was good, two would be better, and three would make the coffee delicious, writes Avard J. Moore in the Cosmopolitan.

Shoemakers now seem to be competing with each other to see who can put the most "twist" into a common sense or Piccadilly shoe, and, as a result, they are suited to the fewest types of feet.

Usually, the Piccadilly is but a bungling attempt at putting a pointed toe on a common sense shoe. A foot to which the common sense shoe is not adapted will, in most cases, find equal discomfort in a Piccadilly. No greater mistake can be made in footwear than that of attempting to wear either of these styles of shoes on a foot of straight contour. It cannot but result in a shoe that pinches. Both styles o shoes mentioned are usually bowed or hollowed out at the inner side of the shank, while the straight foot is in most cases quite full at the hollow under the instep.

As the shoe is so constructed that it cannot conform to the shape of the foot, it is, consequently, pushed over until the upper overrides the sole sufficiently to make room. I have seen examples where the foot had been forced against the side of the shoe until the little toe projected beyond the edge of the sole.

The only redeeming feature of either the common sense or Piccadilly shoe is that ample room is provided for the great toe, but this is more than offset by the pinching of the smaller ones. While the foot is "breaking" the shoe into shape the three smaller toes are being crowded against the shoe upper, and, long before the breaking-in process is completed, corns have taken deep root on at least two of the toes, and, possibly, on the third. There should be no such thing as breaking-in a new shoe.

The Cosmopolitan publishes the above outlines, as illustrating the different shapes of the feet of well-known people in various walks of life.

How It Feels to Be Hanged.

Michael Blume, who was twice strung up by lynchers near Fresno, Cal., still lives, and has told how it feels to be hanged. He tells how when he was first run up he "felt his neck crack." There was no pain after the first moment. He says: "I seemed to be swimming in air that was intensely dark, but I thought I was in some familiar place. It was like a dream. I seemed to be floating away faster and faster, and lighter and lighter, until I passed into nothingness. I did not know when I was let down. I returned to consciousness as gradually and as painlessly as I had passed away." He was let down in the hope that a confession might be got from him, but he said he had none to make and was run up again. This time he was conscious of a rather long and painful struggle, and then seemed to float off painlessly into space. He was let down again, and this time the coming to life was somewhat painful.

Don't Try This.

If twelve persons were to agree to dine together every day, but never sit exactly in the same order around the table, it would take them 13,000,000 years at the rate of one dinner a day, and they would have to eat more than 470,000,000 dinners before they could get through all the possible arrangements in which they could place themselves.

Didn't Go by Express.

THE DRESS IS FINISHED, SO AM I."

A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball-room; "a queen of society is radiant to-night."

The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary frame and aching head have known no rest — for "the dress must be finished in time."

To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One, through hot-house culture, luxury, and excitement, and the other, through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause. The Vegetable Compound will enable both to meet the demands of society.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is the only Positive Cure and Legitimate Remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It cures the worst forms of Female Complaints, that Bearing-down Feeling, Weak Back, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, Inflammation, Ovarian Troubles, and all Organic Diseases of the Uterus or Womb, and is invaluable to the Change of Life. Dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus at an early stage, and checks any tendency to Cancerous Humor. Subdues Faintness, Excitability, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, etc., and invigorates the whole system. For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex, the Compound has no rival.

All Druggists sell it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

And He Smiled a Sickly Smile.

The young father stood over the cradle, critically inspecting his first-born.

"Of course it's a healthy, well-formed baby, Lucy," he said to his wife, "and will be a credit to the family when it grows older, but it's awfully homely just now."

"Dear little thing!" cooed a neighbor who happened in a few moments later; "it's the very image of its papa!"—Chicago Tribune.

Very Considerate.

German professors are proverbially absent-minded, but none of them more so than Prof. Dusel, of Bonn. He noticed one day his wife placing a large bouquet on his desk.

"What does all this mean?" he asked.

"Why, this is the anniversary of your marriage," replied Mrs. Dusel.

"Ach, Gott! Is that so! Well, let me know when yours comes around and I'll reciprocate."

A Trifle Inconsistent.

"You know that young Mr. Beansome who was here at the seashore last week?"

"Yes, dear."

"You remember he proposed to all us girls in the politest way imaginable?"

"Twice to me, you remember."

"Yes, and three times to me. Well, here's a poem of his in this magazine on 'Unchanging Love.'"—Chicago News Record.

GOOD PIE

is much prized, but many people can't eat pie because of dyspepsia or dyspeptic tendency.

Everybody

CAN EAT PIE

if it is made with Cottolene, the new pure substitute for lard. Cottolene is simply pure cottonseed oil and pure beef suet, two of the healthiest foods known.

Properly combined they are better than lard for all kinds of shortening, and everyone can eat, digest, and enjoy food cooked with it. Food that was indigestible when cooked with lard is easily digested when cooked with Cottolene, and many of the leading housekeepers of the land say they can make nicer bread, rolls, biscuit, cakes, cookies, ginger bread, pies, patties, tarts, griddle cakes, croquettes with Cottolene than with either lard or butter. Get it of your grocer and try it. Beware of imitations.

MR. CLEVELAND'S ACCEPTANCE

His Formal Response to the Democratic Notification Committee.

VIEWS ON TARIFF LEGISLATION.

A Great Part of the Document Devoted to This Subject—Readjustment and More Careful Distribution of Tariff Burdens Are Favored, Not a Precipitation of Free Trade—Federal Control of Elections Condemned — The Candidate's Position On the Currency Question—Civil Service Reform, Pensions, Education, etc.

To Hon. William L. Wilson and others, Committee, etc.

GENTLEMEN: In responding to your formal notification of my nomination to the Presidency by the National Democracy, I hope I may be permitted to say at the outset, that continued reflection and observation have confirmed me in my adherence to the opinions, which I have heretofore plainly and publicly declared, touching the questions involved in the canvass.

This is a time, above all others, when these questions should be considered in the light afforded by a sober apprehension of the principles upon which our government is based, and a clear understanding of the relation it bears to the people for whose benefit it was created. We shall thus be supplied with a test by which the value of any proposition relating to the maintenance and administration of our government can be ascertained, and by which the justice and honesty of every political question can be judged. If doctrines or theories are presented which do not satisfy this test, loyal Americanism must pronounce them false and mischievous.

The protection of the people in the exclusive use and enjoyment of their property and earnings, concededly constitutes the especial purpose and mission of our free government. This design is so interwoven with the structure of our plan of rule, that failure to protect the citizen in such use and enjoyment, or their unjustifiable diminution by the government itself, is a betrayal of the people's trust.

We have, however, undertaken to build a great nation upon a plan especially our own. To maintain it and to furnish through its agency, the means for the accomplishment of national objects, the American people are willing through federal taxation to surrender a part of their earnings and income.

TARIFF LEGISLATION.

Tariff legislation presents a familiar form of federal taxation. Such legislation results as surely in a tax upon the daily life of our people as the tribute paid directly into the hand of the tax gatherer. We feel the burden of these tariff taxes too palpably to be persuaded by any sophistry that they do not exist, or are paid by foreigners.

Such taxes, representing a diminution of the property rights of the people, are only justifiable when laid and collected for the purpose of maintaining our government, and furnishing the means for the accomplishment of its legitimate purposes and functions. This is taxation under the operation of a tariff for revenue. It accords with the professions of American free institutions, and its justice and honesty answer the test supplied by a correct appreciation of the principles upon which these institutions rest.

This theory of tariff legislation manifestly enjoins strict economy in public expenditures and their limitation to legitimate public uses, inasmuch as it exhibits as absolute extortion any exaction, by way of taxation, from the substance of the people, beyond the necessities of a careful and proper administration of government.

Opposed to this theory the dogma is now boldly presented, that tariff taxation is justifiable for the express purpose and intent of thereby promoting especial interests and enterprises. Such a proposition is so clearly contrary to the spirit of our constitution and so directly encourages the disturbance by selfishness and greed of patriotic sentiment, that its statement would rudely shock our people, if they had not already been insidiously allured from the safe landmarks of principle. Never have honest desire for national growth, patriotic devotion to country, and sincere regard for those who toil, been so betrayed to the support of a pernicious doctrine. In its behalf, the plea that our infant industries should be fostered, did service until discredited by our stalwart growth; then followed the exigencies of a terrible war which made our people heedless of the opportunities for ulterior schemes afforded by their willing and patriotic payment of unprecedented tribute; and now, after a long period of peace, when our overburdened countrymen ask for relief and a restoration to a fuller enjoyment of their incomes and earnings, they are met by the claim that tariff taxation for the sake of protection is an American system, the continuance of which is necessary in order that high wages may be paid to our workingmen and a home market be provided for our farm products.

These pretences should no longer deceive. The truth is that such a system is directly antagonized by every sentiment of justice and fairness of which Americans are pre-eminently proud. It is also true that while our workingmen and farmers can, the least of all our people, defend themselves against the harder home life which such tariff taxation decrees, the workingman suffering from the importation and employment of pauper labor instigated by his professed friends, and seeking security for his interests in organized co-operation, still waits for a division of the advantages secured to his employer under cover of a generous solicitude for his wages, while the farmer is learning that the prices of his products are fixed in foreign markets, where he suffers from a competition invited and built up by the system he is asked to support.

The struggle for unearned advantage at the doors of the government tramples on the rights of those who patiently rely upon assurances of American equality. Every governmental concession to clamorous favorites invites corruption in political affairs by encouraging the expenditure of money to debauch suffrage in support of a policy directly favorable to private and selfish gain. This in the end must strangle patriotism and weaken popular confidence in the rectitude of republican institutions.

Though the subject of tariff legislation involves a question of markets, it also involves a question of morals. We cannot with impunity permit injustice to taint the spirit of equity which is the life of our republic; and we shall fail to reach our national destiny if greed and selfishness lead the way.

Recognizing these truths, the National Democracy will seek by the application of just and sound principles to equalize to our people the blessings due them from the government they support, to promote among our countrymen a closer community of interests cemented by patriotism and national pride, and to point out a fair field, where prosperous and diversified American enterprise may grow and thrive in the wholesome atmosphere of American industry, ingenuity and intelligence.

FREE TRADE NOT CONTEMPLATED.

Tariff reform is still our purpose. Though we oppose the theory that tariff laws may be passed having for their object the granting of discriminating and unfair governmental aid to private ventures, we wage no exterminating war against any American interests. We believe a readjustment can be accomplished in accordance with the principle we profess without disaster or demolition. We believe that the advantages of freer raw material should be accorded to our manufacturers, and we contemplate a fair and careful distribution of necessary tariff burdens, rather than the precipitation of free trade.

We anticipate with calmness the misrepresentation of our motives and purposes, instigated by a selfishness which seeks to hold in unrelenting grasp its unfair advantage under present tariff laws. We will rely upon the intelligence of our fellow countrymen to reject the charge that a party comprising a majority of our people is planning the destruction or injury of American interests; and we know they cannot be frightened by the spectre of impossible free trade.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF ELECTIONS.

The administration and management of our government depend upon popular will. Federal power is the instrument of that will—not its master. Therefore the attempt of the opponents of Democracy to interfere with and control the suffrage of the States through federal agencies, develops a design, which no explanation can mitigate, to reverse the fundamental and safe relations between the people and their government. Such an attempt cannot fail to be regarded by thoughtful men as a proof of a bold determination to secure the ascendency of a discredited party in reckless disregard of a free expression of the popular will. To resist such a scheme is an impulse of Democracy. At all times and in all places we trust the people. As against a disposition to force the way to federal power, we present to them as our claim to their confidence and support, a steady championship of their rights.

STABILITY OF CURRENCY.

The people are entitled to sound and honest money, abundantly sufficient in volume to supply their business needs. But whatever may be the form of the people's currency, national or state—whether gold, silver or paper—it should be so regulated and guarded by governmental action, or by wise and careful laws, that no one can be deluded as to the certainty and stability of its value. Every dollar put into the hands of the people should be of the same intrinsic value or purchasing power. With this condition absolutely guaranteed, both gold and silver can be safely utilized upon equal terms in the adjustment of our currency.

In dealing with the subject no selfish scheme should be allowed to intervene and no doubtful experiment should be attempted. The wants of our people, arising from the deficiency or imperfect distribution of money circulation, ought to be fully and honestly recognized and efficiently remedied. It should, however, be constantly remembered that the inconvenience or loss that might arise from such a situation, can be much easier borne than the universal distress which must follow a discredited currency.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Public officials are the agents of the people. It is therefore their duty to secure for those whom they represent the best and most efficient performance of public work. This plainly can be best accomplished by regarding ascertained fitness in the selection of government employes. These considerations alone are sufficient justification for an honest adherence to the letter and spirit of Civil Service Reform. There are, however, other features of this plan which abundantly commend it. Through its operation worthy merit in every station and condition of American life is recognized in the distribution of public employment, while its application tends to raise the standard of political activity from spoils hunting and unthinking party affiliation to the advocacy of party principles by reason and argument.

THE MATTER OF PENSIONS.

The American people are generous and grateful, and they have impressed these characteristics upon their government. Therefore, all patriotic and just citizens must commend liberal considerations for our worthy veteran soldiers and for the families of those who have died. No complaint should be made of the amount of public money paid to those actually disabled or made dependent by reason of army service. But our pension roll should be a roll of honor, uncontaminated by ill desert and unvitiated by demagogic use. This is due to those whose names adorn the roll, and to all our people who delight to honor the brave and the true. It is also due to those who in years to come should be allowed to hear, reverently and lovingly, the story of American patriotism and fortitude, illustrated by our pension roll. The preferences accorded to veteran soldier in public employment should be secured to them honestly and without evasion, and when capable and worthy, their claim to the helpful regard and gratitude of their countrymen should be ungrudgingly acknowledged.

DANGERS OF PATERNALISM.

The assurance to the people of the utmost individual liberty consistent with peace and good order is a cardinal principle of our government. This gives no sanction to vexatious sumptuary laws which unnecessarily interfere with such habits and customs of our people as are not offensive to a just moral sense and are not inconsistent with good citizenship and the public welfare. The same principle requires that the line between the subjects which are properly within governmental control and those which are more fittingly left to parental regulation should be carefully kept in view. An enforced education, wisely deemed a proper preparation for citizenship, should not involve the impairment of wholesome parental authority nor do violence to the household conscience. Paternalism in government finds no approval in the creed of Democracy. It is a symptom of misrule, whether it is manifested in unauthorized gifts or by an unwarranted control of personal and family affairs.

Our people, still cherishing the feeling of human fellowship which belonged to our beginning as a nation, require their government to express for them their sympathy for all those who are oppressed under any rule less free than ours.

IMMIGRATION.

A generous hospitality, which is one of the most prominent of our national characteristics, prompts us to welcome the worthy and industrious of all lands, to homes and citizenship among us. This hospitable sentiment is not violated, however, by careful and reasonable regulations for the protection of the public health, nor does it justify the reception of immigrants who have no appreciation of our institutions and whose presence among us is a menace to peace and good order.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

The importance of the construction of the Nicaragua Ship Canal as a means of promoting commerce between our States and with foreign countries, and also as a contribution by Americans to the enterprises which advance the interests of the world of civilization, should commend the project to governmental approval and endorsement.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Our countrymen not only expect from those who represent them in public places a sedulous care for the things which are directly related and palpably related to their material interests, but they also fully appreciate the value of cultivating our national pride and maintaining our national honor. Both their material interests and their national pride and honor are involved in the success of the Columbian Exposition; and they will not be inclined to condone any neglect of effort on the part of their government to insure in the grandeur of this event a fitting exhibit of American growth and greatness, and a splendid demonstration of American patriotism.

In an imperfect and incomplete manner, I have thus endeavored to state some of the things which accord with the creed and intentions of the party to which I have given my life-long allegiance. My attempt has not been to instruct my countrymen nor my party, but to remind both that Democratic doctrine lies near the principles of our government and tends to promote the people's good. I am willing to be accused of addressing my countrymen upon trite topics in a homely fashion, for I believe that important truths are found on the surface of thought, and that they should be stated in direct and simple terms. Though much is left unwritten, my record as a public servant leaves no excuse for misunderstanding my belief and position on the questions which are now presented to the voters of the land for their decision.

Called for the third time to represent the party of my choice in a contest for the supremacy of Democratic principles, my grateful appreciation of its confidence, less than ever effaces the solemn sense of my responsibility.

If the action of the convention you represent shall be endorsed by the suffrages of my countrymen, I will assume the duties of the great office for which I have been nominated, knowing full well its labors and perplexities, and with humble reliance upon the Divine Being, infinite in power to aid, and constant in a watchful care over our favored nation.

Yours, very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

A REGIMENT IN REVOLT

Mutiny of the First Life Guards at Windsor.

CHOLERA STEADILY DECREASING.

Abating Now at All Infected Points—Kindness of Russia's Rulers to Two Wounded Soldiers—Reports of the Kaiser's Illness Again Current—Other Cable Notes.

LONDON, Sep. 27.—The members of the First Life Guards Regiment, stationed at Windsor, have mutinied. The War Department has demanded a full report of the occurrence. The members of the regiment have been disaffected for some time past, owing to the many drills and inspections they have been compelled to undergo.

Yesterday a non-commissioned officer of "C" squadron found all the 80 saddles belonging to the squadron so badly cut that they were completely ruined. The men were ordered into their barracks, and were their confined. Here they became uproarious, disturbing the whole neighborhood. They sang "Briton Never Shall Be Slaves," popular music hall songs and the national anthem.

The affair created much excitement in Windsor and crowds of villagers surrounded the barracks, listening to the noise. Between 9 and 10 o'clock at night the whole squadron went into the barrack yard, singing and yelling at the top of their voices. The uproar was continued until "Lights out!" sounded, when silence was restored.

A great number of the men have been placed under arrest. The squadron is confined to the barracks. It is reported that Capt. Rawson, who commands the squadron, is very unpopular with the men. He it is who is said to be alone responsible for the extra drills to which the men object and to prevent which they cut their saddles.

THE CHOLERA IN EUROPE.

Seventy-five Cases and Thirty-five Deaths in Hamburg—Other Figures.

HAMBURG, Sep. 27.—The official reports state that there were only 75 cases and 35 deaths from the cholera in Hamburg yesterday.

The official reports also state that up to date the number of cholera cases in Hamburg was 17,157, and the number of deaths was 7,389.

AMSTERDAM, Sep. 27.—A commercial traveler was found suffering from cholera in one of the ordinary hotels at The Hague. He was removed to the hospital, and the hotel was disinfected and isolated.

VIENNA, Sep. 27.—Cholera is said to be spreading in Roumania, and especially in the district of Carjova.

PARIS, Sep. 27.—There were twelve fresh cholera cases in Portol, a suburb of Boulogne, and six deaths.

HAVRE, Sep. 27.—There were five deaths from cholera yesterday, according to official reports, and four new cases.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 27.—There were seventeen deaths from cholera in this city yesterday and ten deaths.

KIND-HEARTED RULERS.

Two Wounded Men Cared for By the Czar and Czarina.

VIENNA, Sep. 27.—The Vienna newspapers state that, when the Czar and Czarina of Russia were about to return to St. Petersburg from Ivan Gorod, after witnessing the military manœuvres there, they heard a gun explode and upon inquiry learned that an accident had occurred in the closing scenes of the manœuvres by which two men were seriously injured.

The Czar and Czarina at once returned to Fort Manovski, where the accident had occurred, and the Czar gave directions that the wounded men should be conveyed in his own train to the nearest hospital.

The Czarina knelt by the side of the worst injured of the two men and supported his head until a cloak could be placed beneath it.

The Czar supervised the removal of the men to the hospital and saw that they were well provided for.

Rumors About the Kaiser's Health.

BERLIN, Sep. 27.—Persistent rumors that the Emperor is in ill health are circulated here. He is said to be suffering from his old ear trouble, which was supposed to have been cured temporarily by his trip north. A dispatch from Rominten, where the Emperor is hunting, however, states that he is in good health.

General of the Jesuits.

ROME, Sep. 27.—It is reported that the Jesuit convention to elect a general was called yesterday. The place is not known, although it certainly is not in this city. The result of the election will be known in about a week.

Lynn's Cholera Suspect.

LYNN, Mass., Sep. 27.—Mrs. Fanny Friedmann, who was found suffering from an attack of apparent Asiatic cholera in this city Saturday night, shows an improved condition this morning, and the doctors believe she will recover. If it were not for the fact that she arrived from the cholera infected district of Poland via Hamburg on the steamer Gallia from Liverpool no thought of cholera would have arisen in her case. As it is, the tenement house in which she lies sick has been surrounded by police and thoroughly fumigated, and every precaution is being taken.

Encounter With the Bank Robbers.

TACOMA, Wash., Sep. 27.—Four of the burglars who entered the Roslyn Bank Saturday evening, shot the teller, and secured about $20,000, were met by the Sheriff's posse in a dense forest in Leamway Basin, 20 miles east of Roslyn Sunday night. During the fight which ensued one of the robbers was injured, and the others escaped. The Sheriff's posse has been increased to 135 men and it is believed the robbers will be captured.

Two Boys Probably Drowned.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sep. 27.—Edward Kaveney and Liggeme Maynard, two boys aged 15, left Wickford, Saturday night, to row to their home in Hamilton, two miles distant, and have not been seen since. The boat has been found and it is believed that it upset and the boys were drowned.

Two Drowned in the Delaware.

EASTON, Pa., Sep. 27.—Isaac Werkheiser, aged 28, single, and Edward Martin, aged 25, his brother-in-law, were drowned in the Delaware River a mile above here yesterday by their boat being capsized by high wind and rough water. With William Rockefellow they were bringing a load of stone to this city in a float. The river is generally smooth, but it was so windy that after the accident no one dared venture out in rowboats to aid the men. Rockefellow managed to reach shore.

De Koven's New Opera a Success.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 27.—The "Fencing Master," a new comic opera by Reginald De Koven and Harry Smith, was presented last night for the first time by the Marie Tempest Opera Company at the Star Theatre. The music is of a high order, and the numerous solos and the opera generally were received with great favor by a large audience.

CATHOLICS AT NEWARK.

German Representatives From Many States in Convention.

NEWARK, N. J., Sep. 27.—The German Catholic societies in convention here are now down to actual business. At a meeting yesterday afternoon resolutions were offered which will be formally acted upon on Wednesday. Several thousand visiting delegates are in town, representing both clergy and laity of the German Catholic Church of a dozen States.

Four thousand people, representing 50 societies, took part in the parade last night. The main thoroughfare was brilliantly illuminated, and many of the stores were decorated. The parade passed through the principal streets. The three grand marshals were John B. Oelkers, Jacob Kaiser and George Brueckner. There were 76 mounted aids and 35 bands of music. The different societies carried different colored lights and formed one of the finest pageants the city has ever seen.

The procession was disbanded at Caledonian Park, where the opening exercises of the four days' session were held.

The big hall was packed to the doors when the evening session was begun. Bishop Wigger, of the diocese of Newark, presided. After a brief speech of welcome in German, he introduced James F. Connelly, Controller of the City of Newark, who, in the absence of the Mayor, welcomed the delegates to the city.

He was followed by State Senator Michael G. Barrett, who said that he had been requested by Gov. Abbett to say that business prevented him from being present, but that he would be with the Congress to-day. This was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering.

BOOKMAKER WEBSTER CONVICTED

This Time the Jury Finds Him Guilty of Manslaughter, First Degree.

NEW YORK, Sep. 27.—The second trial of Burton C. Webster, on the charge that he shot Broker Charles E. Goodwin to death at the Percival Flats, Aug. 2, 1891, ended yesterday afternoon, and the jury came into court at 11:30 last night with a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree. The jury at the former trial disagreed.

A much stronger case has been made against Webster in this trial by the District Attorney, who was confident that a verdict of guilty would be found.

Webster's defense was on the same line as that produced on the former trial. This was that he went to Goodwin's apartments to resent an alleged insult to his (Webster's) "common law" wife, an actress known as Evelyn Granville, and that, in defending himself from assault at the hands of Goodwin, he was forced to use his pistol with fatal effect.

The case has attracted wide attention.

SAYS HE IS THE MURDERER.

William Lewis Accuses Himself of Killing Rose Ambler.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sep. 27.—William Lewis of Stratford got into a barroom fight in this city on Saturday night and was struck over the head. A few hours later he was found unconscious on the road home and was taken to the hospital. There the physicians learned that his skull was fractured. His condition is precarious. He was delirious yesterday, and his ravings have caused a sensation.

When the country was excited over the Rose Ambler murder mystery in Stratford, in 1883, Lewis was suspected. The evidence seemed to be strong, but the coroner's jury refused to hold him. While stoutly maintaining his innocence he told contradictory stories, and for a time his case looked black. He had at one time been in love with the girl, but she had married another man.

In his ravings now he talks about Rose and cries out that he murdered her. The man's condition is somewhat improved, there is small chance of his recovery.

NAVAL ESTIMATES.

The Annual Figures for 1894 Ready for Secretary Tracy.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 27.—The annual estimates for the navy for the fiscal year 1894 have been made up and will be sent to the Secretary for transmission to Congress.

It is understood that about $10,000,000 has been recommended for payments on account of the new navy which will come due between July 1, 1893, and June 30, 1894.

No estimates are made for new ships.

This is a matter to be discussed in the Secretary's report.

There is considerable speculation as to what new vessels the Secretary will recommend. It is believed he will ask for another battle ship and renew his recommendation for four small gunboats and several torpedo cruisers.

GALE IN MICHIGAN.

Great Damage to Farm Property and Injury to Life.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Sep. 27.—A fierce gale of wind from the northwest, accompanied by rain, swept over this section of the State Sunday night, doing great damage to farm property and causing injury to life.

A summer cottage at Devil's Lake, near here, was blown from its foundations and completely wrecked.

Of its three occupants, Mrs. Henry Graham, was almost instantly killed and her husband and year-old baby seriously injured.

Dashed Into a Train.

PALMYRA, N. Y., Sep. 27.—Charles Gallagher and Miss Kate Moran were driving down hill to the crossing about a half mile north of this village when their horse became unmanageable and dashed into the St. Louis express going east. The horse's head was caught between two cars and torn entirely from the body. Gallagher and Miss Moran were thrown against the train and dragged quite a distance. Gallagher's skull was fractured and he will die. Miss Moran is badly bruised and her collar bone is broken.

Interstate Fair at Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 27.—The Interstate Fair opened yesterday and 5,000 persons attended. The exhibits are more numerous in all departments than in past years, being more filled. Thursday next will be politicians' day, when both candidates for Governor will be present.

Mrs. Harrison's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 27.—Mrs. Harrison's condition to-day as reported by Dr. Gardiner is unchanged. Last night she rested well.

THE REV. DR. MITCHELL BOUND FOR ANOTHER FIELD.

GREAT REGRET AMONG HIS PEOPLE.

Tribute of Esteem from His Official Board, Who Bid Him God-Speed in His New and Larger Work in Kansas City—His Western Flock is a Young Men's Congregation.

The Rev. Bayard Mitchell, D. D., has accepted a call to the Grand Avenue M. E. church of Kansas City, Mo., and will preach his farewell sermon in this city the last Sunday in October. He will take charge of his new field the first of November.

The departure of Dr. Mitchell is a matter of regret to all Plainfield, and of congratulation to Kansas City. Since he has had charge of the Plainfield M. E. church he has done it a world of good, and he has had a powerful influence as well as great personal popularity in the community. The success and growth of his work here have been marked not only by increased zeal and power among the M. E. congregation, but by an extension of their field, as seen in the achievements of the two handsome chapels erected in the outskirts as a result of his indefatigable personal labors.

The most telling attestation of Dr. Mitchell's Plainfield work is the testimonial of regret and esteem adopted by the official board of the church which he is about to leave. He informed them last Sunday of his call, and placed the matter fully before them. They unanimously passed the following, and presented it in engrossed form to him:

The Official Board of the Plainfield Methodist Episcopal church, after having carefully considered the statement made to us by our pastor, the Rev. Dr. Chas. B. Mitchell, of the invitation extended to him by the Grand Avenue church, Kansas City, Mo., are moved to express our sense of the value of his services to this church and to say that this matter is of very serious import to us. During his pastorate the church has successfully launched two important enterprises. He has proved himself a capable and efficient leader, filling our pews, building up all our interests, and greatly endearing himself to every member of the congregation. It seems to us that he is yet in the midst of an important work among us, the success of which we fear will be endangered if he should leave us in the middle of the Conference year. We had confidently hoped that we might go forward to the end of the full pastoral term under his leadership. Our own decided and unanimous wish is that he should remain with us.

Nevertheless, if he feels that a larger and more important field is now open to him, and a great opportunity afforded to do more good for the Master, we will, with great reluctance, but with Christian cheerfulness, consent to release him, and take up the difficulties which his departure would raise, with increased devotion to the cause so dear to our hearts.

H. K. CARROLL,
JAS. W. JACKSON,
H. A. MCGEE,
Committee.

The new field of Dr. Mitchell is a church of fully 1,000 membership, and there are more than that in the Sunday-school. The congregation is always from 1,200 to 1,600. It is eminently a people's church, and a distinctive characteristic is that its membership consists largely of young men. Indeed, the young men number four to every one of the gentler sex. The congregation is now planning for the erection of a new edifice with a seating capacity of 3,000.

The vacancy in the Grand Avenue pulpit was caused by the election of the pastor, Dr. Young, to the editorship of the Central Christian Advocate, published at St. Louis. The people of the church knew of Dr. Mitchell not only from his good work in Plainfield, but also from his widely-known work in the West. For seven years he labored in the ministry in the immediate neighborhood of Kansas City, his last pastorate there being at Leavenworth.

Dr. Stewart, the Presiding Elder, himself came on from the West to prosecute in person the call of Dr. Mitchell, which after due consideration and conference was accepted.

Dr. Mitchell feels that the call is a divine summons to a larger field, and though the undertaking of the work means increased obligations and heavier duties he will doubtless find the field a most congenial one, being as it is so largely among young men, whom he loves so much. His work among the young men especially, of Plainfield, will never be forgotten; but not only them but all the people, has he benefited by his labors in New Jersey's Crescent city.

THE PRESS but voices the sentiments of the entire community in recording sincere sorrow at so good a pastor's departure; and it expresses the people's wish in bidding him and his good and faithful helpmate abundant prosperity, success and happiness wherever they go. From Plainfield they will both be sadly missed.

Corner-Stone Laid of Dr. Bliss's New Church.

The corner-stone of the Lenox Presbyterian church in 139th street near Eighth avenue, New York, was laid Saturday. The Rev. Dr. J. C. Bliss, pastor of the church, who built up the Crescent Avenue church, this city, conducted the services. Among the ministers who took part were the Rev. Dr. James Chambers, the Rev. Dr. James G. Patterson, the Rev. J. S. Wilds, the Rev. Dr. E. E. Clark, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Ramsey, the Rev. Dr. J. H. Hoadley, the Rev. A. W. Halsey, and the Rev. Dr. J. Balcom Shaw. The new edifice will be of buff brick trimmed with brown stone, with a frontage of 35 feet and depth of 90 feet. Its seating capacity will be 400. The church has about 300 members.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I wish to call your attention to the fact that the insertion you made in reference to my guilt in the case of Shaw as tried by the city judge, did not have the prominence that the original item had, and therefore request and insist as my right that you place the correction in the same position as the original statement, and not in a position where it could not be seen unless especially looked for.

LIZZIE MATTIS.

SOUSA CAPTURES PLAINFIELD.

His Initial Band Concert Accorded a Reception and Indorsement Unequaled in This City.

The New Marine Band of the Blakely Syndicate, John Philip Sousa, conductor, gave its initial concert in Music Hall last evening. The programme was varied and interesting and the encores, which were many, were all kindly responded to. Mr. Sousa and his work were paid a higher compliment than he probably appreciated, for when has a Music Hall audience greeted the first number on the programme with overwhelming applause, and given an encore to the second number, which was the case last evening!

The programme was introduced with the rendering by the band, all standing, of Gilmore's "Death's at the Door" as a tribute to the memory of that great leader.

The overture to Semiramide, the opening number, was exquisitely rendered. The soft effects were delightful and the climaxes were grand. With a sweep of the leader's hand the tone would be brought from hardly a breath to a single crash from fifty pieces of brass. Grieg's "Peer Gynt", a descriptive piece, was beautifully rendered, the movement entitled "Morning" being a little gem. As an encore was given "The approach and retreat of the Salvation Army", which the band was compelled to repeat. Jaxone's "Bal des Enfants" and Czibulka's "Dream after the Ball", were delightful bits that also received a deserved encore which was responded to by "The Southern Patrol", which, as it introduced "Marching through Georgia" with a touch of "Dixie", was also re-demanded.

Sousa's own descriptive piece, "Sheridan's Ride", was well worthy the reception that was given it. From the bugle call through the roar of the cannon and musketry, the presence of death and the clatter of horses' feet in the coming of Sheridan, the history could be followed. Sousa's humoresque entitled "Good-bye", which title appears paradoxical, was thoroughly enjoyed. It included about every farewell song that one could think of, beginning with "The Soldier's Farewell", and including "Good-bye Sweetheart", "How Can I Leave Thee", "We're Going Home to Dixie", Tosti's "Good-bye", "Last Rose of Summer", "Comrades", "Bye Bye My Honey, I'm Gone", and many others. As each strain was concluded, the principal performers, with the most serious faces, left the stage. The audience was full of merriment, and the performance of almost the last man of "Then You'll Remember Me" as a bass-soon solo, finished them. The last on the stage were a fife and drum corps which marched out to "The Gal I Left Behind Me". Mr. Sousa was left monarch of the empty chairs. One man came back and gravely began 'Annie Laurie", which was taken up by the rest appearing from all sides. It was certainly a unique and taking performance.

"Scenes Pittoresque", by Massinet, and Schubert's "Rosamunde" also deserve mention. Sousa's Episode Militaire, "March of the Royal Trumpets", was too heavy for the hall. The six Egyptian trumpets completely drowned the rest of the band, and the best effects were lost.

Miss Marcella Lindh and Signor Bologna did their part very creditably, and received deserved encores. The detaining of his steamer in quarantine was the cause of Sig. Galassi's inability to be present.

An effort should at once be made to secure a series of subscription concerts by this grand band in this city. It would be the success of the season.

THAT GRAVEL-PIT AGAIN.

A Correspondent Adds His Protest to the Nuisance "in Our Midst".

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Permit me through the columns of the people's paper to call the attention of the board of health to an unabating nuisance within our midst, namely the gravel-pit. The gravel-pit issue has been before the Plainfield public for some time without much beneficial result being attained, but now that the city has turned it into a dumping-ground the matter becomes more serious than before, inasmuch as all kinds of garbage are daily being dumped from decayed vegetables down to sesspool contents, and as the pits fill every spring with water to a depth of two or three feet, this decayed matter floating on the surface of the water will not have a very beneficial effect on the health of the community. Now the streets have been and are now being graded down in this vicinity, and the dirt carted and dumped on vacant lots which if dumped in the pits would in time raise the surface above the water line, and this could be done at a very small expense to the city, and be a lasting benefit to this community.

SANITARY.

[THE PRESS has already directed attention to the seriousness of the gravel-pit nuisance. The authorities should attend to the matter speedily.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the D. D. Rea Grand Opera Co.

"Well! Well!" That's the way you feel after one or two of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have done their work. You feel well, instead of bilious and constipated; your sick headache, dizziness and indigestion are gone. It's done mildly and easily, too. You don't have to feel worse before you feel better. That is the trouble with the huge, old-fashioned pill. These are small, sugar-coated, easiest to take. One little Pellet's a laxative, three to four are cathartic.

They regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels quickly, but thoroughly. They're the cheapest pill, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, every time, or your money is returned.

That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

"Value received, or no pay,"—you can't get these terms with any other medicines, at any price.

Can you ask more?

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. J. A. Allis has returned from Washington.

Mrs. George Liseignolo and family returned to-day from Belmar.

Miss Mina Ammerman and Miss Lizzie Smalley are visiting relatives in Canford.

The Rev. S. C. Partridge of the China mission will preach at Grace church next Sunday.

Miss Laura Stout of Elizabeth is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Ira VanBuskirk, of West Second street, for a few days.

The Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will meet his class of boys and girls at 3:45 to-morrow afternoon.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Heath, nee Jeroloman, was married last evening to Wm. Young of the borough, at the Grace church rectory, by the Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards will return to Plainfield from their summer home "Onarock", Monhegan, Me., Oct. 1. They will spend the autumn at The Albion.

"Paganism Surviving Christianity", the new book from the pen of the Rev. Dr. Abram Herbert Lewis, pastor of the Plainfield Seventh-day Baptist church, is being well received by the critics and the reading public.

A most enjoyable five-o'clock tea was given last evening by Miss Homan, to her friends, Miss Pangborn, Miss Bradshaw, Miss Florence Bradshaw, Miss Mary Fritts, Misses Nevius, Miss Covert, Miss Honneger, and Miss Emma Case.

Chief engineer Doane is to be in attendance to-night at the meeting of the State executive committee of the Firemen's Relief association, at Trenton, preparatory to to-morrow's convention. At the convention chief Doane, A. Saltzman, B. R. Rogers and G. Thorn will be the Plainfield delegates.

Will Thiers, son of Dr. C. R. Thiers, returned to the Cornwall Military academy yesterday afternoon. He has attained the rank of first-sergeant in the comparatively short time he has been receiving military instruction, and doubtless will have an officer's commission when his Plainfield friends next see him.

Anna, wife of John Becker, jr., entered into rest last evening at about 6, after days of intense suffering. She had undergone a most painful surgical operation, and could not gain strength enough to recover. She was beloved by all who knew her, and besides her devoted husband she leaves a son, Eddie, aged 10. She endeared herself to all who made her acquaintance, and will be greatly missed from her circle.

A charming reception was given at the home of W. A. Lord, corner of Belvidere and Woodland avenues, Saturday evening. The house was finely decorated with potted plants. A choice supper was served, and there was superb music for dancing, furnished by Andrew G. Carpenter of this city. Among the guests were: Miss Anthony and J. L. Anthony, jr., of Netherwood; Miss Cole and Miss Bessie Cole, of Orange; Miss MacMillan and Miss Bowen, of Jersey City Heights; Miss Shaddle, of Netherwood; J. W. Gilmore, of New York; C. A. Greenidge and H. H. MacCord, and C. W. MacCord, of Hoboken; L. S. Darling, of Netherwood; Miss MacCord, of Hoboken; A. A. Holly, of Netherwood, and Miss Alice Simpson, of Plainfield.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

PLAINFIELD GIVES THE DEATH-BLOW TO SOMERVILLE PROFESSIONALISM.

"WHAT GOOD HAS GORE BEEN!"

Somerville's Base-Ball Expert Applauds Deacon Reed's Courageous and Manly Management, and Attributes Harkinstown's Defeat to Bitter Personal Disaffection Among the Old Players Against League Importations.

SOMERVILLE, Sept. 27.—If the West Ends had won, on Saturday, this brief article would never have appeared. In place of it, THE PRESS would have devoted fully two columns telling how the great players of the National League won the New Jersey championship pennant for the Somervillians.

But the West Ends did not win, and as Charlie Reed says "That's different".

So I am going to tell you why we were beaten. How we were beaten, Mr. Clarke told you with glowing words in yesterday's issue. But the task of telling why we were beaten was assigned to me.

It was rather unfair in Mr. Demarest, assigning such a task to me, but he did, and as we were beaten fairly and out of our boots, I am going to be manly enough to "acknowledge the corn".

I have a few friends in Plainfield, and to them this is respectfully dedicated.

The reason why we were beaten out of the game and pennant last Saturday was because of an utter lack of interest on the part of the West End men.

When the game began, it was easy to see that not one of them had his heart in the right place. In consequence, they played a listless, indifferent game. Sharrott did not show up at all, although he promised to be present. Harkins did not appear until one inning had been played. Murray and Kennedy were put in their places. After two men had been retired, Cadmus had a chance to put Turner out at third; by dropping the ball he missed the opportunity of his lifetime, as afterward two runs scored, and the game was won.

Poor Work of the League's Old Stuffs.

What the reason was of the did n't-care-whether-they-won-or-not work of the West Enders, no one has been able to determine; but all the urging by the manager and profanity by your humble servant went for naught. The old stuffs could n't do anything, and apparently they would not have done anything if they could.

What good has Geo. Gore been in the last three games? Saturday he caught two little flies that any amateur could have got. At the bat he could not—no, say did not—hit a balloon.

Fields also failed to see the ball, and as for Harkins—his noble work consisted in striking out when the only chance came for "tieing" the game. Murray, Cadmus and Ryman did all of the hitting—no one else.

This has been a month of surprises. Corbett threshed Sullivan. Dr. Jenkins succeeded in keeping cholera out of New York city. "Lamp-lighter" won easily from "Kingston" at Gravesend, Saturday. And lastly, the Crescents win the pennant in two straight heats from the West Ends. The next surprise in store, I suppose, will be the throw-down of Ben Harrison early in November. Will wonders ever cease!

Everyone in Plainfield thought the Crescents would lose, but I venture there is not a man, woman or child in the city now who will not applaud Mr. Reed's courage in daring to play out the series.

Gloomy Night in the Enemy's Camp.

Saturday night was a gloomy one in Somerville. Everyone was talking of the West Ends' defeat, and not a few expressed their delight at the result. They had not yet got over the game of the Saturday before, which they claim was sold out by Sharrott and Fields. A single gas-jet glimmered in the governors' room at the West End club-house, where a few of the members were talking over the matter.

Did Mack Bet Against His Own Hired Men?

Manager Mack is better off than the majority of his club-mates, as by the result he wins a new suit of clothes besides a "small roll". Some of the fellows are in the mire rather deeply, and Christmas will come and go ere they square things up.

Old Harkinsvillians Envious.

The only solution of the mystery of why the team played as they did, is that of dissatisfaction on the part of the old members of the team. Of course, a man will become indifferent when he is placed on the bench and a man like Gore or Fields put in his place: they think there is no use trying to play, because their efforts are not appreciated.

As for the big professionals—they are playing for the money, and do not care which side wins as long as they get their pay. There must be team-work, and where this does not exist there can be no hard, earnest playing.

Can't Sneer at the Crescent City Any More.

Never again can Somerville say Plainfield is afraid of her. Plainfield has won the pennant by hard, clean work. Let her now rest on her laurels until next year.

In conclusion, let me say that base-ball is dead in Somerville. A professional team will not go another year. Finis.

GEORGE W. ABBOTT, JR.

Society Event in the Rural Districts.

J. Mitchell, 50 years of age, from Illinois, and Miss Catharine McTenis, 74 years of age, of Glen Gardner, Hunterdon county, were married Saturday evening, September 17. The boys burned tar-barrels so that they illumined the sky for miles around. The Clinton boys telegraphed that they would turn out with the fire engine to celebrate the event, but they did n't show up. Miss McTenis sold her house and part of household furniture Saturday the 24th. The bride and groom went to their future home in Illinois, Monday the 26th.

BEN BOLT.

JUDGE WERTS'S ACCEPTANCE.

His Obedience to the Call of Duty—Untrammelled by Any Pledges.

The Committee of Notification of the New Jersey Democratic State convention waited on Judge George T. Werts yesterday afternoon, at his house on Crescent avenue, Jersey City, to notify him of his nomination for the Governorship. The address was made by State Senator McDonald. In his speech the Senator dwelt upon the facts that Judge Werts received the nomination in spite of the fact that he had repeatedly stated that he was not a candidate and that the convention was the most harmonious in the history of the State.

In replying Judge Werts expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him. Continuing, he said:

"I can truthfully say the distinction awarded was neither sought nor desired. Not that it was unworthy of all aspirations and honorable efforts, but I felt that I had attained that period in life when the demands of those dependent upon me were paramount, and the provision for their future welfare must supersede all desire for political preferment and dominate all ambition of every kind."

Judge Werts added that he had withdrawn from the candidacy, but now, after the strongest urging, he agreed to become a candidate, having been released by Mr. Young from his promise to withdraw.

Speaking of the political issues he said: "I trust that I realize the responsibility to be assumed should the people ratify your action. I shall in that event assume the duties of Governor unpledged and untrammelled in every respect, and with the sincere intention to administer that high office as a public trust, for the good of the Commonwealth and not as a party or factional perquisite. I believe that the happiness of all the people can best be subserved by a strict adherence to the principles of Democracy as formulated by Jefferson, and inculcated and exemplified by Tilden and Cleveland. Moral principles upheld and maintained are sure safeguards against centralizing tendencies and monopoly combinations. Their observance will insure honest and impartial administration, faithful and competent as well as fearless and independent public officials, honest elections, rigid economy in public expenditure, local self-government, and municipal home rule. Striving for and pledging ourselves to the accomplishment of those ends to the extent of our ability, we may await the popular verdict, confident of the result."

Judge Werts said in conclusion that following precedent he would not resign his judgeship, but he would take no part in the campaign.

WHY KEAN CAN'T WIN.

He Wears a Watch-Chain that Looks Like the Anchor Cable of a Man-o'-War.

The convention of the Republicans of the Fifth New Jersey Congress district, composed of the counties of Passaic and Bergen and the northern part of Hudson, was held at Hackensack the other day. Henry Doherty, a prominent Paterson silk manufacturer, was nominated by acclamation. Mr. Doherty treated the delegates and their friends to a first-class dinner, and everybody was happy except while the Saddle River brass band was playing. Then there was a turmoil over the betting as to what tune the band was tooting.

John Kean, jr., the Republican candidate for Governor, was present, and made a brief and flowery speech, but some of the old-time Democratic farmers of Bergen county said they did not like to see a candidate wearing a watch-chain that ran into two pockets on different sides of his vest, like the anchor cables in the hawser holes of a man-o'-war, and predicted that no such man could be elected. Then all hands went over to Ryan's, and, in the same building and before the same bar, did what Washington and Lafayette did when they were winter-bound in Hackensack some years ago, took a good drink of applejack.

Carby's Prophecy.

Flower Pot Carbonell, the sporting writer for the Courier of this city and the Somerset Democrat, said after the game last Saturday: "Well, if I'm licked, I'm glad I'm licked by an American!"

The following prophecy, in his own handwriting, dated June 23, is posted in THE PRESS office:

Well! Well!! Well!!! Is that the Great (?) Crescents we have heard so much about? Tell "Tee Kay" to release the whole team and sign them again at half the salary as they are carrying too much weight (including the manager). Scene Sept. 26, 1892: West Ends, 1st; Westfield, 2d; Elizabeth, 3rd; Crescents, last. Ta-Ra-Ra-Boom!

Target and Pigeon Shooting.

There was interesting shooting at live birds and targets on the grounds of the "Buckwheat" Gun club, near Dog Corners, yesterday afternoon, under the management of Dan Terry. A number of shooters from Plainfield, South Plainfield and Metuchen were present. In consequence of the prevailing high wind the shooting was not as good as it should have been, but still everybody was contented with the afternoon's pleasures.

Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. ANOTHER SCREED FROM THE PARK.

The "Agin the Trolley" Man Retorts to Mr. Carpenter.

To the Editor of The Press:

A. H. (asty) Carpenter has writ
'Bout me, a sassy letter,
An' called my po'try doggerel,
Not knowin' any better.

He 'lows "I thinks I'm witty", which
For me is quite confusin';
An' cowardly an' untruthful is
Some terms he did n't mind usin'.

He sez "I ain't no gintleman"
Most plain-like an' unvarnished;
An' 'sinuates my very name
Is somehow kinder tarnished

So thet I hev to hide it when
I write "agin the trolley",
The "Boss" an' other sich like things
As makes him melancholy.

Now of my name ain't Washington
G. Park I'd like ter know it,
An' want A. H. (onest) Carpenter
Ter step right out an' show it.

But, worst of all, he says 'twould be
No honor fer ter kill me
'Cause "I'm a fool," O' lordy! how
Sech awful words does chill me.

Well, p'raps I am, but, bless my heart,
I'm sorry fer the critter;
He's but A. H. (owlin) Carpenter
A feelin' sorter bitter,

An' sympathizin' with a "Boss"
What ain't got used ter chaffin',
An' wants ter answer back agin,
But can't, 'cause folks 're laffin'.

Ef he's A. H. (andy) Carpenter,
I'd rekoummend the nation
Ter dry-dock now the "Ship o' State"
Fer his investigation,

'Cause ef he has enuf ter do,
He'll not be ritin' letters
Ter make hisself "rediekerlous",
Insultin' of his betters.

WASHINGTON G. PARK.

Police Secrets Disclosed.

A few years ago a Chicago millionaire was found dead in the hallway of his residence on Washington boulevard, having been murdered, it was presumed, by burglars. For weeks the police were at sea, when finally the crime was traced to the door of W. B. Tascott. A reward of $50,000 was at once offered for his arrest and conviction. Tascott, however, eluded the police, and his whereabouts is still a mystery. There was something singular about the case that suggested to Scott Marble a foundation for a play. Acting upon the thought, he visited the officers of police and detectives who had worked upon the case and was soon in possession of facts that had escaped the eager reporters, and the new melodrama, "The Police Patrol", is the result.

In the action Tascott escapes in precisely the same way he succeeded in doing in reality. The play discloses police secrets of this famous case and will no doubt cause much comment by reason of its obedience to actual facts. A. Y. Pearson, of New York, suggested the title and the introduction of the patrol wagon, and this led to other features of realism, until the author had perfected a strong play upon actual conditions of life practically illustrated.

"The Police Patrol" is booked here and will no doubt pack Music Hall, to-morrow evening, if only to see how Tascott really looked and acted. And if the reader succeeds in tracing him the reward of $50,000 still holds good.

NOTHING FROM SCRUGGS.

The State Department Doesn't Believe the Venezuela Story.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 27.—The State Department is not cognizant of any additional trouble between the United States authorities in Venezuela and the recognized Government of that country.

Secretary Foster said to-day that he had heard nothing from Minister Scruggs bearing on the report circulated in New York by the Venezuelan revolutionists there that the steamship Caracas, flying the United States flag, had been boarded at La Guayra by Pulido's soldiers and insults offered, followed by a refusal to apologize.

Secretary Foster said he had received a despatch from Mr. Scruggs on Saturday last, and that there was nothing in the message to indicate that the Minister was practically a prisoner, as stated by the revolutionists in New York, or that the relations between this Government and Venezuela were strained.

Mr. Foster added that the Department had been in free communication with Mr. Scruggs and he could hardly credit the report of interference with his liberty.

Three Men Believed to Be Drowned.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Sep. 27.—George Steiger, aged 22, John Schmidt, aged 21, both unmarried, and Jacob Burkley, 27, who has a wife and two children, are supposed to have been drowned while running the rapids in a boat in the Connecticut river, a few miles above Turner's Falls last evening. Two others, John Steiger, brother of George, and a Swiss named Havely, refused to shoot the rapids and walked home. The others did not return and a hat and their overturned boat have been found.

HERO OF COAL CREEK.

Col. Anderson, the Man Who Defied Desperado Lindsay.

One of the Most Thrilling Incidents in the Tennessee Insurrection—Not Afraid to Die for the Sake of His Country's Laws.

All who are at all familiar with the insurrection of the coal miners in Tennessee know the story of the heroism of Col. Kellar Anderson, of the Tennessee national guard, and his calm determination to sacrifice his life rather than betray his trust.

He was in command of the stockade at Coal Creek with 150 men. The telegraph lines had been cut and the little garrison was cut off from all communication with the outside world. The first assault of the miners was made after repeated warnings. So severe was the return fire that the miners retired, though they carried several dead and wounded with them. Soon another attack followed, and there were casualties on both sides, but the result was the same. Then there was a third attack, with a like result. This time a squad of miners got separated from the main body, and in a sortie from the fort they were captured. Then there was a pause. A flag of truce was raised and a parley ensued. The miners said that they were ready for a compromise and that if Col. Anderson would bring the prisoners in person to the railway station and speak to the people everything might be amicably adjusted. They promised him safe escort. Then Col. Anderson, who up to this time had been the only man in Tennessee in the field who had stood up with uncompromising faithfulness and loyalty in favor of the law, mounted the ramparts and told the men that though he had wept over their grievances he could make no compromise with them. "I will never surrender," he concluded. "I will make no compromise, but if you think I can help you I will go with you."

Then, unarmed, he left the stockade alone with the prisoners and accompanied the mob to the railway station. There he began a speech to the people and pleaded with them to respect the law. The miners listened in silence and were very quiet. They were evidently waiting for something to happen. There was a burly ruffian approaching Col. Anderson from behind. When he reached within arm's length of the soldier he shoved the muzzle of a revolver against Col. Anderson's temple and handed him a paper to sign ordering the garrison to surrender. The man who held the pistol was the notorious Bud Lindsay, who had already killed eight or ten men. Col. Anderson slowly turned, lifted his eyes to those of the outlaw and dropped them in contempt. "Shoot, you d—d coward!" he said. "Shoot!"

The ruffian with the pistol and the treacherous rioters who had with false promises enticed the gallant soldier from his command were awed. The pistol fell, and no shot was fired.

When Gen. Carnes had released Col. Anderson and succored the gallant soldiers of that brave officer's command he set about restoring order in Coal Creek and the region thereabouts. He began by arresting all the rioters he could find. One of the first men arrested was Bud Lindsay, the ruffianly desperado who had held the pistol to Col. Anderson's head. Lindsay was the terror of the mining region, and his arrest had a most excellent effect. It was soon made manifest that these captured men would be treated as criminals, and not as prisoners of war. Then there was consternation among the miners, and great numbers of them tried to escape out of the state into Kentucky and West Virginia. A large number of them seized an engine belonging to the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad and used it as a means to get out of Tennessee. After a week of turmoil and open rebellion in the fastnesses of the Tennessee mountains law and order was restored.

Would Abolish His Harem.

It is said that if the sultan of Turkey were allowed to consult his own tastes he would only have one wife instead of the three hundred he now maintains in his harem. He does not dare to abolish the institution, for he knows that the day he saw the last of the royal harem would also see the last of his reign. Each occupant of the harem receives the title of princess. It is the ambition of every Turkish officer to get his daughter into it. She is given a large dower, a staff of ten servants and a carriage and four. The maintenance of the harem costs the country about $15,000,000 a year. It is a perfect nest of intrigue and scandal, of envy, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness.

How They Grow.

The year of greatest growth in boys is the 17th; in girls, the 14th. While girls reach full height in their 15th year they acquire full weight at the age of 20. Boys are stronger than girls from birth to the 11th year; then girls become superior physically to the 17th year, when the tables are again turned and remain so. From November to April children grow little and gain no weight; from April to July they gain in height, but lose in weight, and from July to November they increase greatly in weight, but not in height.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS have always given satisfaction. In fifty years there has been no complaint of them. That is about their life in the United States and millions of persons have used them. There is no doubt that they have established themselves by merit alone. They cure rheumatism, dyspepsia, piles, liver complaint, biliousness, and any disease arising from an impure state of the blood. One or two at night on an empty stomach, for a week or two, will keep you in good form and tone up the system. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

THE CHURCH AT MOCHI.

A Prosperous and Flourishing Missionary Station in East Africa.

A letter received in London from the resident church missionary, Rev. A. R. Steggall, reports much dispute and trouble with the German officers, Baron von Bulow and others, in authority at Mochi, an English missionary station in east Africa. Since the death of the local native chief, Mandara, his son, named Mealie, has become hostile to them; German lives have been lost in repeated skirmishes, and there are fears of an attack on Mochi by the Germans with their Nubian soldiers. From Taveta a view is obtained of Kibo, 19,000 feet high, the loftiest summit of sublime Kilimanjaro, an extinct volcano, which has piled up its masses of lava, tufa and conglomerate to an altitude far surpassing its neighbor, Kimawenzi, and has been crowned and robed with perpetual snow, shining brightly in the deep blue sky. Below the southern slope of that immense cluster or group of volcanic mountain formations, the sides of which are shaggy with woods and intersected by torrents, is the terrace platform of Chagga, whereon are many native villages, looking west to Mount Meru; and near here is the Mochi missionary station. Mochi is on the route inland from the seaport of Mombasa, the headquarters of the British East African Company. After crossing the barren waterless desert of Taro, which may, probably, soon be traversed more easily by the projected railway, the fertile and beautiful Teita district is approached, and Mount Ndara, an isolated peak of striking aspect, the slopes of which are cultivated and inhabited by Wa-Teita families, driven from the plains some years ago by dread of the ferocious Masai, becomes a conspicuous object in the view. Several other peaks and ridges in the vicinity, and the grand range of the Bura mountains beyond, to the westward, afford relief to the eye wearied by the monotony of the preceding journey. The Wa-Teita seem to be a rather timid and feeble race, but willingly accept the protection of the British company, and a missionary station was formerly established on the hill of Ndara, which is has been needful, for the present, to leave vacant. Taveta lies four or five days' journey farther to the west, in a small tract of depressed land, covered with dense forest and thicket, a strip of luxuriant verdure, near the base of the huge snow-clad Kilimanjaro. The river Lumi flows through Taveta, supplying abundant moisture to the soil, and Lake Jipe is, at its lower end, closed southward by the Ugono mountains.

CRUCIFIED HIMSELF.

Extraordinary Action of an Insane Italian.

His Desire Was to Die on the Cross by His Own Hand—Cut Down and Resuscitated Just in the Nick of Time.

An extraordinary attempt at suicide was that of an Italian paranoiac who determined to crucify himself for the sins of the world. He deliberately set about the manufacture of a cross, says the Medical Standard, and all the adjuncts necessary for crucifixion. Perceiving it would be difficult to nail himself firmly to the cross, he made a net which he fastened to it, securing it at the bottom of the upright beam, a little below the bracket he had placed for his feet, and at the ends of the two arms. The whole apparatus was tied by two ropes, one from the net and the other from the place where the beams intersected each other. These ropes, fastened to the bar above the window, were just long enough to permit the cross to lie horizontally on the floor of the room. These preparations finished, he put on his crown of thorns, some of which entered his forehead. Stripping himself naked, he girded his loins with a white handkerchief. Then he introduced himself into the net, and, seating himself on the cross, drove a nail into his right palm by striking its head on the floor until the point appeared on the other side. He placed his feet on the bracket, and, with a mallet, drove a nail through them both, entering a hole he had previously made to receive it, and thus fastening them to the wood. He then tied himself to the cross by a piece of cord around his waist, after which he wounded himself with his shoemaker's knife in the left side, but failed to injure any important organ. He had made several scratches on his breast to determine the place of least resistance. This knife represented the spear of the crucifixion. This was done in his room. In order to show himself to the people he placed the foot of the cross upon the window sill, which was very low, and by pressing his fingers against the floor he gradually drew himself forward until, the foot of the cross overbalancing the head, the whole machine tilted out of the window and hung by the two ropes fastened to the beam. He then nailed his right hand to the arm of the cross, but could not succeed in fixing the left, although the nail by which it was to be fixed was driven through until half of it came out on the other side. After hanging thus an hour he was noticed, detached from the cross and put to bed. He recovered from the wounds.

The Sun Cholera Mixture.

More than twenty years ago, when it was found that prevention of cholera was easier than cure, a prescription drawn up by eminent doctors was published in the Sun, and it took the name of the Sun cholera medicine. Our contemporary, says the New York Journal of Commerce, never lent its name to a better article. We have seen it in constant use for nearly two score years, and found it to be the best remedy for looseness of the bowels ever yet devised. No one who has this by him and takes it in time will ever have the cholera. We commend it to all our friends. Even when no cholera is anticipated it is an excellent remedy for ordinary summer complaints, colic, diarrhea, dysentery, etc. Take equal parts of tincture of cayenne pepper, tincture of opium, tincture of rhubarb, essence of peppermint and spirits of camphor. Mix well. Dose, fifteen to thirty drops in a little cold water, according to age and violence of symptoms, repeated every fifteen or twenty minutes until relief is obtained.

Tecumseh's Tomahawk.

A tomahawk said to have belonged to the famous Indian chief Tecumseh is now in possession of Mrs. Lizzie Skinner, of West Point, Ky. At the battle of the Thames, north of Lake Erie, in Ontario, in which the warrior was slain, a New York soldier, named John Hanes, despoiled the fallen redskin, and subsequently gave the weapon to John Bramble, who died last December. It then passed into the hands of Mrs. Skinner in compliance with the wish of its last owner. The hatchet is said to be half English, half Indian in its shape. Doubts are evidently entertained as to its genuineness by some of the western editors who tell the story.

A Common Name.

The extraordinary number of Smiths in the United States has its parallel only in Germany, where the Muellers live to the number of 629,897. Schmidt is supposed to be the German name for Smith, but it would seem as if there ought to be a change, and the name of Mueller substituted therefor.

German Soldiers in the War.

German-born residents furnished 8.76 per cent. of the strength of the union army during the war of the rebellion. The English were represented by the smallest percentage, 2.36, as against 2.88 for other foreigners not classified, and 1.33 of unknown nativity.

THE GERMAN EXHIBIT.

Herr Krupp Will Spend Half a Million for the World's Fair.

Herr Alquist, the special commissioner for Germany, says that the German department of the fair will exceed in importance and interest all former displays made by that country at international expositions. The educational exhibit will be especially interesting, and the museums of the empire will be well represented. A German mail-wagon will be shown and also a model post office equipped with all the appurtenances for the transmission of mail. Among the railroad exhibits will be found a number of plans for railroad depots.

ings, works of sculpture, and other art objects from the public and state galleries.

Krupp's exhibit of cannon and war material will be one of the leading and attractive features. The largest cannon in the world, expressly made for Chicago, weighs 130 tons. The exposition authorities have assigned another site for Krupp's products on the border of the lake on the southern end of the grounds, where a small fort will be erected, such as is used in coast defense in Germany. The firm will spend about $500,000 for the exhibit.

Paper Bed Quilts.

"There is something that I first saw during my travels in Germany," said a gentleman who but recently returned. "I am referring to bed quilts made of paper. They are making great headway, and can be found with almost every family now. They are warm and a great deal cheaper than those that we use. It would not surprise me to hear of some one undertaking their manufacture in this country."

"An Honest Confession," Etc.

The Glasgow Herald makes the graceful acknowledgment at the head of its column of humor that "fully one-half the humorous sayings we hear come from America, and of the other half fully 50 per cent. should be acredited to that country."

MORE CHOLERA CASES

Anxiety Because of the Fresh Outbreak on the Bohemia.

SUFFERING AMONG THE CHILDREN.

Not a Case in New York for Nine Days—Hamburg's Filthiness—How the Plague Obtained Such a Hold Upon the City—Reports from Many Infected Points—No Cholera on the Empress of India.

QUARANTINE, Sep. 28.—The fresh outbreak of cholera on the Bohemia, the last but one of the ill-starred Hamburg ships left in the lower bay, has caused a stir among the Health Department officials, and the third visit to the infected vessel and Swinburne Island, made last evening by Dr. Jenkins and his consulting bacteriologist, Dr. Sternberg, plainly tells of the anxiety caused by the new cases.

The first news of sickness reached the Health Officer late Monday night, and the official report by Dr. Byron, given out yesterday morning, showed that two children were transferred to Swinburne Island, one, a boy of 8, dying two hours after entering the hospital.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Byron again reported that, in answer to the flag hoisted on the Bohemia, he had transferred three more cases, all suffering from severe symptoms of cholera. The five cases were as follows:

Mariana Lukowska, 7 years old.
Stanislaus Michsarich, 7 years old.
William Latz, 4 years old.
Johanna Milkzarich, 6 years old.
Carl Gassman, 24 years old,
Of the above, Stanislaus Michsarich died early yesterday.

Among the Bohemia's passengers are 160 children, and the long confinement has begun to have most serious results.

The Scandia's people, now on Hoffman Island, numbering nearly 1,000, have been 14 days without a case of a serious nature, and so urgent has become the necessity for attention to the Bohemia, that it is likely the Scandia's passengers will either be released to-day or transferred to the New Hampshire.

The case with which the disease gains foothold is shown by the discovery of Dr. Walser, who chanced to see the new patients at the hospital soon after their admission. In the bosom of the young man, Gassman, he found food in the shape of herrings and cheese, which had been secreted for future consumption.

It is this difficulty of keeping food from the Russian Jews and their utterly filthy habits that make it almost impossible to prevent sickness, especially when confined on shipboard.

It is 9 days since the Health Board reported a case of cholera in this city. The bulletin issued this morning was to the effect that there had been no cases since September 19. Philip Mudschenck, 22 years old, was taken to the hospital last night from 866 Eleventh avenue. His case is looked upon as a suspicious one.

THE FILTHINESS OF HAMBURG.

Description of the Dirty Water Supply Which Favored the Cholera.

LONDON, Sep. 28.—The "Times" correspondent in Hamburg writes: The cisterns are choked with solid matter. In fact, the chain of pollution grows with every link. The water in the river is clearer than that in the water works; there is clearer water in the water works than in the mains, and that in the mains is clearer than that in the houses. Only one thing was wanted. It was to provide an entrance for cholera poison into the water system. This was arranged.

The intake is so situated that at flood tide matter from the sewage outfalls can reach it. In Hamburg houses the sewage runs out at the basement and in again at the roof, after a little tour of the river and water works. This criminal state of things has been notorious for 15 or 20 years. New water works are planned, but little else. They are not likely to be completed for two years. Whether they will be effective is a question for engineers, but the fact stands that Altona is in a worse position with regard to sewage, but has escaped the scourge by virtue of having power water works.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sep. 28.—The new cases of cholera, yesterday, numbered twenty, and the deaths two. Forty patients were discharged as cured.

HAVRE, Sep. 28.—There were three deaths from cholera, yesterday, and nine new cases.

EMIGRANTS CRUELLY TREATED.

The Cunard Line, Tired of Supporting Them, Turns Them Out of Doors.

LONDON, Sep. 28.—The Cunard Steamship Line, having grown tired of maintaining the emigrants from Hamburg who had bought tickets by way of the line at boarding houses in Liverpool, and seeing no early prospect of being able to dispose of them by transportation to America, offered to return to the emigrants the amount of their fares.

The majority refused to accept the offer, and insisted on being conveyed to the United States.

The company then notified the keepers of the boarding houses in which the emigrants had been maintained that the company would be no longer responsible for their support.

Thereupon the landlords turned the emigrants out of doors. The emigrants applied to the authorities, but the latter declined to admit the strangers to the workhouses, as the poorhouses in England are called, and the unfortunate foreigners are wandering about the streets, the police, for sanitary reasons, not wishing to arrest them, and nobody being willing to have anything to do with them.

No Cholera on Board.

VANCOUVER, Sep. 28.—The sensational report sent from here regarding cholera on board the steamship Empress of India, on investigation, is found to be absolutely without foundation, and to exist only in the prolific imagination of an irresponsible and erratic correspondent.

Figures from Holland.

AMSTERDAM, Sep. 28.—Twelve deaths from cholera are reported from various parts of Holland. The disease is confined for the most part to Delft, Groningen, Maarsen and Alfen and Goudswaard.

Another Case at Berlin.

BERLIN, Sep. 28.—There was one fresh case of Asiatic cholera here yesterday.

FORTY BABIES MURDERED.

Wholesale Slaughter of Innocents Laid at the Door of a Physician.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 28.—Dr. Henry C. Beale has fled the city, after having been accused of no less than 40 murders. Dr. Beale and Mrs. Mary Montrose were arrested here a few days ago for malpractice. The doctor lived with the woman, and together they conducted a lying-in hospital.

Many patients visited them, but finally the suspicion of the authorities was aroused and Dr. Beale and Mrs. Montrose were arrested. The doctor was placed under $10,000 bail.

It is evident he feared that he could not trust the woman's secrecy for he forfeited his bail and departed for parts unknown.

When pressed by the prosecution Mrs. Montrose told yesterday an appalling story of crime. According to her statement no less than 40 children were born in her house. Not one of them was permitted to live.

Beale would promptly remove the child from its mother and either chloroform or drown it, after which he weighted the body and threw it into the bay or cremated it, whichever method was the most convenient at the time.

Beale always stipulated with a mother in prospect that she would not ask what became of the child, leaving the impression, however, upon her mind that the infant would be quietly placed in the care of a respectable family.

Efforts are now being made to find the remains of some of the murdered children.

Many of the women whose babies were killed belong to respectable families. It is alleged that a number of them wanted to pay Beale's bail rather than have his case carried into court, resulting in their own exposure and disgrace.

A MILITARY FUNERAL.

The Last Rites Over the Body of Bandmaster Gilmore.

NEW YORK, Sep. 28.—The body of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore arrived at the Grand Central Depot yesterday.

On the funeral train accompanying the body were Mrs. P. S. Gilmore and her daughter, Minnie; the committee of three from the Gilmore band, and three directors of the Musical Protective Association, who met the train at Poughkeepsie.

Long before the time the train was due crowds of friends and associates of the dead leader had gathered at the depot. When the train arrived, the musicians formed in two long lines from the train to the waiting carriages without.

Behind these lines crowding every corner of the spacious depot and the street were thousands of people who stood with uncovered heads from the moment of the train's arrival.

After Mrs. Gilmore and her daughter had passed to their carriage, the coffin containing the remains of the famous band master was taken from the car and carried to the hearse waiting without.

As the head of the funeral train reached the entrance to the depot the sofe and solemn notes of the "Lost Chord" filled the vast inclosure and the music continued until the funeral procession moved away.

The remains were driven directly to the late home of the deceased where they will remain until the funeral.

Secretary Hunt, of the Musical Union, said that Mrs. Gilmore had consented to a military funeral to take place today.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Bulletin of Reports from the Weather Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 28.—The Weather Bureau has issued a bulletin of telegraphic reports of the condition of crops for the week ending to-day, as follows:

New England—No damage by frost; all crops being harvested in prime condition except potatoes, which are very light and rotting; cranberries good crop.

New York—Harvesting corn, buckwheat and grapes progresses slowly; killing frost of 20th in northern lowlands injured corn and vegetables.

Pennsylvania — Winter wheat looks well; corn cutting about finished; potatoes and apples poor; buckwheat good crop.

THE CASE OF PECK.

To Be Heard By Judge Edwards at Hudson in October.

ALBANY, Sep. 28.—Judge Mayham has sent the case of Commissioner Peck to Judge Edwards' special term at Hudson the second Saturday in October.

Counsel for Mr. Anderson wanted the case heard by Judge Fursman at Kingston.

Peck's counsel expressed himself as well pleased with the order, declaring at the time "we will now get a fair trial."

Mr. Peck was in court and a long affidavit, setting forth his position in the matter, was read.

A Statue to John Boyle O'Reilly.

BOSTON, Sep. 28.—The rejection by the Boston Art Commission of the replica of the Buyeno statue of Columbus and their refusal to allow that or any other statue to be placed in Copley Square at present, was brought up in the Board of Aldermen Monday night with the result that an order was passed giving permission for the erection of a statue of John Boyle O'Reilly in Copley Square, also one that the Art Commission approve the statue of Columbus offered the city by the Boston Columbus Memorial Association.

COL. CANADAY'S SUICIDE.

He Preferred to Die Rather than Face Exposure.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 28.—The suicide of Col. W. P. Canaday, ex-Sergeant-at-Arms of the United States Senate, here yesterday, is the great topic of discussion. There is much sympathy expressed for the unfortunate man, who preferred death to a prison cell.

Since his retirement from the Senate Col. Canaday had been engaged in a general brokerage business in partnership with J. Q. A. Houghton, who furnished the financial resources of the firm.

Mr. Houghton said he was awakened early in the morning by a colored boy, who brought him a message saying that Col. Canaday desired to see him at the office.

Since his connection with Canaday in the business, Mr. Houghton said, he had invested $17,000 in the concern, $2,000 of which he had placed in the safe only Monday night.

His suspicions were aroused that the message had something to do with that money, and when he arrived at the office he found he was not mistaken.

Col. Canaday stated to him that he had been awakened by three colored men between 2 and 3 a. m., who, with revolvers to his head, compelled him to open the safe.

The burglars, Col. Canaday said, had obtained entrance by breaking the window pane with a railroad spike.

After securing the money the robbers gagged the Colonel, using for the purpose a piece of his night robe. They then bound him to the door of the office after tying his hands and feet.

This was the story told to Mr. Houghton, who promptly declared his disbelief of the tale and left, after warning Col. Canaday that he intended to procure a warrant for his arrest.

The story told by a Mr. Stevenson, whose apartments in the house are above Col. Canaday's office, is that some time before 4 o'clock in the morning he was awakened by a tapping sound and immediately after he heard a voice asking him to come down stairs.

This was repeated several times.

Mr. Stevenson hurried to the room below and found Col. Canaday bound to a closet door in the room.

In an excited tone he asked to be cut loose.

This being done Col. Canaday was asked the cause of his unusual position. He replied "robbers. Look on the floor."

Mr. Stevenson glaced down and saw a number of charred papers.

Col. Canaday told him that robbers had overpowered him and burglarized his effects.

The police were summoned, to whom Col. Canaday related the same story.

An examination of the premises showed that the window through which the burglars obtained entrance, as claimed by Col. Canaday, had been smashed into fragments.

The thongs used to hold Col. Canaday to the door were pieces of binding twine tied loosely about his knees, ankles, wrists and elbows. The gag was poorly arranged in his mouth and he had no difficulty in raising his voice so that he could be heard by the boarder in the story above.

Col. Canaday, after giving his version of the story to the police, repaired to his private room in the rear of the office and dressed himself and then sent the message to his partner, Mr. Houghton.

After the scene between them he returned to the office and about 7:30 o'clock he was found by the police, who had come to serve the warrant sworn out by Mr. Houghton, stretched on a cot in the corner of the room with a bullet hole in his head.

The bedding and floor about the cot were a pool of blood. The bullet had passed clean through his head and was embedded in the wall.

A note was found written by Col. Canaday to his partner, Mr. Houghton, saying: "After your conduct this morning I have no further use for life."

Another note was left by the suicide said to have been addressed to a lady, which the police have and will not make public until the inquest.

It is said that the charred papers found on the floor of the office represented notes, bonds, stocks, and other commercial paper of the value of $100,000.

MURDERED THREE BOYS

Lena Schmidt's Awful Crime at Bordentown, N. J.

NO APPARENT CAUSE FOR THE ACT.

One of the Victims Her Own Son, and the Others Sons of a Neighbor—All Three Strangled—Her Sex Saves Her From Being Lynched.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Sep. 28.—A German woman, named Lena Schmidt, murdered three young children, ranging from one to three years old, yesterday at her residence No. 4 Chestnut street, by choking them to death.

One of the victims was her own son and the other two were sons of William Bowker, a neighbor. After killing the children the woman, who is believed to be insane, went to Marshal Jones and told him that he would find three dead bodies at her house.

She admitted the killing, but could not give any reason for the act. Mrs. Schmidt was locked up by the police and the coroner and county physician took charge of the victims.

The crime has caused great excitement here.

Lena Schmidt, the murderess, is 38 years of age, is rather good-looking and a brunette. She has spent some of her time in the county jail at Mount Holly. Some time ago she became acquainted with a young man in Mount Holly, and the two came here together. The young man was a blond, about 30 years of age. The two were arrested here and committed for disorderly conduct. At first Lena was not recognized by the local police, who were greatly excited over the murders, but now that they have had time to collect their thoughts they have no doubt as to her identity.

She is the daughter of Farmer William Brown, who lives six miles away from Bordentown at a country crossroads known as Red Lion. Her character is described as essentially bad. Late last night she told Marshal Jones that her son fell downstairs and blood ran from his nose as a result. The sight of blood, she says, made her crazy and as it continued to flow she choked the child to death to stop it. She then says that she laid the child on the floor and called the eldest Bowker boy, who was playing in the front room, and strangled him. Then to make her work complete she took the younger child, who was playing in the yard, carried him inside, and, when she reached the dining room, applied her terrible fingers.

The grand jury is now in session at Mount Holly, and the inquest will soon be held. Feeling ran high last night, and it was owing to her sex that Lena Schmidt wasn't lynched.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid gave the bride away.

FIRE IN SINGER'S FACTORY.

Serious Damage in the Shops at Elizabethport—Three Buildings Soon Burned—The Loss at Least $200,000.

ELIZABETH, Sept. 28.—The large Singer sewing-machine manufactory at Elizabethport was again visited by fire this morning, and serious damage was caused. The flames were discovered at 2:10, in the cabinet department, a three-story brick structure in the rear of the tool building, and about 300 feet long. A general alarm was sent out, and the entire fire department of Elizabeth responded, as well as the tug Advance. Engines from Bayonne and Bergen Point were also summoned.

The fire spread east to the boxing-shop, also a three-story brick building. This structure was packed with material and machinery. This with the other big structure in which the outbreak began was totally destroyed. The belt and pipe-house, a one-story building, filled with leather lacing, belting, and piping, also caught fire. At the end of this building were stored the company's yard engines. These and the building were entirely consumed.

Hard work on the part of the firemen and tug crew saved the large shipping building near the water front, stored with nearly a million parts of sewing-machines and many whole ones.

The officers of the company at the factory said this morning that the loss would reach $200,000 or $300,000. In this city they said the damage was not nearly so great.

At 10 o'clock the fire was still burning, but under control.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

JUMPING ON A PLAINFIELD YOUTH.

"Journalistic" Methods as Practiced by a "Courier" Graduate.

The New Brunswick Home News has the following to say of a youth who received his "journalistic" training in the Courier office:

A TRICK EXPOSED.

THE UNSCRUPULOUS ACT OF A TIMES REPORTER.

The verdancy of a pretty youth who has been left in charge of the news department of the Times for the last few days, in the absence of Judge Shann, is as remarkable as it is deplorable.

The fellow came to the Times from Plainfield, and used to astonish people he met with ridiculous stories of his journalistic work. He had even the temerity to assert that he was sent to the Chicago and Minneapolis Conventions to report them for the New York Herald.

In that office, however, he is unknown. He was for a while the guest of Loren Bragdon, but he was too much for him. His latest trick was explained to a reporter this morning by Supt. Robertson, of the Prudential Insurance Company.

Yesterday there appeared in the Times an article telling how a Prudential Insurance agent had swindled people in this city out of $250. The article was a fake, pure and no one was swindled. The item was taken almost verbatim from the Dunellen Call or a Plainfield paper, it appearing in both, and all he did was to change the locality and make the item a local one.

Supt. Robertson recognized the article, as it had been shown him by Supt. Pepper of Plainfield before it appeared in the Times. He demanded a contradiction, which the brilliant and unscrupulous young newspaper writer said he would give this afternoon. The item is not even correct as referring to Dunellen, as the insurance people claim that it was palmed off on a newspaper there by an ex-agent with a grievance.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN.

A Handsome Silver Trophy that Plainfield's Club Should Try for—Notes of the Pneumatic Horse.

The Riverside Athletic club of Newark, which recently formed a wheeling department among its members, will have a bicycle meet at Waverly, Oct. 15. The prizes will consist of a suit of parlor furniture, sewing-machine, bicycles and silverware. A silver cup is to be placed for competition for a team race, to become the possession of any New Jersey bicycle club which shall win it three times at the annual meeting of the club. The distance will be three miles, and teams of three men from any New Jersey club may compete for the trophy. It is not necessary that the same men shall represent a club more than one year, such arrangements being left to the discretion of the club, the only stipulation being that contestants shall have been members of the club they represent for at least three months before each contest.

New Jersey wheelmen will have a large number of wheelmen in the parade of the Columbus celebration.

The bicycle track at Rahway will be widened ten feet and generally improved.

Plainfield should follow Bloomfield's example and build a bicycle race-track. Road-racing ought to be abandoned.

The wheelmen of the Jersey City Athletic club will have a run to Plainfield Oct. 8, starting at 2 p. m.

Increasing Farm Values in Somerset.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Last spring when the Somerset County Agricultural society offered a prize of $100 to the farmer of that county who would keep his fields, crops, roadsides and by-lanes freest from weeds, the Journal commended the scheme and predicted its success. At the recent county fair in that county—one of the most popular and successful in New Jersey, by the way—the result of the competition was made known and the prize awarded. Thirteen farmers competed, and twelve out of the thirteen reached a percentage of over 80. The prize winner was John H. Schomp of Harlingen, whose percentage was 99½ out of a possible 100. The fact that so many farms, fields, roadsides and lanes were kept practically free from weeds for a whole year, is of more value to the county than the prize can be to the winner. The incentive to higher, cleaner, better and more intelligent farming is of incalculable value to the agricultural interests of Somerset county; and the example there set might be followed to great advantage in every county in the State.

New York Gets the Crescent's Keeler.

A despatch from Binghampton, yesterday, says: "Manager Powers of the New York club has completed a deal for the release of third-baseman M. F. Keeler of the Binghamton club, formerly of the Crescents of Plainfield, and Keeler has signed with the New York club. A number of league clubs have had agents out for Keeler. He is a left-handed batsman, and resembles Dahlen of the Chicago club both in build and style of play, and is considered as strong as the Chicago player in every respect. He is a fast runner, a wonderful fielder, and by long odds the best batsman in the Eastern league."

Dont be deceived by dealers who "cut" prices. "Cutting" prices leads to "cutting" goods. For this reason and to protect the public, the genuine medicines of Dr. R. V. Pierce, are now sold only through regularly authorized agents, who can sell only at the following long-established prices:

Golden Medical Discovery, $1.00 per bottle. Favorite Prescription, $1.00 per bottle. Pleasant Pellets, 25 cents per vial.

The genuine medicines, which can be had only at these prices, are the cheapest you can use, for they're guaranteed. It's "value received or no pay." In every case where Dr. Pierce's medicines fail to give satisfaction, the makers will return the money. But they want to be sure that you get their medicines, and not their bottles refilled or tampered with, or spurious imitations.

Refuse everything offered as Dr. Pierce's medicines at less than the above prices. They are generally spurious.

A BUSY GRAND JURY.

Prosecutor Steele Has More Cases to Bring Before William L. Saunders and the Others, Than Ever Before.

When Judge Magie rapped for order yesterday morning at 10:15 the court-room at Somerville was crowded to the doors. It was the opening of the fall term of the Somerset county court. There are not a few persons of the masculine gender in Somerville who hail the beginning of court with a sort of joy as it gives them a place to lounge for a few days and thus rest the places in the village grocery stores where they are wont to sit at other times. These were all present in force, as were also most of the lawyers, young and old, in Somerset county.

When court crier Crow began his harangue, Judges Magie, Bartine, Ten-Eyck and Jamison occupied the bench. Prosecutor W. V. Steele, attired in a new suit of black, came into court smiling and apparently just out of a bandbox. He said to a PRESS reporter that he had more complaints to put before the grand jury this term than at any time during his prosecutorship. There are nearly seventy criminal matters to be decided by the court and jury.

Among the Plainfield legal fraternity present were: Charles A. Reed, Hiram O. Hance and William A. Coddington. Also Allan Strong of New Brunswick, and Alex Young, a law partner of Leon Abbett, jr.

The larger portion of the morning session was taken up by Judge Magie going over the list of causes, trying to determine who were and who were not ready. The majority of the cases were either not ready or had been settled since the cause list had been printed. There are some lawyers who have an insatiable longing to be forever before the public, therefore at each and every term they have their names printed on the list when they are fully aware that the cause will not be tried.

Amongst the criminal business to be tried this term is the Haver case, the story of which has been told in these columns. The Bernards assault case will also be of considerable interest.

When the grand jury was called, Justis H. Cooley of North Plainfield did not respond. If Mr. Cooley cannot furnish a good excuse he will be subject to a fine for not appearing, as the court is rather strict on this point. After the grand jury, which includes Mayor Saunders, was sworn, the court delivered a special charge to them in the matter of the complaint against officer Gotlieb Stauch for killing Jimmie Hahn. The charge occupied fully half an hour and was upon the legal points governing the matter, as to whether the officer had the right to use a deadly weapon at that time.

North Plainfield Democrats.

The call for the primary to elect delegates to the Congressional convention to be held in Turner's Hall, New Brunswick, on Wednesday of next week appears in another column.

The township of North Plainfield is entitled to four delegates, the basis of representation having been changed from 1 delegate to each 200 voters to 1 delegate to each 100 voters. The primary will be held in the school-house on Friday evening, the 30th inst.

The room of the Democratic association at 85 Somerset street will be open every evening for the balance of the campaign for the use of members and others. The place is supplied with daily and weekly papers and other reading matter.

A regular meeting of the association will take place on Thursday evening at 8. The banner committee will make a final report as to the arrangements made by them.

A PLAINFIELDERS' VIEW

DR. LEWIS WRITES ABOUT THE SABBATH AND TH CHURCH.

MODERN SUNDAY A PAGAN HOLIDAY.

The Seventh-Day Pastor Pleads for a Return to the Sabbath of the Scriptures, and Claims that Compulsory Sunday-Keeping Begets Vicious Idleness Rather Than Hallowed Rest—A Critic's Review of the Pastor's Doctrine.

The Rev. Dr. Abram Herbert Lewis, pastor of the Plainfield Seventh-day Baptist church, has written many interesting and valuable works, among them "Biblical Teachings Concerning the Sabbath and the Sunday", "A Critical History of the Sabbath and the Sunday in the Christian Church", and "A Critical History of Sunday Legislation". His latest production is a volume entitled "Paganism Surviving in Christianity", just issued from the press of G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York; and concerning this book there has just been published in the American Sabbath Sentinel a careful and critical review, which is herewith produced for the edification of the Plainfield public:

This, the latest of Dr. Lewis's works, is in some respects, at least, the ablest that he has yet given to the public. The book is a perfect mine of well-arranged facts told in a most happy, interesting, and forcible manner. The aim of the book is to throw light upon the history of the first four centuries of the Christian church; and to the average reader, at least, the work seems to leave little to be desired in this particular line of research. The author does not profess that his work is exhaustive, but it is certainly thorough and satisfactory.

In the outset Dr. Lewis warns the reader that—

He who judges the first century by the nineteenth will fall into countless errors. He who thinks that the Christianity of the fourth century was identical with that of the New Testament period, will go widely astray. He who does not look carefully into the history of religions before the time of Christ, and into the pagan influences which surrounded infant Christianity, can not understand its subsequent history. He who can not rise above denominational limitations and credal restrictions can not become a successful student of church history, nor of its present tendencies, nor future developments.

We have italicised the concluding sentence in this quotation from the author's preface, to call special attention to a most important truth clearly expressed, and yet, we think, not fully comprehended even by our author.

Christianity Corrupted.

The book deals less in the theoretical and speculative than in the practical and demonstrable. It shows that in corrupting Christianity paganism struck at its very root by applying to the sacred Scriptures that system of Oriental philosophy in which were the seeds of what in later times came to be known as Gnosticism. "This claimed to hold within itself"—says our author—"the knowledge of God and of man, of the being and the providence of the former, and of the creation and destiny of the latter." "In Oriental religions all external phenomena expressed a hidden meaning. Applying this doctrine to the Scriptures, the Jewish Gnostics taught that a hidden meaning was to be found in all the laws, ceremonies and rituals. They invented the theory that a secret tradition had been handed down from the time of Moses; the interpretation of the Jewish Scriptures had been greatly perverted in this way."

Pagan Water-Worship in Our Baptism.

It was by this means that much of paganism was very early injected into Christianity. It was in this way that pagan water-worship corrupted Christian baptism, that pagan sun-worship and holidayism well-nigh supplanted Christian Sabbath observance, and that Church and State union—a system of pagan origin—came to be regarded as essential to the highest development of national and social life.

Chapters nine, ten, and eleven are devoted to a discussion of the relations which have existed between Church and State, and to those relations which should exist. The two are very different. These chapters are especially valuable.

Our author ruthlessly tears the mask from the Sunday institution and shows that it has no just claim to be regarded other than as a pagan holiday; and that if the tide of modern "holidayism" is to be stayed, if the evils of the "Continental Sunday" are to be averted, it must be by a return to the Sabbath of the Bible, and to voluntary Christian Sabbath observance instead of compulsory Sunday keeping, which always has, and ever will, result in vicious idleness rather than in hallowed rest.

Hopes for a Good Time Coming.

That such a return, not only to the true Sabbath and its voluntary observance, but also to the primitive simplicity of the gospel will yet be made, our author believes. "In that better day"—says the doctor—"the civil law will give all religion full protection and full freedom, without regard to majorities or creeds. It will neither oppress by persecution, nor control under the name of protection." It is here that our author violates the principle which he himself so clearly lays down, namely that he who would become a successful student of church history so as to be able to judge both of present tendencies and of future developments, must rise above denominational limitations and credal restrictions. There is a "better day" coming, but history gives us no reason to expect it. Quite the contrary. History repeats itself; and already signs are not wanting which indicate that modern civilization is about to crumble under its own magnificence, even as Rome crumbled a millennium and a half ago. And the Scriptures plainly declare that instead of growing better, "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse", that "all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution", and that until destroyed by the brightness of Christ's second coming, "the mystery of iniquity", the "man of sin", the Papacy, that great corrupter of true religion, that seducer of the people of God, shall continue his wicked work and sustain his blasphemous pretensions. "That better day" will come, but it will be ushered in not by human reform, but by the coming of our Lord, by the dashing in pieces of all earthly powers, and by the setting up of the everlasting kingdom of God.

However, on the whole, "Paganism Surviving in Christianity" is one of the best books with which we are acquainted, and we wish that everybody would read it.

Horses With a History.

Among the contributors to the fun and excitement of the "Police Patrol" at Music Hall, this evening, are included two famous white horses. This pair of equines enjoy a reputation greater than that of the ordinary animal of the kind and they owe their reputation to an epoch in the history of Chicago. When they first sprang into prominence they were connected with the Chicago police department drawing the patrol wagon for the Desplaines street station. On that fatal day in May, when anarchy sought to rule the world, they, with the assistance of a few brave men, were instrumental in saving the lives of some eight officers. When that crowd of excited and half-crazed foreigners gathered at Haymarket Square and flaunted their flag of red, an attachment of police was sent from one of the stations to guard the unruly mob, and in case of necessity compel peace. The fast gathering clans of anarchists soon surrounded the few unfortunate blue coats, who found themselves completely hemmed in by the surging mob, to whom the sight of a policeman's star was like a red bandanna swung in the face of an enraged bull. Some kind friends on the outside, seeing the plight of the few policemen, rang in an alarm for the patrol, which sounded in the station where "Jim" and "Frank" were doing service; when the bell pealed forth its call they were soon on their way to the site of trouble carrying a wagon loaded with well-armed police. As they turned the corner into Haymarket Square a crowded mass of struggling humanity which completely packed this open street from wall to wall, presented itself. There, in the center, could be seen the few brave officers vainly struggling to gain shelter. There was but one thing to do, the officers drew their revolvers and clubs and the driver lashed his horses straight into the face of the mob, where the plucky animals literally fought their way through by pawing and biting until the brave men were picked up and carried to a point of safety. It was directly after this that the bomb was thrown which cost the lives of so many brave officers as well as the execution of the prime movers in the cause of anarchy. It was from the action of the horses at this time and at the McCormick reaper works a little later that these two intelligent animals gained the title "The White Patrol". They were trained in a wonderfully clever manner and seem to know their cue, too, in the play as well as the actors themselves. Often times opera houses are found where access to the stage is difficult, but they climbed the walk without the least bit of hesitation, requiring but the kind voice of their driver to direct their movements.

Directress Mrs. A. J. Moore, and the Misses Jennie M. Smith, Maude VanDyke, Mary VanFleet, Cora Huff, Cora Young, Addie Baxter, Kate Baxter, Gertie Tier, Florence Smalley and Bertha Wellman, assisted by the Misses Laura VanNess and Mabel Staats, made a complete success of the fair and ice-cream festival of the Cross Bearer circle of the King's Daughters, Tuesday afternoon and evening in the W. C. T. U. rooms. The proceeds were for the purpose of aiding the church debt fund, which they did very materially.

FREE TRADE IMPOSSIBLE.

(From Grover Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance.)

We anticipate with calmness the misrepresentation of our motives and purposes, instigated by a selfishness which seeks to hold in unrelenting grasp its unfair advantage under present tariff laws. We will rely upon the intelligence of our fellow-countrymen to reject the charge that a party comprising a majority of our people is planning the destruction or injury of American interests; and we know they cannot be frightened by the specter of impossible free trade.

Fall Suits and Overcoats.

Watson & Co., of Newark, open the fall season with the handsomest garments ever shown all ready to put on, and all well dressed men in Newark agree that the garments made and sold by Watson & Co. are more perfect fitting and correct in style than the usual run of custom-made work. Just now they are showing full lines of all the new things in fall overcoats and finishing daily the choicest styles of suits in the latest custom shapes, which they display in their Broad and Market street windows, to give you an idea of the kind of clothing they can give you all ready to put on. Of course, they make thousands of garments to order, but their aim is to give you a wide selection of garments, for both men and boys, equal to the most expensive ordered work and still keep the average price of their suits and over-sacks below $15 for all the different styles of goods you see in merchant tailors' windows.

It is worth taking a day off to see their immense new stock now hung on convenient racks ready for your inspection, all of which bears the stamp of Watson & Co., which means the best clothing that can be made, cut by hand in the shape demanded by a well dressed man to-day. Try one of their suits and see how much the cut and finish will improve your dress appearance.—The Newark Item.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

READY FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

The Crescent Avenue Chautauqua Circle and Its Prosperous Career.

The word Chautauqua has become a synonym for Education. Every year thousands of people take up the Chautauqua course of reading and find in it both pleasure and profit. The subjects for 1892-3 are particularly interesting, embracing American Diplomatic History, Greek History, Literature and Art. The course is definite, the books are well chosen, and the magazine published with special reference to the subjects covered by the course is highly entertaining.

It has been found that those who take up the course are much benefited by membership in local circles which are established all over the country. This leads THE PRESS to call attention to the Crescent Avenue church C. L. S. C., which has flourished for a number of years and is about to enter on another term. Its regular sessions will begin Saturday, Oct. 15, in the church parlor. A preliminary meeting will be held at the same place, Saturday, Oct. 1, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of organization; and the president of the circle of the past year desires to extend an invitation to all persons interested to attend this meeting, at which time he will be pleased to welcome new members and give any information desired concerning the Chautauqua system and the circle. Members of other churches and any other persons who may desire to take up the course are cordially invited to join the circle.

THE HIGH COURT IN PLAINFIELD.

Independent Foresters to Hold Their Annual Convention Here.

At the annual session of the High Court of New Jersey of the Independent Order of Foresters, to be held in Plainfield this week Friday, there will be three meetings, 10 a. m., 2 and 7:30 p. m. The New Jersey High Court has jurisdiction over the courts in New York State, and their delegates will be present. It is probable a large number of the subordinate degree members will attend. The courts in Elizabeth will have about thirty delegates. It will be a very important session. The High Court officials will have headquarters at the City Hotel, where all the delegates will dine.

Home-Life from a "Courier" Point of View.

The Courier had one editorial yesterday, and that was, as usual, clipped from another paper. In this the remarkable statement was made that "In 1860 there were about 60,000 homes in active operation, etc."

Some time ago the Courier's editor pointed out the delights of a home where the wife was deaf and dumb. He has doubtless been seeking further news of such an ideal abiding-place ever since, but discouragement seems to have come upon him, and he wails that even as early as 1891 there were 60,000 actively operated homes in one district, and the activity probably has been increasing ever since. Young man, beware. A home, operated with activity from morning until night—and sometimes all night—is worse than worthless. Take heed of the Courier's warning, and marry a deaf and dumb woman. They are, as active home operators, failures.

SHOT WIFE AND CHILD

And Then Frederick Mellenburg Killed Himself.

ENRAGED OVER A FAMILY LAWSUIT.

The Terrible Triple Tragedy at Paterson—The Old Man Had Been Threatened With Ejectment from His Home By His Son, and He Resolved to Kill All.

PATERSON, Sep. 28.—Frederick Mellenburg murdered his wife and shot his daughter in this city yesterday afternoon, and then committed suicide. A week ago Antonio Mellenberg, 22 years old, sued his father, Frederick, who committed the murder, and his mother, Susanna, one of the victims, in the district court to recover some money which he had expended for repairs upon his parents' house.

He obtained judgment for $75 which the elder Mellenberg did not pay, but instead he deeded the property over to his wife. Since that time there has been continual fighting between the parents and their daughter, Mrs. Lena Roselle.

This morning Mrs. Mellenberg called at her daughter's home at 91 Sherman avenue, and told Lena that her father wished to see her. Mrs. Roselle visited her parents' house about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in response to this message. She found her mother alone, and sat talking with her until her father made his appearance.

As soon as he entered the room he said to his daughter:

"What will the court do with me now?"

He was referring to his failure to pay the judgment obtained against him by his son.

The daughter replied:

"If you don't raise the money by mortgaging the house or some other way you'll be sold out."

This enraged Mellenberg, who jumped up and ran out of the house. He returned in a few minutes and exclaimed:

"Well, we'll all start together!"

He then grabbed his daughter by the throat, and, pinning her against the door casing, beat her with a girth strap. The mother interfered, whereupon the enraged old man turned upon her, knocking her down. Before she could rise Mullenberg pulled a pistol from his pocket and, taking deliberate aim at his daughter, shot her.

Then Mellenberg deliberately shot his wife through the head. He then shot himself in the left temple.

Mrs. Mellenberg, who was partly undressed, staggered out upon the stoop and fell dead over her husband's corpse.

GOV. RUSSELL RENOMINATED.

Massachusetts Democrats Again Indorse Their Young Executive.

BOSTON, Sep. 28.—The Democratic State convention was held in Tremont Temple yesterday. Upon the platform were a number of prominent Democrats, including Congressmen Williams, Crosby, O'Neil and Stevens, Mayor Matthes, Jas. S. Grinnell, of Greenfield, and many Senators, present and past.

Josiah Quincy, chairman of the State committee, called the convention to order, and as temporary chairman made a ringing address.

After the permanent organization of the convention the renomination of Gov. Russell was unanimously carried.

James S. Carroll, of Springfield, was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor.

The balance of the ticket was made up as follows: For Secretary of State, Chas. S. Hamlin, of Brookline; for Treasurer and Receiver-General, James S. Grinnell, of Greenfield; Auditor, Irving B. Sayles, of Millbury; for Attorney-General, Chas. F. Lilley, of Lowell; for Presidential Electors-at-Large, Patrick Collins, of Boston, and John E. Russell of Leicester.

After electing members of the State Committee, the following were endorsed as presidential electors for the several districts:

James M. Clark, Holyoke; John O'Donnell, Northampton; Charles Haggerty, Southbridge; Charles J. Williams, Acton; Peter H. Donohue, Lowell; James Dean, Salem; Samuel K. Hamilton, Wakefield; Ferd. F. French, Manchester; Edward J. Flynn, Boston, Joshiah Quincy, Quincy; Robert Blackie, Hyde Park; Joseph Sweet, Attleborough; John W. Coughlin, Fall River.

QUO WARRANTO CASES SETTLED.

Connecticut Supreme Court Declares the Republicans Victorious.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sep. 28.—The Supreme Court has rendered its decision in the celebrated quo warranto cases of Phelan vs. Walsh and Sanger vs. Henry.

The majority of the judges agree in an opinion which sustains all that the Republicans have been contending for two years. The court rules that 500 ballots that were rejected by the moderators because they were double should have been counted. These ballots have been destroyed, and it cannot be told whether they were Democratic or Republican, so that the decision on this point has not much bearing upon the main question.

The court rules that the errors in the count should be corrected; that the "tor" ballots should have been counted; that the 287 ballots rejected in Litchfield should have been counted, and that 124 out of the 126 ballots thrown out by the Democratic moderator in Bridgeport should have been counted. The claims of the Republicans are thus sustained.

A minority finding is signed by the two Democrats on the bench, Judges Seymour and Fenn. They object mainly to the ruling of the double ballot question.

Candidates Challenged to Debate.

BOSTON, Sep. 28.—The Democratic State Central Committee has issued a challenge to the Republican State Central Committee for a joint discussion on the State and National issues between Governor Russell and Hon. William H. Haile, the Gubernatorial nominees. A similar discussion is proposed between Mr. James H. Carroll and Mr. Roger Walcott, the nominees for Lieut.-Governor of the Democratic and Republican parties respectively.

Eastern League Champions.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sep. 28.—The Binghamton Club won the fourth game in the series of six championship games with the Providence team yesterday afternoon, thus making the Binghamtons the champions of the Eastern League. Twenty-five thousand people witnessed the game.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-18-7

WOMAN OF FASHION.

Some Advice to the Brides That Are to Be.

First and Foremost, the Wedding Gown—Some Very Important Details—The Traveling Costume—Some Dainty Dresses for Lovely Woman.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

Margaret is going to be married; did you know? And, having never passed through this experience before in her twenty summers, Margaret is a little worried and uncertain about some seemingly unimportant trifles, but which, she knows full well, will make or mar the wedding, and so she feels a little like Martha at present, "careful and troubled about many things." For, let me tell you, Margaret is not an ultra fashionable damsel, who has etiquette at her finger tips, and knows exactly what to do under any conceivable circumstances, and is always perfectly calm and self-contained, no matter what is happening or going to happen. Margaret is only a fair, sweet maiden anxious to have a pretty home wedding that shall not leave too large a vacuum in the paternal pocket.

The first care and perplexity, of course, is the wedding gown. Brocade is expensive and too handsome for the occasion. Soft silk she would dearly love to have, but silk, too, costs too much. So Margaret thinks she'll have lansdowne. It is, indeed, a pretty material, with a sheen to it not unlike silk, and is so wide that it takes comparatively few yards to make even the long train. There are ever so many other pretty white stuffs, but none, I think, prettier than lansdowne.

She'll make the gown in princesse style, and the yoke shall be filled in high to the neck—for a bride may not expose her throat—with full diagonal folds of tulle. Around the throat a narrow edge of orange blossoms shall be laid, which are to be carried diagonally across the yoke; there will be a loose belt of the blossoms, too, pointed back and front. The sleeves will have a scarcely perceptible puff, and will be edged with orange blossoms also. They will be long, so that only a short glove will be necessary. When royalty was married not long ago without gloves we were assured that the fashion set would be rigidly adhered to. But it has not been so. Such an ugly style has not found favor among Americans, for only one bride in a hundred has hands pretty enough to hang uncovered. The edge of the skirt shall be trimmed with a full ruche, as well as the magnificent Watteau back, that starts so narrow and unassuming at the neck, and broadens and lengthens out so impressively in its journey to the floor. The long tulle veil shall be gathered closely together with a bunch of blossoms at the top of the head, falling to the edge of the train.

The prettiest flowers for the bridal bouquet, I was told yesterday by a leading florist, are lilies of the valley or white orchids. A bouquet may occasionally have a touch of pink, but not often. Next month, when brides will be more numerous, the finest varieties of white chrysanthemum will come into play, and nothing can be more beautiful than these. Bridal bouquets are from twelve to eighteen inches in diameter, although the former size is more popular at present.

What will you wear for a traveling costume, Margaret? Here's such a pretty one: First, there's a blouse of silk in Scotch plaid of pretty warm colors; over this comes the skirt, of real nun's color, a gray camel's hair, with a broad belt that covers a good part of the blouse. The belt, however, is straight all around, not pointed like our summer ones. The sleeves are of the finest silk, with a wide cuff of grey. The cape that goes over has a high standing collar, with velvet buttons at each side, by which the bright-colored cord which fastens the cape is knotted together. The cape does not meet; it stands apart about three inches, displaying considerable of the pretty blouse. The skirt has six narrow rows of gray braid; the gloves are gray also.

Trousseau gowns—it's a broad subject, and there's such a bewildering mass of materials to choose from, that one hardly knows what to get. So far the season has not settled itself. Instead of some of the new and startling goods quietly sinking out of sight and leaving simply the cream of materials on top, more and more fabrics are constantly appearing. And what with the velvet stripes, the Russian velours, the tucked goods, the dotted and palm-leaf effects, the new serges, the shot goods, the cord grenadine, and the rest, our minds have no very clear ideas in them. So that if one put off buying for a few weeks, to see what will actually come out of the fire of observation and criticism unharmed, one will probably fare much better than by purchasing now. But if this be impossible, there is some material that it is safe to count upon. The new shaggy cheviots, for instance, will never be amiss, and a Bedford cord can be relied upon to last for one season at any rate. Serges, too, are always in style, but the serge craze has been so intense all summer that it is a little tiresome now. Still, in new, odd shades, serge will be worn again. Crepons? Yes, with the silk designs running over them, they make up very handsomely.

The empire is surely coming upon us. We see suggestions of it in the short, full waists, the high skirts coming up over, the ever increasing sleeve, the Watteau folds and variations in our gowns. Some of the bell skirts are being supplanted by gored ones; even the bells are cut differently from what they were, having no seam at the back, but only a bias, bell-shaped piece. In the front the breadths are gored to fit the figure more closely than ever.

A pretty new combination suit has just come from Paris. It is a novelty, for it answers two purposes—that of an afternoon visiting gown and of an evening dress as well. For the velvet yoke it bears and the embroidered lower sleeve can be taken out at will, leaving a remarkably pretty evening dress. The material is soft sea-green duchesse silk, and is combined with much green and delicate gold embroidery, in oamus. The front of the skirt hangs separate from the back, and where they stand slightly apart at the sides we can see a band of black velvet. This style of skirt will be very popular this winter. Whether it will reach us so soon one can scarcely say. The front portion of the skirt is bordered, both edge and sides, with pale green and gold embroidery; so is the back portion, but only at the sides, for the small train must needs hang soft at the edge. The corsage is cut empire style, with the bodice slightly gathered under a wide, black velvet belt. Above the bodice two wide embroidered points cross gracefully, and at the neck the pointed black velvet yoke is finished with a high collar. The waist is the same in the back as in the front. The top of the sleeve is a big velvet puff, and beneath the tight embroidered one.

Another pretty gown is made on pale flowered silk, of princess cut. A pretty full chemisette of pale blue tulle, cut slightly, pointed back and front, also has short sleeves, scarcely reaching to the elbow, of black velvet. There are two big puffs on the shoulder, and then the sleeve terminates in another big puff which falls over the glove, that comes up. The dress is fastened at the back, and has a ribbon defining the line of the belt, a pretty ruche at the neck, and another where the tulle joins the silk of the gown.

House dresses, morning robes and negligees grow more fanciful daily. They're a luxury in themselves, these dainty things that a woman loves to sit and lounge in, and the lace and folds of them make lovely woman lovelier still.

EVA A. SCHUBERT.

Still Waiting.

"Waiting for dead men's shoes" is a sorry occupation. No man can follow it long without losing what little of enterprise and independence he may once have had. But few people are frank enough to admit that they are on that "waiting list."

"Well, Brown," said Smith, as they met for the first time in several years, "are you married yet? Did that rich old grandfather of yours leave you money?"

"Wal, no, I ain't married yet, ner ain't likely to be, nuther, 's fer's I kin see. Ef Grandfather Green hed done as he ought ter hev done I s'pose I'd been settled down in a house of my own years ago. He—"

"So he didn't leave you a cent, eh? That's too bad, I declare."

"Jes' so. Puts Mary and me in 'n awful hard place. There ain't nuthin' fer us ter do now but to wait fer some of her folks to die."—Youth's Companion

Wool—Bronson's dead wife was a good soul. Did he show you that memorandum she wrote when she could not speak?

Van Pelt—No; what was it?

Wool—It ran this way: "Dear Jack, your collar-button is in the bureau drawer, back left-hand corner. Don't look for that horrid red and green necktie; I burned it up."—Truth.

Brother—I am surprised, Emily, that you should have such bad taste as to wear the hair of another woman on your head.

Sister—And I am surprised that you should wear the wool of another sheep on your back, and shoes of the leather of another calf on your feet.—Texas Siftings.

The Hint Was Taken.

Harry wanted to give Lucy a birthday present, but couldn't make up his mind as to what it should be, so the next time he called he frankly told her the difficulty under which he was laboring.

"Want to make me a present, Harry?" exclaimed Lucy, in well-counterfeited astonishment. "Why, Harry, you forget yourself!"

Harry took the hint and offered himself on the spot.—Boston Transcript.

She Bounced Him.

"Mrs. Gadder has been ill."

"She is ill."

"I thought she must be recovering, for I heard that she dismissed her physician this morning."

"She dismissed her physician and sent for another."

"Hadn't confidence in the first?"

"I don't know. He told her that she must not talk."—N. Y. Press.

An Idiom of Time.

"You can take this ring," said the obliging jeweler, "and I will give you time on it."

"Thank you," said the young man coolly. "I had a friend who took a diamond ring, and he is doing time for it yet. I guess I'll wait," and he refused to be tempted.—Detroit Free Press.

She Spoke Without Thinking.

Dolly—It's absurd of you to say I am thirty.

Maud—Well, you know you were born in '60, and—

Dolly (indignantly)—It does not matter. You might argue from now until doomsday and then I wouldn't be a day older.—Judge.

Had a Grievance.

"It was very wrong of you to throw a stone at that little bird, Bobbie."

"I don't think so. He was the little bird that tells mamma about me when I do things."

"How do you know?"

"I asked him," said Bobbie.—Harper's Young People.

The Usual Result.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise,
He bought a lottery ticket,
And felt sure he'd draw a prize.
He waited the important day,
With mien as pale as death:
He got the list, he scanned it well,
And then he drew—his breath.

Growing More Liberal

That's what the human race is doing—particularly the American part of it.

There are a few left who are satisfied with ancient history. But most people are ready to apply modern progress and common-sense to the treatment of the human stomach—an organ that demands its rights whether or no; that resents the insults of worn-out methods. All this is to emphasize the facts about

COTTOLENE

There was once a prejudice against Cottonseed oil. But people who are alive, who investigate, who have no bigotry in their composition, have found that pure, refined cottonseed oil combined with selected beef suet is a better article in every conceivable way than hog's lard. And so they wisely use it for cooking—and are correspondingly healthy and happy. The sales of COTTOLENE are enormous and constantly increasing; a proof that it is appreciated by appreciative persons.

PEERLESS NANCY HANKS

Her Wonderful Performance Admired by All the World.

SHE LOWERED THE RECORD TO 2:04.

The Best Previous Effort on a Regulation Track Was Made by the Mare in 2:07 at St. Paul, Minn.—Budd Doble Entitled to Bonner's $5,000 Offer.

TERRA HAUTE, Ind., Sep. 29.—"How long will it be before Nancy Hanks reduces the trotting record to two minutes?" is a question frequently heard here to-day. That the mare can do it is doubted by but few of the sporting men here after her peerless performance of yesterday, when she lowered her record of 2:07, made at St. Paul, to 2:04. Both these records have been made on regulation tracks. The mare a few weeks ago made a mile on a kite-shaped track in 2:05 1-4.

The 10,000 people who saw the act sat breathless for a moment after the little mare passed under the wire, and even Doble, always modest of speech, declared when carried to the judges stand on the shoulders of the crowd and called upon for a speech that he was "hoarse and Nancy Hanks went so fast it took my breath away."

It was about 4:40 o'clock when Starting Judge Walker announced that Nancy Hanks would go to beat her record of 2:07 made at St. Paul.

The daughter of Happy Medium worked two miles in 2:32 and 2:25 respectively. The runner, Abe Lincoln, stood opposite the flag while Nancy was taken well up the stretch for the start. Coming like a whirlwind down the stretch, Abe was at her wheel and Doble nodded for the word. The clip was a terrific one. She was at the eighth in 15 1-2 seconds and at the first quarter in 31 seconds.

The second, an "up-hill" quarter, was done in 31 3-4 seconds, the half being reached in 1:02 3-4. The excited crowd began to cheer, but at a word of admonition from the judge, lapsed into silence. This was broken by murmered "ohs" when the third quarter was done in 29 3-4 seconds.

Even the judges were appalled at the wonderful outburst of speed and thought the mare was running away. So fast did she come that no one could tell her gait. On she flew and into the stretch, never faltering. Doble with his steady hand, and clucking gentle "whoas" to keep her steady, squared her away for the great flight home. Even her light hoof beats sounded loud to the silent crowd.

As Doble gathered her for the final effort he touched her gently with the whip, gave two of those mastertul lifts of his and the world's record, either pace or trot, was lowered 1 1-4 seconds and the record for regulation track three seconds.

The excitement over the great mile did not really begin until evening when the crowds gathered about the hotels. Nearly every noted driver in the country is here, and all are unanimous in declaring that it was the most wonderful mile ever done. Mr. Doble received hundreds of telegrams of congratulation from all over the country. He wired Mr. Bonner: "Nancy Hanks, 2:04 over a regulation track." This is a gentle hint that the owner of Maud S. and Sunol can present him the $5,000 offered for the first horse to trot a mile in 2:05 over a regulation track.

VERHOEFF WAS NOT EXPELLED.

Prof. Brush of Yale Says the Gambling Story Was Magnified.

NEW HAVEN, Sep. 29.—The officers of the Yale Sheffield Scientific School deny the statement published recently that John M. Verhoeff, the missing member of the Lieut. Peary expedition to the Arctic regions, was expelled from Yale.

Prof. Brush, the director of the school, said in relation to the matter: "Verhoeff was not expelled from Yale, neither did he leave the college in disgrace. The gambling story has been greatly magnified, and was in no way the cause of his leaving Yale.

"He was in the class of '90 and remained through his freshman and junior years, and some time during his senior year withdrew, fearing that he would not be able to graduate, owing to low marks."

In his studies Verhoeff is represented by his instructors as being very bright, but possessed of that uneasy disposition which prevents the owner from going very deeply into subjects which require hard and constant effort. Those who knew Verhoeff in New Haven believe that he is dead.

George C. Soden's Extended Absence Puzzles His Friends.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sep. 29.—George C. Soden's protracted absence has set people wondering whether he has eloped or been killed.

He was a traveling salesman for a Rochester firm, and when he left his home here a month ago he told his wife he was going to spend his two weeks' vacation among the Adirondacks.

Nothing has been heard from him since then. The firm wrote a letter of inquiry last week to his wife, who was as anxious to hear from him as his employers were.

Soden took but little money with him, and his wife says there was no domestic unpleasantness.

IN CALVARY CEMETERY.

P. S. Gilmore Laid at Rest With Military Honors.

NEW YORK, Sep. 29.—All that is mortal of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore now reposes in Calvary Cemetery. The remains were given a military burial yesterday, after most impressive services at St. Francis Xavier's Church.

As early as 8 o'clock the house of the late musician on West 36th street was crowded with sorrowing friends anxious to have a last look at the face of the popular band leader.

The casket, which was covered with black cloth, was literally smothered with flowers. It was not opened, however, and those who had called to take a last look on the dead were disappointed.

At the hour appointed for the funeral cortege to move the streets in the vicinity of the residence were densely packed with people and those who were to act as an escort from the Gilmore residence to the church.

A few minutes after 9 o'clock the casket was borne from the house. The remains were followed by the widow, the daughter, Miss Minnie Gilmore, and a number of relatives and friends of the deceased.

There was a roll of muffled arms, and many heads were covered as the sad cortege moved away to the strains of the dead march in Saul.

The pall bearers were composed of noncommissioned officers of the 22d regiment.

There were a large number of honorary pall bearers from several clubs, musical associations, G. A. R. Post 452 and the Press Club.

The cortege moved in the following order:

Platoon of police, band of musicians, flowers in carriages, pall bearers, military escort, the firing corps, who were to discharge a volley of musketry over the grave of the dead bandmaster; past and present members of the Gilmore band, detachment of the Old Guard, and members of the 22d regiment in civilian dress.

The floral tributes were of the most beautiful character. Many were so large that it was impossible to take them into the residence of the Gilmore family.

As the cortege moved along thousands of spectators, who had gathered in the vicinity, moved with it, and many followed along the entire distance to St. Francis Xavier's Church in West 16th St.

The crowd swelled every moment along the line of the funeral procession and when the church doors were reached there was a perfect jam.

The interior of the sacred edifice was crowded with the friends and co-workers that had gathered to witness the last sad rites.

A solemn requiem Gregorian mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Denny, with Father Van Rensselaer as deacon, Father Collins, sub-deacon, and Mr. O'Connell as Master of Ceremonies.

Among those who occupied seats of honor were Col. Camp and his full staff and representatives of musical organizations of several different States.

The body was taken to Calvary Cemetery, where it was given a military burial. A salute of 100 guns was fired by a uniformed detachment of soldiers from the 22d Regiment.

CAPTAIN AND ONE SEAMAN SAVED.

The Schooner May Gibbons Struck By a Hurricane and Lost.

GALVESTON, Tex., Sep. 29.—Capt. Amos Sabean of the schooner May Gibbons from Portland, Me., August 19 for Demerara, with a cargo of staves and white pine and a crew of five men, has just arrived here from St. Michaels on the steamship Acme and reports that August 21 the schooner was struck by a hurricane, which raged with fearful intensity for two days.

The 22d, the vessel was struck by a huge wave which knocked it flat, washing overboard William Bowers, C. Bowers, Douglas Bowers and Theodore Wolf, four of the crew.

John G. Bruce, the other seaman, had his leg fractured, and the captain was thrown overboard, but caught in the rigging and succeeded in keeping the vessel afloat until he and Bruce were rescued August 23 by the steamer Vega and landed at St. Michaels.

The May Gibbons was owned by B. C. Morse of Washington.

The men were almost dead from hunger and exposure.

The wreck lies within a few hundred yards of the shore, but the sea has been running so high that the life-saving crew could not reach it.

The steamer will undoubtedly be a total wreck.

AGAIN BURNED OUT.

The Singer Works at Elizabethport Damaged to the Extent of $200,000.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 29.—The destruction yesterday of the greater portion of the Singer Manufacturing Company's works at Elizabethport is the second time flames have swept the property within a year and a half.

The loss by this latest fire is estimated at $200,000, and there is not one cent of insurance on the property burned.

The flames were first discovered in the rear of the main building, where the third engine room is located. The fire spread rapidly and swept towards Staten Island Sound, being aided by a strong wind from the northwest.

The cabinet shop and carpenter shop, large brick structures, each 100 by 60 feet, and the roundhouse, where the company's locomotives were stored, were soon a roaring mass of flames.

Three locomotives, thirteen freight cars and a large amount of valuable machinery were destroyed. The gas-fitters' department was also burned.

The entire fire department of Elizabeth was summoned. The steam lighter Advance and several tugs fought the fire from the Company's wharves. The united efforts of these boats saved the dock and shipping department from destruction.

The flames leaped across the yard and caught the buildings located alongside the Central railroad tracks, but the fire was checked there before it made much headway.

The carpenter and cabinet shops were each three stories high and furnished employment to about 600 men. They will be immediately rebuilt.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

The fire will seriously cripple the operations of the whole plant, which now employs 4,000 persons, as the work performed in the burned departments is essential to the turning out of the new machines.

Charles Galoway, of Engine Company No 5, was seriously hurt by being caught under part of a falling wall. Several other firemen were slightly injured by flying bricks.

William Bowisky was severely burned on the back of the neck by an electric-light wire.

As soon as they were seated, Mr. Brookfield, chairman of the Republican State Committee, presented as the presiding officer, Hon. Thomas C. Platt. SHUT OUT THE VESSEL

The Colombia from New York Ordered to Leave Colon.

A U. S. WARSHIP IN THE HARBOR.

Believed That She Has Been Sent to Effect an Entrance to the Port for Our Vessels—The Past Ships in New York Bay Cannot Go to Their Docks.

PANAMA, Sep. 29.—The steamship Colombia, Capt. Shackford, which sailed from New York on Sep. 21, reached Colon yesterday. The health officer refused to admit her, and ordered her to leave, despite the fact that she had no illness on board. The Colombia anchored a short distance out, and last evening was joined by the United States man-of-war Concord from Venezuela.

The Concord somewhat later communicated with the shore, but gave no clew to the nature of her business here. It is supposed in Colon that she has been sent to effect an entrance to the port for ships from United States ports.

Great indignation is felt there as well as here on account of this manoeuvre. The Governor of Colon says that the Colombia shall not come into port until the cholera quarantine shall have been raised and the port declared free.

In case the United States try to take advantage of Colombia's weakness to force upon her trade from infected ports and break down the quarantine of Colombian ports, the Government will protest formally and call for protection on England or some other European power.

THEY CANNOT LAND.

Post Ships at New York Will Not Be Allowed to Go to Their Docks.

NEW YORK, Sep. 29.—The Board of Health posted its usual daily bulletin this morning, stating that there had been no cases of cholera in this city since the 19th inst. There will be no more afternoon bulletins unless cholera should again show itself.

Lieut. Prochaska, of the U. S. Marines, quartered in Camp Erben, Sandy Hook, was taken sick Tuesday night, and the doctor now reports him suffering from typhoid fever. He will probably be removed to the Naval hospital in this city.

Everything at Camp Low is in readiness for the reception of passengers from the quarantined vessels, but nothing definite has been heard from Dr. Jenkins as to his plans relative to the station.

The Hamburg-American Company's express steamer Normannia, commanded by Capt. Hebich, weighed anchor off Upper Quarantine at 10 a. m., and steamed off for Southampton, carrying no cargo or passengers.

The Normannia was the last of the Hamburg express steamers to sail from Hamburg. She arrived at the upper boarding station early in the morning on September 3, and was at once ordered to Lower Quarantine where she joined the Moravia of the same line, the pioneer cholera ship which arrived there on August 30.

The Normannia lay in the lower bay until the afternoon of September 20, when she and the Moravia were allowed to go to Upper Quarantine.

Neither the Scandia, Rugia, Bohemia or Moravia of the same line, which have had cholera aboard, will be allowed to land at their docks.

His Case Placed in the Hands of Detectives By His Friends.

DETROIT, Sep. 29.—It is now strongly hinted that Mr. J. H. Wickes, who is supposed to have been killed by a fall from the window of a disorderly house here, was murdered.

His friends say that he had $900 in cash in his pockets when he entered the house, but no trace of the money has been found.

Although the coroner's jury declared his death to have been accidental, Wickes' New York friends have put the matter in the hands of competent detectives, who will probe the case to the bottom.

FREE TRADE IMPOSSIBLE.

(From Grover Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance.)

We anticipate with calmness the misrepresentation of our motives and purposes, instigated by a selfishness which seeks to hold in unrelenting grasp its unfair advantage under present tariff laws. PLAINFIELD WILL TRY.

BOWLING LEAGUE FORMED FOR TH COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

ALL THE CLUBS INTERESTED.

The Enterprising Elizabeth "Journal" Offers the Trophy, which the Crescents or Young Men's Lyceum Should Win—Plans for Conducting the Tournament—Friendly Rivalry Aroused.

Last week th Elizabeth Journal sent out the following call to each and all clubs having bowling teams in Union county:

"Your club is cordially invited to send a representative to attend a meeting at the Journal office, Elizabeth, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 27, at 8 o'clock, to consider the advisability of forming a Union County Bowling League, to contest in a series of games during the coming season for a trophy to be offered by the Journal and for the County Championship."

The response to this call was prompt and highly satisfactory. The Journal office Tuesday night presented a scene of interest and animation not exceeded since the bicycle championship races were under discussion.

There were present: W. J. Whelan, representing the Young Men's Catholic Literary society, of Elizabeth.

G. W. Cooley, George B. Sheppard and Mr. Maxfield, representing the Arthur Kull club, of Elizabeth.

Mr. Barnsby, representing the Westfield Athletic club, of Westfield.

Philip Butscher, representing the Young Men's Catholic lyceum, of Plainfield.

The meeting being informal, and open to discussion and suggestion, there followed a kind of free interchange of ideas respecting the proposed bowling contest.

As a preliminary it was agreed that such a contest would be an excellent thing, and that it would be wise for the clubs to enter into it.

Dr. Davis suggested that the trophy should be won three times, not necessarily consecutively, before becoming the property of the winner. This met the approval of all present, and was adopted.

As to the number of men on each team, it was the unanimous suggestion that that there should be ten, and this, too, was adopted.

A question was then raised as to the rules that should govern the contest, and the rules of the Amateur Bowling League were mentioned. But it was found by further discussion that there were local concitions that these rules would not cover.

On motion, Messrs. Davis, Sheppard and Barnaby were appointed a committee to prepare rules, and report them for consideration at the next meeting.

The secretary of the meeting, Mr. Cooley, was directed to communicate with the bowling clubs in the county not represented at this meeting, asking them to send a representative at the next meeting with power to act for their clubs.

The question how a series of games could be played between so many clubs was one which elicited much discussion. No action was taken upon it, because the opinion of those present was that the subject might better be discussed when all the clubs entering into the championship contest were present by their representatives. The concensus of opinion was, however, that the series would have to be played in sections; dividing the county into three or four sections. In this way clubs near to each other could play off their respective series, and the winners in each section could then meet in a final series that would decide the championship. This would not take an inordinate length of time, would not seriously conflict with games with other than Union county clubs, and would concentrate the interest to a most satisfactory extent. The question was, however, left open till next meeting.

The Westfields, the Young Men, the Field club and several others have expressed much interest in the contest, and hope especially to meet the Crescents of Plainfield and the Elizabeth Athletic club. They claim that no club can easily win the championship, and that there are several that stand first rate chances for it.

The meeting was adjourned till Thursday of next week, October 6, at 8, at the Journal office.

Concerning the tournament, the Journal says:

"The great popularity and success of the Journal bicycle races, and the stirring impulse it has given this delightful sport, seem likely to be equaled if not exceeded by the popularity and success of the bowling contest that is now being arranged. There are sixteen or eighteen good bowling clubs in the county, and a contest among them for the championship of Union county will undoubtedly develop some splendid games. In all probability the games will have to be played in sections, for the reason that a schedule including all the clubs that will enter would occupy altogether too much time. But if played in sections, and the winners of each section are then pitted against each other in a short deciding series, the whole contest can be easily managed and the championship can be fairly decided. Further than this, it will not then seriously interfere with arrangements already made for playing clubs outside the county. The preliminary meeting of bowling club representatives last night was very satisfactory, and the meeting next week, Thureday, will probably put the championship contest on a substantial and successful footing."

THEY TRIED TO GET MARRIED.

Some Plainfielders Make a Lively Scene in Front of Dr. Paxton's House and Elsewhere.

As the passengers on the 6:25 o'clock boat, at the Liberty street ferry, were going ashore Tuesday night, a young man with a beautiful girl from Plainfield on his arm called a coach. The couple were accompanied by a young man. The trio were about to enter the coach when an elderly woman—a well-known resident of this city—dressed in black and wearing many diamonds rushed up and said:

"No, do n't you go with that man. If you want to marry him come back home and first get your parents' consent."

The young woman, who was not over twenty-one, objected, and then the elder woman tried to draw her away from her prospective husband, who, meanwhile, was holding her by the arm. A crowd soon collected.

Policeman McDermott appeared and said if the noise was not stopped he would be forced to make arrests. The noise did not stop, and the entire party, which had been augmented by the elderly woman's maid, went to the Church street station, and the coach containing the baggage followed.

A reconciliation was patched up, the elderly woman, who is the younger's mother, giving her consent, all entered the cab and started up town in search of a minister to tie the knot.

On the way uptown a stop was made to enable the young man to consult a directory and find the address of a minister and then the mother changed her mind. She would not allow her daughter to be married. A warm argument followed which ended in the man quietly telling the driver to order a cab to wait for him at 51 West Forty-sixth street, which is the residence of the Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton.

When the coach arrived the cab was already there. The would-be bridegroom entered Dr. Paxton's house and asked if he would perform the marriage ceremony, and the Doctor said he would. As the bride was about to be brought in the mother appeared and made very strong objections. The minister then changed his mind and refused to marry them.

An adjournment was then made to the sidewalk, where another argument was held. Both young people tried to induce the mother to give her consent, but she was obdurate.

The young man stormed, the mother screamed and cried, and the girl stood silently by her lover's side. A large crowd gathered, and the members of Dr. Paxton's family watched the scene from the windows. Then the mother called a policeman, crying out:

"Arrest this man, who is trying to steal away my daughter and marry her. He is married already."

But the policeman would not arrest. The argument was so heated at one time that the cab-driver, thinking the young man was about to strike the woman, jumped from his box and separated them. His sympathies were evidently with the mother, for turning towards the girl he said:

"You can get only one mother, but you can get a score of husbands. Always take mother's advice."

Meanwhile the young man had said to the driver of the cab:

"Follow our coach and when the lady and I rush into your cab drive off as fast as you can with us and stop for nothing."

The party finally re-entered the coach nominally bound for the Plaza Hotel, as the mother thought. The cab followed, and when the coach stopped in a side street the couple rushed out and jumped into the cab, which drove off with the horse on a gallop. The mother ran after it for a short distance screaming "Murder!" and "Police!" That was the last she saw of her daughter and would-be son-in-law. The driver of the coach lost his fare.

WHO'LL PITCH AGAINST HIM?

An Open Challenge for the Quoit Championship of Plainfield.

In the back yard of Claasen's barber shop on Liberty street, took place a match at quoit pitching for the championship of the Boulevard between J. B. Treacy and J. Stroppe. The stakes were $1 a side. P. Muldoon was stakeholder, and Barney Brady and William Claasen referees.

Treacy won, but Stroppe immediately announced an open challenge to pitch against all comers for $5 a side and the championship of the city. Conditions to be 5-pound quoits at 16 paces.

"Boss" Saw a Whale.

Three valiant fishermen, Tom. P., R. C. and "Boss" D., went fishing yesterday at Lambert's Mill. While waiting patiently for a bite, "Boss" became drowsy. Suddenly there was a splash and an enormous "something" sprang over his line. For a moment he was paralyzed with fright, and then fell headlong in the pond. His companions fished him out and "Boss" then and there declared that it was a judgment upon his past record as a Republican and he would on Nov. 4 next vote for Cleveland, Stevenson, Werts and the balance of the Democratic ticket. The "something" was a large carp.

There's danger in a cough—more than ever when your blood is "bad." It makes things easy for Consumption. But there's a cure for it in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A positive cure—not only for Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma and all lingering Coughs, but for Consumption itself in all its earlier stages. It's reasonable. All these diseases depend on tainted blood. Consumption is simply Lung-scrofula. And for every form of scrofula and blood-taint, the "Discovery" is a certain remedy. It's so certain, that its makers guarantee it to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money is refunded. With a medicine that is certain, this can be done.

There's a cure for Catarrh, too, no matter what you've been led to believe. If there isn't, in your case, you'll get $500 cash. It's a bona fide offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

They are willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

A CRESCENT GRADUATE.

NEW YORK REJOICES TO SECURE YOUNG KEELER.

PLAINFIELD'S AN "OBSCURE CLUB".

The West Ends Have to Hire Giants to Help Them Play, But the Crescents Turn Out Superior League Players from Their Ranks—We Have Plenty More as Good as Keeler, and He's of the Best.

The New York Times of yesterday makes a leading article of New York's engagement of Keeler, formerly the Crescents' favorite shortstop. Its praise of the bright young man will be interesting to the local public. The Crescents are League-player makers. They have abundant material of the same sort, in Hofford, Jones, Bonner, Brady and the rest. The Times says:

Manager Powers of the New York club, who has been in Binghamton for a few days, this afternoon engaged W. F. Keeler, the third-baseman of the Binghamton club. In young Keeler the New Yorks have a prize, and he will surely make his mark in the League. In size and appearance he resembles Dahlen of Chicago, and is considered the equal of the Chicago expert in every respect. He is a clever fielder, a remarkably fast man on the bases, and as a batter he outranks any other player in the Eastern League.

It was by no means an easy task for the New York manager to secure the signature to a contract of this young player. Nearly every club in the League had an agent here, and Keeler had some flattering offers made him. Manager Powers's oily tongue and persuasive mannners, however, had the desired effect, and Keeler decided to cast his lot with the Giants to the disappointment of the other agents. He will report for duty with the New Yorks at once, and may be seen against the Philadelphias on the Polo grounds on Thursday.

Keeler's debut as a ball player was very peculiar. Early in the Spring the Binghamptons realized that they wanted a shortstop, and the secretary of the club was sent out to find one. In his rambles he visited one of the many parks on Long Island where semi-professionals play Sunday games. Keeler was connected with some obscure team, [this of the Crescents !], but his work struck the fancy of the Binghampton man and he decided to engage him right on the spot. He was taken to Binghampton, and his work from the start won him many friends in all the cities visited by his team. Keeler was put at the top of the batting list for his club and he remained there all season. At first he played at short, but the man at third was not giving satisfaction, so he was transferred to the corner of the diamond.

"In Keeler the New Yorks have one of the very best all-round ball-players in the profession," said Manager Doscher, the ex-player and umpire who piloted the Binghamptons to victory this season. "In all my experience on the diamond, covering a period of fifteen years, I have never seen a young man who impressed me so favorably. When he joined the team he was a good man, but, of course, he lacked the knowledge of the intricate points possessed by the old-timers. In a short while, however, he mastered all the points, and to-day is the equal of any of the League stars. He is a left-handed batter and thrower. Ordinarily left-handed throwers are not accurate, but I have yet to see him make a poor throw to first base. On the coaching lines he is the equal of Tucker of Boston, and as a batter and base runner he will hold his end up with any of the men in the League who are drawing princely salaries. Of course, I hated to part with Keeler, but it would be doing him an injustice to ask him to stop here when all the big clubs wanted him."

Manager Powers is confident that Keeler will make a success in the League. Unknown to the player he has been watching his work for the past few days. Keeler is a Brooklyn boy.

FISH NOT INFECTED.

Another Newspaper Scare about Cholera, Exploded.

Officials of the Health department say there is no reason to fear that oysters, clams or fish of any kind found in the New York markets have been infected with cholera germs. General Emmons Clark, secretary of the New York Health Board said yesterday: "I understand that business at the markets has been injured by a popular fear that cholera may be received into the stomach by eating oysters or fish. The maket-men have made no complaints to the Health board on that subject. We might not be able to help them if they did. If people will be silly enough to believe that they can become infected with cholera by eating fish, we can't stop them. Nobody connected with the Health department has given voice to such a notion. I eat fish as freely as I ever did. It is well to have all kinds of food well cooked, and fish is no exception to the rule. Fish that are brought to the markets are caught out at sea, or in places remote from the cholera ships. There are no oyster beds near lower quarantine. There has been no infection in the Great South bay or near the Shrewsbury river."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT,
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.

It having been represented to this department that in the markets of this city people hesitate to purchase fish and other articles of food from apprehension that cholera germs may be contained therein, the Board of Health reiterates the statement already made, that there is no danger from the use of fish, meat and all other proper articles of food or drink, provided they are thoroughly cooked.

CHARLES G. WILSON,
President.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

CRAWLING OUT OF ITS HOLE.

Somerville Finds Crumbs of Comfort in False Philosophical Reflections.

(Harkinstown Messinger.)

The summer is past and the harvest ended and the base-ball outcome is about as satisfactory as was its initiatory proceedings. The West Ends lost the first three games and the last two, but won twelve out of the remaining fourteen, but still, technically speaking, lost the pennant. (Right here we would say that there is no pennant, nor has there been any offered this year.) The Central N. J. B. B. League was organized this spring with Elizabeth, Westfield, Plainfield and Somerville represented in the quadrangular contest. According to the generally-accepted idea, the club winning the most in the series of games each, was to fall heir to a handsome championship pennant. Practically it was a friendly strife as to which of the individual towns could win the most games from the others. Our West End team, under manager Mack's intelligent supervision, has won four of the six games played with both Elizabeth and Westfield and four of the seven played with Plainfield, thus scoring a majority of the games played with each of the competing nines.

Before half the games were played it was seen that the real contest was the same old hereditary struggle between Plainfield and Somerville, and that Elizabeth and Westfield were only figureheads in the procession. It happened, peculiarly enough (things often happen that way), that Plainfield won the six straight games from Elizabeth, and, as a consequence, when the scheduled series of games was finished, the two rival teams were tied for first place, on the percentage system, each having won twelve of the eighteen games played.

Three weeks ago, when the West Ends won the first game of the last series from the Crescents, Plainfield, in general, went crazy over their defeat and threatened to end the series then and there; they were persuaded, however, to play the remaining scheduled game, and when the West Ends lost this game, not ten men could be found in Somerville but believed that it had been purposely lost, and charges of corruption and bribery were as thick as similar charges are by the defeated party after each election. What queer mortals base-ball cranks are! If the team wins too many of the games, there is no excitement and people will not patronize them; if it lose only one too many, it is no good. The fact is, the Crescents and West Ends have both been ably managed this year, and teams have been secured that could have held their own with the majority of the teams in the National League. The result has been some intensely exciting games, and it is with a feeling of regret that we see the season close, and we trust that next spring will again witness the old rivals pitted against each other.

CHICAGO 60 YEARS AGO.

It Was a Wilderness When Elias Hotchkiss's Cousin Settled There.

Thomas S. Eells, of Jacksonville, Fla., cousin of Elias Hotchkiss, of Rockview avenue, who was the third white man to locate at Chicago, writes in reference to that time, as follows:

"When I arrived at Chicago in 1832 there were only 700 white people in Cook county, and 7,000 Indians. I at once, living with Gorman S. Hubbard, began to associate with the Indians, rapidly acquiring a knowledge of their language; now, though 60 years have passed, I can speak the Pottawattamie fluently. I knew every man, woman and child, horse, cow and dog that lived within 30 miles of Chicago, and as the times were full of interest I became fully posted in matters which were exciting and interesting. After 60 years have passed all of the old settlers of 1832 to 1830, except three persons, are dead." Mr. Eells has written 200 pages of scenes and incidents of Chicago 60 years ago and is thinking of publishing a book. He is now in his 79th year.

Broke Her Arm.

Doris, two years of age, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Day, fell off the stoop of her parents' home on Central avenue, yesterday afternoon, and broke her arm below the elbow.

Dr. Endicott, who was fortunately in the immediate vicinity, was summoned at once and reset the broken bone. There is no fear of inflammation, and the brave little woman is remarkably comfortable.

Probably a Fatal Fall.

Mrs. Tensey Hillman, formerly Miss Haberle, is lying dangerously ill at her home on West Fifth street. Some years ago she severely hurt her spine by a bad fall at the skating rink on Grove street. A day or two ago she fell out of a hammock and was injured internally. Her recovery is despaired of.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

AT NEW YORK'S THEATERS.

A List of the Most Attractive Programmes Offered in the Great Metropolis.

Marie Vanoni is singing some new songs at Koster & Bial's concert hall 23rd street, this week. "Georgie" and "Les Gardes Municipaux" have been received with much enthusiasm. Messrs. Koster & Bial announce their intention of making a new departure by presenting two separate one-act operettas on the same evening. Amann, the mimic, continues to please, and the charming comfort and independence of the place is attracting large audiences of the best people every evening.

Robert Mantell is continuing his success in "The Face in the Moonlight", at Proctor's theater, 23rd street, New York. The audiences are increasing in size, and the advance sale of seats, for the next two weeks, is so satisfactory that, Messrs. Proctor & Turner have decided since "The Face in the Moonlight" has grown so much in popularity, that they will forego their announced production on Oct. 3, of "Othello" and "Hamlet". Mr. Mantell will, therefore, not be seen in Shakespeare in New York this season. Miss Charlotte Behrens still continues Mr. Mantell's leading lady, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The balance of the company will remain the same. The 50th performance occurs on Oct. 5, and will be fittingly observed by the management who are preparing a unique souvenir which in point of elegance surpasses, it is said, anything ever presented.

The success of "The Black Crook" at the Academy of Music 14th street, has far exceeded the expectations of its sanguine managers. The big house is literally packed to the doors every night, and late comers stand a very poor chance of seeing anything. The excellent specialties that manager Eugene Tompkins secured in Europe have more to do with this condition of things than "The Black Crook" itself.

"Letterblair", Marguerite Merington's pretty and witty little comedy, remains at the Lyceum theater 23rd street and 4th avenue. There are matinees Thursday and Saturday, for the demand to see this piece is very lively. Sothern himself is a favorite, but the fact that he has captured a good play is not to be despised. Miss Marguerite Merington is a lucky woman.

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" and "Not the Only One", the new songs indroduced into "A Parlor Match" at the Bijou theater Broadway and 30th street, by Evans and Hoey, have captured the town. The piece itself is comparatively new, because it has been rewritten and filled with new specialties. Evans and Hoey call it "Series No. 9".

DR. STILLMAN'S WILL.

The Plainfield Physician Leaves All His Property to Miss Schaus, Who Refuses to Benefit Under Its Provisions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—The will of the late Dr. Charles F. Stillman was admitted to probate to-day. Dr. Stillman died April 28, 1892. He left a widow, Mrs. Harriet G. Stillman. The will does not mention her name. It bequeaths all his property to Miss Mabel Schaus, and appoints her sole executrix. The testament is witnessed by Charles C. Suydam of Elizabeth, N. J., and Walter A. Richards of 105 East Fifteenth street, New York city. A petetion filed by the legal widow requests the appointment of William E. Clarke jr., and letters were issued to him. The estate is valued at $4,000, and consists of life insurance policies. Miss Schaus has refused the bequest, and has renounced the provisions of the will.

"JIM CUMMINGS" AGAIN.

The Express Train Robber Says It Is Going to Work Honestly.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 29.—Fred Whitrock, alias Jim Cummings, who, some six years ago, bound and gagged Express Messenger Fotheringham on the Iron Mountain road, near St. Louis, and robbed the car of something like $60,000 in money and securities, has been released from the penitentiary at Jefferson City, and was here yesterday.

He looks little the worse for his long confinement.

Whitrock said yesterday that he got from Fotheringham's car $54,000 in money and about $30,000 worth of valuable securities.

He announces his intention of going to work honestly.

DEPEW MUST BE BRIEF.

Only President Harrison May Speak at Length at the Dedication Exercises.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—It is probable that Chauncey M. Depew and Congressman Breckenridge will be asked to cut their World's Fair dedication speeches short, although President Harrison can fix his own time of talking.

Judge Massey of Delaware, of the council of administration, has been instructed to cut down the programme of exercises at Jackson Park from five to three hours.

Women Will Raise a Democratic Flag.

READING, Pa., Sep. 29.—Fifty women of the 12th Ward, this city, met last night and appointed a finance committee of three, and decided to have a Democratic flag-raising on Thursday evening, Oct. 6. They have issued invitations to all the Democratic clubs in the city. The flag is to be 8 by 14 feet, and the ceremonies are to be entirely in charge of women.

A Kidnapper Arrested.

FREDERICK, Md., Sep. 29.—Webster Barrick is in jail here, charged with kidnapping 12-year-old Cora Shriver of Lebanon, Pa. The girl will be held for the arrival of her father. Barrick has been in the tobacco business in Harrisburg, Pa., where he employed the girl in his store. Barrick was anxious to shoot his captors when arrested.

THE TWO CANDIDATES.

How the "Plain People" Regard Cleveland and Harrison.

Mr. Harrison, whatever may be his other qualities, clearly does not awaken enthusiasm. Even those who have respect for his shrewdness, and who are profoundly convinced that his cause is the right cause, do not feel any great confidence in him or any attachment at all to his personality.

The most confirmed Republicans confess that their cause might be in better hands, and regret that their candidate does not inspire the feeling of admiration and loyalty that is so potent a factor in popular elections. Mr. Cleveland, on the other hand, does inspire a very deep sentiment of personal trust and regard, and, what is very important, he inspires this sentiment most strongly among the plain people, the average citizens of the republic. These men reason very simply that the man who has shown himself unselfish, sincere, staunch, is a man "to tie to." They may not understand all his views. They may differ from some of them. But they feel that here is a man who will form views for himself, will form them fairly, as he thinks the right requires, and will sustain them at any cost.

It was this deeply seated feeling that forced the nomination of Mr. Cleveland upon his party. And curiously enough, now that he is nominated, it is this feeling that makes him intensely popular with a great body of Democrats, who before had been associated with those opposed to his nomination. All trustworthy reports agree that the Democrats of New York city and Brooklyn are today among the firmest, the most eager and the most energetic supporters of Mr. Cleveland. With a just cause and a leader who is the very embodiment of that cause, the Democracy is making an aggressive campaign. It could make no other, and it bids fair to win because it deserves to win.—New York Times.

How Wanamaker Got There.

Republican organs are accustomed to treat lightly the charge made by the Democrats that the present postmaster general was put in the cabinet as a reward for his services in raising money for election purposes four years ago. But the truth of this charge is clearly established by the admissions of the very men who helped Wanamaker to raise that famous $400,000 a few days before the election.

The rich manufacturers of Philadelphia who contributed most of the great corruption fund for Quay's use, are members of the Philadelphia Manufacturers' club, an organization of high protectionists. The organ of the club is The Manufacturer. Soon after Wanamaker's appointment as postmaster general this journal said:

"It is to the men that give the cash that a large, if not the largest, share of success is due. We make the assertion that the money contributed by this club last year had more influence upon the result of the national election than all the skill, the ingenuity, the labor and the wire pulling of all the professional politicians in Philadelphia. We believe this proposition to be capable of positive proof. If, therefore, control of patronage is rightly the reward of victorious effort, the right of this club to name the federal officeholders of Philadelphia rests upon solid ground."

They accepted Wanamaker's appointment as the reward for the fat which was fried out of them, and did not hesitate to publish the fact. And the Republican party used to boast that it was the "party of high moral ideas!"

Old Hickory as a Protectionist.

The impudence of the Republicans in this campaign is far above par. They are even claiming Andrew Jackson as a protectionist! Their desperate attempt to extract a few grains of comfort from the result of the Vermont and Maine elections has shown them to have the capacity of being "contented wi' little," but what comfort can they find in the following words from Old Hickory's farewell address: "The corporations and wealthy individuals who are engaged in large manufacturing establishments desire a high tariff to increase their gains. Designing politicians will support it to conciliate their favor and to obtain the means of profuse expenditure for the purpose of purchasing influence in other quarters. Do not allow yourselves, my fellow citizens, to be misled on this subject. The federal government cannot collect a surplus for such purposes without violating the principles of the constitution and assuming powers which have not been granted. It is, moreover, a system of injustice, and if persisted in will inevitably lead to corruption and must end in ruin."

What Tariff Reform Can Do.

Secretary Foster has returned from his vacation. Before he entered upon the speechmaking tour which is said to have convinced Mr. Harrison that he is not discreet enough to be a campaign leader he directed Major Brock, of the bureau of statistics of foreign trade, to fix up a document for campaign circulation showing how the McKinley bill has stimulated things during the past year.

This document, among other things, shows that we have netted a clean $10,000,000 through reciprocity (limited free trade), and have profited to the extent of the removal of former McKinley duties. Side by side with the report of our alleged gains goes the reiterated statement of how the late Republican congress increased the free list and lowered the rate of taxation.

The joke of Major Brock's showing is that it amounts substantially to a tariff reform argument. We have profited in proportion as we have removed duties.—Boston Globe.

An Answer to Harrison.

Any man who states that the Democratic party has any other policy than that of limiting the revenues to the need of the government misrepresents the platform adopted at Chicago and seeks to achieve success by falsehood rather than by truth.—Bourke Cockran.

Self Praise.

Self praise is no recommendation, but there are times when one must permit a person to tell the truth about himself. When what he says is supported by the testimony of others, no reasonable man will doubt his word. Now to say that ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are the only genuine and reliable porous plasters made is not self praise in the slightest degree. They have stood the test for over thirty years, and in proof of their merits it is only necessary to call attention to the cures they have effected and to the voluntary testimonials of those who have used them.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

AMERICAN ART.

A Strong National Exhibit for the World's Fair.

Results of the Exhibit—An Immediate and Far-Reaching Influence Upon American Culture Certain to Follow a Well-Selected Display.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

As the date for the opening of the world's fair draws nearer interest in special departments of the exposition becomes keener and preparations take on a more definite and expressive form. Although, perhaps, few very important departments of the show have received less public attention than the art display, for the reason that the preparations in this department are peculiarly remote from public observation, the art world is interested as it has seldom before been interested.

There is the liveliest expectation as to the character of the display in general. It is known that every country which has made any name in art is bending itself mightily to the task of making a great name at Chicago.

The chief interest of the American painters is, however, centered on the general American display which will test the metal of modern American art. Concerning this general display the following expressions of opinion have been gathered from prominent eastern artists:

PRESIDENT WOOD'S IDEAS.

The character of the art exhibit at the Chicago fair is something in which every American artist is deeply interested, not because its brilliancy might impress Europe—though we are bound to be influenced by certain considerations of this kind, and reasonably so—but because of the immediate, healthful and far-reaching influence of the display on American culture.

It will not do, I think, to assume that we will certainly have a strong American exhibit. The artists of Europe have every reason for making a special effort to make a fine display here. America is the best market for European painters, and it may be taken for granted that their knowledge of this fact will place the certainty of a great foreign exhibit beyond a doubt.

To the foreign visitors we should be able to show a collection of pictures that is distinctively American. And above and beyond all that we should be able to show our own people what the character and prophecies of our native art really are.

Thomas W. Wood.

OUGHT TO DO OUR BEST.

I have no means of knowing what has yet been done, but I feel confident of entirely satisfactory results. The choice of Mr. Ives is an excellent one, and will result not only in a good general exhibit properly managed, but in a home representation that will be creditable to the country.

It will be a great mistake if our painters do not do their very best. Sometimes I think that European countries understand the necessity for special effort better than we do. France, I know, will make the best showing she possibly can. She is bound to do this, and she wishes to do it. England, I understand, is preparing to make her most brilliant effort. I have not heard much from Germany, but I know that country is not at all likely to let her exhibit fall below the best she can produce.

And thus with Spain, from which it seems probable that we shall have some of the finest things at the fair. But, depend upon it, every nation that has any art will be represented in the art department in Chicago, and will be represented at its best.

It behooves us, then, to make the American exhibit as strong as we can make it. If anybody can compete with France for the leadership of the world we can in this country. We cannot do this unless our artists will send their very best work.

I am told by those who should know that France is making preparations for the Chicago show on a basis broader than anything that has been done even at the Paris expositions. If what I have learned of France and England be true, and if Germany, Spain and other European countries operate on anything like the same plane, we are likely, with the aid of a pure American exhibit, to have at Chicago next year the greatest art exhibition ever held in any country

W. T. Richards

THE ART OF GLASS.

I have been asked: "Will the art exhibits at the fair be given a prominent place?"

From what I have seen of the arrangement of the really beautiful building to be devoted specially to artistic exhibits I should say that they will be most prominently set forth.

Naturally the question has arisen: "Is there reason to expect a strong American art exhibit?" I should like to say, and say it as distinctly as possible, that the very arrangement of the place and of the buildings, their character, the order which has presided over them, the whole picture of them, will be the strongest American exhibit of art ever made. Of course we have to suppose that all will be carried out as all has been begun, but in my opinion most certainly all European expositions, as far as the buildings, as far as the artistic appearance, is concerned, will have been comparatively barbarous. Of course, again, we must suppose that the completed work will be carried out with the same care all the way through.

We should certainly have whatever is or whatever has been American represented. And each person should take his choice.

I have been asked again: "Is there not danger that too much emphasis will be laid upon painting, to the exclusion of other arts?"

Here you touch me deeply. I have been very much afraid that one art, in which the American has done something new and original and unattempted before simply because he has not been afraid of risking making a fool of himself—that the art of glass, as the French call it, as it been developed here, will not be adequately represented. As I am one of its representatives it is rather an effort for me to speak of it as justice demands.

But, owing simply to what I was saying—a certain innocence, a certain willingness to take risks—there is no doubt that we have accomplished in that one art something which can stand with the best of the rest of the world.

Note, of course, that it is an inferior art, but so are some departments of literature that are cultivated with the greatest pains inferior to others. The novel may not strike so high a note as certain older forms, and yet it may be excellent work of its kind.

Now, in painting, we may do as well as any men living, yet we shall not have equaled Rembrandt, let us say, or Velasquez or Titian. We are not likely to surpass Michael Angelo or Phidias in sculpture.

But in glass the few excellencies we have reached are those that the European has long given up striving for. No one over there thinks of rivaling the work of the greatest past in the questions of richness, depth of color, and what might be called orchestration; so that their work compared to ours looks weak, timid, even if it be sometimes inoffensive from its lack of power.

Owing to this practice of art being a new departure here—by new I mean since our last exposition—there has been no proviso for its exhibition. We have acted according to one of the faults of the American imagination—taking for granted that the European has covered all that can be done, and that his classification, when it leaves out something, implies that that thing has no possibility of existence. So, owing to the fact that the classification of European expositions has not given adequate representation to art in glass because there was no such thing there—or rather, I should say, nothing of it that could not be adequately represented by a picture or a drawing, consequently quite representable by that picture or that drawing—we, imitating their classification, have made no such department.

John La Farge

MERIT, NOT SCHOOLS.

In my opinion a truly representative American exhibition of painting might be made exceedingly interesting and instructive, but such an exhibition should be treated in a true catholic spirit by both committees on selection and by the committee that has charge of arranging the exhibits.

In the first place, the exhibit should commence by showing the advancement of art in this country from the beginning, selecting the best works of those early portrait painters like Trumbull, Alston, etc., which would by themselves make an interesting collection. Then come the later artists—in figure as well as in landscape—who have distinguished themselves in their time, but they should be represented by only their best works. So also with the modern school. And here comes the work for the committee on selection, which should be unbiased and unprejudiced, and do away entirely with their own feelings in regard to conceptions of art—whatever that may be—and judge pictures according to their merits, from the standpoint and views of those artists upon whose work they have to decide.

Here is not the place for preference to the new school or old school, but to judge of the merits which exist in the different ways of treatment and conception of art. This same spirit should also guide the committee of arrangements of the art gallery and do away, for the time at least, with all sorts of partisanship and prejudices.

If not carried out in a broad spirit the success of this exhibition will be doubtful. If carried out in a proper spirit there is no reason why we should not hold our own among other nations, who will be represented by their best work and will do all in their power to show that work to the best advantage. Let every artist try to be American in his exhibit and we will be successful.

Wm. M. R. French

ANTICIPATED RESULTS.

The direct and most important result of the international display of works of art at the Columbian exhibition will be a pronounced improvement in the future art work of this country, creating healthier ideals of what constitutes real excellence, and so elevating it to a higher plane. These educational advantages, presented through exactly similar exhibitions, are the principal value attached to them abroad and are considered well-nigh incalculably beneficial.

What is It?

A substitute for lard? Upsetting the customs, habits, and prejudices of centuries? Yes, all this and more. Cottolene is a new cooking product—it is better than lard or butter for cooking, so say such noted housekeepers as

Marion Harland,
Catharine Owen,
Christine Terhune Herrick,
Emma P. Ewing,
Mrs. S. T. Rorer,
Mrs. F. A. Benson,
Amy Barnes,
Margaret Winter,

and many others; it is healthier—so says every thoughtful physician; and it is cheaper as every housekeeper knows when she finds that one-half the quantity answers every purpose.

COTTOLENE

is the purest clarified cottonseed oil mixed with pure beef fat. It is the best cooking material ever devised for frying anything and everything—easily digested and highly nutritious.

Beware of imitations. Ask your grocer for the genuine Cottolene.

Two Men Meet a Terrible Accident at Braddock, Pa.

EXPLOSION OF A BLAST FURNACE.

A Report Like that of a Volcanic Eruption—The Unfortunates Enveloped By the Molten Stuff—Companions Could Render But Little Assistance.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 30.—A frightful accident occurred at the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, owned by the Carnegie Company, at Braddock, yesterday morning. Furnace H, one of the new blast furnaces was being charged. The mixture clogged up the opening and broke through the bottom. Hundreds of tons of molten metal, ore, coke, etc., were precipitated to the pit under the furnace. There was an explosion that shook the ground for hundreds of yards. The top of the furnace was blown off.

Michael Brennan and Andrew Srakol were filling in at the top of the furnace, 90 feet above, at the time. They were standing on a small bridge between furnaces H and I, and the shock almost threw them into the red hot crater. Its explosion was in the nature of a volcanic eruption.

The two men could not escape the mixture of molten metal thrown up as it came down about them. The stuff ran all over the little bridge to which the men clung in their terror and settled around them to a depth of about a foot. Their feet and lower limbs were cooked by the hot stuff. Their companions below, seeing the awful plight of the two unfortunates, hurried to their assistance.

The explosion had wrecked the bridge to such an extent as to make it dangerous for anybody to go on it. After considerable difficulty the men were reached and taken off, the hot stuff still clinging to their bodies.

Their screams were agonizing as they were pulled from the fiery bed. They were removed to the Mercy Hospital. They cannot live.

The explosion will cost the Carnegie company many thousands of dollars.

NEW YORK COAL DEALERS ALARMED.

They Fear the Intended Chicago Movement Against the P. & R.

NEW YORK, Sep. 30.—The announcement that the District Attorney of Cook county, Ill., proposes to ask for an injunction to restrain the Philadelphia & Reading Coal Company from selling coal in Chicago has made a profound impression among the coal dealers here.

The head of one of the largest concerns has telegraphed a protest on the ground that such an injunction, if granted ex parte, as in New Jersey, would advance coal probably to $15 a ton, rather than the selling rate of $7.35 which rules in Chicago to-day.

An officer of the coal company said this morning that such an injunction could only effect the Chicago people by either advancing the rate to an exceptional higher figure or compelling the people to use bituminous coal.

CASE OF COMMISSIONER PECK.

Criminal Proceedings Postponed—Civil Action to Come Up To-Morrow.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sep. 30.—On account of the absence of Mr. Meegan, counsel for Mr. Peck, the case against Mr. Peck, to be heard in the Police Court, has been postponed for one week.

The case brought against Mr. Peck by E. Ellery Anderson and others, to compel him to produce the records upon which he based his annual report, which was to have come up before Justice Edwards one week from next Saturday, will be heard on Saturday, Oct. 1st, at Hudson, Judge Edwards having decided to hold his special term on that date.

Phelan Will Fight to the End.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sep. 30.—John J. Phelan, of this city, the Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, against whom the Supreme Court has just made a finding in the quo warranto case in which he seeks to establish a claim to the office, will not give up the fight. Mr. Phelan says that if there is any opportunity of further offering to the Superior Court evidence to show that 509 double ballots were lawfully rejected, or that he would have a majority, providing they were admitted in the count, he shall certainly do so.

An Ex-Congressman Killed.

LANCASTER, N. H., Sep. 30.—Ex-Congressman Benton was thrown from a runaway team yesterday, receiving injuries from which he died two hours later. Mr. Benton was a member of Congress from the old Third district in 1867-69 for two terms. He was 78 years of age and lived in Lancaster 50 years. His death from such a cause has shocked the entire community. A widow who survives him is a daughter of Neal Dow, of Maine.

A Bookmaker Robbed.

NEW YORK, Sep. 30.—Bookmaker T. H. Shannon of Lexington, Ky., who has been doing business at the race tracks in this vicinity, was robbed of $8,200 last night. The money was taken from his room at the Sturtevant House. He believes the thief is a young Kentuckyian, Samuel Clay, an alleged descendant of Henry Clay. CALLS SHANNON A LIAR.

Ex-Judge Swift of Buffalo Scores New York's Insurance Examiner.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 30.—Ex-Judge Harlem J. Swift, ex-President and attorney of the Life and Reserve Association of this city, who is charged in State Insurance Examiner Shannon's report with having misapplied funds of the association, stated in an interview last night that the charges are false, and that Mr. Shannon lied when he made them.

"He knew he lied," said Mr. Swift. "He lied maliciously, wickedly and purposely. These are strong words, but I mean them."

Mr. Swift claims that the security for the loans made by him was ample and denies that he made or knew of any loans being made without security.

He says that it looks as if there has been a conspiracy to oust by hook or crook those officers who had the best interests of the association at heart, and there are circumstances tending to show that Mr. Shannon has been a tool of these people or was cognizant of their purpose.

NANCY HANKS TO TRY AGAIN.

She Will Have a Go at Her 2:04 Record on Oct. 26.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sep. 30.—The Missouri State Fair Association has made public the programme for the fall trotting meeting, Oct. 25 to 29 inclusive. It comprises fifteen events, including the races against records by Nancy Hanks and Martha Wilkes, for purses aggregating $12,000.

On Oct. 25 Doble will drive Martha Wilkes over the kite track to beat her record of 2:08, and on the following day will send Nancy Hanks to beat her record. For the exhibitions which Martha and Nancy will give the association will pay Mr. Doble $5,000. Great crowds are anticipated.

Nancy's latest time on a regulation track, 2:04, at Terre Haute, Ind., Wednesday, has filled horsemen here with excitement.

Many think that she will bring the record nearer the two-minute mark, but others, the more conservative men, say that she has reached the top notch of her speed.

IN MATTHEW THORNTON'S HONOR.

Dedication of the Monument to Him at Merrimac, N. H.

NASHUA, N. H., Sep. 30.—The dedication of the Matthew Thornton monument erected by the State of New Hampshire and the town of Merrimac to the memory of Matthew Thornton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, took place yesterday at Merrimac.

There was a large crowd of people present at the exercises, which were held in a large tent on the estate formerly occupied by Thornton in that part of the town called Thornton's Ferry.

Gov. Tuttle with his staff and Council were present and accepted the memorial on behalf of the State. Gen. C. H. Burns of Nashua was the orator.

PORT READING QUO WARRANTO.

The Railroad Has Thirty Days to Answer the Attorney-General.

TRENTON, N. J., Sep. 30.—The Attorney-General has filed information in the nature of quo warranto against the Port Reading Railroad Company alleging that the company has been acting as a corporate body for twenty-two months without warrant from the State, and has issued stock to the amount of $5,000,000, and otherwise has been exercising franchises for which it has no warrant in law.

The Attorney-General therefore invokes the Supreme Court to proceed against the company.

Thirty days are allowed for the company to file an answer.

Volcanic Signs Reported at Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sep. 30.—Advices from Onalaska state that the steamer St. Paul from San Francisco reported sailing, on August 28, through black clouds for four hours. Lamps had to be lighted. When the steamer emerged several inches of volcanic dust covered the decks. The nearest active crater is 265 miles away and it is thought that a new island has emerged from the sea, as did Bogasluf island six years ago.

The Milford Granite Lockout.

BABYLON, L. I., Sep. 30.—The situation at Fire Island remains unchanged. DENIED BY MR. FRICK.

He Says Carnegie is Not Coming Back to Settle the Homestead Strike.

PITTSBURG, Sep. 30.—A statement in an evening paper that Andrew Carnegie is on his way to this country for the purpose of settling the trouble at Homestead between the Carnegie firm and the men caused considerable talk in labor circles here.

Chairman Frick made the following statement this morning: "Well, if Mr. Carnegie is coming home I have not heard of it, and if he was coming I think I would know something about it. You can say that there is not a particle of truth in the story. We are satisfied with the way that our works are being run, and also with the men, and I don't see why we should make any effort to effect a settlement looking toward again engaging our old men.

"You can also say that there is no truth in the story that our 28-inch mill has been closed down and the men paid off, or that we intend to indefinitely suspend operations at our Homestead plant. Everything is going along very smoothly and we are satisfied with the situation."

TEN MINERS ENTOMBED.

Cave-in at the East Norrie Mine at Ironwood, Mich.

BESSEMER, Mich., Sep. 30.—A cave-in occurred at the East Norrie Mine at Ironwood yesterday morning. Ten men were entombed, and it is impossible this morning to tell whether they can be rescued alive.

The buried men are: John Johnson, Abraham Thompson, Frank Damshon and Samuel Damshon, miners; four timbermen, names unknown; two trammers, names unknown.

The skip tender is also missing.

The mine is surrounded by weeping and frantic women and relatives. Hundreds of men are working to rescue their companions.

The company is driving pipes to get air to the men. If the water in the mine does not rise and drown the men they may be rescued. Voices can be heard at intervals.

Governor Abbett was also on hand. Senator Gardiner, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Second District, accompanied General Sewell. Many members of the Legislature and nearly all the State officers appeared.

They talked politics between heats and smoked, chatted and drank just as though they were all fighting together on one side.

LABOR RIOT AT BUFFALO.

Union Shovers Attack Non-Union Men—Several Seriously Injured.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 30.—There was another riot yesterday between the union and non-union shovers, and three of the latter are badly injured. The affair occurred at Stewart's Lumber yard at the foot of Genesee Street.

The lumber vessel Arctic arrived at the yard and non-union men went to work unloading her. A crowd of union men assembled and ordered the non-union men away. They refused to go and a fight followed.

The union men were armed with clubs and stones, and used them with considerable effect.

The police restored order and arrested President McGovern, of the Lumber Shovers' Union, and George Crowley, who are charged with inciting the riot.

All her passengers, who have been on Hoffman Island for ten days or more, were landed at Ellis Island. Capt. Kopff expects that the report of Dr. Kinyoun, of the Marine Hospital Service, will enable him to avoid detention at Quarantine in Chesapeake Bay.

APPEAL TO IRISHMEN

The Home Rule Party Issue An Address.

LONDON'S CATHOLIC LORD MAYOR.

He Will Send a Proxy to Church of England Services—The Mutiny in the Life Guards—Wilson Barrett's "Pharoah" a Success—Other News By Cable.

LONDON, Sep. 30.—The Irish Parliamentary party have sent out an address to Irishmen abroad. The address is signed by Justin McCarthy, and it appeals for funds for the support of evicted tenants pending the release of the Paris fund.

The address states that the party are convinced of the sincerity of the government's professions as regards home rule, not only because of the course pursued hitherto by the Liberal party, but also because it is manifestly the strongest policy of the government to effect a settlement satisfactory to Irishmen.

Assuming that the bill would be satisfactory, the next question was how much energy would be applied to pass it. The Liberals, both before and since their accession to power, had confirmed through their leader that the undertaking of home rule should be their first task. The Parliamentary party did not forget the declaration that the House of Lords would probably reject the bill, but bore in mind Mr. Gladstone's warning that they would do so at the peril of their chamber.

The party felt sure that whatever the House of Lords might do, the day of full success was approaching.

"In the meantime," continues the address, "we need your help as the final stage approaches, most urgently to save evicted tenants until the Paris fund shall be available."

WILL SEND A PROXY TO CHURCH

London's Roman Catholic Mayor Declares His Intentions.

LONDON, Sep. 30.—The attitude of Lord Mayor Knill, who is a Roman Catholic, toward the Church of England, was foretold by him at the Guildhall meeting in answer to questions put by liverymen. On official occasions, accompanied by religious services, he will not attend services of the Church of England, as has been customary with his predecessors, but will send a proxy.

He will not attach to himself, moreover, a Protestant clergyman as his chaplain.

There was strong opposition against the selection of Alderman Knill as Lord Mayor on account of his religion.

The liverymen of the London companies, among whom there is a strong tinge of Orangeism, voted to recommend Alderman Phillips, a Protestant, for the office, but the Court of Aldermen rejected the choice, and refused to depart from the regular order because the alderman whose turn it was to be Lord Mayor was a Roman Catholic.

A large crowd assembled outside the Guildhall during the election and shouted "No Popery."

ROUGH ON THE DOCTORS.

Dr. Hulseman Tells How He Was Treated After He Was Relieved from Duty.

BERLIN, Sep. 30.—Dr. Hulseman, of Soest, one of the Hamburg volunteer doctors, has described in a provincial newspaper how he was treated after he had been relieved of his duties in the cholera hospital.

In Kiel, he says, no hotel would take him and his companion in. When he returned to his home apartments admission was refused him.

He and his companion were exhausted by their labors and almost penniless, as they had given their money to the suffering in Hamburg.

Both were so depressed by the scenes they had witnessed in Hamburg that they hardly cared what became of them.

Only after a quarantine of several days and repeated fumigation were they able to find food and shelter outside of the jurisdiction of the health authorities.

In the hospital in which Dr. Hulseman served half the patients died, he said, within a few hours after they were first stricken.

THE MEN WON'T CONFESS.

Threats Do Not Frighten the Mutinous Life Guards.

LONDON, Sep. 30.—Maj.-Gen. the Hon. Paul Sanford Methuen addressed the First Life Guards at Windsor and found them obedient and well disciplined.

But when it came to endeavoring to obtain an acknowledgment of the proceedings of Saturday he failed.

He said he would give them five minutes to confess who had destroyed the equipments. If they confessed he would treat the affair as insubordination, but if they did not he would have to view it as mutiny.

The five minutes passed, but not a soldier spoke.

The men were sent back to their quarters, and Gen. Methuen will now report the affair to the commander-in-chief, the Duke of Cambridge.

WAS THIS JACK THE RIPPER?

Thought That the Whitechapel Fiend's Identity Is Known at Last.

VIENNA, Sep. 30.—Szermedy, who killed himself in a Pressburg police station three days ago, is believed by the Pesth police to have been "Jack the Ripper." Originally he was a barber. While in the Argentine Republic Szermedy practiced surgery, and was imprisoned for killing a woman of the town. He spoke English fluently.

Six months ago, when he was in Pesth, the police and newspapers received numerous letters signed "Jack the Ripper." Szermedy wrote frequently for newspapers while he was in the Argentine Republic.

He was arrested in Pressburg for having killed the Vienna jewelers, Schuets and Lammel.

"Pharaoh" a Great Success.

LONDON, Sep. 30. — Wilson Barrett's "Pharaoh" was produced last night in the Grand Theatre in Leeds. The house was packed. In the words of the author, "Pharaoh" is intended to exhibit the ambitions of a man prepared to sacrifice to his ends even the woman he loves. She discovers his purpose and betrays him to his enemies. The play ends in grand tragedy. The production was an unqualified success.

FREE TRADE IMPOSSIBLE.

(From Grover Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance.)

We anticipate with calmness the misrepresentation of our motives and purposes, instigated by a selfishness which seeks to hold in unrelenting grasp its unfair advantage under present tariff laws. We will rely upon the intelligence of our fellow-countrymen to reject the charge that a party comprising a majority of our people is planning the destruction or injury of American interests; and we know they cannot be frightened by the specter of impossible free trade.

To-day he is a prominent delegate to the Foresters' convention.

Gone to Her Final Rest.

The Rev. Frederick Koechli, pastor of the German church, preached the funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. John Becker, jr., yesterday afternoon, and gave a short and touching history of her life. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck also gave words of comfort and encouragement to the bereaved ones. There was singing by members of the Gesang and Turn Verein; and the affecting hymns "Rock of Ages" and "Beyond the Weeping and the Smiling", were sung by Miss Holmes, Mrs. Henry Manning, E. E. Runyon and B. T. Barnes. The floral emblems were very handsome, and included a pillow from Plainfield lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. KEEPING UP THEIR CAMPAIGN WORK.

The Regular Meeting of the Cleveland and Stevenson Club to be Again Addressed by Able Speakers.

At the regular meeting of the Cleveland and Stevenson campaign club, next Monday evening, the Hon. William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, and George L. Record, of Jersey City, will be the speakers. These gentlemen are known throughout the State as bright and entertaining speakers. They will deal with the issues of the campaign, and every citizen of Plainfield, regardless of party, who wants to hear these issues presented in an able manner should be present.

The club is doing good work. Especially it aims to reach men who are voting this year for the first time, with the Democratic party for Cleveland and Stevenson. The roll is being constantly augmented, and anyone desiring to become a member of the club can do so by signing the constitution which may be found at the club's headquarters every Monday evening; or a request to the club's secretary, Noel Verrier, addressed to him at the club, authorizing him to sign the writer's name to the roll will accomplish the same purpose.

It is the duty of every citizen who wishes to aid in the cause of tariff reform to enroll himself as a member. The enthusiastic demonstration at the banner-raising last Saturday, compared with the apathy manifested at the recent Republican rally, evidences well for Democratic success in Plainfield this year. The end sought is the reduction of the Republican majority, and this end will be attained if every voter does his duty. At Monday night's meeting a light collation will be served.

Coroner's deputy McGrail impanelled a jury who, with coroner Hetfield, viewed the remains.

After viewing the remains, the jury adjourned to meet Monday, Oct. 3, at 10 a. m., at police headquarters, where testimony will be heard.

Patrick Keilly was twenty-one years old, and was the son of James and Honora Keilly. The funeral service will take place at his late residence, 336 Wall street, Elizabeth, at 7 Saturday morning, and later at St. Patrick's church. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, at Plainfield.

JOURNALISTIC ENTERPRISE.

FARMER—That was a stavin' paper you got out last week.

COUNTRY EDITOR—I'm glad to hear that you were pleased with it.

FARMER—Them stories you had in about them fellers bein' cured of long-standin' diseases, were the most entertainin' bit of news I've read for a long time.—Puck.

You'd believe in patent medicines if they didn't profess to cure everything.

And, you can't always tell the prescription that cures by what you read in the papers. So, perhaps, there's no better way to sell a remedy, than to tell the truth about it, and take the risk of its doing just what it professes to do.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a "cure-all," but is only adapted to those diseases peculiar to women. It fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a perfect specific for all chronic weaknesses, functional and painful disorders peculiar to the sex.

It's a powerful, invigorating tonic, and a soothing and strengthening nervine—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. For ulcerations, displacements, bearing-down sensations, unnatural discharges—everything that's known as a "female complaint"—it's a positive remedy.

OBITUARY.

Edwin Loomis.

The death of Edwin Loomis yesterday afternoon was a surprise and a shock to the community, although the deceased had been suffering for three months from an incurable heart trouble. For the past four days Mr. Loomis had been utterly unable to speak a word, but was conscious and able to recognize friends.

Mr. Loomis was a native of New York State, but had been a resident of Plainfield the past 13 yeats. He was a progressive citizen, and prominently identified with many public improvements. His activity in the real estate business was a great factor in the development of property. He was a member of the flourishing lumber firm of Loomis & Rice. His personal interest in the M. E. church was very great, and he was one of its most respected and trusted officers, being a member of the board of trustees.

He leaves a wife, a son, Clarence Albert aged 17, and a daughter aged 12. His own age was 41.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 12 Rockview avenue, Monday afternoon at 2.

CONFESSED THEIR GUILT.

The Two Fries Boys to be Sentenced by the Somerset Court.

Fritz and Philip Fries, whose arrest for the theft of ex-mayor Place's son's bicycle was recorded exclusively in these columns last evening, were given a hearing before borough magistrate Crosley last night. Fritz broke down, acknowledged his guilt, and turned State's evidence against Philip. The two lads were sent to Somerville to await the action of the court.

Somerset Council to Give a Ball.

The flourishing organization known as Somerset council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will give its first annual invitation ball next Tuesday evening, in the Crescent rink. More than seven hundred invitations have been issued. Music will be furnished by Guttman's full orchestra, and a good supper will be served. The arrangements are in the hands of Charles C. Lister, Joseph C. Martin, G. T. Dunham, James D. Anderson, George B. Allen and Fred. D. Welch.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years; I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

SAYS THE LIGHTS ARE BAD.

Dunellen's Newspaper Sharply Censures the North Plainfield Electric Company.

The Dunellen Weekly Call is very bitter against the Edison Electric Light company of North Plainfield. It says:

"Our electric lights are simply abominable and should be pulled down. Every merchant in town should take them out of his store or stop using them. This would have a tendency to freeze out these lights and then we might get better ones.

"The commissioners do n't seem to have the power to stop them or to make them better, so there remains no other way than for the merchant and consumer to take a hand in the game and freeze them out.

"Tuesday night, when the rain poured down in torrents and when lights even of an inferior class would have been a help to those who were obliged to travel through our streets, not a light was to be seen. Some strangers who happened to be in town that night, had to ask a gentleman to take them to the depot. But when the moon is shining brightly and there is little need for lights, every lamp would be lighted and would seem to be doing good service. This looks like a trick being played by the company, to make their lights appear to be a benefit to the place. They are not, however, and the Dunellen people know it too well."

A "Dazzling" Extravaganza With Pretty Shapes and Scenes.

A production of much merit is that which manager Demarest has engaged for next Monday evening at Music Hall. "Telephonia" in the title under which it travels and it is said to be an original extravaganza of dazzling brightness, an elaborate scenic production of a character that is calculated to please everybody. It is full of wholesome humor of a kind that is a sure cure for the blues, which while making the most sedate laugh could not offend the fastidious. From the pen of Lou Loubrie, esq., that clever young author, it abounds with startling situations, realistic scenic effects, its lines are bright and witty, its songs and choruses light and airy, possessing true musical merit, while the costumes that adorn the shapely women of the company are marvels of wealth and elegance. The scenery used in the production is the handiwork of Seavey, and on it the clever artist is said to have exhausted his best touches. It is all new, having been painted specially for this production. The curtain rises on a street scene in ancient Genoa, showing a bevy of pretty girls dressed in the grab of the people of that city. A noteworthy scene is the incantation and startling appearance of Telephona, the Genius of Kulumbus. There are 30 persons in the cast and among them are some of the most talented performers of the profession. Miss Cara Pryor, as Telephonia, and Miss Marie Bartlett, as Kulumbus, have parts that fit them as though built for them. Both ladies are considered among the most beautiful women of the stage.

A QUARTER OF A MILLION.

That's the Amount Demanded from the Estate to Which H. G. Runkle Is Heir.

At the term of Warren county court now in session at Belvidere, an important civil suit of great magnitude will be tried, in which a prominent Plainfield citizen is concerned. The case is against the estate of Daniel Runkle, late father of H. G. Runkle of this city. The action is based on a water-works contract in Peru, and the amount involved is $250,000. The local counsel in the case are ex-Congressman Harris and Prosecutor Stryker.

The Colored Cyclists' Championship.

The colored cyclists had a great time yesterday afternoon over their 15-mile road race from Scott's Press Works, through Fanwood and Scotch Plains. A large crowd witnessed the sport. Joe Bolden was first man in. His actual time was 55 minutes. Ed Martin was only one second behind him. Larry Thomas was third, and made best actual time by a few seconds. All of these won handsome medals. The racers did well, and made the event an interesting one.

Struck Dead by Lightning.

Mrs. George Lunger, of Cherryville, Hunterdon county, was instantly killed before the eyes of her husband during the terrible storm that raged through Northern New Jersey early Monday morning. She arose from her bed to close a window, and while standing at the window was struck by a lightning bolt. She died instantly. The electricity set fire to her nightrobe, but her husband extinguished the flames before her body was disfigured. She was a young bride, and her husband is frantic with grief.

Somerville's Disgraceful Playing.

(From the Harkinstown Unionist-Gazette.)

The Crescents were victorious on Saturday and won the game from the West Ends and captured the pennant of the Central New Jersey League. It was a disappointment to the Somerville people, but they had only to make the best of it. They had the satisfaction of knowing that out of seven games played with Plainfield they had won four. The West Ends made a good fight but lost by misfortune in the last two games.

The home team made a disgraceful exhibition of base-ball playing on Saturday. * * * Everyone feels that the pennant should have been ours, and that it loss is rather unusual luck on the part of Plainfield, rather than superior playing.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

THE SON OF AN INDIAN.

He and Many Other High Court Foresters Pay a Visit to Plainfield.

There are a number of good-looking strangers in town to-day. They are delegates to the High Court of New Jersey of the Independent Order of Foresters, which is holding its annual session in Firemen's Hall on Park avenue.

These delegates include representatives from courts on Staten Island. There is also in attendance Dr. Acland Oronyatekha, son of Supreme Chief Ranger Oronyatekha of Canada. The elder Oronyatekha, the founder of the order, is a full-blooded American Indian. When the Prince of Wales in 1861 visited Canada he was so impressed with an address by Oronyatekha that he directed the young Indian be educated under the care of the Prince's physician. Oronyatekha instituted the Independent Order of Foresters in 1874, at Newark, in this State. It has grown rapidly, and has to-day 45,000 members and a surplus fund of over $500,000. It is a beneficial insurance organization with special features not in any other society. In Elizabeth there are 1,000 members and four courts.

Young Oronyatekha is a Royal Forester and is present in uniform. He resembles his distinguished father in features and characteristics of an Indian.

This morning's session of the High Court was occupied with the reports of officers, appointment of committees, etc. High Chief Ranger T. B. Clark of Elizabeth presided.

Dr. Oronyatekha, as Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger, conferred the High Court degree on a number of delegates.

The High Chief Ranger's report showed an increase of 8 courts and 1,000 members in this jurisdiction since the last meeting.

At noon the delegates dined at the City Hotel. Sessions will be held this afternoon and evening. These will be open to subordinate members and there will probably be 200 present.

TELL HER TO WRITE IT "JUNIOR"

Otherwise Your Grim Dad May Get Your Letters from Arabella—Other Official Mailing News.

Instead of ten days, as heretofore, a postmaster is, by a new ruling of the department, authorized to hold unclaimed letters thirty days in the absence of specific instructions to the contrary from the writer. Unless you write or have printed upon your envelope the number of days you wish it to be held for the person addressed it will be held thirty days.

Formerly postal cards were not forwarded at all. But a new rule requires them to be forwarded now if the writer so requests in writing on the card. Unclaimed cards will also be returned to the writer without such a request. They are hereafter to be treated as first-class matter except in remote rural offices where the established practice of reading them will probably be continued by the postmistress.

As an act of courtesy to publishers of newspapers postmasters are authorized to notify them on official cards when subscribers change their address. But they are not allowed to do so at the request of any subscriber who may wish to thus save the postage and trouble involved in writing to the paper himself.

Business houses making their own cards render them subject to first-class postage by placing any printing whatever on the address side.

It is not generally known that when two men bear the same name any mail addressed to the name is presumed to be intended for the senior in the absence of any specific designation of the junior. That is considered the legal delivery in the department. So the youth of Plainfield would do well to caution their "best girls" accordingly.

The Campaign in Scotch Plains.

There will be a grand Democratic rally and ratification at Scotch Plains, last evening, with a banner raising, fireworks, band music and speech-making. The addresses were made in Excelsior hall where Judge McCormick presided. The rival candidates for congress, James Martine and John Dunn, spoke. Among those present were county attorney McClure, councilman Frazee and A. P. Hetfield of this city, assemblyman Lane of Summit, county clerk Crowell of Rahway and a large delegation from Westfield. Ex-postmaster Ritchie royally entertained all hands at his hospitable home.

A Great Hunt Next Saturday.

The members of the High School Athletic association have prepared for a great hare-and-hounds race for Saturday afternoon, starting from the school at 1:30. The hares will be John Kirkner, John Whiting and Oscar Campbell, and the hounds to hunt them will be all other members of the athletic association and such visitors as may care to join in the sport.

Free-Delivery Boxes for Plainfield.

Postmaster-general Wanamaker has issued the long-expected order authorizing the postmasters of free-delivery cities, towns, and rural communities to put up letter-boxes on the request of citizens for the collection and delivery of mail matter at the house doors. This order, it is said, affects nearly 3,000,000 residences throughout the country, to which free-delivery service is already extended, and it is regarded by postal experts as the most important innovation to the free-delivery system since its establishment. Postmaster Pope will have one of the new boxes on exhibition soon.

Old Veterans to Meet in Plainfield.

The next annual encampment of the New Jersey Association of Union ex-Prisoners of War will be held in this city, Thursday, October 13. Notices have been sent out asking Grand Army Posts to send all the names of ex-prisoners of war in their respective localities, that they may be personally invited.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

SEAL INDUSTRY RUINED

Depredations of British Poachers Killed the Business.

AMERICANS INCRIMINATED ALSO.

An Attempt to Establish Lotteries in New York and Chicago—The President Will Not Attend the Dedicatory Exercises at Chicago Unless Mrs. Harrison's Condition Permits.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 30.—A San Francisco dispatch says that the Russian sealer Kotick has arrived from Petropaulovsky with 38,000 skins for the Russian American Sealskin Company. Among the passengers was N. A. Grebinbtzky, Governor of Copper, Behring and Robbin Islands. He is on his way to St. Petersburg to report on depredations of British sealers.

"Sealers have almost ruined the rookeries on Copper, Behring and Robbin Island," said Governor Grebinbtzky. "This year about 30,000 seals were taken, and next year, if 20,000 are caught, it will mean almost death to the industry.

"Six English schooners and one American schooner were seized, and of the skins on board 96 per cent. were females. The chances are that all the seals were heavy with young, so you can easily see how the islands are being ruined as sealing stations.

"When we were at Petropaulovsky the following schooners were there, having been seized in the vicinity of Copper Islands: Willie McGowan, Rose Olsen, Vancouver, Belle Ariel, Maria and C. H. White. Nearly all the poaching this year was done by British sealers. I think that not less than 60 British poachers were around Copper, Behring and Robbin Islands."

ALLEGED LOTTERIES.

Companies Said to Have Been Formed in New York and Chicago.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 30.—The attention of the Postoffice Department officials has been called to an attempt to establish a company similar to the Montana Mining, Loan & Investment Company in New York and Chicago. The Montana scheme was one to evade the Anti-lottery law, and the chief promoter of the concern, H. L. Hampt of Butte City, Mont., will be tried in the United States Court of Montana at the November term.

Acting Assistant Attorney General Haynes of the Postoffice Department in a communication to the Postmaster General says that he will make an examination into the attempt to locate such establishments in New York and Chicago, and if the schemes should be of the same character as the Montana case he will recommend proper action to meet the emergency.

MRS. HARRISON STRONGER.

She Obtains Considerable Sleep, and Is Much Better Than When at Loon Lake.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 30.—Dr. Gardner, after visiting Mrs. Harrison this morning, said she was slightly stronger, that she had rested easily during the night, and felt refreshed from the sleep she obtained.

The usual liquid nourishment was given her.

It is thought around the White House that the patient is better than when she left Loon Lake, but whether the rally will be permanent, none venture an opinion.

The President is attending to some business now and matters have a brighter look.

Depends Upon Mrs. Harrison's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 30.—It is stated at the White House this morning that the report that the President had officially decided to attend the dedicatory ceremonies at the World's Columbian Exposition is incorrect. The President has not authorized any one to make any such statement. It is said, however, that his proposed visit is contingent upon Mrs. Harrison's condition.

The Case Better Than the Likeness.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 30.—A pencil sketch of President Harrison, made on a shirt cuff of the artist while the President attended service at the First Presbyterian Church of Galveston, Tex., April 19, 1891, has been received at the White House from the artist, Henry Graham of New Orleans. The cuff is enclosed in a handsome plush case. The case, it is said, is better than the likeness.

Big Photographic Works Burned.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sep. 30.—The photographic establishment of Alfred S. Campbell was destroyed last evening by fire. The establishment was the largest of its kind in the country. All photographs given away by cigarette manufacturers were made at this place. During the progress of the fire a fireman named Van Fleet was buried under the falling walls and seriously injured.

More Troops Leave Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sep. 30.—Four companies of the Sixteenth Regiment, who have been in active service here for the past 80 days, returned to their homes yesterday. This is just half of the regiment. The other four companies will remain here until Gen. Wiley thinks it will be advisable to withdraw the entire military force.

Neuralgia Drove Him to Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, Sep. 30.—An investigation was made by Coroner Ashbridge into the suicide of John W. Danielly, aged 55 years, who fired two bullets into his stomach while sitting in a pew of the East Baptist church. He was a severe sufferer from neuralgia, which frequently drove him frantic.

Gets $20,000 Damages.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sep. 30.—In the Superior Court Henry L. Pfeffer has just secured a verdict of $20,000 against the Buffalo Street Railway Company. During last spring Pfeffer was run over by a trolley car and had to have both feet amputated.

Murdered at Sea.

NEW YORK, Sep. 30.—Private advices received from Cape Town state that Captain Buckly and his wife of the bark William Hales, which left New York July 11 for Cape Town, were murdered at sea.

Liquor Licenses in the Borough.

Zeller & Shaffer of North Plainfield, successors of Charles Graeder, were granted a wholesale license by the court at Somerville Tuesday. The application of Robert VanDorn for a hotel license in Bernardsville was laid over till Monday, as was also the applications for saloon licenses of Thomas Riley, Bound Brook; Eugene Wright, Bernardsville, and Michael J. Honan, Raritan.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, cobbs in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid nor a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50 cents.

A Great Day Fair.

Once, at an evening party, Mr. Gladstone, attempting to make himself agreeable, it is to be presumed, said to a pretty, bright-eyed girl of seventeen or eighteen summers, and distinguished for her beauty and accomplishments in the circle of her admirers:

"Pray, Miss Blank, can you tell me how love begins?"

And she instantly replied, with a merry twinkle and a smile:

"Why, with L, of course;" thus discomfiting the distinguished scholar and statesman.—Once a Week.

A Labor Sketch.

"Jenny," called out Mrs. Wilson to her beautiful daughter upstairs: "I've got the washing ready for you to hang out."

Then Miss Jenny put aside the novel she was reading, rolled up the sleeves from her lovely white arms, and going downstairs filled her pretty mouth with clothes pins and hung out the clothes, just as young McGarrigan went by to his dinner.

The engagement will be duly announced in these columns.—Detroit Free Press.

An Heroic Remedy.

He—You know every one is saying that I am going to marry her for her money, and I feel so badly about it. Can't you suggest some way of stopping people's tongues?

She (thoughtfully)—There's only one way I can think of at present.

He (eagerly)—What is that?

She—You might break off the engagement.—Brooklyn Life.

A Liberal Tip.

"Don't I get a tip?" asked the barber, after he had finished cutting the tall man's hair.

"What for?" asked the tall man.

"Why, for taking such good care of you. Gentlemen generally give me something."

FORTY MILLIONS FOR FUN.

That Is the Amount Invested in Chicago "Side Shows."

Three Great Spectacles—Abbey's "American" at the Auditorium—"Columbus" at Bailey's and the Eldorado—The Passion Play.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

CONSERVATIVE estimates place the investment in amusement enterprises for Chicago during the world's fair at $40,000,000. Enthusiasts in the Garden City fix the sum at $80,000,000. But this seems to be a rather wild exaggeration. Still the capitalization of amusement projects at Springfield alone has already mounted into the millions, and much of money this will come from New York.

Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau's spectacle at the Auditorium, Steele Mackaye's enterprise on the world's fair grounds, the Eldorado of Weehawken, the Sousa monster orchestra enterprise, the "Hippodromes," the Passion Play and Pain's fireworks will all lie backed by eastern money, and lots of it.

"In fact," said Mr. Schoeffel to me, "it will be a great Coney Island, with amusements big and little on all sides, with the greatest entertainments this country has ever seen and with probably more attractions outside than inside the fair."

Theatrical managers, east and west, have simply gone Chicago-mad. They are paying tremendous prices for privileges, big sum, for centrally located property, and they seem to give no heed whatever to the fact that July, August and September, the great months of the fair, are conducive to anything but indoor amusements. The latest of the enterprises is a contract to transplant the Eldorado to Chicago. I am told that the capitalization is something like two million and a half, that the grounds have already been selected and that the buildings will be an exact reproduction of those at Weehawken, castle, casino, fountain, lights, amphitheater and all.

"We will have two enterprises in Chicago from May to October, and the first will be the spectacle 'America,' at the Auditorium," said Mr. Schoeffel to me. "The play there will be arranged by Imre Kiralfy, and he has carte blanche as to expense. The Schaefer family, of Vienna, to-day the most marvelous performers in the world, are under contract to appear in the spectacle. So is Sandow, the strong man, and we are closing contracts every week with star performers in the capitals of Europe."

The Passion Play seems to be an assured fact. I am told that the incorporation of the company at Springfield late in June was followed almost immediately by the signing of contracts with all the great Oberammergau players. The syndicate is represented in Europe by Franz Janner, director of the Imperial opera house at Vienna, and his first contract was with Joseph Myer, who personated the Saviour at Oberammergau. All the others have been signed on condition that the $80,000 guaranteed them be placed in bank to the order of a third responsible party. This, too, has been done, and it is now the intention to have all the original costumes and scenery brought here, and an amphitheater will be constructed especially for the production. Even the hotel accommodations for the 233 Bavarian peasants who are to produce the play are engaged.

I had a chat with one of the New York gentlemen interested in the Chicago Hippodrome Company the other day, and he informed me that matters in connection with the enterprise were progressing splendidly. "We are investing $2,500,000 and will have a greater hippodrome than the best and most famous of Europe. In fact, the star Paris performers are under contract with us, and will be here at the formal opening next May."

There is still some talk of transferring the Paris hippodrome complete to the "Libby Prison" grounds in Chicago, and it is possible that that enterprise will yet be carried into effect.

The First regiment armory is now giving way to Weil & Lederer's immense new theater, and I understand that Dr. Ziegfeld has secured the Meininger orchestra as one of its prime attractions.

So much has been said of Steele Mackaye's great enterprise on the world's fair ground that I can add but little of interest. Mr. Mackaye has not yet finished the play which is to be produced there and simply announces that it will be on a grander scale than has ever been attempted in the world of amusements on either side of the Atlantic.

When John Philip Sousa, of the Marine band, left Washington to accept the leadership of the new Chicago orchestra, musical critics announced that popular music would not be lacking, and in this they are probably correct. He will be a formidable rival to Theodore Thomas, whose orchestra is also to be greatly enlarged. Then there are vague reports that Gilmore will give up a season at Manhattan Beach and transfer his orchestra to Chicago for the summer. I heard also that the only Gilmore intended to take one hundred New York musicians with him.

The Digby Bell opera company will furnish its share of light opera at Hooley's, and two new operettas are to be produced in addition to "Jupiter" heard recently that they had each secured a Chicago theater for at least part of the season.

CYRIL TYLER.

The fireworks spectacles will be in full swing. Both Pain and Brock have secured grounds, paying enormous prices, I understand, for the privileges, and will continue the rivalry which has been so notable at Brighton and Manhattan this season. Both are preparing a Columbian spectacle, and Mr. Pain is arranging to tell the story of the discovery of America in pyrotechnics, to be followed by a historical representation of the great American wars, all pictured in great masses of variegated fire.

Augustin Daly's Shakespearean revival in Chicago will be no mean feature of the great fair. With Ada Rehan and his magnificent company he will produce almost all of the comedies with superb scenic adjuncts.

And then the circus! Bailey will be there with his $8,000,000 show, and he says he will simply eclipse the world's fair itself. His spectacular play is to be under the direction of Bolossy Kiralfy, and will be an opposition to Imre's at the Auditorium. Bailey says he will have a spectacle in which 2,000 people will participate. So, with Francioli and his Eldorado produced on a more magnificent scale even than at Weehawken, Imre Kiralfy's "America" at the Auditorium, and Bolossy Kiralfy's "Columbia" in the circus, Chicago will have its fill of spectacular.

But these are only drops in the oceans of pleasure that will deluge visitors to the fair. Incidentally I might add that Edgar Strakosch will be there with his boy wonder, the young soprano who is to set New York wild this fall. His name is Cyril Tyler, and he is eleven years old. Edgar will have him out for the first time at Palmer's toward the close of this month. And as I have heard him sing, I can add a word of tribute to his remarkable powers. The coloratur aria from David's "La Perle de Bresil" was sung with all the feeling of a Capoul, and Schumann's "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume" was absolutely "Pattiesque." Now Edgar is praying that the boy's voice won't change, at least, until after the world's fair.

Ancient Egyptian Tools.

The pride of the people of the present age, based upon the belief that we have out-stripped the old world in the arts and sciences, receives another shock. A man whose desire for the truth led him to spend two years in a tomb at Gizeh, Egypt, is said to have secured evidence which proves that 4,000 years ago tools used in cutting stone had jeweled edges, similar to those used at the present day. Solid and tubular tools were used by the builders of the pyramids, and saws, which were supposed to be modern, were used in those days, both straight and circular. There was evidence in some pieces of granite that a drill had sunk one-tenth of an inch at every revolution, and that the pressure to accomplish this must have been at least two tons. It is suggested that as diamonds were exceedingly rare in those days, perhaps corundum was used as points for the tools.—Boston Journal.

HOW TO MANAGE A WIFE.

Men Who Ought to Know Relate Interesting Experiences.

Howard Fielding and Maude—Opie Read Thinks It Ought to Be Done Quietly—Bill Arp Wants to Know If It's a Joke on Him.

[COPYRIGHT, 1892.]

A gentleman who deeply needed the information and who also knew where to go for it, has asked me how to manage a wife. He could not have asked a better man. For whether Maude and I have done well or ill, the responsibility has been wholly mine. My wife has been absolutely under my control.

Few other men can say this; for in order to be able to say it a man must be a good liar by nature, and one who has never let himself get out of training. But in my case it is the truth. It is always a man's fault if his wife doesn't suit him. He should mold her character and disposition in accordance with his wishes. It is wonderful how great an influence we can have upon those with whom we are intimately associated in this vale of tears. I made this discovery early in life.

ONLY A FACE IN THE SMOKE.

There is nothing so much like matrimony as "chumming" with a fellow at college. My chum was full of faults. For instance, he used to lose all his money at poker instead of buying furniture for the room. This practice would have endangered our friendship, but I rose to the occasion. I reformed him. In three months he was a steady winner and we had a velvet carpet on the floor and pictures on the wall.

It is selfishness, perhaps, which leads a wise man to modify those with whom he comes in contact in such a way that they will be more agreeable to him, but although that method may be called by so hard a name I must recommend it earnestly. Just how I have done it is a secret which I shall presently divulge for the benefit of any bachelor who may be trembling on the brink of matrimony.

Most men fail to realize how important is this matter of modifying, by well directed effort, the nature of a wife. Some men think of a wife only as a person to whom one can transfer his property and keep it away from his creditors; or as a person from whom one can transfer her property to himself, and keep it away from the bargain counters. These views are superficial; the character is the thing.

In the first place I found Maude colorless. She lacked any well defined character. (N. B.—Friends are requested not to order floral tributes on account of these words. I shall escape.) I encouraged her to be more truly a typical woman. I wanted her to be stupid, and make all sorts of funny blunders, just as any other woman does. I did not wish her to be too clear in her mind. It is a great mistake. Never let your wife be too clear in her mind. She might take a day off and meditate on her husband, and never have any sort of an opinion of him afterward. When she is threatened with anything of that sort buy her a memorandum book, and let her keep track of the household expenses. In three days she will show you more funny places in the multiplication table than there are in all the variety shows of a season, and it will teach her not to overestimate her own importance. When she tries to pay nine people three dollars apiece out of seventeen dollars, which you gave her on Saturday night, she will realize how small a human being is in comparison with the great and everlasting truths of mathematics.

But Maude and I have never quarreled about money matters. I have made her comfortable and happy on a salary which some might consider good, but which, in comparison with the workman's merit, is the smallest that has been paid since Jacob worked fourteen years for a wife.

Maude is merry most of the time, because I make her so; but once in awhile, when nobody sees her but me, she comes in softly—when I am smoking, perhaps, and letting my fancies wander—and she lays her hand upon my shoulder and looks up at me with a sweet, smiling face. She is most to my liking at such times. But whatever she may be, she will be mine. I "manage" her absolutely, for she is only a creature of my imagination, a character in my stories. I am not married.

Sometimes I wish I were; and then, again, for her sake, I'm glad it isn't true. HOWARD FIELDING.
